RIVERS OF NORTH STILL HIGH; DAMAGE CAUSED VERY HEAVY

Some Recessions Noted in Streams of Algoma District.

PAPER MILL FLOODED.

Ottawa and Gatineau River Floods Endanger Town of Gatineau Point.

Little recession in the flood waters which have caused considerable damand taken five lives in Northern Ontario during the past few days, was reported to-day.

The water in the Mississauga River dropped 9 inches on Tuesday night, but rose again yesterday, and has maintained its high level ever since. The Thessalon River is still in flood, but no damage is reported in its lower reaches. The flood is subsiding on the Goulais River at Searmont, and from other points along the Algoma Central it is reported that high water is receding.

On the other hand the Spanish River is on a rampage at Espanola and the water has risen about seveneen feet above normal. Operations at the mill of the Spanish River pulp and paper mills consequently have had to be curtailed The Little White and Sauble Rivers are still running high.

The Ottawa and Gatineau Rivers showed no signs of receding to-day. Fear is expressed for the safety of the town of Gatineau Point at the junction of the Gatineau and Ottawa Rivers as the gates of dams higher up the river are opened to relieve the pressure on them. The bursting of dams and the flooding of mills and homes will result in considerable monetary loss, placed by some at more than a hundred thousand dollars.

OTTAWA, May 10 (Canadian Press).—The water levels of Ottawa and Gatineau rivers continued to creep upwards to-day. The reading at the foot of the Rideau Locks was 2½ feet above normal. Things look serious for Gatineau Point at the junction of the two rivers. Accustomed as the residents are to floods, fears are expressed as conditions are expected to grow worse. With many houses at either end of the village already flooded, the gates of the dam at Chelsea were further opened today and this will, in a few hours, move up the levels at the mouth of the Gatineau River.

Up river points on the Ottawa also bring no indications of relief. At Pembroke, the river is higher than at any time since 1876 and while the damage so far has not been serious, it will suffer severely if it goes much higher.

PLANTS INUNDATED.

OTTAWA, Ont., May 10 (Canadian Press). — At noon the waters thundering over the Chaudiere Falls and in that vicinity of the Ottawa River had inundated sections of the J. R. Booth and the Eddy Pulp and Paper and Match Mills, and 150 workmen were temporarily thrown out of employment through the subsequent closing down of the plants. Three paper machine plants of the Eddy Company had to be closed owing to the inundation, and fifty workers were laid off. Part of the Booth saw mill was under water, and one hundred employees were forced to cease their labors.

EVANGELIST STAYS HERE OVER SUNDAY

William Matheson Will Preach at Two Services at Bethany Tabernacle.

Evangelist William Matheson, who is in Peterborough this week, has been prevailed upon to extend his stay in the city over Sunday, and will occupy the pulpit of Bethany Tabernacle at both services on Sunday next. Mr. Matheson held meetings in Bethany Tabernacle several years ago, which were rich in spiritual blessing, and helpful to the many who are still walking in the blessing of a new-found life in Jesus. Mr. Matheson's close touch with men of all classes in his mission work in Toronto and London, Ontario, has given him an insight into their heart needs, and an interest in their spiritual well-being that qualifies him to talk with conviction and appeal to Christians everywhere.

HOLD-UP SUSPECTS REMANDED A WEEK

TORONTO, May 10. Canadian Press, — Arrested at Brantford yesterday, three men were charged in police court here to-day with armed robbery of two employees of the Reid and Brown Company here on Saturday in which a payroll of eighteen hundred dollars was stolen. Upon the request of the Crown Attorney they were remanded until May 17.

Floating Island Washed Up On Shore

TRENT RIVER, May 10.—About half an acre of marsh land which came down the canal a few weeks ago during a terrific wind and landed at E. H. Fairbrother's shore at his summer cottage, is still there. Part of the land broke away and went through the small bridge near this resort, causing the supports of the bridge to give away. There are several groups of tag alder trees on this land and quantities of pussy willows. This has been the means of making the shore at this place an unsightly condition, as all kinds of debris have been thrown up on the land.

Mr. Fairbrother, who was down from Toronto for the week-end has not decided what can be done about it. The water at this place has flooded the pasture land where Joseph Doupe pastured his cows.

Mr. Campbell said a statement might be made on Saturday.

BRAZILIAN FLIER PLANNING FLIGHT

Commander de Barnes Hopes To Fly From Berlin to New York.

WINNIPEG, May 10.— (Canadian Press.)— Early in July, Commander De Barnes, twently-six year old chief of the Brazilian Air Force ,expects to attempt his Berlin to New York airplane flight in a machine designed by himself which is under construction in Germany at the present time. The young Brazilian, who has many notable flights to his credit, including one from Genoa to Brazil in 1926, passed through Winnipeg last night en route to Europe after a trip to the Orient. Commander De Barnes stated that his plane, in which are incorporated many entirely new ideas in airplane construction, will be ready for test flights within a month. He will attempt a trans-Atlantic flight to New York alone.

TICKETS ON SALE BY BALL PLAYERS

'Now Fawncy That' To Be Given in Aid of Senior Baseball Club.

Tickets for "Now Fawncy That," the show to be given by the Dramatic Society of the Church of the Immaculate Conception in the Grand Opera House to secure funds to buy new uniforms for the Peterborough Ball Club, are in the hands of players and officers of the club, and a brisk sale is already reported. This condition is not surprising. In the first place the performance itself is regarded as one of the best amateur shows that has been given in Peterborough, and is warmly praised by all who have seen it. And in the second, the fans are right behind the ball club because of their fine showing last season when they won the Lakeshore championship, defeated Toronto's representatives in the Senior series and came within an ace of winning the Ontario title. There is a great revival of interest in baseball throughout Eastern Ontario this season, and Peterborough is experiencing a taste of the excitement, showing much more than the usual pre-season interest in the Petes. This feeling will doubtless be reflected in a heavy demand for tickets for next Wednesday's show.

Don't fail to see "Now Fawncy That" for its own sake and because in so doing you will help the ball club to get away to a flying start.

Railway tickets may be bought in England on the instalment plan.

Annual Sucker Hunt Is Held At Westwood

WESTWOOD, May 10.—The annual sucker hunt was held on Tuesday in the Ouse river at Welbeck farm. Ideal weather favored the occasion, and the usual large crowd of people from the neighboring towns and villages was present.

The suckers proved to equal any past records in size and quantity, huge sackfuls being stowed away in cars. Boys of all ages, as well as older men armed with long forks and fishing nets waded in the river and waged war with the fish. Those who preferred remaining on dry land were generously served with suckers, flung from the forks of those in the water.

Several cameras were busy securing snapshots of the exciting scene for future pleasure and amusement.

TWO PLAYLETS ARE PRESENTED

St. John's A.Y.P.A. Prepares For Annual District Contest.

"THE RED LAMP" BEST.

Under the skilful direction of W. E. Massey-Cooke, two very bright one-act plays of a farce-comedy type were presented in St. John's Parish Hall last evening, by members of the A.Y.P.A. of the church. These were given in preparation for the forthcoming amateur dramatic contest staged by the A.Y.P.A. branches of the district every year, and were judged on their respective merits by three gentlemen of the church who prefer to remain anonymous in the matter. Of the two playlets, "The Red Lamp" was considered the better, with its competitor, "The Obstinate Family,' a close second. Judgment was given for characterization, enunciation, and deportment, the type of play offered having nothing to do with the decision. A special bouquet of flowers was given to the best actor in each of the plays. these being won by Miss Florence Hutchinson and Miss Rose Puddick.

"The Red Lamp," which proved the winner, was of a popular type, involving a good deal of mysterious interest in its unfolding. It dealt with the adventures of a Peruvian lamp which was endowed with miraculous powers and was brought to this country and placed in a home whose occupants were ignorant of its effects. A maiden aunt, her niece and nephew, a burglar, an admirer of the niece, and a maid, all became involved in separate attempts to use the lamp as a signal, and the resulting adventures made for plenty of amusement for the onlookers.

"The Obstinate Family" dealt with a mix-up involving an entire household. after the affair had been started by an obstinate maid, who refused to say: "Thank goodness, the table is spread," on the request of the butler. The infection of obstinacy spread later to a pair of newly-weds and to the parents of the bride, all of whom have obstinate moments. The young husband effects the final smoothingout of the disagreements.

The settings for the two plays, which were announced by the chairman, Rev. Dr. Blagrave, were very appropriate, with a living-room set for "The Red Lamp," and a dining-room for "The Obstinate Family." The A.Y.P.A. of St. John's Church are fortunate in the possession of some interchangeable interior scenery which is very convenient.

The cast for "The Obstinate Family" was as follows: Mr. Harwood (Bert Hayter), Mrs. Harwood (Mary Thornton), Henry Harford (Bert Austin), Jessie Harford, his wife (Isabel Thirnbeck), James, the butler (Ted Rigby), and Lucy, the maid (Rose Puddick).

For "The Red Lamp," the cast was composed of the following: Matilda Derring, the aunt (Florence Hutchinson), Alice Derring, her niece (Margaret Guthrie), Harold Derring, her nephew (Jack Pritchard), Archie Clark, the admirer of Alice (Herbert McFee), Bill Worth, the burglar (Bert Graham), Annie O'Shane, the maid (Winifred Melton).

During the intermission, musical selections were played by Jack Marshall's orchestra.

According to information received by the police, the couple were alone in Roberson's room in the hotel, with the window closed. A passerby suddenly heard a crash of broken glass and saw the man and the woman fall through the window together and plunge to the pavement below. The police are endeavoring to solve the mystery of the fatal plunge.

RESIGNATION OF STEWART ASKED BY OIL MAGNATE

Requested Because of Recent Testimony Before Senate Oil Committee.

AUTHORIZED TWO NOTES.

John D. Rockefeller, Jr., Lost Confidence in Stewart's Leadership.

NEW YORK, May 10. Canadian Press. — The resignation of Colonel Robert W. Stewart, chairman of the board of the Standard Oil Company of Indiana, has been requested by John D. Rockefeller, Jr., because of Col Stewart's recent testimony before the Senate committee investigating oil reserve leases.

Mr. Rockefeller previously had received from Colonel Stewart a promise to resign whenever such a request was made.

The following statement was authorized by Mr. Rockefeller:

"On April 27, I wrote Colonel Robert Stewart, chairman of the board of the Standard Oil Company of Indiana, the following letter:

"'Dear Colonel Stewart:

"'Your recent testimony before the Senate committee leaves me no alternative other than to ask you to make good the promise you voluntarily gave me some weeks ago, that you would resign at my request. That request I now make.

"'Very truly

"'John D. Rockefeller, Jr.'

"On April 30, I wrote again as follows:

"'Dear Colonel Stewart:

"'Mr. Soubert has told me that in the course of the conversation you had with him after the receipt of my letter to you of the 27th instant, mention was made as to the possibility of a special meeting of the stockholders of the Standard Oil Company of I diana being called so that they might all have an opportunity to express themselves in regard to your suggested resignation. If this plan is to be followed I have no doubt that you will have the thirty-day call issued at once and that you will wish to write me that this has been done.

"'Very truly,

"'John D. Rockefeller Jr.'

"I have taken the above action because I have lost confidence in Col Stewart's leadership and believe that the interests of the Standard Oil Company of Indian can now best be served by his resigning. This action should not be construed as a prejudgment on my part as to the issues involved in the legal proceedings now pending."

Algoma District Is Flooded By Waters

S. S. MARIE, Ont., Canadian Press. — Reports filtering in from outlying sections of the district show that high water is the rule still in nearly all the streams of the Algoma district, though in some places the peak seems to have been reached over the weak-end.

The Mississagi, Little White, Spanish and Sauble Rivers, are still running high and section of the road near them are impassable because of the flood waters.

In the last few days two dams have gone out on the upper waters of the Thessalon River, one at Carpenter Lake and one at Rock Lake and that stream is high, overflowing its banks in many places. In the Rock Lake section the Boxwood drive has had to be held up as the floods were carrying the logs over the farmers' fields. At Popular Dale the government road is impassable except for canoes or rafts, and the school had to be closed, as the pupils could not reach it.

Seeding throughout that area has been delayed as a result of the recent rains.

SUSPENSION OF $80.00 GRANT IS DISCUSSED

Salvation Army Differences With Immigration Authorities Aired Before Board.

PASSAGE FOR EACH BOY.

Grant Shared Equally Between the Canadian and British Governments.

OTTAWA, Ont., May 10 (Canadian Press). — Salvation Army differences with the Canadian immigration authorities were heard before the immigration inquiry yesterday. Suspension by the Department of Immigration last year of the grant of $80.00 shared with the British Government for the passage of each boy immigrant was the chief feature of discussion.

Colonel Owen Culsham, London, England, private secretary to Commissioner Lambe, told the committee that the Salvation Army had been receiving a grant of $80.00 on account of the passage to Canada of each boy immigrant on a fifty-fifty contributory basis between the Canadian and British Governments. Certain grants were also received from the Australian Government, from the British Government, and from subscribers in the Old Country. This money was used in part for the training of boys at a camp at Hadleigh, England.

"While you were getting $80.00 on account of each boy, what were you asking the boys to repay to you for the training which you had given him?" inquired Hon. J. C. Edwards (Cons., Frontenac-Addington).

"It depended on the part of Canada to which he went," replied Col. Culsham. In no case, however, did the amount of the payment exceed $100.00. Payments were spread over a period of two years; and if by the end of that time the boy was unable to pay the money, it was "wiped off." Objection had been made by the Department to the collection of this money from boy immigrants, and the

The little Argentine professional, who has had a gallery with him ever since his splendid play in the qualifying round, again got rousing cheers from the Sandwich crowd which surged about him all the way.

Around the City

A Modern Cinderella is the interesting title of a play to be presented by the Wohelo Club at the Y.W.C.A. on Friday evening. The setting of the play is an exclusive school where Cinderella O'Brien, the cook's daughter, is being allowed by the Principal, Mrs. Mitford to attend, much to the disgust of the other girls.

Cinderella, however, discovers the plot of the seniors and is able to help capture the senior banner which gives juniors full privileges of seniors for the year and so becomes the heroine of the play.

The sixteen girls in the cast all have interesting parts to play and take their parts well. The stage settings are very pretty and altogether this play promises to be one of the most interesting of the season.

Ball Of Fire Travelling Across Heavens Mystifies Residents Of Northern Ontario

NORTH BAY, Ont., May 10 (Canadian Press).—Travelling at a tremendous velocity a ball of fire plunged out of the heavens on Monday evening about 8 o'clock and buried itself somewhere in the sparsely settled district about twenty miles from Matheson

Yesterday rumors came out of the north to the effect that a forestry plane had been forced down in flames. These rumors came from widely separated points such as Kirkland Lake, Ramore, Bourkes and Dane. While several people reported to have seen a plane flying at different places along the T. and N. O. lines, these could not be authenticated here, and the belief prevails that the supposed flaming plane was in reality a meteor.

In conversation with the North Bay Nugget, C. A. Covey, station agent at Dane, said that several persons had seen the supposed falling plane.

C. A. Poynton, a Toronto mining engineer, stated that he had taken a bearing on the flaming mass as it fell, and concluded that the spot where it came to earth would be about twenty degrees east of north, as shown on Moysey's map of the Kirkland Lake area.

An official of the forestry branch here asserted that no forestry planes are operating in the north, because many of the rivers and lakes of the north are still icebound.

The plane made a perfect landing.

Captain Loewenstein left the field immediately for his hotel, where he rejoined the remainder of his party who travelled here from Montreal by train.

The noted capitalist and Mrs. Loewenstein had dinner yesterday evening with Premier Mackenzie King.

WAR OUTLAWRY PACT APPROVED

Chamberlain and MacDonald Speak in Favor of United States' Proposals.

RELATIONS IMPROVED.

LONDON, May 10. — Canadian Press. — Sir Austen Chamberlain, secretary of the Foreign Office, speaking in the House of Commons to-day concerning the Kellogg outlawry of war proposals, said that the British government not only warmly welcomed the initiative of the United States, but was hopeful that it would be successfully concluded and would make a real contribution to world peace.

Sir Austen's statement followed remarks by Ramsay MacDonald, Labor leader ,who supported the Kellogg proposals. "Our attitude towards this note is going to have a very considerable influence in Anglo-American relations," Mr. MacDonald said. "Nobody who has been in America recently or has followed the American press will deny that these relations are not quite as good as they ought to be."

SAFETY COMMITTEE PLANS PUBLICITY

Posters, Radio, Movies, and Newspapers To Be Used in Campaign.

TORONTO, May 10. — At the meeting of the executive of the Highway Safety Committee held in Parliament Buildings on Tuesday, a number of important points in connection with the forthcoming safety campaign in Ontario were decided upon. The committee this year will approach all companies employing motor drivers to see if some plan cannot be evolved by which drivers who go through the year without accident will be rewarded.

It was definitely decided that every garage and filling station in the province will carry a poster reminding all automobile drivers of the committee's now famous Seven Rules for Safety. In addition, another poster in the same places will remind all drivers to make certain that brakes, steering gear and headlights are in proper condition.

The Committee will again use radio talks and motion pictures to impress safety lessons wherever possible. It was decided that an extensive advertising campaign should be begun in all the daily papers of the province and in other publications. This campaign will begin May 24. All members of the executive were present at the meeting, and the Minister, Hon. George S. Henry, presided.

INTERESTS OF AGRICULTURE BEING NEGLECTED BY BANKS

Guiness Tells London Commons in Agricultural Credits Bill Debate.

OPPOSE TENANT SYSTEM.

Money Could Be Raised By Issuing Debentures in Stock Market.

LONDON, May 10. — (Canadian Press Cable.) — Moving the second reading of the Agricultural Credits Bill which provides for the ministry of agriculture advancing money to a company formed to make loans on mortgages on farm lands for agricultural purposes, Lieut.-Col. Hon. Walter Guiness, Minister of Agriculture, declared in the house of commons yesterday afternoon that the banking system of Great Britain undoubtedly had neglected the interests of the agricultural industry.

Unlike their opponents, he said, the government still beleieved that the landlord and tenant system was the best. The problem was how to deal with cases where transfer of land to the occupier was necessary. The government wanted to give the occupier access to farm supplies on the most favorable terms and they wished to make available funds for intermediate credit. A corporation with which the government would arrange to lend money on a mortgage secured on land or improvements would be formed, and the great banks, led by the Bank of England, had arranged to pay up to £650,000.

Issue Debentures.

Col. Guiness paid a high tribute to the disinterested patriotic action of the banks in locking up their capital in this manner and proceeded to explain that £650,000 was far too little to meet long term needs of British agriculture. Moneys needed, therefore would be raised by means of debentures issued in the money market which will be deal in on the stock exchange and would enable the farmer to tap a new reservoir of credits. The government hoped that a large new source of credit would be thus made available.

The bill will also enable farmers and agricultural co-operative societies to secure advances by creating a charge on their stocks and crops or other assets.

The measure received second reading by a vote of 223 to 106.

Many Claims Staked In New Gold Fields

S. S. Marie, Ont., May 10. — Eighteen claims have been staked lately west of Dalton, in Township 26, range 25 near the Doyle group, and also near the group recently staked by James Wood. The Dalton field has been attracting considerable attention since gold was discovered there a short time ago. J. A. McEachers of Dayton, has recorded the staking of nine claims in Gould township, not far from the Cheney mine, which is now being opened up by Sudbury Basin.

These two fields seem to bid fair to be centres of considerable activity during the coming summer. At Goudreau the prospectors and claim owners are only waiting for the snow to disappear from the bush to commence the year's activities. It is thought that in another week the ground will be pretty well clear.

The construction of the camps on the Kozak property has been completed and work there is now awaiting the arrival of engineers.

LITTLE CHANGE IN UNEMPLOYED

List at Local Office Remains Fairly Stationary—Men and Jobs Don't Agree.

FARM HELP WANTED.

The number of names of unemployed men on the lists at the Peterborough Employment Bureau showed only a slight if any decrease during the past couple of weeks according to officials in this department. The reason may be advanced that there is not employment, but the real trouble seems to be that the nature of the work which may be had is not suitable to those listed at the bureau. They want work but they show a decided reluctance to adapt themselves to fields now open.

This is particularly true of agricultural demands. The farmers are asking for assistance but there are few on the list who care to go on to the land. Building and other work which starts with the spring season, is now getting under way and it is expected that a number of the unemployed, enlarged somewhat by some who have come in from other towns and cities, will be decreased.

CHAMBER PRESIDENT HAS MANY DUTIES

Is President to Bread and Cake Bakers' Association as Well.

That the Peterborough Chamber of Commerce was particularly wise in its selection of a president for the ensuing year, was the comment of more than one director of the chamber. Interviewed this morning, one of them pointed out that James Dutton, president, in course of his duties, as president of the Dominion Bread and Cake Bakers' Association, brings to the city much highly desirable advertising; that he is a man of wide interests and equally as broad sympathies and vision, and that he is an indefatigable worker.

The secretary of the Chamber stated as an instance of the last defined quality, that only a short time ago, Mr. Dutton had, on a Sunday, spoken before large gatherings at Colborne, Lakeport and Brighton in connection with Presbytery finances; on the following day he had motored several hundred miles into Western Ontario, had returned to spend Tuesday here, and despite heavy accumulation of private business matters had as was his habit, spent about three-quarters of an hour in the offices of the Chamber of Commerce, discussing various matters relative to the work of that organization. On Wednesday, he had taken another long drive on business of the Dominion association and his own business in Peterborough.

"Such interest cannot fail to meet with liberal response from the other directors of the Chamber, which will result in a bright future for that organization and the city," concluded the secretary.

PERMIT ABUSE TO BE PROBED

Parliamentary Committee On Immigration Summons Man Who Made Charges.

FORKE GIVES EXPLANATION.

OTTAWA, May 10 (Canadian Press).—Allegations of trafficking in special immigration permits by members of Parliament will be examined into at the Parliamentary immigration inquiry. Alderman Caldwell of Regina, who made the charges of permit trafficking in a speech in the West last Summer, will be summoned to appear immediately before the special committee of the House conducting the investigation.

Light on the charges was thrown by the Hon. Robert Forke, Minister of Immigration, during the discussion which preceded the adoption of a motion by the committee to-day calling for Ald. Caldwell's appearance. Mr. Forke said he had had conversation with Ald. Caldwell in which he had mentioned to the alderman "current gossip and suspicions" in respect to the use of those permits.

ASSESSMENT APPEALS ARE HEARD AT HAVELOCK COUNCIL MEETING

Number of Appeals Less This Year, Only Six Being Entered.

DISCUSS DRAINAGE.

Communications Read Re the Paving of Brighton-Havelock Road.

HAVELOCK, May 10.— The main business of the town council, which met on Monday evening, was to deal with the assessment appeals. The number of appeals were less than last year, only six being entered for adjustment. They were as follows:

Arthur Robertson, of Peterborough, appealed against assessment of $1,250, which was divided $250 for land and $1,000 for buildings on property occupied by F. B. McAdam. As this assessment on the roll read $150 for land and $1,000 for buildings a difference of $100, the appeal was withdrawn and schedule made to correspond with roll.

John Houston appealed against assessment of $500 on his property on Concession street. This was also withdrawn as assessment on roll read $300. Schedule was made to correspond with roll.

John Cannon's assessment of $250 for land and $775 for buildings, a total of $1,025, wa sustained on motion of Councillors Leeson and Gordon. This is the property on the north-west corner at Old Havelock.

The assessment of J. W. Bryans for $1,400 which was raised $200 over last year's assessment on a half lot on Ottawa street, and his property on the corner of Mathison and Oak streets, was also sustained on motion by Councillors Spencer and Haig.

Sherwood Scea appealed against his assessment of $1,175 on his King street property, claiming it was a $100 too high. On motion by Councillors Spencer and Haig this was also sustained.

F. J. Squire stated that the assessment on his business property of $100 for land and $2,900 for buildings, a total of $3,000, was too high in comparison with other business blocks. It had been raised $600 this year and $300 last year and in his opinion a raise of $900 in two years was too much. On motion of Councillors Leeson and Spencer this was reduced $300, the assessment on building being lowered $400 and the assessment on land being raised $100.

A. J. Peeling entered an appeal at the meeting against the assessment on his business block. He was assessed the same as Mr. Squire, his property being about the same value and he thought it was only fair that he should receive a similar reduction. Nothing was done as the court decided that this appeal was out of order on account of not being entered at the proper time.

On motion by Councillors Leeson and Spencer, Mrs. L. Clark's business assessment was struck off the roll.

On motion by Councillors Leeson and Spencer $100 was added to Ray Scott's assessment for business.

On motion by Councillor Gordan and Reeve Curtis separate business assessments were made for Mr. Curtis and Miss Madge Curtis, of $300 and $100 respectively. These were combined on the roll under a $400 assessment.

On motion by Councillors Gordon and Haig, Court of Revision adjourned until next meeting.

A communication was read from the Mayor of Campbellford asking for a deputation from Havelock to meet the Minister of Highways re paving the Brighton-Havelock road. No action was taken in the matter.

Collector H. F. McNichol reported that the outstanding taxes on the roll amounted to $336.69. On motion by Councillors Leeson and Gordon, the collector's time was extended until next meeting.

Engineer Merritt, of Hastings who was employed last fall on the drainage system was present and inquired if the council intended to on with the drainage work this spring. They thought it would be some time before they would be ready to start this work but as Mr. Merritt's work was satisfactory last fall they promised to notify him when ready to begin.

Robert McMillan also addressed the council requesting that the garbage dumped on the road in front of his residence be cleaned up. Some people from the village have been in the habit of unloading the refuse there instead of driving into the dump.

On motion by Councillors Spencer and Haig, the constable along with a man and team were to clean this road.

Constable McAdam was also appointed tax collector for 1928.

On motion by Councillors Spencer and Haig the following accounts were ordered paid: Express, 55c.; T. Wood, coal, re D. A. Wright, $28.80; Bank of Toronto, interest, $4.00; School Board, $1,200; D. McAdam, salary, $60; A. C. Denike, account, $9.00; Globe Indemnity Co., liability insurance premium, $100; R. Vansickle, streets, $45.50; L. Mack, streets, 90c.; E. Youmans, streets, $6.30.

PIMPLES LASTED OVER 2 YEARS

Very Large and Painful. Healed by Cuticura.

"My daughter's face was covered with pimples that were hard, very large and red. They festered, and were so thick that you could not put a pin head between them. They also broke out on her shoulders and back. They itched and burned, and she could hardly have her clothes touch her, they were so painful. Her face was badly disfigured. The trouble lasted over two years.

Your "Spare" needs expert attention too

WHAT'S the good of a "spare" if it won't take you home when you need it?

Just because it hasn't been on the road much is no guarantee that it is fit for work. The rain may have run inside and rusted the rim. The dust may have crept in. The tire may have picked up nail ends or flints when you used it last, and a few more miles will force them through the casing. It may not be inflated up to its correct running pressure.

When you drop in at your Dominion Tire Depot for the weekly inspection, let the tire expert examine the "spare" inside and out, and inflate it to its correct pressure. Then your "spare" will be ready for work when needed.

Advertising Rates on application.

R. M. GLOVER, Managing Director.

THURSDAY MAY 10, 1928.

ANOTHER CAUSE FOR COMPLAINT.

There is another side to the cancellation of the broadcasting license of the International Bible Students' Association.

In addition to the objection voiced in The Examiner last evening that the radio was being used by the organization to attack the Christian church, listeners-in have a second grievance against the I.B.S.A. broadcasting.

The manner in which the station was operated was offensive to many set-owners, who regarded it as a nuisance because it was "all over the dial" on some occasions, interfering with other stations, and was tuned out only with the greatest difficulty by those who did not want to listen to the propaganda with which it filled the air.

Regardless of the programs it might send out, any station that creates conditions that constitute a nuisance to set-owners should be checked up and its license cancelled if no improvement is noticed.

The operation of this particular station as well as its programs left much to be desired, and most people are satisfied that reception is better and the air purer since its license has been cancelled.

THE MAGIC OF ADVERTISING.

The Examiner has been stressing the evidence of the efficacy of newspapers advertising as demonstrated by the experience of Government departments that have tried this method with splendid success.

The rapid growth of the Canada Dry Ginger Ale Inc. is another striking bit of evidence along the same line.

The record is surely a convincing proof of the magic of advertising.

In 1922 the company reported sales of 1,699,050 bottles; in 1926, as a result of an extensive advertising campaign in which newspaper space was used lavishly, the sales had increased to 51,783,300 bottles.

A similar story is to be found in the history of many other concerns.

It is a matter of record that a good product well advertised soon becomes the popular choice, and it is equally clear that of all forms of advertising that which reaches the largest field and carries the greatest punch is advertising in daily newspapers.

The moral should be plain to every one who has something to sell.

WRONG ON BOTH COUNTS.

A Peterborough contributor to the Toronto Globe's "Voice of the People" column, writing over the non de plume "Reader," finds fault with The Examiner's recent editorial, "The Deadly Revolver," on two counts.

(1) On the ground that drink and not the availability of a revolver caused last week's tragedy.

(2) Because "Reader" interpretated the editorial as calling for the police to be disarmed.

"Reader" is wrong on both counts.

The evidence heard at last night's inquest disclosed not the slightest ground for the opinion that liquor was responsible.

There was no testimony to show that the slayer of Constable Maker was under the influence of liquor either on the night before the shooting or on the morning of the tragedy; on the contrary, it is known that he was sober and that liquor did not enter into the affair.

But what did enter and was chiefly responsible for the death of a splendid constable was the fact that a bad-tempered, erratic-minded old man, nursing a grievance and brooding over what he considered unjust treatment, owned a deadly weapon that he had no need to possess.

That was the whole point of The Examiner's editorial; there was no logical reason why the murderer of Constable Maker should have had a revolver, and the fact that he did possess one turned what at the worst would have been a disagreeable squabble into a double tragedy.

We maintain that there are too many such revolvers in Canadian homes, where they are a danger to children and adults alike if carelessly handled, and where their presence constitutes a menace that should not be brought into the home.

They are not needed and serve no useful purpose.

But "Reader" is wide of the mark when he reads into The Examiner's article a suggestion that we favor the disarming of the police.

We did not say anything like that, for we believe that the officers of the law should be equipped with means of defence.

There is no occasion, however, for the rest of us to carry revolvers.

CANADA'S POSITION IN WORLD TRADE.

The expansion of Canada's foreign trade in recent years has placed it among the greatest of the world's trading nations. It supplies about 40 per cent. of the world's wheat and some 60 per cent of the world's newsprint. The rayon industry, which is growing at a tremendous rate, depends in large measure upon Canada for its wood pulp supply. Much of the world's mineral supply comes from Canada, which is first in the production of asbestos, practically the sole producer of nickel, and is third in gold production.

Fair progress was made in Canadian trade from the date of Confederation to 1900, but in the last 25 years such great strides were made in development of natural resources that in 1927 over 100 countries purchased her products to the value of $1,218,000,000, while her imports were valued at $1,087,000,000. These figures place Canada in 6th place in world trade. The volume of Canadian exports has increased 100 per cent. and imports 35 per cent. since 1914, which compares with an increase in total world trade from $37,900,000,000 in 1913 to $39,600,000,000 in 1925. This is one of the most remarkable advances ever recorded in economic history and took place in the face of unfavorable world conditions. Trade for North America as a whole only showed an increase of 25 per cent. for the same period. The imports of Europe in 1925 were 95 per cent. of those for 1913, and exports were 85 per cent. of 1913 exports. It must be remembered, however, that Canada is in an unusually favorable situation in that she receives preferential treatment throughout the British Empire, and that one-third of her exports go to the United States, where prosperity has been great in recent years.

Imports in 1927 were slightly above 1926, and exports slightly below. It must be expected that nations who are customers of exporting countries must also sell in those countries, and that Canadian imports must continue to increase as the country becomes more prosperous. The decline in exports was due mainly to the poor quality of the wheat crop.

Business is at least as favorable now as it was at this time last year, when it was regarded as the best ever experienced. Leading industries are expanding operations. Steel production is about 60 per cent. above a year ago, and unfilled orders are still large. Automobile manufacturing is on the upgrade, but the latest figures available show that it is still about 30 per cent. below a year ago. Newsprint sales are heavier than last year at this time, in spite of the fact that the United States, the largest buyer, is holding consumption down to last year's level. The situation is largely temporary, due to the lock-out by Swedish operators, who normally supply a part of the U. S. needs. Reports indicate optimism in the lumber industry, but its productive capacity is still in excess of demand, and no permanent readjustment is possible until this condition is corrected. Improvement recently noted is probably only temporary, due to difficulties arising out of deep snow in the Eastern districts which restricts production for the time being.

Commodity prices have remained firm, advancing about 1 per cent. in the month of March. The gains were chiefly in farm products, almost all of which continued to advance during April. Copper, lead and zinc have also advanced somewhat, due to increased consumption in manufactures. Sugar prices are firm because of heavier refiner demand.

More favorable weather has benefitted retail and wholesale trade and has stimulated outdoor activities, which in turn have improved the employment situation. Increasing activity is reflected in the following tabulation of bank clearings as of the week ending March 29:

Week	$ 391,313,254	plus 24.3%
Month	1,880,691,275	plus 24.9%
3 months	5,540,519,953	plus 28.1%

—Woodrow Wilson Institute Bulletin for May.

CHICAGO'S RACKET GAME.

Crime-controlled Chicago has given a new meaning to the word "Racket" and has evolved its derivative, Racketeer, to describe the industrious gentlemen who operate the systems by which citizens pay for the high privilege of existence in "Big Bill" Thompson's domain.

A writer in "Collier's Weekly" explains how the Racket operates. One "Funnyface" McGinty, he says, contributed $7,000 to Big Bill's campaign fund. Shortly afterwards McGinty notified garage owners that they were to pay each $250 for membership in an association, with monthly dues in addition. In return the garage men were assured the streets would be made unsafe for parked automobiles.

"Thereafter," continues the writer, "this is what happened":

"Mr. McGinty made good his threat in regard to the uncertainty of leaving a car parked on a Chicago street. His industrious boys cut tires, smashed windshields and stole spares until automobile owners began to see the wisdom of patronizing the nearest garage. They did that, and the garage filled up, but, unless the garage owner had signed up, the cars were no safer indoors than they were on the street. Inside an association garage a car was safe, but in any other garage it wasn't.

"The gang, known jocularly as the 'educational committee,' would simply enter an independent garage in force, indulge in an orgy of glass smashing and rubber slicing and leave the owner to settle with his patrons.

"After this, if he had any money left, and any judgment, the owner, even though not a crook himself, would always come across, go to see McGinty, kick in with the two-fifty initiation and sign up for the payment of the monthly dues. If you don't believe this, go to Chicago and open a garage.

"As a trivial item in connection with the garage owners' Racket, two or three men are said to have been bumped off, but what of that? In Chicago a mere killing is fourth-page stuff."

Charlie Eisensteiner, a distinguished fellow-citizen of "Funnyface," using sandbags and bombs, "organized" the fish dealers in Chicago's ghetto with such success that he continued with the meat business, the candy business, delicatessen dealers and bakers, and the owners all "pay Charlie handsome tribute for the privilege of running their own shops." Another Racketeer makes a specialty of the dairies, and even the doctors have been organized. "After a few doctors had answered fake calls at night," says the writer, "and had been met by the 'educational committee' and worked over with short pieces of gas pipe, the others could see the advantages of owning a membership."

The Racket game, according to this authority, has obtruded itself into nearly every phase of life in Chicago, and the Chicagoan "actually leads a controlled existence."

"He may not know it, but in many ways he has ceased to be a creature of his own free will. He buys his milk, his meat, and his groceries from stores which exist at the sufferance of the Racketeers, and at prices fixed by the Racketeers. The boys who shine his shoes, press his trousers, and wash his shirts are not really of his own choosing. Neither can he select the taxicab in which he wishes to ride."

When a Racketeer is arrested he is subjected to but little inconvenience. "The judges have little, if any, control over the criminal situation." And every Racketeer has the shining example of his Mayor. "He sees Big Bill," declares "Collier's" writer, "as the master mind back of the great Americanization Racket, assess every policeman $10 for membership, and he takes his tip."—Ottawa Journal.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Summer styles indicate that they are not going to be long yet.

Noting that 16,000,000 tourists are expected in Canada this summer, the Border Cities Star figures that out as about one and one-half for each filling station.

A Canadian war claim made in 1815 has at last been paid by the United States Government. It is to be hoped that no one was hurt in the rush.

Jose Jurado has been a sensation in the British open golf tournament. Now, there's a fine name to shine in the good old Scottish game.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE

MONTREAL, Que., May 10 (Canadian Press). — The export trade in Canadian grain here yesterday was dull, there being only sales of a few loads of wheat and oats to the United Kingdom. There was some demand from exporters for wheat in the local market, and sales of a few loads of No. 3 Northern were made at 4¼c per bushel over the Winnipeg May option, c.i.f. for shipment from Fort William early in June. The trade in coarse grains was quiet and prices were steady.

The trade in spring and winter wheat grades of flour was inactive, but prices were well maintained.

The United States demand for bran in the millfeed market continued good and a moderate amount of business was accomplished for nearby and future shipment. The domestic trade was fair and values were firm.

The market for standard grades of rolled oats was quiet and steady.

A firm feeling prevailed in the egg situation owing to the steady increased demand for supplies for storage account as dealers generally consider the April and May production the best quality of the season and a good business was done.

The easier feeling that prevailed in the potato market on Tuesday developed into weakness yesterday and prices scored a further decline of 5c per bag, and the indications were that they would go still lower in the near future on account of the continued very limited demand. The volume of business was small, with Quebec varieties selling at 95c to $1.00 per bag of 90 pounds in bulk; New Brunswick north shore Green Mountains at $1.05 per bag of 90 pounds in bulk, and Prince Edward Island white potatoes at $1.10 to $1.15 per bag of 90 pounds bagged, ex-track.

A firmer feeling developed in the local market, and prices recovered ½c per pound, which attributed to the falling off in the arrivals, and the receipts were 309 packages.

The tone of the market for cheese was easier owing to the increased supplies coming forward and sellers in some cases stated that they were forced to shade prices ½c per pound in order to make sales. The receipts were 2,042 boxes.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, May 10 (Canadian Press). — Prospects of moisture relief last night for the spring wheat belt both sides of the Canadian line gave the wheat market a late swing downward yesterday. During the greater part of the day, however, wheat values had an upward trend owing to dust storms north-west and because of general belief that the Government crop report yesterday afternoon would prove bullish, a belief which was subsequently somewhat shaken by the report yesterday.

Closing quotations on wheat were weak, 1⅝c to 2½c net lower, with corn ⅝c to 1c down, oats ⅜c to ⅝c up, and provisions unchanged to a setback of 12 cents.

Trade comment regarding the Government crop report, which came after business yesterday had ended was that the report appeared to be about a standoff as compared with what had in general been looked for.

The official figures on winter wheat conditions were little lower than had been suggested by recent private reports, which averaged 75.4, but this circumstance was offset by somewhat smaller abandoned acreage, and by the fact that the indicated crop is 7,000,000 bushels in excess of the average of the latest unofficial predictions.

Evening-up transactions to prepare for any surprise in the Government report constituted the bulk of trade yesterday in wheat. The market had a nervous tone, and this was accentuated toward the last by talk which was current that Duluth expected to ship 1,250,000 bushels of wheat to Chicago next week. There was also late gossip in some quarters that the Government report might not turn out to be as bullish as the majority of traders had expected.

Considerable notice was taken, too, of a summary showing that domestic primary stocks of wheat are practically double the average at this time for the last twelve years.

Corn was easy throughout the day. Advices at hand pointed to rapid progress of planting, with favorable weather prevailing over the greater part of the corn belt. Oats were influenced by the fact that crop comments were mixed, with the Iowa State report construed as bullish.

Provisions showed steadiness at the start, but eased down later, meats leading the decline.

THE LOST TRIBES.

Editor, The Examiner.

Sir: Your report of Dr. Goard's address on the Anglo-Israel theory was very good, but I believe it omitted one important detail and that was the lecturer's admission that the Israelites were not autochthons, but came from the Chaldean hills.

Now the Anglo-Israel theory, if it is anything, concerns the migration of a people over a long distance, and it seems passing strange that a lecturer dealing with such a subject should entirely ignore the branch of science that deals most particularly with such movements. I refer to the science of anthropology.

The study of anthropology is in its infancy; it is not an exact science, but then, neither is history prior to Napoleon. The modern anthropologist is very chary of categorical statements, but there are some things of which we may be fairly sure. I think it would be safe to say that if the Israelites were cradled in the Chaldean hills, within the last three or four thousand years, they could not be anything but Mediterranean brunettes in a racial sense. As such it is possible that they came into Britain with the Ibereans, known also as the mound builders. Professor Sergi does not claim them, neither does he, so far as I know, make mention of them as belonging to the Mediterranean race. And if they did so come, they added little to the greatness of Britain and are not our ancestors or prototype.

On the other hand, if the children of Israel were blondes, as the lecturer stated, and I also think, then, they almost surely must have come from north of the Caucasus or Balkan mountains. Some first-class anthropologists hold that they came from the grass plains of Russia. I think they came originally from further north and that their progenitors were neighbors of mine. There have been many migrations of blonde peoples to the south or warmer climes. England owes her greatness to a climate which attracted the virile Norsemen to come and settle on her shores, but of all those who go south very few ever return, as we in Canada know to our sorrow. It is true that a few come back. There is in Peterborough to-day a family of Jews, who have preserved their racial identity and who are physically the highest type of blondes. But the great majority of the original migrants lost their identity through intermarriage and the strain was burned out by the hot suns of the Mediterranean latitude.

And so, I believe the Anglo-Israel theory is an elaborate attempt to make the stream of migration run up hill.

My own theory, put forth rather timidly, by reason of many difficulties and seemingly perplexing paradoxes, is that the children of Israel were the descendants of one or more blonde families who strayed from the main stream of migration which overflowed through Greece and the Caucasus and penetrated through Persia even down into India. This little band eventually found pasture and a pleasant home in Palestine. They settled and prospered as do most blondes who go south, but in time intermarriage with weaker stocks diluted the virile strain and they were lost to history with the exception of a few families who had been temple attendants and for whom the restrictions against intermarriage had been very rigid.

This is of necessity a very sketchy outline, but it is not impossible in the light of our present knowledge of the development and movement of peoples, and I believe it is worthy of thought.

GOD'S MINUTE

Faith which worketh by love.—Gal. 5:6.

O Thou great and eternal God, Creator, Redeemer, and Bountiful Benefactor—the one from whom every good and perfect gift descends, we are assembled as a family to engage in worship of Thee. Breathe into our hearts the spirit of true devotion. Give to us repentance for our sins. Thou hast taught us that there is but one thing that can come between our souls and Thee—one thing that can exclude us from the Kingdom of Grace and from the Kingdom of Glory; the one and only thing that Thou dost hate—sin. We rejoice that we may be delivered from sin; that we may have our fruit unto holiness, and in the end everlasting life. We are taught in Thy Holy Word that if we confess our sins, Thou are faithful and just to forgive us our sins, and to cleanse us from all unrighteousness. Give to us faith—faith in Jesus as our present personal, all-sufficient Saviour. Give to us hope—the hope that is an anchor to the soul, sure and steadfast, that entereth into that within the veil, and that will securely hold us in the midst of life's storms and trials. Give to us love—that perfect love that casteth our fear. O, give to us these and all other graces that the Holy Spirit imparts. We ask all in the Name of Jesus Christ. Amen.

THE MONTGOMERY HOTEL

(By F. H. Dobbin.)

The late tragedy, whereby two men lost their lives at and about the old stone building locally best known as the Phelan Hotel, though having been in the possession of the Montgomery family for some years, set men arguing, as these things ever do, as to the age of the building and by whom erected. Such buildings ever form a link with the past, to which men of advanced years refer.

Being asked to verify the times in the case of one dispute, it may be as well to settle the thing for all future controversy. I copy the original contract for its erection by John Yates for Richard Winch, the date being that of June 23rd, 1849. So the hotel has to its credit nearly eighty years of usefulness. The agreement, follows:

AN AGREEMEN", between John Yates of Peterborough and Richard Winch, of Peterborough, for the finding of the material for the building of a stone house for the said R. Winch, the dimensions of which is as follows, viz.

Forty-three feet long by thirty feet wide and thirty feet high. All the cut stone required for the front and elsewhere, together with all of the building stone. Also to furnish the lime for completing the said building for the sum of ninety-one pounds, Halifax currency.

I, John Yates do promise to complete the same (or cause it to be done), for the sum specified above, there being fourteen windows and five doors.

(signed) John Yates.
(accepted) Richard Winch.

Witness,
Joseph Spencely.
Peterborough, June 23rd, 1849.

ALSO, AN AGREEMENT for finding stones and lime for the kitchen, which is to be forty-one feet long by eighteen feet wide and twenty-four feet high, with three thresholds of stone.

I do agree to find the said materials for the sum of Thirty-eight pounds, Halifax currency, for completing the said Kitchen, the size above specified, and if it be carried higher I offer to furnish stone at fourteen shillings per cord, and lime at six pence for the bushel, and if it is not carried so high the same shall be taken from this agreement, there being six windows and two doors.

(signed) John Yates.
(accepted) Richard Winch.

Witness,
Joseph Spencely.

Nothing is stated as to the cost of labor or whether the owner or the contractor supplied such. A foot note adds, that in settling the bills, some pounds were deducted from the gross amount, owing to the kitchen having been put up of less length than specified.

At times people have remarked at the curious appearance on the east wall of this building, when, during a sleet and snow storm coming from the east, and the snow and sleet sticking to the stone walls, outside, that a curved space, about three feet wide, was shown on the wall from the foundation to the apex of the roof. This space remained dry, or nearly so. In erecting stone buildings of such dimensions, in those days, the walls were of solid stone, as taken from the quarry, and placed in the walls to show a straight line along the walls on the outside. Little of the stone in the walls was shaped. The main chimneys were built in the walls, probably in this building, being three feet wide, inside, and of possibly ten inches across. As such a void, if left straight from foundation to roof, would weaken the bond of the wall, the course of the chimney was curved, like a long letter "S." The heat in the chimney warmed the wall, and the snow and ice did not adhere to that part of the wall. Hence the curved line showing on the stones of the wall.

Richard Winch was the father of late fellow townsman Richard Winch, Jr. and of the late Harry Winch and Fred Winch. When the building was finished the east part of the lower story was occupied by the Commercial Bank, as a business office, and the west part by Mr. Winch, in which he conducted a meat market. The Winch family lived in the rooms on the second floor, having moved in from a small wooden house that was built on the ground now covered by stores on George street, opposite what is now the Woolworth premises.

The old stone building has seen other happenings of local interest. One of these came very near involving the makings of another tragedy. It is quite likely that nearly all of the men concerned in the fracas have passed away, but in the memories of several who were boys at the time remain, what looked like a stirring time on the public streets. At this distance from the year of occurrence the story may be related.

It was on the 17th of March, 1863, that the local Society of St. Patrick, including many well respected and zealous Irishmen, decided to hold a parade in honor of the day and their Patron Saint. So many from the townships and in the town came together to celebrate. This had been announced some weeks before and preparation had been made. At the time party feeling ran fairly high, so on the morning of The Day fully four hundred, said to be members of the Orange Order and friends, assembled to prevent the St. Patrick's Society from making a public display. Those objecting came in from the townships of Cavan, Emily, Smith, Manvers, and Otonabee. Sympathizers in the town joined in the conclave. The at one time noted Cavan Blazers, a community of men who were at the time much misrepresented, were said to be of the crowd, but the intimate history of the "Blazers" is another story entirely. Many of these so assembled were armed with fowling pieces, old pistols, and bludgeons. They also brought an antique cannon, with ammunition, the whole thing mounted on a sleigh and drawn by a team of horses. The party seemed to take possession of the streets, very quietly and without any show of serious intentions, but the quiet prevailing seemed ominous. About ten o'clock in the forenoon, they formed up in lines on Water Street between Hunter and Simcoe streets.

A demand was made that the St. Patrick's Society should abandon its intention to parade. Altercation ensued, the members of the Society being grouped on the Market square, waiting and seemingly determined to assert their rights to the quiet use of the streets. Both sides seemed very determined. Eventually the Society, at the pleading of the Mayor and several of the Council, agreed to postpone the parade.

Early in the afternoon all these active spirits, on both sides dispersed, though several fights were held between individuals unduly excited. One of the participants, a member of St. Patrick's Society, was set on by several of the opposing crowd, and he took refuge in the hallway of the stone hotel. The door was at once locked, and he was spirited away by his friends to another part of the town.

In the meantime the old cannon was brought, placed in front of the hotel door and filled with a generous charge of powder and stone, and pieces of iron fetched from Helm's foundry, across the street, and three minutes were allowed for the door to be opened and the man given up to be dealt with. When admitted those in charge of the cannon found that the man had been taken away out of harm's reach. The cannon was hauled to the bank of the creek, near Ryan's tannery and fired into the stream. Then the feeling subsided, and in the evening the Society celebrated the anniversary of Ireland's Patron Saint by a gorgeous dinner at the Caissee House, on George street, at which festivity Orange and Green sat at the same board, enjoyed the viands, made eloquent speeches in honor of the Emerald Isle, and all concluded that it had been a great day for Ireland. So the event proved to be a bloodless feud.

While having no connection with the old hotel a few paragraphs may be written to settle the whereas of a recent discovery. In making an excavation near the bank of the river and east of the White and Ackford premises, those digging came across a lot of old timbers, buried in the soil, but arranged in such way as to lead to the impression that some sort of a pier or abutment had been at one time constructed. Much surmise was expressed as to why men should bury what seemed to be perfectly good material in such a careless way. Here is the story and the reason.

In 1865 an attempt was made by the Port Hope, Lindsay and Beaverton Railway Company to form a connection between the Peterborough Branch line to Millbrook and Chemong Lake, by a spur line carried along the bank of the river and crossing the river at the dam of the Dickson saw mills (now the dam of the Hydraulic Power Company, serving the Quaker Oats Co.)

The object was to reach Chemong Lake and gain the freight on the lumber cut by the Boyd mills at Bobcaygeon. The road bed was built from a point on Aylmer street along the river (there were no factories on the river bank at the time), and as far as Hunter street. Across and north of Hunter street the side of the hill to the west of the Court House was cut into and the filling made to carry the line so far as the mills. Most of the distance, south of Hunter street was hoisted up on a sort of cribbing of timbers and logs, filled with field stone. So much was accomplished when construction was stopped owing to the opposition of the Cobourg Railway Company which claimed a prior right of way, but in 1866 the charter of the Cobourg line expired without that company having completed a connection to Chemong from their own rails in Ashburnham.

Eventually the Port Hope line was constructed to Chemong Lake by extending the main line along Bethune street, and cutting through the hill about the Barnardo Home. All this is very ancient history, but the timbers unearthed seem mute evidences of the project and its non-fulfilment.

IN PETERBOROUGH CHURCHES

ST. PETER'S CATHEDRAL.

St. Peter's Cathedral was again filled with an overflow congregation last evening, the fourth evening of the Women's Mission given by the Redemtorist fathers, Toronto. The large Cathedral since Sunday evening last has been taxed to its utmost capacity and, according to the rector, Rev. Paul Costello, it has been the most successful and the best attended mission in the long history of the Cathedral parish.

The sermon of last evening on "The General Judgment" was preached by Rev. Joseph O'Hara, C.S.S.R. Father O'Hara is a speaker with a powerful and forceful delivery, every word of his sermon being easily and distinctly heard by the vast concourse of last evening seated in every part of the Cathedral. The speaker referred to the Last Judgment as being "God's Day," when the sinner will be confounded at the manifestation by God of the sins of all mankind, taking for his text the words of St. Paul to the Corinthians, "For we must all be manifested before the judgment seat of Christ that every one may receive the proper things of the body, according as he hath done, whether it be for good or evil."

St. Methodius.

"In the year 863, St. Methodius set out to convert the pagan country of Bulgaria. This missionary took along with him on his journey a picture that depicted a scene of the Day of General Judgment. When Bogaris, the chief prince of the nation beheld the scene, he said to Methodius, 'Man of God, will this scene actually take place?' 'Yes,' said Methodius, 'every one must render an account to the great Judge.' Bogaris was so strongly touched by this truth that he asked to be instructed in the faith. This was done, and he was converted to the Christian religion. Reflection on the scene that is going to take place on the day of General Judgment had taught him faith and salvation. Would that I had the eloquence of a prophet to-night that I might draw a picture to you in words of that terrible scene we must witness.

Today—the Sinner's Day.

"This is the day of the sinner—this is man's day. This is the day when injustice triumphs, when impurity and immorality stalk abroad. This is the day when the poor are oppressed and when one would almost be led to believe that God had forsaken His people. Today, the scoffer cries out 'There is no God.' When we look about the world we see an unequal condition of things. We observe the immense amount of inequality that exists between individuals. We see the true and the just, those who are faithful in the service of God, who observe His moral law, yet they are weighed down with poverty and misfortune.

"On the other hand, we see those with no faith at all, no religion. Men who disregard the moral law entirely—who steep themselves in the foulest crimes, yet they prosper and succeed, and to all appearances are happy and contented. Do you call that justice? How can this be explained? Oh! Do not forget what I just said, 'This is the sinner's day; he can sin and sin to his heart's content. However, there is coming another day and that day will be God's day.

The Particular Judgment.

"That we shall be judged twice is the teaching of our holy faith. The first judgment, the particular judgment, will take place immediately after death. 'It is appointed for man once to die and after death, the judgment.' While your body is still warm and your relatives and friends stand around your poor corpse to give expression to their grief, Christ, your Judge meets you where you die. Whether you die at home or in the street, whether you die while at work or at rest, wherever it may be, there you will be judged at once.

God's Day.

"God will have His day on the last day, the day of General Judgment. Then He will explain away the many mysteries of this life. At that judgment will be present all the children of the human race, from the first man, Adam, to the last man born into this world. We shall be tried and sentenced. We shall receive our reward or be condemned to everlasting punishment. This will be the day of wrath, the day of God's justice when hidden things must all appear and God will render to every man according to his works. Time will be no more and we will all stand upon the threshold of an endless ternity.

Signs Before the Judgment.

"The day of General Judgment shall be heralded by certain unmistakable signs. If we open the Holy Scriptures and turn to the gospels read on the last and first Sundays of the ecclesiastical year, we shall find these signs mentioned. We read that false prophets shall arise to seduce the faithful, and evils of all kinds shall come upon the earth. Nation shall rise against nation, pestilence, famine, and earthquake shall spread terror over the land. Even the heavens themselves shall be moved. The sun shall be darkened, the moon will fail to give her light a universal fire shall deluge the very surface of the earth. The entire world shall be reduced to a heap of ashes, kindled by the wrath of an angry God.

"After that immense wave of flame shall have passed over the earth, not a single living creature shall survive—no, not even a blade of grass shall remain, nor the tiniest fish that delves in the ocean shall outlive this purging fire of a wrathful God. Remember, my dear Christian women; it is God's day and He has purified the earth, that He may call men back to judge them according to their deeds.

"Arise and Come to Judgment."

"Holy Writ tells us that after the flames have passed over the earth, the angel will go forth with his trumpet and with a mighty voice shall cry to the four quarters of the earth. At the sound of that trumpet every man that has lived on the face of the earth from Adam to the last man just perished in the fire, all shall come forth again. 'Arise ye dead, arise ye dead and come to judgment.'

"At that summons, the watery graves and the bowels of the earth are seen to move in commotion to deliver up their dead. Yes, that command shall reverberate throughout the regions of Hell. That voice of God must be obeyed. That voice was disobeyed in life by the sinner. It was squelched time and time again by the impure man, by the thief, the drunkard, the scandal giver. All these did their own will in life but now they are forced to obey God's voice—because this is God's day. Yes, the souls in Hell must come to judgment, but they shall bring Hell and its pains with them.

"Meeting of Soul and Body."

"How shall we rise from the dead? With the very bodies we have now. Just as the soul was joined with the body in life either to obey God or to offend Him—so shall they be joined in eternity, either to enjoy the reward of their obedience to God's law or to suffer punishment for their disobedience. Holy Writ says, 'What things soever a man shall sow, they also shall he reap.' Hence there will be a difference between the resurrection of the bodies of the wicked and the just.

"The bodies of the just will be luminous, brilliant, dazzling like the very sun. Imagine if you can the greeting the body will give the soul as they are about to be reunited.

"It will say, 'A thousand blessings, my soul. In the day of life, you governed me well, you wisely checked my unruly passions. We served God together in life, now let us live together in the blessedness of Paradise.'

"But alas! it will not be thus with the bodies and souls of the wicked. Through life they were steeped together in the rottenness of sin. Now in the resurrection the soul must reenter that body, the soul in the words of Holy Writ must exhibit the body as a foul carcass. 'They who have served the flesh, of the flesh, must reap corruption.'

The Sign of the Son of Man.

"The Heavens now open. Then there appears the sign of the Son of Man, the sign of the Cross, then Jesus Christ the Eternal Judge will be seated on the clouds with great power and majesty. He is coming to have His day. He is coming to punish sin and the sinner. He is coming as a just God to reward the good and punish the wicked.

"But oh! how changed and how strange He appears. In life we knew Him as the Babe of Bethlehem, we regarded Him as a Christ of tenderness shedding his last drop of blood for sinners, but now He is a God of stern and inflexible justice.

Separation of Good and Bad.

"Then the angel shall separate the multitude. The good, those who have served God, kept His commandments, who did penance for their sins shall be placed on the right. Those who have offended God, given free reign to their passions, abused God's graces, especially the Sacrament of Penance, shall be placed on the left.

"May I in conclusion ask you a very serious personal question? Judging from your past, judging from your present, I ask you in the presence of God to-night, on which side will you be on God's day, the day of the last judgment. Answer this in the sincerity of your own heart, on your knees, with your hands folded before God, 'On which side, O God, shall I be?' It depends on yourself."

New York Stock Market Shows Irregularity To-day

NEW YORK, May 10 (Canadian Press).—Further irregularity developed in the early part of to-day's stock market, but the general list swung upwards in the afternoon when the call money rate was lowered from 6 to 5½ per cent. Rails again led the upturn, but a strong demand also was apparent for airplane issues, and a number of specialties in which favorable developments are reported to be pending.

Trading showed further falling off in volume, due to the restriction of commitments by many traders pending the report on brokers' loans and the action to be taken on the New York Federal Reserve rediscount rate after the close of the market. The monthly tonnage statement of the United States Steel Corporation proved to be a disappointment, as the decrease of 463,073 tons in unfilled orders last month was about twice what had been generally expected. United States Steel Common sagged about a point on an outbreak of selling which followed the announcement.

Missouri Pacific issues led the advance in the railroad shares on buying influence by the inauguration of dividends yesterday on Texas and Pacific Common stock, approximately 40 per cent of which it owns. Both the Common and Preferred advanced about four points, the former touching 65⅝ and the latter 123, the highest since the road was reorganized in 1916.

Canadian Press Cable.—Shareholders of the British Columbia Electric Railway received notification to-day from the company that the financial interest represented by Nesbitt Thomson and Company, the Power Corporation of Canad.. Sir Herbert Holt, Lord Rothermere, J. H. Wheat Shows Weakness After Early Advances

CHICAGO, May 10. — (Canadian Press.)— Wheat developed a decided weakness to-day after an early advance from initial downturns. Setbacks were associated with the government crop report, whereas buying on the breaks appeared to be based largely on uncertainties yet ahead regarding both spring and winter wheat. Opening ½c. to 1½c. off, wheat scored materials gains, which, however, were followed by declines lower than before. Corn sympathized with wheat, starting ½c. to 1¼c. down, but subsequently showing transient rallies. Oats were firm.

Opening prices were: Wheat, May 157, July 158⅜. Corn, May 106, July 110. Oats, May 65⅛, July 58¾.

Declines In Majority On Toronto Exchange

TORONTO, May 10. Canadian Press. — Declines were slightly in excess of gains in the more active stocks in this morning's fairly busy session of the Toronto stock exchange.

Shredded Wheat, the most active stock in the listed section, was down 1 7-8 at 69½, but International Petroleum, leader in the unlisted stocks, advanced one point to 42¾. City Dairy scored an advance of 1½ at 57½, but there was a lengthy list of declines, including International down 1½ at 90½; Walker's, down 1-8 at 65; Imperial Oil, down ⅛ at 69½, Standard Paving, down 3-8 at 27, and Canada Dry, which scored the greatest loss, down four points at 78.

Mine Market Active With Gains Featuring

TORONTO, May 10. — (Canadian Press.)—Gains of 2¾ points by Aconda to 24¼, of five by Ajax Oil to 82, of three by Kirkland Lake to 1.79, and of three by Malartic Gold Mine to 1.22, all in heavy trading, featured this morning's fairly active session of the standard mining exchange. Tough Oakes-Burnside also scored an advance, going up 1½ at 32¾, while Howey Gold sold up ½ to 87. Area, Barry Hollinger, Gold Hill, and Laval Quebec were fairly heavily traded in, but were unchanged. Laval Quebec led the market in activity with 58,400 shares traded. Pend O'reille dropped 35 cents to 18.40 and Sherritt Gordon slumped five to 6.05.

READY FOR FLIGHT.

QUEBEC, May 10 (Canadian Press).—The first official announcement that the trans-Atlantic monoplane Bremen would be flown from Greenely Island was made by Robert Cannon, head of the trans-Continental Airways, in a statement issued here to-day. No definite date has been set for the Bremen's take off.

2ND (ARMOUR) TROOP.

The troop met out-of-doors for the opening and games. The patrols were in their corners under seconds. The patrols were called out and the Beavers were first. There were marks given for promptness. The troop formed in semi-circular formation while the announcements were made. The game, 'follow-the-leader' was then played. The Beaver and Raven patrols won the tug-of-war against the Wild Goose and Wood Pidgeon patrols.

Then everyone had a try at chasing the nigger in the game Nigger in the Woodpile.' The patrols were dismissed separately to the troop headquarters and timed.

On entering patrol instruction was given in tenderfoot work, mainly on the staff. A camp-fire was formed and opened in usual manner. The Wood Pigeon patrol put on a display of patrol signals. A short sing-song was held and troop announcements were made. In points the Wild Goose and Wood Pigeon patrols are tied for first. The Beavers are second and Ravens third. After "scout silence" the troop was dismissed.

A court of honor was held after the meeting.

Obituary

JOHN CAMERON.

Having been in poor health during the past few months, John Cameron, a well known resident of Peterborough since 1860, passed away at his home, 441 Reid street, this morning, May 10, in his 96th year. His death marks the passing of the oldest mason in Peterborough, and the loss to St Andrew's church of one of its most highly esteemed members.

The late John Cameron was born at "Rosehill," Pluscarden, Morayshire, Scotland, coming to Canada in the year 1860. Four years later he moved from Brockville to this city and his residence here has been one of earnest endeavor. For some twenty-three years he worked at the local Customs House, took an interest in municipal and federal affairs and became widely known. As stated above, he was Masonic Lodge Number 156, having the oldest member of Peterborough joined it in January, 1867. He withdrew from active interest in the lodge and craft in 1878.

He was also in business, first on Hunter street and then on George street for many years.

Left to mourn are two sons, N. C. Cameron of Montreal, M.G. Cameron of Ottawa, and three daughters, Mrs. E. S. Clarry, of Toronto, Mrs. H. S. Carpenter, of Regina, and Miss A. H. at home.

The funeral will take place from the family residence, 441 Reid street, on Friday, May 11, the Rev .William Allan of St. Paul's Presbyterian church, conducting the service at the house at 3.00 p.m. and at the graveside in Little Lake cemetery.

MRS. ATKINSON WILDE.

There passed away on May 4th, Amelia Mendell, beloved wife of Atkinson Wilde, also deceased, after a very short illness. Mrs. Wilde, although over 78 years of age, was active and in her usual good health. She had made her home in Peterborough with Mrs. R. C. Braund, her niece, since the death of Mr. Wilde exactly three years ago on the same date of the same month.

Of her immediate surviving relatives, there is one brother, Sidney J. Mendell, of Lacrosse, Wis., Mrs. R. C. Braund and her nephew J. M. Greene.

In her younger years she was a most devoted and earnest member and worker of the Methodist church, but laterly was a beloved member of the Presbyterian church at Havelock, where they resided for many years, their home always being open to the old circuit riders and to all activities of church life. For a great many years she was organist in their circuit church. Of sterling Christian character, sympathy for all, and a never failing friend, she naturally endeared herself to all those who had the good fortune of her acquaintance.

A short funeral service was conducted in Peterborough by the Rev. William McDonald of Knox United church, before the cortege went by motor to the beautiful little cemetery at Camden East, where the service was conducted at the grave by Rev. Mr. Anderson of the United church, and the remains were laid to rest in the family plot, her spirit having gone to Him who gave it.

Her relatives and friends will miss her, oh, so keenly, but heaven will be the richer.

SEYMOUR COUNCIL NAMES OPERATOR

Ernest Haig Chosen To Run Power Grader—Council Holds Regular Meeting.

CAMPBELLFORD, May 9. — All members of the Seymour Township Council were present at the regular May meeting held in the clerk's office on Monday afternoon.

T. J. Horkins asked the council to open a road on the west side of the river, south from the paper mill to his summer cottage. He agreed to double the grant made by the council for this purpose. The matter was laid over for further consideration. Mr. Mulholland of the Hydro Electric Power Commission, waited on the council to address them with regard to the proper method of constructing power lines. He said the Hydro had no objection to these lines but thought that they should be started along the proper methods in the beginning.

John Thompson brought in a request to have repairs done on concession thirteen opposite lots seven and eight. The school report as presented by George Anderson was received and filed. Councillor Allan brought in a by-law appointing Ernest Haig to operate the power maintainer. The by-law is number 1078, and was passed. The clerk was instructed to wire the Sawyer Massey firm, from whom the grader was purchased, to send a man down to start the engine. There had been some difficulty along this line. He was also instructed to notify Mr. Haig that he was to purchase his gasoline supply from Thomas Free.

Mr. Wilkins, government land surveyor, is to be brought to the township to survey certain property in the neighborhood of Meyersburg. The last item of official business before passing the accounts was to discuss the holding of a court of revision. It was decided that the court could sit at half past ten on the morning of June 5th, and that the council would meet in the afternoon of the same day. Accounts amounting to $1,036.67 were ordered paid by the clerk.

COMMERCIAL WORK AT MADOC SCHOOL

Class Inaugurated Last Fall Proves Most Successful—30 Pupils Attend.

MADOC, May 10.—With a new commercial department in full swing and with the largest attendance in its history, the Madoc High School is nearing the completion of another year's work under the principalship of Duncan Brown. The necessity of adding another teacher has brought the membership of the staff up to a total of five.

At the present time, some one hundred and twenty pupils attend the High School, and of this number, about thirty are taking advantage of a new commercial course which has proven a real success. Already, the first year's work has been completed, and it is expected that many of the students will be "placed" while others will continue into second year work, provided the High School Board sees fit to inaugurate the two-year course.

The commercial department consists of two rooms, one for typewriting, the other for class work, and this latter one has been fitted with a new type moveable desk which is proving satisfactory.

In this same room, which is quite large and is therefore used as an auditorium also, is a new piano, recently purchased with funds raised in High School concerts and other entertainments. Teachers and students are proud of their school.

The classes in the public school are also quite full, and work in the various grades is progressing.

CHURCH CONCERT IS WELL ATTENDED

by Arthur Williamson, and the secretary's report by Irvine Connell. Prayer was offered by Percy Race and the Misses Eva and Lillian Race gave a piano duet.

Fishing Opened.

The sucker fishing opened in full force on Saturday, and the boys of the village were in waiting for them. The cold weather prolonged their arrival, and it was with much glee that the youngsters heard the announcement of their appearance. The grown-ups, too, seemed to take a full amount of pleasure in assisting the boys to fish, and as a result each boy had a quantity for sale, which he disposed of readily for 50 cents a dozen. Since then, the fish have become more plentiful, and the price has dropped to 40 cents a dozen.

Personals.

Mr. S. Veals, of Franklin, made his final trip to Omemee on Saturday with maple syrup. Mr. Veals has seen better seasons for sap; but, however, he made one hundred gallons of syrup.

Mrs. John Cook attended the funeral of her aunt in Cobourg on Monday.

Mr. Johnston Feir, of Millbrook, is in town on business this week.

Mrs. Needs and Miss Emma Neill are spending a few days in Toronto.

Mr. and Mrs. R. Poast visited their daughter, Mrs. M. Lethangue, of Ballyduff, on Wednesday and Thursday.

Mr. Arthur Stinson paid a short visit to his home in Janetville on Sunday.

Mrs. E. W. Rowland is attending the branch meeting of the Women's Missionary Society in First United Church, Lindsay, this week.

Mrs. Orville Toole, of Oshawa, visited Mr. and Mrs. W. Irwin over the week-end.

Mr. and Mrs. Backes, of Havelock, visited Mr. and Mrs. R. Ford on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. O. R. Stalter spent the week-end at their home in Oshawa. Owing to the death of Mr. Stalter's uncle, during their visit, they remained over Monday.

Mrs. W. Henderson and Miss A. Neill were visitors to Peterborough on Saturday.

Rev. Mr. MacMillan, a student of Toronto University, occupied the pulpit in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church on Sunday morning, and will be the pastor of the Omemee and Lakevale circuit until September 1.

Mr. and Mrs. Armstrong and family of Toronto, visited Fee's Landing on Sunday, where a modern summer home is being erected by Contractor Wilson, of Toronto, for their use. The site is north of Mr. P. Parson's cottage on a knoll overlooking the other cottages, with a splendid view of the water and other surroundings.

Next Sunday being Mother's Day, services appropriate to the occasion will be observed in the various churches of the village.

grant of $80.00 towards passage was suspended nearly all last year.

"Are you again carrying on under the conditions under which you formerly carried on?" asked Dr. Edwards.

Still Carrying On.

"Except as to the collection of the loan," replied the witness. Under the new agreement, he continued, the grant of $80.00 was resumed, but the collection from boy immigrants by the the Army for training at the farm in Hadleigh, and for outfitting and after care, could not now exceed $25. This money was to be repaid within eight or nine months or the debt cancelled. Parents or guardians of the boys, under the new arrangement, must be present when the agreement for the payment of the $25.00 was signed.

The Army, Col. Culsham stated, was out of pocket now to the extent of approximately $50.00 on each boy immigrant sent to Canada.

"Do you think there is any truth in the statement by a good many boys that they thought they were paying back their passage money?" questioned Hon. Robert Forke, in referring to the old arrangement.

"I do not think there is any truth in it at all," replied Col. Culsham.

Mr. Forke said he could produce fifteen or twenty letters of this nature, and it was agreed that these letters should be placed before the committee.

2,050 Boys Sent Out.

Questioned by Dr. Edwards, Colonel Culsham said that up to the end of last year over 2,050 boys had been sent out by the Army under the boy immigration scheme.

Colonel Thomas Tudge, Toronto, of the Migration and Settlement Department, Salvation Army, put forward the following recommendation:

1. That immigration should be handled by a commission outside of politics.

2. That there should be a definite five to ten year program laid down.

3. That all approved societies engaged in migration work should be enlisted and encouraged to increase and extend the work in their own particular field.

4. That financial aid should be given approved societies to assist in training and testing farms in Great Britain for the training of intending migrants and for their after care in Canada.

5. That the full responsibility for placing, supervision, and after care should be placed on the shoulders of the society or agency responsible for introducing settlers subject to Government supervision of the society.

6. That assisted passages under the Empire Settlement Act be given to all women of good character and physically fit, who will agree to enter domestic work on arrival in Canada and who come through responsible societies.

7. That assisted passages, under the Act, be given to all classes who will undertake to engage in farm work on arrival in Canada, and who come through a society or agency who will accept responsibility for their placing.

8. That reduced passages be afforded families joining husbands already settled in the Dominion irrespective of the nature of his work.

ALEXANDER T. DONALD.

CAMPBELLFORD, May 10.—Seymour loses another of its fine old men with the passing of Alexander T. Donald, Burnbrae. Mr. Donald had apparently been enjoying his usual good health when he was suddenly stricken yesterday afternoon. Several citizens of town who spoke with him on Tuesday while he was in Campbellford on business thought him to be quite his usual self. Yesterday morning, Mr. Donald attended to his usual farm duties. In the afternoon, he was taken ill and died a few minutes later. Death is believed to be due to heart failure. Mr. Donald was in his seventy-fifth year.

The funeral service will be held from his late residence, Burnbrae, at two o'clock Friday afternoon. Interment will be at Burnbrae Cemetery.

PETER J. NESBITT.

CAMPBELLFORD, May 10.—After an illness of some days, Peter J. Nesbitt died at an early hour this morning in his apartment in the Hoskins block, Rear and Bridge Streets. Earlier in the night, Mr. Nesbitt, whose condition had been considered as very grave for some days, appeared to be slightly improved. His death came unexpectedly after the slight improvement in his condition.

The late Mr. Nesbitt was in his sixty-first year, and had enjoyed a life singularly free from illnesses of a serious nature. He was unmarried. The remains will be taken to Woodville for interment in the family plot and the funeral service will be held in that town at two o'clock Saturday afternoon. Deceased is survived by three sisters, Mrs. J. D. Fair, Mrs. R. Hawkin and Mrs. K. C. Weedon, all of Woodville, and one brother, Jack, of Campbellford.

SAMUEL DIAMOND.

Campbellford, May 10.—The funeral of the late Samuel Diamond was held from the residence of his son, T. L. Diamond, Front street, yesterday afternoon at two o'clock. Interment was made in the family plot in Tabernacle Church cemetery, English line. The service at the house and at the grave was conducted by the Rev. Ernest Harston and the Rev C. D. Daniels. The pall bearers were J. R. Battisby, L. A. Denike, J. A. Irwin G. A. Payne A. L. Riendeau and George Smith. Many floral tributes were evidence of the high esteem in which the late Mr. Diamond was held.

Mr. Diamond was in his ninety-third year and was born in Devonshire, England. In company with his parents came to Canada as a boy 12 years of age and settled in Picton. After a few months residence there he moved to what is now known as the Old Diamond homestead on the English line. At the age of 26 Mr. Diamond married and moved to a farm on the first concession of Seymour. Forty one years later he again moved this time taking a farm on the 8th concession of Seymour, where he resided for 16 years before retiring to Campbellford. Of the family Mrs. Diamond and two of the four children are now deceased. There survive two sons, Thos. Leslie of town, and William of Toronto.

Throughout his lifetime, Mr. Diamond was known as a man of sound principles, a strong temperance man, and an ardent churchman. He was a lifelong member of the Methodist church, now union. Politically he was a staunch supporter of the Liberal party, although he was never known to take an active part in political questions.

In the afternoon a large number of near relatives and friends gathered to pay their respect to the memory of one of the pioneers of the district. Among those from out of town were noticed: Mrs. Oswald Stanley Toronto; Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Nittle; Mr. and Mrs. L. Simpson and Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Thorne all of Brighton.

childhood within the home, then extend to school, church, and society as one grows older. It is noted that Our Saviour first began to suffer persecution when he set an active example of personal responsibility to the community by the act of driving the money changers out of the temple. This was the phase of His way of life that was hardest for people to understand and many people do not yet recognize it. The attributes of a hundred per cent. Canadian were discussed and found to be identical with those of a hundred per cent. Christian. It was decided that the keeping of a community clean is a duty in which all citizens have a share. The young people of Canada should learn to think in terms of Christian citizenship, rather than politics.

Preceding the address an instrumental solo was given by Miss Cordie McColl, and a reading by Miss Loyst dealing with the very interesting story of the origin of the hymn "The Ninety and Nine." The program concluded with a vocal duet by Misses Barbara Pennell and Una Archer. The scriptural lesson was read by Miss Lucy Wing.

The social period was occupied with a contest on poetry. The groups being required to write down the answers to conundrums given by the leader, the answer in each case being the name of a poem of Tennyson or Longfellow. This contest was won by the White group.

The Red and Blue groups challenged the White and Khaki groups to a volley ball match next Monday evening; this game to be the first of a series. For one hour preceding the meeting, the young people played volley ball on the church lawn.

Campbellford

CAMPBELLFORD, May 10.—Mrs. T. L. Diamond, who has been suffering severely with rheumatism for some time, is improving.

Mrs. J. R. Battisby, Front Street, fell as she was leaving William Clarke's veranda and injured her left arm. It was at first feared that the bone was fractured, but inspection under the X-ray showed the condition to be a severe sprain.

Mrs. Vandewater, Toronto, is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. L. Diamond, Front Street.

Why Firestone Tires Give You Most Miles Per Dollar

The greatest enemy to tire life is not the harsh grind of city streets or rough roads but heat which is created inside the tire by internal friction. Heat not only weakens the fabric, but also softens the rubber causing blowouts and tire failures.

The exclusive Firestone Gum-Dipping process prevents internal heat. Every fibre of every cord is insulated and impregnated with rubber, which prevents internal friction and at the same time binds the cords together by a stronger union of rubber, thus giving greater strength and flexibility to the tire.

Take advantage of the Gum-Dipping process to lower your tire costs this year. Your local Firestone Dealer not only supplies you with these better tires that cost no more, but also gives the better service that enables you to benefit from every extra mile built in at the factory.

CHAPTER IV

Dixon pushed a button and a bellboy appeared at the door.

"Oh, it's you, Tubby, is it? Well, hike yourself up to these two room numbers and ask the two ladies to come down here immediately."

"Yessir," and the fat youngster took the slip that Dixon handed him.

"Isn't that a little imperative, Mr. Dixon?" said Neville, with a look of astonishment.

"It's the only way. I've tried too many times asking ladies to come when convenient, and it means a long wait. They can't resent a definite summons in an emergency like this."

"No, I suppose not," Neville agreed, and sure enough, it was but a few moments before the two came in.

"Oh, oh!" exclaimed Mrs. Barnaby, as she caught sight of the blanketed form, "can't we go somewhere else? That awful—oh, oh—"

She covered her face with her hands and sat moaning.

"Hush, hush, Duchess," her companion whispered. "Don't make such a fuss."

"I can't help it! Oh, Mr. Pelham, do let us go out of here! Mr. Neville, beg him to let me go! I must go!"

She rose and made for the door with such evident determination that Dixon thought best to humor her.

"All right," he said kindly, "we'll go into another room. Come, please, Mrs. Valdon, and you, too, Mr. Neville."

There were several nearby rooms used more or less as offices, and into one of them Dixon ushered his little crowd of people.

Pelham remained behind, waiting for the appearance of the doctor, who had been sent for with an urgent request to make haste.

The whole affair was most distasteful to Mr. Pelham. To be sure, no hotel manager could be blamed for having one of his guests drop dead, but it made an unpleasant commotion, and try as he would, it seemed impossible to keep the affair secret.

The bellboys were staring; the elevator attendants were on the alert; the clerks at the desk, though outwardly calm, were wide-eyed and listening.

The news had, of course, spread, and some of the guests in the great foyer were frankly curious, and were even beginning to ask questions.

They saw the two women, accompanied by the hotel detective and Roger Neville, go into a room and close the door.

Yet the conversation in there was in no way alarming or even interesting.

Relieved of the sight of the still, shrouded form of Garrett Folsom, Mrs. Barnaby became herself again and answered readily enough all the questions put to her.

Too readily, indeed, for she was a voluble sort, and once started she loved to hear the sound of her own voice.

"Oh, yes, of course I knew Mr. Folsom," she returned to Dixon's question. "No, I didn't know him until last evening, but, you see, he's the kind of man you feel acquainted with at once. My friend, Mrs. Valdon, introduced him to me, and I took to him that very minute. A delightful man—oh, what a pity he is gone!"

"Then, if you never knew Mr. Folsom until last evening, you can't tell me much about him," Dixon said, a little curtly. "Mrs. Valdon, you have known him for a longer time?"

"Yes," Carmelita Valdon replied, her great dark eyes filling with tears. "I have known Mr. Folsom for several years. He was my lawyer and my friend as well. I was rejoiced when I heard he was down here, and we planned many things to do by way of entertainment. I knew Mrs. Barnaby would like him, and I was not surprised when I found the liking mutual."

"And you three," Dixon took in the trio, "with Mr. Folsom were the whole of your party to go in bathing this morning?"

"Yes," Mrs. Barnaby said, unable to keep out of the conversation. "And I was so glad I had my new bathing suit; it just came yesterday. And Mrs. Valdom, too—we were the best-dressed crowd on the beach. Oh, I can't believe he is gone!"

"Who stood next to Mr. Folsom at the rope?" Dixon asked, ignoring the talkative one, "you, Mrs. Valdon?"

"Yes," Carmelita began, but Mrs. Barnaby interrupted.

"I was next but one," she said. "I mean I was next to Carmelita and she was next to Mr. Folsom. But I can tell you what happened, for I was looking right at him."

Clearly, Dixon thought, it was best to let her tell it, as she was far more willing to talk than the others.

"Why, we were all standing there, taking the waves," she said, "and laughing, and just after a big breaker passed, Mr. Folsom sort of loosened his grip on the rope and then his hands fell away from the rope and he just sank down under the water. That's all. Then everybody seemed to scream and another wave came and then I saw the life guards come and get hold of Mr. Folsom and carry him out of the water up onto the beach. That's all."

"You were next Mr. Folsom, I believe, Mrs. Valdon," Dixon said, turning to Carmelita, "you saw the scene Mrs. Barnaby has just described?"

"Why, yes," was the reply, "that is, I suppose it must have been that way. But I was not looking at him at all. I had all I could do to keep my feet. The surf was very high and the waves pounded so I paid no attention to any one else. I just clung to the rope to keep from being knocked down myself. If Mr. Folsom had even a slight cramp it is not surprising he was drawn under by the waves."

"You were off the rope, Mr. Neville?" and Dixon turned to him.

"Yes, I hate to be hanging to a rope. I take the big waves head on, and if they fling me up on the beach, that is the sort of sport I enjoy. Folsom liked it, too, but he felt he must stay with the ladies. He broke away once or twice and then went back."

"Yes, but he was glad to get back," Mrs. Barnaby told them. "He wasn't much used to surf bathing, and he seemed to get winded easily."

"You noticed that, too, Mrs. Valdon?" pursued the questioner.

"Not specially," she said. "But as I told you, I was busy looking out for myself. I think I was never so buffeted by the waves as we were this morning. They were ferocious!"

"Who stood on the other side of Mr. Folsom?" Dixon inquired, and as Neville and Mrs. Barnaby shook their heads, he turned to Mrs. Valdon for a reply.

"It was Mr. Barron," she said. "I know because Mr. Folsom asked me who he was and I leaned over to see. That was just before we decided to come out of the water. We couldn't find Mr. Neville, so we said we'd go out anyway. Then a big wave came, and it was right after that that Mr. Folsom went under."

"Where were you then, Mr. Neville?"

"In the water, not far from our crowd. I saw Mrs. Barnaby's black and yellow cap and she waved her hand toward shore, so I gathered we were all to go in and I started toward the land. But there was a crowd, and before I could get to shore, I saw the men carrying a man in, and I saw at once that it was Folsom."

"And you followed them?"

"Of course. And stood by until they started to bring him here, then I went to my bathhouse and dressed as quickly as I could."

"Well," said Dixon, "I think that's about all you people can tell me, then. I just wanted to get the details of the drowning. Hello, here comes the valet, Ross."

The man came into the room and stood at attention.

Though evidently stirred with excitement, he preserved a calm demeanor, and except for a nervous twitching of his fingers, showed no sign of perturbation.

Ned Barron, who stood next to Folsom, has yet to be questioned. Read the next chapter.

Nobody Loves a Skinny Woman!

Gain pounds of weight and strength with new YEAST and IRON—Quick results or pay nothing

"Cleared Pimples; Gained Weight"

"I have found great improvement in my skin and weight since taking Ironized Yeast. The pimples were terrible and now they are almost gone. I recommend Ironized Yeast to all my friends."—Miss Claire Gu, Montreal.

Bills are greased at Ironized Yeast. They use 5 to 15 pounds gained in a few weeks! Skinny limbs covered with rounded, graceful flesh! Ugly hollows in shoulders filled up! Eyes sparkling with health. They ask—how does Ironized Yeast work so quickly?

How Ironized Yeast Builds Quick Flesh and Health

Ironized Yeast is two aids to one—weight building Yeast and strengthening Iron. The yeast is the same used in making malt, and which makes malt so beneficial. It is specially cultured yeast, concentrated to give the utmost in flesh-producing value.

This Yeast is treated with pure, vegetable iron, the same as in spinach, lettuce and celery. In this form iron is easily assimilated by the body, making rich, red blood and toning up nerves and muscles.

Only when Yeast is Ironized in this way is it more effective—for iron is needed to bring out the weight-building, strengthening values of Yeast. By this special Ironized Yeast you get more results in half the time required by yeast or iron taken separately.

If you are underweight, nervous or tired, you need Ironized Yeast. Start it today. It does not cause gas or bloating. Safe for everybody—containing no harmful drugs. Nice, pleasant-tasting tablets in a handy bottle.

Try it on "Money Back" Offer

Go today to any drug store and get a full size treatment of Ironized Yeast. If not delighted, get your money back. If inconvenient to buy from the druggist, send $1.25 direct to the Canadian Ironized Yeast Co., Ltd., Fort Erie, Ont., Desk 149-A.

CAUTION! While the amazing health-building value of IRONIZED YEAST tablets has been clearly and positively demonstrated in cases of lack of physical and mental condition, IRONIZED YEAST should not be used by anyone who OBJECTS to having weight increased to normal.—© C.I.Y. Co., Ltd.

LARKIN TO RETAIN SALADA BUSINESS

Denies Rumors That He Is To Relinquish His Tea Interests.

Officials of the Salada Tea Company, Toronto, have informed this paper that the Hon. Peter C. Larkin, Canadian High Commissioner in London, has cabled a denial to the reports that he was selling his Salada Tea business. "There is not a grain of truth in it", he said. "We have had numerous offers for the business since I took office under the Government, but I would not entertain the idea of parting with any of the business interests of myself or my son, neither would my son."

Hon. Mr. Larkin said he hoped to return to Toronto to resume his former life there when the Canadian Government no longer requires his services in London. His son, Gerald R. Larkin is president of the Salada Tea Company, which is one of the largest tea companies in the world, with branches in principal cities all over the North American continent. The Salada Tea Company was founded by the Hon. Peter C. Larkin in 1892 and has attained such remarkable success because Mr. Larkin was the first in North America to sell a tea of guaranteed quality—packed in a sealed metal package in pound and half-pound sizes. The Salada Tea Company supplies a quarter of all the tea used in Canada.

Changed oftener, washed oftener—

Our modern standards demand fresh, clean clothes

MEN insist on it, as well as women. Children's happiness and welfare depend on it. To all of us now it is a necessity, not a luxury.

Garments are more valuable, of finer fabrics, more beautiful colourings. Each garment makes more trips to the tub. What of its safety?

Poor quality soap may fade a garment's colours, weaken its fabric, ruin its value, shorten its life. Do you realize how much more value is going into your tubs now than before? How are you protecting it?

Remember, it is difficult to detect the harmful quality of cheap soap, —until it is too late, and the damage has been done forever.

To protect your garments you must have the certainty that the soap you use is safe.

You do not have to hunt. No need to make risky experiments. There is one soap you know is safe. Over forty years have proved it.

Surprise Soap has always been safe, for finest fabrics and delicate colours. They all need the SAFETY, and gentle thoroughness of Surprise Soap more than ever before.

Surprise Soap was first made in St. Stephen, N.B., 44 years ago on the policy that quality should be the first consideration.

This policy has never been altered and quality has improved with advancing knowledge, keeping pace with the modern requirements.

NOTED LAWYER IS COMING HERE

Hon. F. T. Congdon, Former Commissioner of the Yukon, to Address Kiwanis.

HAS MANY INTERESTS.

On Friday next the members of the Kiwanis Club will have the privilege of hearing one of Canada's outstanding men, in the person of the Honorable Frederick Tennyson Congdon, K.C., B.A., LL.B., who has consented to address them.

The Honorable Mr Congdon is a former commissioner of the Yukon, and has had a varied and interesting career as a lawyer and Parliamentarian. Probably no one lawyer in Canada has had any wider experience throughout this Dominion than has Mr. Congdon, who is at present an associate counsel with the firm of Denton and Denton, Toronto, and the firm of Congdon, Campbell and Meredith, barristers, of Vancouver.

He is a member of the Bar for the Yukon, the Provinces of Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, Ontario, Saskatchewan and British Columbia.

He was educated at the Toronto University, Dalhousie University and Oxford, and has practiced law at Halifax, Dartmouth, the Yukon, Vancouver and Toronto.

He was first sent to the Yukon in 1901, as an advisor to the Commissioner and Yukon counsel. Subsequently he was Governor of the Yukon, and later was its representative in the Dominion Government.

The Honorable Mr. Congdon has served on Government Commissions, and in the early part of the century acted as Crown Prosecutor in many important criminal cases.

During his career he has always been active in educational and economic questions.

While his life has been a busy one, he has found time to write, one of his chief efforts being "The Draft Mining Code", in 1910, which was prepared and advocated by him.

While sixty-eight years of age, he is still strong and active, and the account of his experiences while in the Yukon, suggests a rugged constitution.

The topic Mr. Congdon has chosen for Friday is, "Things Serious and Humorous."

HOROSCOPE

The Stars Incline, But Do Not Compel

FOR FRIDAY, MAY 11, 1928.

Benefic aspects prevail to-day according to astrology, which finds adverse aspects active also.

It is a day for planning and for preparation for big work rather than for action.

The planetary government is most favorable to aviation and again the seer foretell much commercial transportation.

Educators now come under a direction of the stars which is most fortunate for them, making for power to inspire those with whom they are in contact.

Women are subject to rather sinister rule that frowns on love affairs and warns against romance that may lure more strongly than usual.

This is not a lucky wedding day since it seems to forecast clashes of will and frequent quarrels.

Theatres should be careful to-day, for the stars do not seem to promise profit.

All the indications point to growth of interest in all the arts and picture galleries will multiply.

The seers explain that after material prosperity there will be a tendency to turn toward intellectual interests.

This is a favorable rule for signing contracts or leases and should bring good luck to those who plan new homes or business expansion.

The conjunction of Mars and Uranus this month is believed to be likely to cause crises in government affairs in many places.

Decision regarding possible candidates will be encouraged by the stars which promise great surprises.

Persons whose birthdate it is may expect favors through letters or written documents in the coming year.

Children born on this day should be especially bright and gifted. Many subjects of this sign have retentive memories and real artistic talents.

THE GROWING GIRL.

Requires a Mother's Constant Care and Watchfulness.

In their early teens it is quite common for girls to outgrow their strength, and mothers should carefully watch the health of their daughters at this time, for it is when strength is sapped by too rapid growth that anaemia develops. The first signs may be noticed by peevishness, langour and headaches. The face grows pale, breathlessness and palpitation follow, with low spirits.

At the first symptoms of anaemia, mothers should act at once. Neglected anaemia often leads to decline, but if you see that your daughter's blood is enriched there need be no cause for anxiety. The finest blood enricher ever discovered is Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. The pure, red blood created by these pills will quickly banish all signs of anaemia. They will build up your girl's health and ensure her a robust girlhood. Give your daughter a course of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills now. Make her strong like thousands of girls and women throughout Canada who have been rescued from the clutches of anaemia by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

Send you name and address to The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont., and you will receive free a little booklet, "Building Up the Blood." You will find it very useful.

You can get Dr. Williams' Pink Pills through any dealer in medicine, or by mail at 50c a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

SALTY SOUP

If you find you have put too much salt in the soup, add a couple of pinches of brown sugar. This will overcome the saltiness somewhat without sweetening it.

DRESS

By MARY MARSHALL

Mauve lace is used for the simple sleeveless frock, and for the loosely fitted coat that may be worn with it.

A sleeveless frock of beige Nottingham lace—with matching long-sleeved coat of the same lace lined with matching georgette.

A sleeveless frock of flower-printed chiffon made over a georgette slip—with three-quarter coat of unlined flower-printed chiffon to go with it.

Molyneaux's sleeveless dinner gown of lace finished with a satin-bound, long-sleeved cardigan of matching lace—a model to be had in beige, Ibis pink, flag blue, Chanel violet and black.

The sleeveless mauve lace frock shown in the sketch with the rather loose-hanging, flaring-sleeved coat to go with it.

These all represent a species of ensemble which is at last gaining favor in this country and which, it seems to me, might be found extremely useful in almost any woman's wardrobe.

The sleeveless gown of lace or chiffon would be appropriate for more or less informal evening occasions—worn with the coat it would make a charming formal afternoon costume for summer and just the thing for theater or restaurant wear when one hesitates to go in formal evening dress. There can be no longer doubt as to the popularity this season of the lace evening frock. Black lace is especially well liked—next in favor comes ecru, then the darker shades of beige. There are also occasional frocks of flesh color and here and there one of brown.

Why We Do What We Do.

We get angry when we are threatened with harm. The effect of anger is to remove the cause of danger by destroying it. Anger is like an order for quick mobilization of all the resources of the organism for immediate use.

The angry person breathes deeply and fast. His heart rate is increased and the blood flows more swiftly through his veins which stand out like small ropes in the neck and face. Increase of activity here is offset by decrease of activity elsewhere in the body very much as troops are shifted around on the field of battle from the quiet sections to where the emergency is greatest. The chursing movements of the stomach, for example, stop immediately and the whole digestive process comes to a standstill. What is the use of wasting energy on digesting food that may never be needed. It is more important to use that energy in helping the individual survive the emergency. There will be plenty of time later for the digesting of food.

The adrenal glands work overtime discharging their juices into the blood stream and causing the liver to liberate quantities of sugar which is excellent muscle food. This energizing substance is carried to the parts of the body that need to be reinforced for war. This is why the angry person is stronger for the time being. He is more completely mobilized and alive.

It is very bad to get up all this steam unless you do something with it. Every time you are angry you should engage in some strenuous physical activity to work off the excess energy in the muscles. Otherwise, you poison the whole system. It is a lot better to keep from getting angry in the first place. If you can keep from getting "mad" you should walk it off or chop wood or something else that is a lot safer than striking the person who made you angry.

LYRICS OF LIFE

A SHIP PUTS OUT TO SEA.

I saw a ship put out to sea,
As many ships have gone from me,
And some had silk, and some had honey,
And some were laden down with money—
I little knew, and little cared,
What load they bore, how far they fared.

But on one ship with affining sails
Beat gently, waves, blow softly, gales.
She bears no gold that I have given,
But guide her, guard her, winds of heaven.
For I behold one ship depart
That bears my love and takes my heart.

I saw a ship put out to sea.
Now, heaven, bring her back to me,
For all my wealth is in her keeping,
My song, my laughter, aye, and weeping,
Not wealth that glittered, gold that gleamed,
But all I had, and all I dreamed.

A hundred ships approach the shore,
But only one I hunger for.
Though some have silk, and some have honey,
And some are laden down with money,
New riches will not make me glad—
Bring back the riches that I had.

MEHLHORN AT HEAD OF LIST

Gene Sarazen and Jose Jurado Are Second and Third Place.

FIVE TIED AT 75.

SANDWICH, Eng., May 10.—(Canadian Press.)—"Wild Bill" Mehlhorn led the field home in the first round of the British open yesterday with a 71. Gene Sarazen was second with 72 and in third place was another invader, the South American, Jose Jurado, who Tuesday leaped into the limelight with a 69 for a stiff qualifying round. Jurado had 74 yesterday.

Geoerge Duncan, Sid Wingate, Archie Compston and Percy Allis followed hard on the heels of the leaders, scoring as did Walter Hagen, all 75's. Duncan has now been installed as the British favorite and to-day recovery over the long and difficult spired the Scottish star. Other Britishers well up yesterday were Stewart Burns, Fred Haggart being tied with the Frenchman, Jean Gassiat, for 76, and Ted Ray, T. H. Cotton, A. J. Young ,Tom Barber and Tom Williamson kept coming along with 77. Harry Vardon and Abe Mitchell were tied at 78.

T. A. Torrance, the Scotch amateur, managed to keep in the top column for the non-pros. He had 79 yesterday and he was joined by Johnny McHugh of California and Charles C. Hazlat. Three pros returned the same figure, James Braid, Fred Fobson and Aubrey Boomer.

Arthur Havers, who won the cup in 1923, was in the same column with Tommy Armour and Jim Barnes from the United States. They scored 81 per man.

Mitchell probably was the greatest disappointment to the British. He seemed never able to profit by the chances that came his way. Compston, out in 38, made a remarkable a bleak day, "Snell" the Scotch inhomeward journey.

The spectators driven to cover by the weather came out in a body to see the finishing holes of Jurado's round. They saw the little Argentine's flashing clubs whip the ball through the winds for great distances. He swings with lightning speed and a spectator who fails to watch closely will not see him hit the ball.

GAINS MATCHED TO BOX JACK SHARKEY

Canadian Champion to Meet Bostonian in Montreal On May 23.

TORONTO, May 10.—The old pugilistic pot is not only simmering, but bubbling over with the Belanger-Frisco Grande bout slated for the Arena Gardens on Friday night, and Larry Gains, Canadian heavyweight champion, matched to box Jack Sharkey at Montreal on May 23. The announcement that the colored clouter was to get his big chance in the Quebec metropolis was made yesterday. Playfair Brown tried with might and main to get the big attraction for the Shamrock club, but the backers of the loquacious Lithuanian passed up the proposition, which was fully as liberal, if not more so, than the offer made by the Montreal parties. The inference is that the men handling the Bostonian's affairs were apprehensive that they would not get an even break if the conqueror of Jack Delaney fought Gains in his old home town. The latter, needless to say, is delighted at the opportunity of meeting Sharkey, who is probably the most talked of fighter in the game to-day outside of champion Gene Tunney. There is a possibility that Gains will box here before he shows himself in Montreal.

Frisco Grande, the Filipino flyweight, is due to arrive here some time to-day. The swarthy 112-pounder, according to advices, is as fit as he could possibly be, having emerged from his bout with Ernie Jarvis without a scratch to show for his hard efforts. He was well on top when the Britisher fouled out in the second round. Belanger is also in great condition, and Manager Dave Garrity, who is not as a usual thing overly optimistic, predicts that he will not only win from the Oriental, but to do the trick inside of the ten-round limit. The card has been completed. Clovis Durand and Steve Rocco will box six rounds in the semi-final, while Jack Golden will take on Bert Hiller in another bout at the same distance. Cliff will make one of his infrequent appearance with Fred Lindhart of Pittsburgh, the latest lightweight sensation, as his opponent, and Ossie Bodkins, who won from George Barber, will clash with Jimmy Valpole of Buffalo. The tip is out that Lindhart and Valpole will take a whole lot of beating.

VIEWS ON SPORT

The executive of the Junior Baseball League and managers of the different teams will meet to-night in the board room of the Duffus Bowling Academy at 8 p.m. sharp. An important matter will be discussed relative to the number of players to be signed on each team.

East Peterborough League managers are rounding out a quartette of strong line-ups for the 1928 championship race, and prospects are bright for a repetition of last season's success, when hugh crowds were attracted to Exhibition Park. The season opens on Saturday afternoon, May 19th, with Crescents and Raybestos providing the pastime.

* * * * * * *

Manager Brioux, who has had to fill a number of gaps in the champions' inner defense, has signed Foley and Kane who will work at short and second base respectively, and having lost Billingsley will likely get Masterson to share the hurling with Mein. Third base has yet to be decided, but a good youngster will be on the job to take Frank Scully's place. Joe and Freddy Jones and Jack LeBarr will probably be seen in the garden, and Barry is one of the candidates for first base. Kenneally will do the back-stopping. Bob Ross and Bun Frost are also probable starters.

* * * * * * *

Cognawagas, who ran neck-and-neck with Crescents for the title last season, will have all their regulars back again. Vannest and Billingsley will do the hurling to Dorsey Davis, who is manager of the team this season. Supporting in the infield will be Rooke, Crary, Wilson and Williams, while a flock of players are trying for outfield berths. The Cogs have Bill Prest, Fred Cripps and Mackness from last year. Clarence Corbett may be found with the team.

Raybestos have several new players including Scully, who will strengthen the team in batting. Scotty Maudsley, who came along fast last summer, will be back again along with Rogers, Corrin, Moore, Harold and Oscar Nicholls, Beavis and others, who will make the Brakeliners much more formidable than last year, when light hitting lost the majority of their games.

* * * * * * *

Bethany promise much opposition with a regular line-up. The Durhamites are working in several new players and are looking forward to a big season, with Daw doing most of the pitching; Ryley at first, and Staples at second. The team last year made every game here interesting, and their feat of holding Crescents to a 1—0 count was one of the feature contests.

CARDS TAKE SECOND GAME

Bat Johnny Ring From Box to Defeat Phillies 7-1.

GIANTS EVEN SERIES.

NEW YORK, May 10 (Canadian Press)—Batting Jimmy Ring, former Cardinal hurler, from the box, the Cards took the Phillies into camp by a 7 to 1 count at St. Louis yesterday from the second win of the series. Bob McGraw, also a former Red Bird hurler, finished the game for Philadelphia.

Littlejohn, starting his first game of the season, held the opposition to six scattered hits. Hafey smashed out a homer in the fifth, scoring Bottomley aheady of him. Gonzale's Texas league single to centre with the bases filled in the twelfth scored Webb, with Chicago's winning run in a 2 to 1 victory over Brooklyn in the second game of the Chicago series yesterday.

McWeeny hurled great ball until the ninth, but was in trouble in every round from that point. Herman led the Brooklyn attack with three hits. Beck, Gonzales and Stephenson each got two for the Cubs.

Virgil Barnes held the Pirates to five hits at Pittsburgh yesterday and the Giants evened the series by winning the second game, 6 to 0. The victory enabled the Giants to continued in the lead.

Barnes permitted no hits until the sixth, when his pitching opponent, Dawson, singled to left. Jackson opened the second and the fourth with singles, and in each instance a Giant rally for two runs followed.

The New York club again was without the services of Terry.

The Reds bunched five singles in the eighth at Cincinnati to break a one-to-one tie with Boston and win the second game of the series four to one.

The victory kept Cincinnati one game behind New York.

Rixey, Criz, Callahan and Pipp singled consecutively to start the eighth, and Allen's hit with one down scored the third run of the inning.

Hornsby's triple to right in the seventh paved the way for Boston's run, Brown scored him in a sacrifice fly. The Reds ran their double play total to 37, negotiating three.

BUNION DERBY.

BUTLER, Ind., May 10 (Canadian Press).—Phillip Granville blazed the trail for the bunion derbyists yesterday, covering the 41.8 miles from Ligonier, Indiana, in 5.38.22 and keeping fourth place in the race with an elapsed time of 460.44.06 for 2,579.7 miles.

John Cronick, Saskatoon, was eleventh in 7.31.flat. His elapsed time, 490.13.24, keeps him in 10th place.

George Liebergall, Bellevue, fifteenth, in 7.44.21—549.51.30, 18th place.

S. Stevano, Calgary, eighteenth, in 7.59.16—659.49.49, 37th.

Andrew Constantinoff, Toronto, seeking to establish a Chicago-New York walking record, came through twenty-fourth in 8.33.41, holding 13th place in 533.59.15.

LEAFS WIN TWIN BILL

Toronto Sluggers Wreck Dunn's Crew, Win 6-2 and 11-5.

PARADE OF PITCHERS.

MAPLE LEAF STADIUM, May 10.—Wednesday must be Jack Dunn's unlucky day, for the Toronto Leafs took a double wallop of his pet Baltimore Orioles yesterday, defeating them 6 to 2 in the first and 11 to 5 in the second. It took six Bird pitchers to try to stem the tide, but the O'Hara crew pounded them all, including Earnshaw, Dunn's $100,000 beauty, who lasted but part of the first inning of the first spasm. Alexander, Burke, and Rabbit featured both games both at bat and on the defence. Some seven thousand happy fans saw Dunn go down to inglorious defeat and the Leafs rise to great heights. Yesterday's games made the series three-one for the Leafs, and five-one including last Sunday's double-header.

Bisons Vanquished 9-5.

Falling on Southpaw Proffitt for a four-run rally in the 11th inning, the Newark Bears vanquished the Bisons at Buffalo, 9 to 5, squaring the series of four games. Howard Signor, young rookie, hurled nice ball for nine innings for the Bisons, but probably lost a chance to win his game when he failed to touch first base for the third Newark out in the eighth inning. As a result of his misplay, the Bears scored the tying run. Lee's long two-bagger was the chief blow in Newark's winning rally.

Rochester lost the final game of its series with Reading at Rochester yesterday, 9 to 7. The Keys scored 6 runs in the first inning and worked well behind the pitching of Seybold, who relieved Wisner in the third inning and allowed but three safe hits.

Lose Fourth Game.

Ten runs in the first inning gave Jersey City a 12-9 victory in the fourth and final game of the series at Montreal with the Royals. The defeat broke the winning streak of the Royals at five straight, but they took the series from the Black Cats, three games to one.

Walter Beall, for whom the Yanks once paid $55,000, was responsible for Jersey City's big inning. Beall hit the first man to face him, walked two more to fill the bases, and before Beall had retired in favor of Rufus Smith, four runs had pattered across. Smith did fairly well with the horrible legacy left him, and retired the side, allowing six more runs to come in.

BIG SIX.

(By Associated Press).

With the American League half of the Big Six forced into idleness yesterday by a sweep of rain and cold through the east, two National League members, Hornsby and Frisch, added to their averages. Paul Waner, the leader, slipped down from his high figure of .393, but checked his descent at .376 to retain first place. He went hitless in four attempts as the Giants smeared the Pirates, 6 to 0.

Hornsby cut in with a triple and a single at Cincinnati, and scored Boston's only run; but the Reds made four. Frisch batted 400 for the day at St. Louis, and climbed up to .327.

The standing to date:

	G	AB	R	H	Pct.
P. Waner	22	93	20	35	.376
Ruth	20	68	23	24	.353
Hornsby	19	71	15	24	.338
Cobb	16	71	10	24	.338
Frisch	24	101	23	32	.327

SEEK YOUTH FOR ATTACKS.

WASHINGTON, May 10.— (Canadian Press.)—Washington and Maryland police were searching to-day for a youth believed to have been responsible for an attack last night on Leonard Kephart, scientist, and an attempt to abduct Percival Wilson, a bank official.

St. Lawrence Waterway

An Interview by the Honorable G. N. Gordon, P.C., K.C., Formerly Minister of Immigration in the King Government.

The Canadian National Advisory Committee's recommendations for the development of St. Lawrence power indicated a sense of loyalty to Canadian interests, and a caution in safeguarding Canadian rights.

Only two main features present themselves, in the report, which are:—

FIRSTLY—Development of Canadian sections by Canadian interests, through public or private ownership.

SECONDLY—Absorption of the power thus developed by Canadian users before the international development is undertaken.

The Committee's report to the Government is briefly, Canadian development of the sections within Canadian territory first, and these recommendations, the Government apparently feels are acceptable. This plan, too, is not much different from the idea of the Conservative Convention's proposal of an all Canadian development, as the only section recommended by the Committee, to be constructed under International agreement, is the short distance where the St. Lawrence flows between the Canadian and United States shores.

It cannot be seriously questioned that the provinces possess the right to develop power from the waters flowing within their boundaries. Such being the case, Quebec naturally wishes her power development undertaken through private interests, as the Quebec people never have been sympathetic to public ownership schemes. Any attempt to enter upon the scheme as a publicly owned undertaking, paid for from the Treasury of Canada, and from the taxation of Canadian business, would create immediate hostility in Quebec. The Quebec Government's plan of development, is for private interests to develop the power, construct the canals for navigation purposes, along the lines required by the Dominion Government for shipping, and then to hand over the canals to the Crown without cost to be used in the proposed shipway scheme. To protect the public interest, the Government will control the form and manner of construction, and will generally safeguard, not only Provincial rights, but also the Dominion requirements.

That private capital will be used instead of borrowing and adding many hundreds of millions to Canada's National debt, has unquestionably met the approval of the leaders of financial and business affairs in Canada.

Ontario has now such a huge investment in the publicly owned Hydro Electric Developments, which are under the Ontario Government control, that it is likely that the Ontario Commission will be anxious to construct and develop the Ontario section independently of any United States assistance.

Quite outside of sentiment, Ontario people would never surrender to the United States, a share of her power for all time, when industrial and commercial development in Ontario has increased yearly to such proportions, within the last decade.

As the Prime Minister of Canada has intimated, the Provinces have a right to, and will be consulted, for, unless there is harmony among the Federal and two Provincial Governments, this great undertaking for the development of Canada's power, and as a result, an increasing development of Canadian industry and commerce, will fail.

The very friendly attitude of Prime Minister Ferguson and Prime Minister Taschereau to each other's views at the Dominion Interprovincial Conference held last summer at Ottawa, leads to the belief that the Provincial Governments will be willing to meet in a spirit of compromise as long as it is clear that no Federal encroachment upon provincial rights is likely, and that neither province will interfere with the other province's right of development within its own boundaries.

The result of the arrangements as far as Ontario and Quebec are concerned, must be that Ontario will construct, for its power development under public ownership, while Quebec will within its territory, develop, as it has always preferred, under private ownership subject to Government control.

WATER, AND KIDNEY ELIMINATION.

The kidneys have only one function to perform in the body and that is to eliminate poisonous wastes from the body. In health the kidneys have the power to extract elements of urine from the blood streams but, at the same time, as the blood passes through the kidneys, the good parts of the blood are not disturbed but go on to do their work in various parts of the body.

The red and white cells as well as the food materials contained in the blood do not pass out in the urine except in diseases of the kidneys themselves, such as nephritis, albuminuria, pylitis, tuberculosis, etc.

In some cases, after continued abuse, the kidney membranes become hardened and and even calcify so that the normal elimination of urea and other poisons are retained. The kidneys of the average adult secrete and throw out about a quart and a half of urine daily.

In many disorders which have their start in other parts of the body, it is necessary for the blood to eliminate an extra large amount of bodily wastes and toxins. The kidneys have their work to do in this extra elimination, and often such an added burden is placed upon the vital organs that the constant irritation of excessive impurities produces injury to the kidneys themselves.

A sick body is a body full of poisons, and these extra toxins must always be eliminated before health can be completely restored.

In the cure of any disease it is important to supply the blood with plenty of water to assist in dissolving the impurities in order to eliminate them. If the one who is ill uses an extra large amount of water, the blood is thus more liquefied and is better able to eliminate impurities through the lungs, kidneys, skin and intestines. The urine thus diluted with more water, the kidneys are not irritated as much, and more waste products can be then passed out in the extra amount of urine secreted.

Urine is ordinarily amber colored, having a certain specific gravity or thickness, but it is better for the one who is attempting to cure himself of any disease to use enough water so that the urine is only a light straw color. Of course, the more water that is taken the more urine will be passed in the twenty-four hours, so that instead of only a quart and a half of urine there will be from two to four quarts secreted and eliminated during the day.

It is wise to drink the largest amount of water between meals, when the stomach is comparatively empty. Distilled water is the purest water, and more readily absorbed, so should be used whenever available.

The one who is trying to recover from any chronic or acute disease should fully realize the good which can come from extra elimination through the kidneys. Elimination of poisons through the intestine, skin and lungs is always vitally important, but the much abused kidneys, the unfailing functioning of which has kept you alive so far, will also assist you in the cure of your disorder if you will just give them a better chance by furnishing them with enough water with which to perform the extra elimination which is necessary.

Questions and Answers:

Question—Mrs. O. I. J. writes: "I have found your column very helpful and I would like to ask you concerning my trouble. I have psoriasis and have used many electrical treatments, salves, ointments, etc., and several skin specialists have failed to help me."

Answer: Your trouble can be entirely cured if you will follow the correct diet treatment. Space does not permit me to print the complete instructions, but if you will write me again, sending your name and address, I will be glad to send such information to you.

Question—P. A. L. asks: "Do you advise the use of eggs every day in the week for breakfast if one likes them? I have heard that the sulphur which they contain would prove harmful if too many eggs are used."

Answer: I have never found a patient who could not use at least one egg daily. The average number which may be used by any one person is between ten and fourteen a week. If the yolk, which contains the sulphur, is discarded, you can use the whites of several eggs each day, either at breakfast or in place of meat at the evening meal.

Question—W. H. writes: "I have already reduced 19 pounds by following your advice, but I do not get rid of a pain which I have in the stomach. Sometimes I feel like vomiting."

Answer: If you do not know what is causing your pain, I advise you to go to your doctor and have a diagnosis. This may prevent the development of a serious trouble.

AT THE REGENT.

UNMASKING THE MENACE.

"The Masked Menace," the Pathe-serial, starring Larry Kent and Jean Arthur, comes to a thrilling and final climax to-day to Saturday with the showing of the tenth and last chapter at the Regent Theatre. Still Face is forced to reveal is real identity—for without his word for it no one could possibly have believed it. Plastic surgery has given him a face in no way resembling the one that a war shell had torn away, but no surgical operation had been able to amputate the bitterness in his soul and the hatred and meanness in his heart

Tingling scenes hairbreath escapes and a double barreled romance is what one sees in "Square Crooks" which opens at the Regent Theatre to-night.

The story has to do with the struggle of two men who are striving to turn over a new leaf after dabbling in the night life of New York.

Robert Armstrong and Johnny Mack Brown are the two boys who find the road to honesty and freedom difficult. The opening of the story finds the two acting as chauffeurs for a wealthy family. After the boys are compelled to resign they are accused of stealing a diamond necklace. Their past goes against them and the law is about to exact its toll when an unusual twist brings the climax to a startling finish.

The home life of Armstrong is responsible for many humorous sequences as he tries to withhold the facts of his losing another job from his charming but somewhat fiery-tempered wife.

"Square Crooks" is the adaptation of the Broadway stage success of James T. Judge and the picture improves on the play.

The supporting cast includes Dorothy Dwan, Dorothy Appleby, Clarence Burton, Eddie Sturgis, Lydia Dickson and Jackie Coombs. Lew Seiler directed.

All Goodyear Tires are built of SUPER-TWIST Cords—61% more stretch and life than old-style cords

QUOTING from the last annual report to the shareholders of the Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co. of Canada, Limited:

"Your two rubber plants have worked to their maximum capacity twenty-four hours per day throughout the year. The plant at St. Hyacinthe (where SUPER-TWIST Cords are made) has operated twenty-two hours per day for each working day during the year."

This spells E-F-F-I-C-I-E-N-C-Y—100% operation of plant. Every dollar invested in buildings and machinery is made to work three times as hard. The result is obvious—lower costs, greater value to the consumer, and still an acceptable profit for shareholders.

By using Goodyear Tires, motorists enjoy the savings of continuous, day after day, month after month, 24 hour operation. Goodyear profitably produces the World's Greatest Tire at standard prices. This is the value the Goodyear Selected Dealer has to offer you. Get to know him. There is at least one in every town in Canada big enough to support a good dealer.

TANKER'S CONTENTS FILL 1000 TANK CARS

One Vessel Brings 173,000 Barrels of Oil From South America.

On a recent trip the oil tanker "C. O. Stillman," which is the largest tank ship ever built, transported 173,000 barrels of South American Crude Oil. As a barrel of oil is 35 gallons, this Imperial Oil tanker had aboard at the time 6,655,000 gallons of crude.

It is rather difficult for the laymen to picture just how much oil 6,055,000 gallons is, so to put it in another way the C. O. Stillman cargo would fully load more than half of the 2,000 railway tank cars which Imperial Oil operates in Canada. Forty tank cars constitute a big train, so that the "Stillman's" cargo comprised approximately twenty-five big trainloads of oil.

The "C. O. Stillman" is one of the twenty large tank ships operated by Canadaian enterprise in transporting crude petroleum from Peru and from Colombia.

UNCLE WIGGILY AND THE PRETTY SHELLS

"Unkie Wig! Unkie Wig! Where is 'oo?" called a little voice near the hollow stump bungalow one morning. "Oh, Unkie Wig! Where is 'oo?"

"Now what kind of baby talk is that?" asked Mr. Longears, as he began to twinkle his pink nose. "Scooter, are you talking like that?" For he thought it might be one of his forty 'leven little bunnies.

"No, I isn't 'Tooter!" went on the lisping voice and from around the edge of the front stoop, on which the rabbit gentleman was standing, hopped Baby Bunty.

"Oh, I might have known who it was!" chuckled Mr. Longears. "Well, what do you want, Bunty?"

"Is 'oo dot any tandy?" asked Bunty

"Candy!" exclaimed Mr. Longears. "Where did you hear about candy? And no more of that baby talk, Bunty! You're getting too old for that! Besides, it makes my nose tickle," and he had to scratch it. "What about candy?" asked Mr. Longears.

"Sammie Littletail was telling me about how you drew puzzle pictures on the candy shop window to stop his toothache," went on Bunty. "And I thought maybe you bought some candy. Did 'oo? Has 'oo dot any tandy, Unkie Wig! Oh, I didn't mean that!" Bunty was quick to say, talking again as a nice rabbit child should. "I won't do any more baby talk if you'll give me some candy and take me adventuring."

"I'll see about it," was all Mr. Longears would promise. "But here's a gumdrop for you to start with, if you haven't a hollow tooth."

"Dr. Bear dentist fixed all my teeth and he didn't hurt hardly any," said Bunty. "But was gumdrop one of the puzzle candies?" she asked.

"No," answered Mr. Longears, "the names of the candies which Sammie guessed from the puzzle pictures were peppermint, cocoanut and jelly beans."

"Oh, I love jelly beans!" cried Baby Bunty.

"Well, I haven't any now," Uncle Wiggily said; "but here's a chocolate drop, and now you may come along with me."

"Are you going to take me adventuring?" asked Bunty eagerly, as she jumped up and down for joy.

"I'll let you come with me as far as the Hollow Stump School," said the rabbit gentleman. "Then you must go in or the Lady Mouse Teacher will not like it."

"Maybe we'll have an adventure before I get to school. I hope so," said Baby Bunty. So she and Uncle Wiggily hopped along and pretty soon they heard a sound as if a lot of little children were laughing.

"Hark!" whispered Bunty, tipping her ears forward.

"That is only the babbling brook," said Uncle Wiggily. "We'll hop over it on our way to school!" But when they reached the brook, Bunty did not jump over, for on the near shore she saw many pretty red, blue, pink and green shells, some of which she gathered.

"I'll take them to the Lady Mouse Teacher," said Bunty.

She put the shells in her dress pocket; and then, after she and Uncle Wiggily had jumped over the brook, on and on they went. But all of a sudden, when they were almost at the school, Bunty stumbled and fell. All the pretty shells scattered out of her pocket. Though she and Uncle Wiggily hurried to pick them up, it took so long that Bunty would have been late for school. Only, as it happened, some birds flew down out of the trees and, in their beaks, picked up all the pretty shells for Bunty so she didn't get late for class. Then Uncle Wiggily hopped in the Hollow Stump School and on the blackboard he drew three puzzles.

"These pictures are the names of three birds that helped pick up Bunty's shells," said the rabbit. "How many of you can guess them?"

The animal children looked at the puzzles. Part of one was the picture of a long sled. Another was—but there, look and see for yourselves. Try to guess the names of the birds.

She and Uncle Wiggily hopped along.

THIS GREAT HEALING OIL MUST BANISH ECZEMA AND SKIN TROUBLES

Make up your mind today that you are going to give you skin a real chance to get well.

You've probably been, like a lot of other people, convinced that the only thing to use was an ointment or salves (some of them are very good) but in the big majority of cases these sticky salves simply clog the pores and the condition primarily remains the same.

Go to Bond's Drug Store, C. M. Moncur, Bert McLeod, McDermid Drug Co., Ltd., McDermid & Jury, or any good druggist today and get an original bottle of Moone's Emerald Oil.

The very first application will give you relief and a few short treatments will thoroughly convince you that by sticking faithfully to it for a short while your skin troubles will be a thing of the past.

Remember that Moone's Emerald Oil is a clean, powerful penetrating Antiseptic Oil that does not stain or leave a greasy residue and that it must give complete satisfaction or your money cheerfully refunded.

Augustus Sawers wishes to make a contradiction in connection with the report of the recent inquest in which it was reported that he had called Mr. Stewart in on the previous occasion when Montgomery was arrested. Mr. Sawers states this is incorrect, as he was not in any way responsible for Mr. Stewart's going to the hotel except on the one occasion on May 3rd.

Mine Operations Suspended Because of Floods

OTTAWA RIVER STILL RISING AND CAUSING MUCH DAMAGE

First Floors of Houses at Gatineau Point Now Under Water.

DELIVERIES BY BOAT.

Northern Rivers Are Falling, But Large Areas Are Still Flooded.

OTTAWA, May 11 (Canadian Press)—The Ottawa river at the foot of Parliament Hill moved up three inches last night and is now at the high water mark of 1922, which was the maximum for many years. Much damage is being done and inconvenience suffered as the floods continue to swell. Numbers of cottagers along the shore of Lake Deschenes, which is an expansion of the Ottawa river, are surrounded by water and in many cases the main floors of the dwellings are submerged. Below the Chaudiere Falls the situation is more pressing. The Ottawa Rowing Club has been forced to move its shells, and all the boathouses are flooded.

Gatineau Point, Que., at the junction of the Gatineau and Ottawa rivers, last night presented an unusual spectacle with lights burning brightly in the upper windows of the marooned houses. Moreau's Bridge, at the lower end of the village, is almost awash and the authorities have closed it as dangerous to traffic. One of the men delivering bread from boats, said that in the low-lying sections of the village he made his deliveries through the second story windows.

Streams Drop Slightly

SAULT STE. MARIE, May 11 (Canadian Press).—While the Mississaugi river has dropped a foot from the peak at the iron bridge, it is still eighteen feet above the normal level in places and traffic is still blocked by floods over the trunk road. In sections near the Sault and north of here, the streams are getting back to normal levels.

First Floors Submerged

STURGEON FALLS, Ont., May 11 (Canadian Press).—Damage in Sturgeon Falls as a result of floods now raging in the district will aggregate fifty thousand dollars, Theo. Legault, M.L.A., estimated to-day. In addition there will be considerable loss to farmers who have been prevented by high water from cultivating their land. More than a thousand acres of land in the district are under water, Mr. Legault estimated.

At Field, the water has risen to the ceilings of the first floors of the houses and twenty families who lived in single storey dwellings have been forced to move. Transportation facilities other than rowboats are at a standstill. Deliveries of provisions are carried on by boats, and groceries, bread and milk are being handed in to the householders through second story windows.

WISHART CAMPBELL SINGS AT ST. PAUL'S

Mothers' Day Music To Be Sung By Popular Baritone.

Wishart Campbell, baritone soloist, and 1927 gold medalist for Canada, will be the special soloist at St. Paul's Presbyterian Church at both services on Sunday. Mr. Campbell is exclusive staff artist for radio station CKGW, Toronto, and is very popular with radio fans in Peterborough, many of whom, no doubt, will be glad of this opportunity to hear him face to face. He is the son of a retired Presbyterian minister, whose home is in Barrie.

Mr. Campbell was a student at Normal in this city and afterwards taught school for over five years before making the discovery that he had a voice of outstanding quality. He is studying at present under Dr. Ham in Toronto. Recently, while carrying on a request program over the air, a radiogram came from a ship four days out from San Francisco saying that his first number had come in strong, and requesting that he might sing "The Desert Song." He says it was thrilling to sing this number and feel that away out on the high seas many voyagers were listening in.

On Sunday he will sing the following pieces: "O God Have Mercy" (Mendelssohn), "There's a Wonderful Story", "Hold Thou My Hand, "Mother o' Mine" (Kipling), "Little Mother o'Mine" (Burleigh), "Alone With God" (Abbott).

JAPANESE KILLED.

TOKIO, May 11 (Canadian Press).—It was officially stated to-day that twenty-one Japanese soldiers have been killed in the fighting with the Chinese Nationalists at Tsinan. Seventy were wounded.

Waters Are Rising In Montreal River

LATCHFORD, Ont., May 11. — (Canadian Press).—The water in the Montreal River is extremely high at this point, but at present there is no apparent danger of the dam breaking under the strain. The sluice gates are all wide open, and unless the logs now in booms on Bay Lake break their chains and pile up against the dam, the gates can take care of the water.

Considerable damage has been done to lumber in the Murphy Lumber Company's yards. Boards and lath are floating around and the yard railway tracks are covered by over 30 inches of water.

Yesterday morning the dam at Indian Chutes, about 30 miles up the river, was opened, and it is expected that this will raise the level of the river an additional two feet above its present level.

AFFIDAVITS ARE REFUSED

Immigration Committee Orders Caldwell to Prepare to Come to Ottawa.

FOR EXAMINATION.

OTTAWA, Ont., May 11 (Canadian Press). — The Parliament immigration inquiry will not accept affidavits from Ald. M. Coldwell, of Regina, in respect to his charges of trafficking in special immigration permits by members of Parliament. Ald. Coldwell is being notified to hold himself in readiness for a summons to Ottawa.

A motion by L. Bancroft (Liberal-Progressive, Selkirk) to this effect carried at to-day's sitting of the inquiry on a vote of eight to five. The opinion expressed by the members of the committee conducting the investigation was that it would be unfair to preclude cross-examination on any charges by the filing of affidavits.

Y.M.C.A. CIRCUS TO BE BEST YET

Bigger and Better Than Ever Is Slogan of Directors This Year.

SOME STRANGE ANIMALS.

What is undoubtedly one of the stellar attractions of the year will be seen in the Brock street rink next Wednesday and Thursday nights, May 17 and 18. The boys' circus, for many years before the war one of the most popular shows of the year, and revived again last year, is emulating the example of the road shows by being bigger and better every year.

All kinds of wild animals will be on exhibit to delight the heart of the small boy and his more settled parents. Elephants, ostriches, camels, lions, horses of many hues, and a great many other animals that have never been seen before will be in action on these two nights.

As a special attraction the committee in charge are arranging for the appearance of the most famous girl high jumper in the Dominion of Canada, if not in the entire world, to appear each night Miss Catherwood, who came to Toronto recently from the west, and who is expected to bring home to Canada from the Olympic sports, the title of the world's highest lady jumper, will be here if the present arrangements are confirmed.

Another special event will be a two-mile relay race, with four men to a team, between the Peterborough 'Y' Harriers, C.G.E. Athletic Club and Lindsay.

The committee in charge of the circus is composed of C. S. Cummer, D. A. Loomis, R. J. Bolton, W. T. Miller, Hector McLeod, D. Crawford, Ross L. Dobbin, Gordon Ham and James Turnbull.

The prices are such that crowded houses will prevail, early reports indicating an unprecedented demand for seats.

DUBLIN, May 11 (Canadian Press) Holland eliminated Ireland in the first round of the European zone Davis Cup tennis play today. Taking to-day's doubles match in addition to two singles yesterday.

Bandits Are Given Stiff Prison Terms

MONTREAL, Que., May 11.—(Canadian Press.)—Antonio, Albert and Alfred Dandurand, brothers, and Oscar Leroux, were sentenced to three years in the penitentiary with eight strokes of the lash, for beating and robbing a taxi-chaffeur near Laprairie and stealing his auto on May 1. Judge Lacroix pronounced sentence on the men after trial in the Court of Sessions.

Evidence heard at the trial showed that the quartette had hired Albert Beaurecard to drive them from a hotel in Laprairie to a place eight miles away. At a dark spot in the road they leaped on him, clubbed him about the head with bottles and then threw him, unconscious into a ditch. They took $90 from him and drove off in his auto.

HUMOR'S PLACE IN DAILY LIFE ABLY OUTLINED

Hon. F. T. Congdon Addresses Kiwanis Club at Weekly Luncheon.

MUCH APPRECIATED.

Music and Light Heartedness Should Be Encouraged, Speaker Believes.

Humor, and its place in the daily lives of people and nations, was ably outlined and choice samples were given to Kiwanians at their weekly luncheon, when the Hon. F. T. Congdon, former Commissioner of the Yukon, spoke to them on the subject, "Things Serious and Humorous," covering, as one member expressed it, "from Shakespeare to George Ade, and from the Delphic Oracle to the present time." Certainly the address of Mr. Congdon was deserving of the hearty applause which came at its conclusion, and of the sincere vote of appreciation voiced by Kiwanian Wilfred Huycke.

At to-day's meeting, President Joe John gave way to Dr. Frank Neal, who conducted the meeting most acceptably. He introduced the Silvertone Quartette, comprising Vern. Morphet, Carl Brown, George Liddle, and Art Reynolds, who proceeded to introduce a couple of new Kiwanis songs. The success of their efforts was revealed when the other Kiwanians joined in and picked up the new ones enthusiastically. Frank Dawson, booster for the day, was accorded much unsolicited applause and his prizes went to W. Freel, Carl McLean, Vern Morphet and Art Reynolds.

Speaker Introduced.

Joe Wearing felt it an honor to introduce so noted a lawyer as the Hon. Frederick Tennyson Congdon, K.C., B.A., L.L.B, and briefly outlined his career, touching on the facts that Mr. Congdon had been counsel to the Commissioner of the Yukon, and later governor of that district, as well as its representative in the Dominion House.

Hon. Mr. Congdon.

Mr. Congdon, in his opening remarks, stated that he had been thinking his subject too large a one to be dealt with at this noon hour luncheon, but on enjoying the luncheon and meeting, thus far, he felt that it represented his subject, "Things Serious and Humorous." Said he: "We are here in a society that has very serious purposes, yet there is, intermingled with its every serious motion, laughter and happiness, a compliment to the successful carrying out of those purposes. It not only provised an opportunity to make new friends, but it repairs old friendships."

Speaking of the music which is a part of the Kiwanis Club, Mr. Congdon felt that it should be greatly encouraged, as it would go beyond the club and help make Canada more like England of Elizabethan days when the Old Country led the world in music and everyone sang.

"It is to be hoped," said he, "that some day ability to read music and sing or play it will be a necessary part of every one's training as a citizen.

It has been said that Canadians are too materialistic to want to hear of things idealistic, but it is a fact that a high moral character depends on a good balancing of the emotions. We should realize this so that we may govern ourselves and our children wisely and save them from themselves during the emotional periods of their lives. A man who gives way to his emotions is crazy, but self-control is an essential to the higher life.

"While it is necessary that we treat some things seriously, we should relieve the tension with good humor which forms a part of good minds and is a part of the well-balanced emotions. Certainly it is a sign that a nation has somewhat reached a state of maturity when it can endure and make jokes at its own expense.

The speaker went on to give examples of English humor, which inclines toward humorous things in solemn settings; the Scottish humor, which is constantly being applied to Scotland and her people, and of the subtlety of the Irishman. Thus he endeavored, successfully, to show the part that humor, the antiseptic among the emotions, plays in our daily lives.

ENGINEERS HOLD ANNUAL MEETING

Elect Officers In Business Interval During Social Evening.

LADIES PRESENT.

The annual meeting of the Peterborough Branch of the Engineering Institute of Canada, held last evening in the Paragon Tea Rooms, was a particularly bright and happy one, in that there was not only a successful business meeting with election of officers, but also a supper at 6.30, attended by the members and their ladies.

Chairman A. E. Caddy, M.E.I.C., was master of ceremonies and since, by strange coincidence, his birthday fell on the date of the annual meeting, a birthday cake was introduced with all due ceremony during the fore part of the evening. The toast to the ladies, by Secretary W. E. Ross and R. L. Dobbin, proved brief, but humorously interesting after which an half hour was taken up with business, including the presentation of reports and the election of the executive committee as follows: G. H. Burchill, W. M. Cruthers, R. C. Flitton, A. B. Gates, J. A. G. Goulet, B. Ottewell, R. H. Parsons, E. R. Shirley.

The retiring chairman Mr. Caddy, briefly addressed the meeting, giving all credit to the committee rather than to himself, for the success of the past year. He thanked the branch for the honor of having been its chairman, made complimentary reference to the new executive committee, and expressed the hope that the branch might enjoy a prosperous future.

Following the business meeting, moving pictures, written, filmed and edited by members of the branch, were shown, while the remainder of the evening was spent in auction bridge. The prize winners were Mrs. W. M. Cruthers and Mrs. H. R. Sills while the lucky gentlemen were Messrs Fortuin and A. L. Dickieson.

During the evening J. B. Taylor of Toronto a guest of R. L. Dobbin, entertained with some inimitable character sketches which were particularly well received.

PRODUCED-IN-CANADA EXHIBITION AGAIN PLANNED BY KIWANIS CLUB

Buildings Gutted In Cobalt Fire

COBALT, Ont., May 11.—(Canadian Press.) — Two buildings were gutted and a third structure was badly damaged when fire, originating when a pot of tar being heated on a stove in the home of Charles Tasse, 79 Lang street, boiled over about 11.30 yesterday morning. The flames spread from Tasse's place into the ice cream parlor of Ferris Augi, which also was destroyed, and also into the adjoining building, owned by Thomas Ross, and occupied downstairs as a club and upstairs as a dweling. Four men were hurt when a smoke explosion blew out a plate glass window and A. Khoury had to receive treatment at the hospital. The others sustained minor cuts. The loss will be about 12,000, with little insurance.

Executive Committee Meets To Make Preliminary Plans For Show.

DR. J. CRAIG LEADS.

New Features Arranged and Exhibition Will Be Bigger Than Ever.

Making an early start this year, the Kiwanis Club Produced-in-Canada Exhibition committee held its first session last night with Dr. John J. Craig, exhibition manager, presiding.

Applications for booths are already being made, and application forms are being sent out. It was decided that new and novel features are to be provided in 1928, with the same ambitious spirit that has marked the past two years' shows, but some of the well-liked events will be retained. The baby competition, which was so successful last year, will again be managed by John I. Allen, and W. S. Merrell will manage a cat show and a dog show. H. C. Huffman has been appointed chairman of the games committee; H. J. Gilgour, secretary of the club, is chairman of the exhibits committee; T. Mark will arrange competitions for school children, and J. B. Nelson is in charge of agricultural exhibits and programs. R. T. E. Hicks-Lyle is treasurer for the exhibition and John R. Heron is secretary and chairman of publicity.

The meeting was one hundred per cent in attendance and enthusiasm, indicating an interest that will put the 1928 exhibition over the top more successfully than ever.

HAGEN WINS TITLE.

Gene Sarazen Finishes in Second Place in British Open Golf Final.

SANDWICH, Eng., May 11 (Canadian Press).—Walter Hagen to-day won the British open golf championship with his score of 292 for 72 holes. Archie Compston took 73 on his final round for a total of 295, three strokes back of Hagen's mark. Gene Sarazen finished with a score of 73 for his last round and a total score of 294, establishing him in the position of runner-up to Hagen.

Hagen scored a pair of 72's in the final rounds to win. It was his third victory in the British title event. He won in 1922 and 1924.

During the last few years there has been a notable boom in sports in some of the South American countries. This is shown by the fact that some of the Buenos Aires daily papers which formerly grudgingly allowed a few columns to sporting news, now, in a certain day's issue, devote ten pages or more to sporting events.

Sing-Sing Convict Flees Over Wall At Dusk and Outraces Prison Guards

OSSINING, N.Y., May 11.—The ominous whistle at Sing Sing prison signalled last night the escape from the institution of Carmine Casamino, who was serving a five-year term for grand larceny.

As the warning cut through the evening rain about 6.30 o'clock, giving to the townspeople their first "escape" thrill in several months, the prison officials hastily locked up the remaining seventeen hundred prisoners and sent out squads for the missing man.

A few minutes before the tocsin sounded, Casamino, who had apparently gained freedom by scaling the twenty-two-foot outer wall, almost fell into the hands of three keepers off duty. These men, George Kenecht, Louis Tyler and Henry Barrett, were, were strolling along State Street near the outer wall when Kenecht saw Casamino dog-trotting south.

The fugitive, clad in prison uniform, espied the trio almost at the same time. As they started for him, he threw away a sweater he was carrying and raced down the street. He headed east toward the Albany Post Road, and as the men came closer he dodged in among some dwellings. He disappeared in the maze of back yards and fences.

Kenecht hurried to a telephone and notified the prison. Just at that time the regular nightly count of prisoners was being made. It was hastily completed and showed who was the missing man. Amid a certain amount of confusion all prisoners were locked in their cells and the searching parties dispatched beyond the walls.

Late last night Casimino was still at large. It was believed possible that he had been driven to cover by the chase by the keepers and was still hiding within the town limits.

NOBILE STARTS POLAR FLIGHT BUT IS FORCED TO TURN BACK

Bad Weather Curtails Flight To Nicolai Second Land To-day.

AWAY SEVEN HOURS.

Dirigible's Crew Had Intended To Remain Away Until Late on Saturday.

KING'S BAY, Spitzbergen, May 11 (Canadian Press). — The dirigible Italia, which left King's Bay this morning for a forty-hour flight over the polar regions, returned after seven hours because of bad weather conditions.

PLANNED LONGER TRIP.

KING'S BAY, Spitzbergen, May 11 (Canadian Press). — (Copyright by Associated Press) — The dirigible Italia, ready for a flight to the North Pole, had started her first trip into polar regions early to-day, and was expected back at King's Bay in about forty hours. The huge dirigible, under the command of General Umberto Nobile, who already has made one dirigible flight to the North Pole, took a north-westward passage the same as that taken by the Norge in 1926, and in half an hour was out of sight of those watching at King's Bay. General Nobile intended to explore the surroundings of the North Pole first and return about midnight on Saturday.

The Italia was first to go to Nicolai II. Land. It was to proceed to the ice edge and follow north, then eastward, exploring the northern part of Nicolai II. Land, which has been explored very little. Weather reports were being sent from the supply ship.

Those aboard the Italia, with Gen. Nobile included Captain Mariano, Lieutenants Vigliere and Arduino, Motorman Cecion, Professor Pontremoli, Engineer Trojani, Radioman Bergi, Motormen Caratti, Pomello, Ciocca, and Anglioletti, Assistants Alessandrini and Belocchi, and Meterologist Malmgreen.

Seven of the men made the polar flight with Amundsen's Norge in 1926.

HOPES FOR PEACE.

GENEVA, May 11. — Canadian Press. — Cheng Loh Chinese member of the Council of the League of Nations, declared to an Associated Press correspondent to-day: "I believe there is every hope of direct negotiations between the Chinese and the Japanese governments."

He made this statement when asked for his views on the Nanking government's protest to the League that Japan had violated China's integrity and independence.

PLANE FORCED DOWN.

New Government Plane Falls While Being Tested at Campbellford.

OTTAWA, Ont., May 11 (Canadian Press). — While making a test flight at 1.30 to-day, half a mile west of this city, a Government plane, known as the Vedette type, was forced down for some unknown reason, and the occupants were given a ducking in cold water. As far as could be ascertained neither of the occupants, Flight-Lieutenants Hewson and Johnston were injured. Officials of the Air Force rushed to the scene and are trying to salvage the plane.

Beer Exports Heavy From Carling Plant

TORONTO, May 11 (Canadian Press).—Testifying before Mr. Justice Audette in the Exchequer Court here to-day in the Dominion Government's action against the Carling Export Brewery and Malting Company for $421,000, claimed as arrears of sales and gallonage taxes, Harry Cornwall, bookkeeper of the Bermuda Export Company, said that between July 15, 1926, and April 30, 1927, beer exported by the firm was valued at more than a million and a half dollars. The case has now occupied the court for five days and there is still considerable evidence to be heard.

MADOC MEMORIAL BEAUTIFUL PARK

Work of Cleaning and Levelling Plot Proceeding Rapidly This Spring.

MADOC, May 11.—Madoc is to have a memorial park Over a year ago the village council received, on behalf of the citizenry, a lot of land, about one acre in proportion, from the estate of the late Thomas H. Thompson, M.P., to be used as a memorial park, and this Spring the work of cleaning, levelling and planting has begun in earnest.

The new park ground is situated just east of the armouries property on St. Lawrence street and extends south to the next street opposite the high school. At the south it will require considerable filling, but, citizens have been dumping sawdust and other good fillers here and with a couple of teams drawing earth for a couple of days, this part of the work will soon be accomplished. However much cleaning up is necessary before the teams start.

At the council meeting held recently, a park commission was formed comprising Chairman Samuel Rollins, ex-reeve Walter Whytock, and C. John Smith, and to this commission was granted the sum of one hundred dollars on which to begin operations. This sum will be augmented as necessity arises.

Samuel Rollins is a particularly busy man, being on the job practically every day, burning up rubbish, showing carters where to dump filler, and generally preparing for the final levelling up. One the land are to be seen some splendid elms and an oak or two, while it is the intention of the commission to plant more trees and flower beds.

May Place Memorial

Since 1921 the Madoc Women's Institute has had in mind some form of memorial to those who fought and died overseas.

Through concerts and many other means known to Institute work, the ladies have gathered together the sum of $1,100.00 and have, several times in the past, sought a place to erect the memorial, but no site seemed available that met with general approval. However, now that the memorial park is under way, it is expected that the memorial will be chosen and erected within the next year, as the park is likely to be finished within that time.

MUCH DAMAGE IS WROUGHT BY FLOOD WATERS

Miller Lake Mine Forced To Close Until Conditions Become Normal.

BRIDGE WASHED OUT.

Gatineau River Continues To Rise—Points Flooded Along Banks.

COBALT, Ont., May 11 (Canadian Press). — Operations at the Miller Lake O'Brien Mine in Gowganda have been temporarily suspended because of the floods which are prevalent in the north country at present, according to men reaching here yesterday from that section. They declare that the flume to the power house has been washed out and that, for the present, it has been found necessary to close down the property until conditions become normal.

From this same source, it is learned that the road from Elk Lake to Cobalt cannot be used meantime, owing to the high waters having washed out a small bridge about a mile from Elk Lake. The big bridge over the Montreal River at Elk Lake is safe, they declare, but one house floated down the stream, and there was two feet of water in a hotel there when the men passed through.

Peak Not Yet Reached.

Indications in this section last night were that the peak of the high water has not yet been reached, as Lake Temiskaming is still rising and the water is threatening the pumping station at Haileybury, which is protected by a concrete wall. The water there is at its highest mark since the spring of 1909, old inhabitants say. Nineteen years ago four feet of water flooded the station. No further damage has been reported from the north.

Some interference with the service on the Nipissing Central Electric Railway between Haileybury and New Liskeard was reported yesterday afternoon when ice from Lake Temiskaming was driven on to the tracks. The rails were cleared and communications restored after a brief delay.

GATINEAU RISING.

OTTAWA, Ont., May 11 (Canadian Press). — The Gatineau River continued to increase its floods yesterday, after rising seven inches during Wednesday and Wednesday night, it added another three inches since morning in the vicinity of Gatineau Point, with a corresponding rise at the various upriver points at which measures are taken. The flood gates of the Ritone Storage Dam, at Paugan Falls, and at Chelsea are wide open. These are the three dams planned to control the river's flow, but the mighty torrent has forced the Gatineau Power Company, which owns these dams, to gradually open every gate provided, in order to prevent dangerous flooding. The dams are approximately 20 miles apart. Just below the Chelsea Dam is the Farmers' Rapids Dam. It has no gates and the river is rushing over the top of it to a depth of four feet in some places.

The Ottawa River on the other hand showed a tendency to pause during the day, and the depth at the locks at the foot of Parliament Hill here was no greater yesterday afternoon than yesterday morning when it showed an increase of six inches.

Expect Greater Floods.

Those familiar with the lumbering industry expect greater floods in a few days. The water which is held back on the many tributaries of these two rivers in order to float down the logs cut during the winter will soon swell the main streams, they assert.

Over 150 men have been compelled to quit work in the J. R. Booth Company and the E. B. Eddy Company plants as the result of the high water at the Chaudiere Falls. In the case of the Booth plant, it was the saw mill that was affected, and the Eddy Company had to close down some of its paper making machines.

Much Damage.

The village of Gatineau Point, Que., at the junction of the Gatineau and Ottawa Rivers, families were moving out of their homes in the vicinity of Moreau Bridge and St. Jean Baptiste Street during the day. Other families were living in the upper storeys of their houses and using flat bottomed boats to reach dry land. As the village is chiefly occupied by river drivers and others engaged in the lumbering industry, this type of row boat is plentiful.

Lumber piled close to the river bank on the Hull-Gatineau Point Road was being transferred to barges during the day as the water continued to creep inland in the vicinity of the Hull Cemetery.

Members of the New Edinburgh Canoe Club, whose club house is on the Ontario side opposite Gatineau Point, are frequent visitors to the village these days, and can paddle along most of the streets. Some of

GIVES ADDRESS AT MILLBROOK

Rev. J. Douglas Paterson Delivers Lecture on Scotland's War Memorial.

WELL ATTENDED

MILLBROOK, May 11.—The Rev. J. Douglas Paterson, rector of All Saints' Church, Peterborough, delivered his illustrated lecture on "Scotland's National War Memorial," in the Parish Hall of St. Thomas' Church on Tuesday evening, the audience listening with keen interest and pleasure to the unfolding of the narrative.

Rev. P. C. Howard was chairman, and in welcoming Mr. Paterson and the assisting artists who had accompanied him from Peterborough.

Preceding the lecture a good program was given by Peterborough talent; the numbers including: Solo, "Thinking of Thee," by Mr. Stazicker, with "Two Grey Eyes" as encore; Reading, "If I were a Man," by Mrs. Barton, her encore being "The Inventor's Wife"; and two Hawaiian guitar selections by the Misses Hamilton.

The Rev. Mr. Paterson was in Scotland last summer, and was among the thirty thousand or more people who witnessed the formal opening of the national memorial by H.R.H. the Prince of Wales. It had been in mind two years before the way closed, and after eleven years is still incomplete.

It is truly "national" in that both the material and workmanship have been entirely "produced in Scotland," and the free will gifts of the people have furnished all the funds. The site is the peak of the rock upon which Edinburgh Castle is built, and the ground, left in its rough, natural state, has much of historic interest attached to it.

With fascinated interest the audience listened to Mr. Paterson's story, and the pictures were thrown on the screen, the wonderful building, its architecture, and contents became almost a reality both to mind and eye.

Every Scottish regiment that served in the war; every department of the service; and even the animals, the dog, horse, camel, donkey, reindeer, mule, elephant, ox, and even the canaries and white mice used to detect the presence of gas when tunnelling, are remembered in the carving on the memorial. The part which the women took in the Great War is given a deservedly prominent place.

The heart of the memorial is the shrine, the steel casket, which was the gift of the King and Queen, being considered the finest piece of steel work in existence; it contains the names of the 100,000 Scottish men and women who gave their lives for the cause of liberty during the World War. On the large hasp is a figure of Queen Margaret of Scotland, and on the reverse side is Saint Andrew. The hanging figure of the archangel Michael just over the shrine is wonderfully carved, as are also the angels which guard the entrance, and the figures on the bronze frieze which goes all around the walls, the whole being centred with intertwined crowns of laurel and thorns, pierced through with the sword of sacrifice.

Appropriately following the lecture was the solo by Mr. Stazicker, "Bonnie Mary of Argyle," and the reading, "In Memoriam," by Mrs. Barton; guitar selections by the Misses Hamilton concluded the program.

Mrs. Allen was the accompanist, and the gathering was under the auspices of the Woman's Missionary Auxiliary, of which Mrs. Allen is president.

ARBOR DAY.

Children Clean Madoc School House Under Direction of Teachers.

MADOC, May 11.—Arbor Day was fittingly celebrated in the public school here under the supervision of J. B. Hough, Public School Principal. The older boys, armed with rakes and wheelbarrows, cleaned the grounds and carried away all the debris and waste accumulated during the long winter months, while the girls under the lady teachers, dusted, washed and polished the pictures, windows, desks, etc. inside the school.

After a busy hour or two, during which most of the possible tasks were completed, the girls were taken by their respective teachers to the woods to gather wild flowers. Misses Hart, Ross, and Harris led their classes and took charge of all, and many were the bunches of wild flowers gathered by the children that day. The route was south from the school, to the Big Woods, and the Boiling Spring, thence still south over hill and fences toward Moira Lake. All enjoyed the time of their lives and many were the wishers that Arbor Day came oftener than once a year.

SCOUT WORK DISCUSSED.

Peterborough Scout Leaders Speak—Supper Served By Mothers of Boys at St. Andrew's Hall.

CAMPBELLFORD, May 11. — Approximately eighty fathers and sons sat down to dinner together last night in St. Andrew's Church Hall. The dinner was served by the mothers of the boys and was held under the auspices of the Boy Scout troops of St. Andrew's and Christ churches. The affair was a singular success and three rousing cheers were substituted for the usual applause signifying the appreciation of an assembly. Among those seated at the head table were the Rev. James Grier, the Rev. N. Clarke Wallace, Joseph John, president of the Peterborough Boy Scout Association, J. A. McKone, past president, and Harry Dicken, first vice-president. Mr. John, as speaker and entertainer for the evening, won the whole-hearted applause of the entire assembly from the very first of his numbers. To those who had been privileged to hear him on previous occasions, he surpassed even their highest expectations. In spite of persistent applause, however, Mr. John would not respond with any encores.

The dinner served by the ladies won numerous highly appreciative remarks from the speakers during the evening. It was pointed out that there was no dearth in either quality or quantity. When dinner had become a past number of the program, the Rev. James Grier proposed the toast to the King. For the benefit of the sons, Mr. Grier explained the proper etiquette to be observed in drinking toasts and particularly that to the King. It was, he declared, only proper for a field officer to say, "God bless him," while anyone was permitted and expected to say, "The King" after the National anthem had been sung and before drinking to the toast.

The second number on the program was community singing led by the Rev. N. Clarke Wallace. This, among others, fell to the lot of Mr. Wallace for the entire evening. Song sheets from Christ Church Young Men's Club were provided for the purpose. Mr. John, for his first number, put himself in the place of a weary traveller who with a companion ,became lost and sought shelter at an isolated farm house where there was but one room and a family of eight to sleep in the one bed. The farmer accommodated them, however. It was a simple matter to put two children to bed till they fell asleep, then move them to the corner and put two more in the bed. In the morning the two travellers were also on the floor. His second number was a tongue-twister story of a black boot black and a white boot black and the trouble that arose between them. The very fact that Mr. John was able to "rattle it off" without the slightest hesitation stamped him as a genius at the art of oratory. In spite of the thunderous applause which the number won for him Mr. John would not repeat it.

"The Fathers."

Jack Bygott proposed the toast to the fathers in a very concise but effective manner. After drinking the toast, the sons sang "For He's a Jolly Good Fellow." G. A. Kingston res-

Obituary

MRS. JOHN CHAMBERLAIN.

NORWOOD, May 11.—The funeral of the late Mrs. John Chamberlain was held on Thursday afternoon from the family residence, Lot 7, Con. 9, of Dummer. Interment was in the Norwood Cemetery.

Deceased, who was in her 61st year, had been ill about two weeks. She is survived by her husband, three sons: William of Trent Bridge, James and Henry at home, and one daughter, Mrs. James Little, of Dummer.

PATRICK ENGLISH

The death occurred on Tuesday evening of Patrick English, a highly respected resident of this district for many years. His death came as a great shock to his family and the community, as Mr. English had been performing his usual duties during the day. He retired rather early and expired a short time after.

Deceased, who was in his 68th year, was born in the township of Asphodel, where he resided until three years ago, when he moved to the village.

Besides his sorrowing wife, he is survived by three sons: Edward of Peterborough, and Joseph and Frank of Rochester, and two daughters, Mrs. C. McMillan (May) of Amherst Island, and Annie, at home.

The funeral was held Thursday morning from his late residence to St. Paul's Church, where Requiem Mass was sung by Rev. J. J. McCarthy. Interment took place in Asphodel Roman Catholic cemetery.

RODERICK PAKENHAM.

NORWOOD, May 11. — It was with deepest regret that Norwood friends learned on Wednesday evening of the death in Toronto of Mr. Roderick Pakenham, younger son of Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Pakenham, of this village. Last week Mr. Pakenham was suddenly seized with an attack of appendicitis, and was taken to the hospital, where an operation was performed. On Wednesday of this week it was found necessary for him to undergo a second operation, from which he did not recover.

Deceased, who was in the prime of life, was a clever young man of sterling qualities. He received his early education at the Public and High Schools of this village, later graduating from Toronto University, and at the time of his death, was a member of the staff of Toronto Technical School.

A little less than two years ago he was married to Miss Reta Robb, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Robb, of this village, who, with a baby daughter Dorothy, is left to mourn his loss. Besides his parents, he leaves one brother, William Pakenham, of Asphodel.

LLEWELLYN MURRAY DUNSTAN

Llewellyn Murray, infant son of Mr. and Mrs. L. G. Dunstan, 474 Elm street, died yesterday evening. The funeral will be held tomorrow morning to Little Lake Cemetery. Two brothers and one sister, at home, also survive.

The flight has been temporarily postponed. Neither flier was hurt.

SKIN ELIMINATION FOR HEALTH

The skin has four important functions. It forms a protective covering for the body—keeping more delicate tissues from being injured—preventing poisons and disease germs from entering the body. It is an organ of feeling, covering sensory nerves. The skin also assists in regulating the heat of the body. The last but perhaps the most important duty which the skin performs is to assist the lungs and kidneys in excreting water from the body.

This throwing out of liquid in the form we know as sweat has as its object the elimination of toxins as well as a means through which excessive amounts of internal heat or radiation are eliminated.

On some portions of the body there are as many as 2,500 openings, or pores, to the square inch of skin. These are the mouths of the sweat glands through which the sweat is poured out from the blood. One could live but a short time if the pores could be completely stopped so that the sweat, containing bodily wastes, could not be eliminated.

Those suffering from various disorders always have a definite odor to the skin, which varies according to the disease. These skin odors are especially strong if not enough baths are taken, as the poisons deposited upon the skin become foul and rancid and not only block the pores but are unquestionably to some extent re-absorbed.

When one understands the excretory functions of the skin, it is necessary to see how the skin must be kept healthy to insure general bodily health. It is also apparent that if the skin is stimulated to an unusual degree, its functions can be extraordinarily increased so that there will be what might be called even "un-natural" but helpful throwing out of toxins.

The skin may then be considered as an instrument to be used in the cure of any disease caused by an excessive amount of bodily toxins. Physical culture exercises, with walking or running, will increase the circulation and produce greater skin elimination whether or not a perceptible sweating is experienced. Cold shower baths increase the tone of the skin through bringing more blood to the surface of the body, and by the effect of the cold water upon contracting the tiny muscles which open and close the pores. Temporary shock of the cold water serves as a means for exercising these skin muscles.

Sunbaths taken with the body completely exposed to the sun's rays has a sterilizing effect upon the skin, and stimulates its functions. When the skin has been long enough exposed to get the beneficial effects of the ultra-violet rays, it is always heated by the infra-red and other rays of the sunlight. A cold shower or sponge bath is then unusually stimulating and beneficial.

The one who is trying to recover from any disease should exercise, take sun baths and cold showers, and rub the skin vigorously to promote better skin health and encourage elimination. Even after a cure the benefits derived will continue as the healthy skin performs its work better, and through this a greater degree of health can be maintained.

Questions and Answers.

Question: Mrs. H. W. writes: "Have severe pain at back just below the shoulders, toward the right side. It is more painful at night and keeps me from sleeping. Also have large brown spots on my neck; is this liver trouble? Is tea harmful in such a complaint?"

Answer: The location of your pain is indicative of liver trouble, but of course I cannot accurately diagnose you by mail. It is not advisable for you to use coffee or tea, or any other drink which will place a burden upon the liver.

Question: Eva asks: "What is a 'Chopa?'"

Answer: The "Chopa," or "Bream," or "Sailor's Choice," are the titles given one of several tropical fishes. It is a small panfish of the Atlantic coast.

Question: D. H. G. writes: "Please tell me why orange juice makes my feet and legs swell and pain me so. I am much overweight and took the orange juice for four or five days and lost ten pounds, but had to stop on account of this swelling and pain."

Answer: The orange juice fast is given to patients who have swollen hands and feet. You can rest assured that if you had continued your fast the swelling would have disappeared The "crisis" period frequently arises on the third to fifth day of the fast, and often various symptoms are produced by the stirring up of the toxins in the blood stream, some of them being swellings or pain in those parts of the body where there have been large deposits of impurities. Try the fast again, and keep on fasting until you pass the crisis period.

FATHER AND SON BANQUET ENJOYED

ponded to the toast. His speech was entirely impromptu since he had not been advised that he would be called upon to address the gathering. During his remarks, he said that there were three stages in a boy's life. In the first place, the son looked upon his father as the one person in the world who knew everything. As he grew older he became certain that his father knew nothing at all, that his ideas were all wrong. But as he went along in the world and got a rub here and a rub there, the son usualy came home for an occasional visit and was ready to admit that while the father certainly did not know everything there was to know, the advice which he had given his son was good sound advice and worth following.

Boys had more advantages now than they had a few years ago, he declared. Then there was not much for a boy in life other than school and work around the house or farm after school hours. The strap was more generously applied in those days both at school and at home, he added. Now boys had their associations such as the Boy Scout Association and several others. He thought that they were very beneficial and hoped they would prove so to the boys.

Mr. John's two short stories of the Italian fruit vendor who did not understand a word of English and of the organist who changed the words in one line of a hymn, which the minister forgot and attempted to repeat from the pulpit the following Sunday, particularly pleased the diners.

"The Sons."

Robert Dunk proposed the toast to the sons. He was of the opinion that the fathers ought to be justly proud of their sons, and reminded them that these boys of to-day would be the men of to-morrow. Mayor Kingston's remarks reminded him of the story of the son whose father had educated him as a doctor. The father himself was a well-known medical practitioner. One day the son returned to his father's office very much pleased with himself. "Well, father," said the young man, 'I have done something you couldn't do. I've cured Mrs. MacGregor's stomachache." Mrs. MacGregor was one of the doctor's wealthy patients. "Son," replied the father, "Mrs. MacGregor's stomach put you through college."

Again "For he's a jolly good fellow" was sung, this time by the fathers.

In responding to the toast, Fred Rowe expressed the opinion that it seemed to be the proper thing to tell a joke. But the only joke he could see was himself standing "up here trying to make a speech." The remark won him loud applause, and he did tell of the incident when a woman asked a doctor to look in her mouth to see of her tongue were coated. The doctor declined, saying it was not necessary, since grass did not grow on a race track.

"The Scout Association."

Harold Dunk, scoutmaster of the troop, proposed the toast to the Boy Scout Association. He began his remarks by a brief outline of just what Boy Scouts are. This, he said, was for any who might have a mistaken idea about the order. Boys were possessed with a strong desire for adventure and romance. They found it necessary at times to "let off steam." The trick was to control this detail and start it along the proper paths. Boys naturally went around in gangs. The scout movement solved the gang problem safely, he asserted. The one great basic principle underlying the entire movement was to get the boys back to nature and show them how to derive the full benefit from the lesson to be learned there. After drinking to the toast, "We'll Never Let the Old Flag Fall" was sung with plenty of volume.

Mr. Dicken, Peterborough, was the first to respond to the toast. After expressing his pleasure at being present at the dinner, he declared that every father ought to be proud of his son and the son proud of his father. He hoped that none of the boys present would ever get so big that they were able to refer to their father as the governer or the old man. He advised them to refer to him as father or dad, and said they would be better men for it. Another good idea was to try doing a good turn every day. This was a sure way of finding a great deal of happiness during a life time. He had enjoyed everything, he said, and wished to express his thanks to the ladies for such an excellent dinner. He would carry the good news back to Peterborough, he promised.

Mr. McKone said he was glad to be present even though he had only been asked to make the trip as ballast in Mr. John's car. He was pleased to be given the opportunity to speak, but noticed that his name was merely entered in the margin. Thus he was in the same situation as the embarrassed groom had automatically placed himself when in response to the toast to the bride, he had risen, placed his hand on the bride's shoulder, and began his reply, "This has been thrust upon me." He thought he might go further than anyone present since Mr. Dicken reminded him of his father and Mr. John of his grandfather, in looks only. Then having done with humor, Mr. McKone spoke briefly on scout work. He advised the local scoutmaster to have a demonstration of scout work for the benefit of the father and thus they would see exactly the kind of training their sons were receiving, and would become more enthusiastic over the movement. He was of the opinion that the fathers should take great pride in their sons.

Mr. John, when he rose to address the assembly, said that a former speaker's reference to long-winded speakers, reminded him of a story of a visitor to a church. After the service the visitor approached the man and asked him if the service had been too long. The visitor replied that it had not. In reply the parson said that he could have spoken at greater length but that his dog had torn some of the leaves from his note book. "Couldn't you lend me just a pup for our person?" the visitor asked.

"We in this age are prone to accept civilization as we have it today and forget those who have gone before, who by their sacrifice have left us this grand and glorious heritage. The heritage," he said "dates back over the long centuries to the hill in that far eastern country upon which Christ was crucified. It is for the true sons of the country to tune their ears and their hearts to catch the sound of the challenge of the dead voices from the past ages. I think that every boy should join a boy scout troop. It teaches him to be honest, brave, courteous and helpful. Canada needs men of this type. One good turn a day gives you the thrill of unselfish service.

"You are to be congratulated for having made this your church program for the boys," said Mr. John. "No other program can serve the church better. The task which scouting sets gives to the boy a consciousness of serving the community, province and dominion. It helps boys to find their interests, and gives direction to their natural talents. It also leads them into wholesome avocations.

"One ship goes east, another west,
By the self same winds that blow;
'Tis the set of the sail, and not the gale
That determines the way they go.

"I recommend these words to every boy starting out in life, which is the most important turn of all, he said. It is my opinion that the father of to-day is a greater chum to his boy than the father of twenty-five years ago. And I also think that Dad is the best confident of all for his boy in solving of his problems. Many of the boys have decisions to make that would determine everything in later life and perhaps mean much to the Dominion.

Canada needs men, big men of vision and great purpose to foster her development, and you boys of today will be the men of to-morrow. Upon you will these responsibilities eventually rest. Nobody can fill your place. Nobody can do your job. The way you do your work now will prove your efficiency in the greater work which lies ahead of you. So do not forget the early training you have received in a good home, from a good father and a good mother—God's greatest blessing to any boy. Do not forget your scoutmasters who are making sacrifices for your benefit. See that your sails are well set before you start out on life's open sea."

Mr. John's address won sincere applause and the remarks which Mr. Grier employed in expressing his appreciation for Mr. John's assistance, were approved by everyone. He also expressed his appreciation for the generous assistance given by the mothers and moved a vote of appreciation to them. J. D. Cumming seconded the motion and three ringing cheers made it unanimous.

Mrs. Malcolm, in response, said no one had anticipated this turn of events and therefore none of the ladies had come prepared to speak. She said that what the ladies had done was considered by them to be the privilege of a mother for her son. She also agreed that the scoutmasters were doing great service to the mothers in assisting in such an excellent way with the training of the younger boys.

Mr. Grier's request for "The Froth Blower's Song" met with ready response. As an item of interest the Rev. Clarke Wallace explained what a technical Froth Blower was. There was a society of Froth Blowers in England at the present time, he said, and the song which had just been sung was their official song. He also exhibited his cuff links which proclaimed him a member of the A.O.F.B.

The motion of appreciation for the work done by the visitors toward making the evening a success was made by J. R. Battisby and seconded by Hilton Beatty. Mr. John replied briefly stating he was greatly pleased to be present and was delighted with the whole affair. He had derived a great deal from it, he said. "We thank you for what you have given us." The entertainment closed with the National anthem.

OUR MONEY OVER THERE

The endeavor that is being made to have Canadian currency accepted in the United States, if successful, will do much to create good-will between the two countries.

It has always been irksome to the feelings of Canadians, as well as a cause of great inconvenience, that the Canadian dollar is regarded in many places across the border about as highly as confederate bills would be.

On our side of the line the American dollar is accepted without any hesitation, and it rankles to know that our currency is regarded with so much suspicion in the United States.

When it is considered that we are the best customers our American cousins possess in the world, and that every day in the year we buy more than two million dollars worth of American products, there is reason for feeling that we should expect better treatment than to have our money rejected as if it were counterfeit.

It is understood that the United States Government looks upon the request as entirely reasonable, but the issue, of course, is up to the business people across the border.

THE GRAB GOING THROUGH.

Ottawa advices are to the effect that the salary grab is going through, and that the members of Parliament will vote themselves a $2,000 increase in sessional indemnities, bringing the yearly remuneration of each member of the House of Commons and Senate to $6,000.

There are 245 commoners and 96 senators, so the grab will mean a yearly cost to the people of this country of $682,000.

While grants to social service organizations and other worth-while agencies are curtailed on the ground that there are so many other expenditures that must be met, members of Parliament unblushingly propose to vote themselves a salary increase that hits the public treasury to the tune of nearly seven hundred thousand dollars a year.

Does any one seriously suggest that the services of the average member of Parliament are worth $6,000 a year, as much as the Speaker of the House and the Clerk of the House have been paid hitherto, more than the yearly salary of the Director of Experimental Farms, or the Veterinary Director-General, or the Chief Dairy Commissioner, or the majority of the other officials who do most of the country's business, as much as the members of the Civil Service Commission, with the exception of the Chairman, and more than the Secretary of that body?

Suppose the House sits for five months, the new rate means that the members intend to pocket about $250 a week as their reward for being "statesmen."

It is a stiff price for the returns the country gets for the expenditure.

NO "STUNT" FLYING.

Hon. William Finlayson, Minister of Lands and Forests, has lost no time in denying the report that the Provincial Air Service flyers were to put on an exhibition of stunt flying for the benefit of a Toronto Board of Trade party which is to visit Sault Ste. Marie.

There will be nothing in the nature of stunts, the Minister declares, and calls attention to the fact that the regulations of the service forbid either the flying craft or the personnel of the service to be exposed to danger in such spectacular flying.

The announcement is welcome.

The men of the Provincial Air Service are doing a fine work in a very efficient manner, and it is gratifying to know that their lives are not to be risked in circus feats for the benefit of a "Cook's tour" party.

The workmanlike manner in which these flyers have been going about their task of protecting Ontario's forests from fire means that flying is being used in a sensible manner for a sensible purpose.

Doubtless the men of the Ontario Air Service are capable of providing thrills in the form of aerial stunts, if there were any occasion for them to do so, but they are performing a very useful public service and are needed where they are!

THE SAFETY CAMPAIGN—LOCALLY.

Bringing the safety campaign close to home, what is there that can be done in Peterborough to make conditions here safer for both motorist and pedestrian?

The through street plan, accepted last year, is being extended to take in several other streets.

That is a step that will be of much assistance if the law in regard to coming to a full stop on entering through streets is fully observed, and if at the same time the regulation reducing the speed limit at intersections is also carried out.

A hasty survey of local conditions justifies the conclusion that the factors most likely to cause accidents here are:

(1) Speeding over intersections, and generally when away from the down-town district.

(2) Carelessness in turning corners.

(3) The failure of a few motorists to obey the "stop" signs.

Because they are most common, the first two of these factors are the most dangerous.

There is on many streets, notably on the north and south portions of George street, on Water street, on Charlotte street west and on Hunter street east, far too much fast driving, and by fast driving we do not mean merely exceeding the legal limit, but driving at from 40 or 45 miles an hour.

On these streets motorists feel that they are outside of police supervision and they drive accordingly.

A few fines would do much to check this speeding complex and promote much safer conditions.

Of motorists who are careless about how they turn corners we have also too many—they cut corners, sometimes at dangerous speed, and are a constant menace.

The police court appearance of a few of these offenders would also have a very healthy effect.

If we are in earnest about this safety campaign—and we should be—we have got to get down to cases.

Merely posting a sticker on the windshield will not solve the problem.

THE TROUBLE IN CHINA.

Owing to the censorship, the difficulties of following Chinese military tactics and the confusingly numerous unpronounceable names of Chinese generals, the average man is bound to be bewildered about what is going on in China. War in China, anyway, seems to be as regular, as variable and as inevitable as the weather. All down through history the Chinese have been fighting either themselves or somebody else, and within our own memory we can hardly remember a year when the papers couldn't manage to get an occasional front page story about trouble in China.

Trouble began, so far as our knowledge of history goes, away back in the fourteenth century, when there was the Mongol conquest. Under Genghis Khan, the greatest world war lord, the country was subjugated and made a colony and the people slaves. But this high-handed Mongol Government was never firmly established until the Chinese, or a few at the top of them, equally shared in rule, and it was finally uprooted when a racial revolution resulted in the wholesale massacre of all the Mongols in China. The Yuan dynasty lasted but eighty-eight years. Later the Manchus came in, also as conquerors, but afterwards they wisely consented to be conquered culturally, and were completely absorbed by the Chinese. Even a nominal Manchu monarchy did not satisfy the majority of the Han people, and was overthrown after a more or less troubled reign of three hundred years. In more recent times we have had the war with Japan, the Boxer uprisings, the Sun Yat Sen revolutions and the wars between the North and the South.

* * * *

The present trouble is with Japan. When, some years ago, China was defeated by Japan, she awakened from her ignorance and became an earnest seeker for instruction and assistance from her former enemy, who was accepted as her welcome teacher. All grades of schools, public and private, engaged Japanese teachers. Both the central and provincial Governments employed Japanese advisers or inspectors for military and police operations, and in every line of political and industrial activities. Japanese in China were everywhere received with open arms and hearts; and the Japs, never slow to follow up a strategical position, took full advantage of their opportunity. They began what the Powers call "economic penetration," and before the Chinese knew what was happening to them the Japanese had all sorts of railway and commercial concessions and interests all over the country.

This, finally, led to trouble. Japan grew increasingly aggressive, insisted upon the right of protecting her "rights," threatened a conquest through her military power, and in 1915 made her famous twenty-one demands which all but precipitated a war and created a deep hatred between the two peoples.

* * * *

What appears to have happened now, so far as one can judge from the despatches, is that one Chaing Kai Shek, a Nationalist generalissimo, marching upon Peking, captured Tsinan, capital of Shantung, and in the process of looting the place for his army, massacred a lot of Japanese nationals. That, ordinarily, is a cause for war—or used to be. Palmerston, it will be recalled, wanted Britain to go to war because a Portuguese Jew who was a British subject was killed in Athens, and made a night-long speech about it; so if Japan wants to go to war with the Chinese because they have killed a lot of her citizens, some of us should not be too hasty in the matter of throwing stones. A lot, however, depends upon the circumstances of the killings, and whether or not they actually occurred. It is so easy to manufacture propaganda to justify a war.

* * * *

There would be more sympathy with China if the Chinese only knew how to behave among themselves. But they clearly don't. It is all very well and good to say that the Chinese have a right to work out their own destiny in their own way. But who are the Chinese? Are they the two per cent. who make war for plunder and exercise an autocratic and armed and profitable rule over the others? Or are they the inarticulate 95 per cent. who have nothing to say in the matter and who never have had? Of the 400,000,000 people in China probably not more than a few millions have the remotest notion of what all the fighting is about.

* * * * *

Canada has more interest in the matter than the average man suspects. A great deal of our future is on the Pacific; we are, in fact, a Pacific Power. In recent years our trade with the Chinese has grown enormously; wheat is supplanting rice; we are selling the Chinese goods to the tune of tens of millions of dollars. Obviously, therefore, anything that ends chaos in China would be a good thing for us.

The question is, however, whether it would be better to let the Chinese alone until they tire of blood-letting, or whether it would be better for everybody, including China, to have the Japanese or somebody else go in there and clean up the country. It is not an easy question to answer. A Japan, all-powerful in China, might be a most formidable thing for the world. On the other hand, it might well bring peace and prosperity in a part of the world where these things are of great importance to many of the rest of us.—Ottawa Journal.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE

MONTREAL, Que., May 11 (Canadian Press). — With the exception of a few sales of barley and oats to the United Kingdom, the export trade in Canadian grain here yesterday was quiet. The domestic trade in oats was also inactive and prices were unchanged.

The undertone to the spring wheat flour market was easier, but there was no change in prices. The demand was dull. Winter wheat flour was neglected and the market was dull.

A steady business continues to be done in millfeed with the United States for both prompt and nearby shipment. The local demand continued fair and prices were firm. The trade in standard grades of rolled oats was somewhat limited and the prices were unchanged.

Owing to the continued keen competition for eggs throughout the county for storing purposes the undertone to the market was stronger and the opinion of some in the trade was that jobbing prices will be advanced again in the very near future. There was an improved demand. The receipts were 2,033 cases.

There was no further change in prices for potatoes yesterday, but the undertone to the market continued easy owing to the absence of any important demand and the fact that supplies on track were in excess of the requirements.

A firm feeling prevailed in the market for imported beans owing to the continued small supplies available on spot for which there was a steady demand. Sales of broken lots of choice white hand-picked beans were made at $4.40 per bushel, ex-store, and car lots to arrive were quoted at $4.80 per bushel, ex-track.

The firmness that prevailed in the local butter situation on Wednesday was again evidence yesterday, and prices scored a further advance of ¼c per pound. This was attributed to the continued steady demand from local buyers and the fact that Toronto houses were also in the market for supplies, with the result that a more active business was done. The receipts were 1,970 packages.

A feature of the cheese trade was the increased inquiry from English importers for small lots of fodder cheese and sales of Western No. 1 white and colored were made at 88s per cwt., which is 2s per cwt. below previous transactions, and there were other bids in the market of 87s per cwt., which up to a late hour were not accepted. Owing to the above, an easier feeling prevailed in the local market and prices were reduced another ¼c per pound. The receipts were 1,151 boxes.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, May 11 (Canadian Press). — In a sudden collapse, the wheat went wildly downward 7½ cents a bushel yesterday as a result of selling rushes that found buyers scarce. The Government crop report failed as an incentive to purchase, and general rains likely to be of widespread benefit to growers put a severe strain on values.

Closing quotations on wheat were nervous, 5½ cents to 6¾ cents net lower, with corn 2¾ cents to 3 cents down, varying from ⅞ cents decline to ½ cents advance, and provisions unchanged to a setback of 15 cents.

Greatly in contrast to big price-breaks that came later with increasing violence, the wheat market early scored a material advance after something of a downturn at the start. The advance was ascribed to buying based largely on uncertainties yet ahead regarding crop prospects both for spring and winter wheat. On the advance, however, heavy selling that came from leading commission houses revealed quickly that adequate new buying support for the Government crop report was apparently being construed as an anti-climax so far as friends of higher prices were concerned, the report pointing to a larger field of winter wheat this season than in general had been looked for of late.

Auspicous new advices later than the Government report, and especially so far as to the wheat crop status in Kansas, went far subsequently to induce a stampede to the selling side of the wheat market. The ensuing downward swing of prices was decidedly accelerated later by word of rains south-west, west, and north-west, and by news that good-sized lake shipments of wheat from Duluth had cleared for Chicago. With the fact apparent also that selling of Chicago future deliveries was in progress against purchases at Winnipeg, the market here showed but little rallying toward the last, and the finish was near to the day's bottom level.

Corn values were swept lower by the action of wheat. Continued rapid spread of corn planting under favorable weather conditions was also a bearish factor. Prospective liberal shipment of oats soon from Chicago gave strength at times to the oats market. May and July deliveries of oats touched a new high price record for the season.

Provisions reflected the weakness of corn, and was also affected by a downturn in the value of hogs.

JOLLY JINGLES By Graham Hunter

GOD'S MINUTE

But the fruit of the spirit is love.—Gal. 5:22.

God of love and of infinite compassion, Who hath taught us to call Thee "Our Father which art in Heaven", and hath revealed that "like as a father pitieth his children, so the Lord pitieth them that fear him", we approach Thy Throne with reverence and humility.

We have sinned and come short of Thy glory. When we would do good, evil is present with us. Yet, Lord, we never can be satisfied until we awake with Thy likeness. Have mercy upon, O God, according to Thy loving kindness. According unto the multitude of Thy tender mercies, blot out our transgressions.

May Christ dwell in our hearts by faith, that we being rooted and grounded in love, may be able to apprehend with all saints what is the breadth and length and depth and height; and to know the love of Christ which passeth knowledge, that we may be filled with the all the fulness of God. Yea, Lord, may we grow up into Him in all things, Who is our living Head, and daily bear the fruits of the Spirit, that men may take knowledge of us that we have been with Jesus.

In His Name, Amen.

MUCH DAMAGE

the streets have several feet of water flowing over them.

All along the Gatineau and Ottawa Rivers reports of higher levels came in yesterday as compared with the night before. At Quyon, situated at Chats Falls, on the Ottawa, there was a rise of five inches, and at Manwaki, Que., on the Gatineau, the water had gone up about the same. At Quyon practically all of John Street is under water.

Rain fell in several parts of the Ottawa Valley yesterday, but reports early last evening indicated that they have not been sufficiently heavy to aggravate the situation.

Fort Coulonge states that a drop of one inch has taken place in the Coulonge River, but the Ottawa on the west side of the town has gone up an additional three inches since last night. Some residents there anticipate a further rise of nearly a foot, and the present level is stated to be a record one since 1876.

Two and a half miles above Fort Coulonge a section of the railway stretch of nearly a quarter of a mile is under water, but trains are passing over the line.

DETOURS PUZZLE VISITORS TO TOWN

Many Go Astray Seeking Passage Through Campbellford Streets.

CAMPBELLFORD, May 11.—Campbellford's paving program is being brought to the attention of many visitors to town in a manner which they will not be likely to soon forget. The connecting links are the main highways leading in and out of town. The present operations on the Grand Road have made a long detour along the east side of the canal and river necessary. Motorists passing through the town find it difficult to find the proper turns without running into a completely blocked road. The detour is plainly marked at the corner of Front and Bridge Streets, where it begins. The work which makes it necessary is several blocks distant, and on the west side of the river. This perhaps accounts for the signs not being noticed.

RECTORY BEAUTY TO BE ENHANCED

CAMPBELLFORD, May 11.—Christ Church Rectory, which for many years has been considered one of the local beauty spots, is to be still more beautiful in the future unless the plans of the Rev. and Mrs. Clarke Wallace fail to materialize. Mr. Wallace has recently taken advantage of the government offer of 500 trees for reforestation purposes on privately owned property and acquired the full allotment in Norway spruce. Most of the trees are already planted and are being given careful attention by an expert gardener.

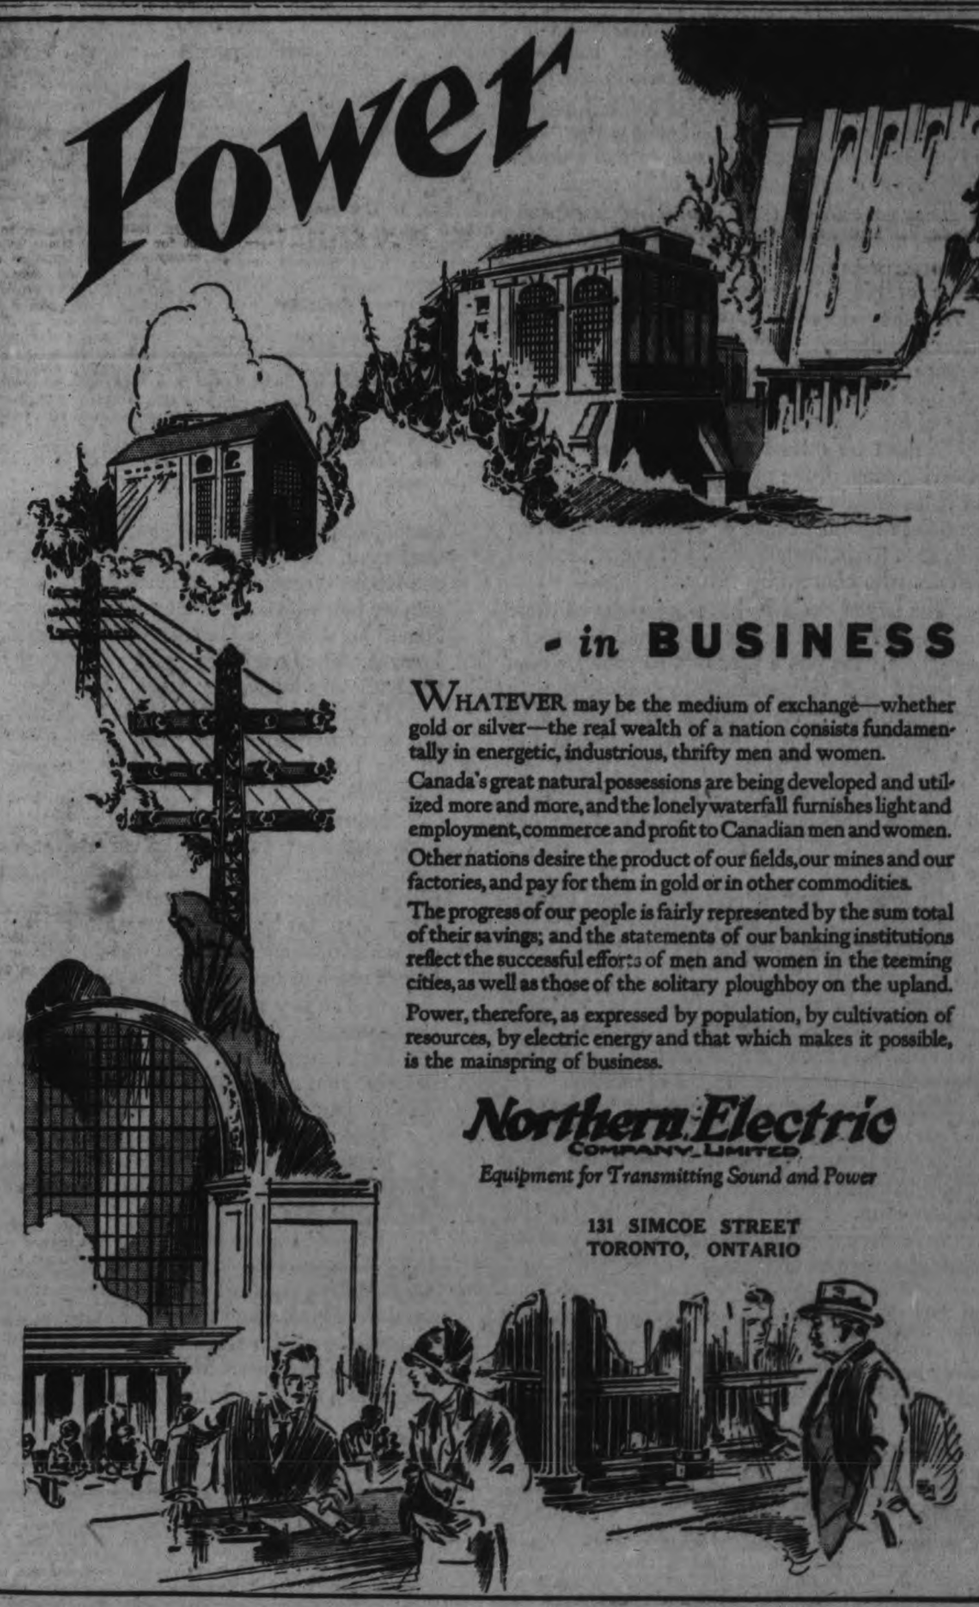
Power



- in BUSINESS

WHATEVER may be the medium of exchange—whether gold or silver—the real wealth of a nation consists fundamentally in energetic, industrious, thrifty men and women.

Canada's great natural possessions are being developed and utilized more and more, and the lonely waterfall furnishes light and employment, commerce and profit to Canadian men and women.

Other nations desire the product of our fields, our mines and our factories, and pay for them in gold or in other commodities.

The progress of our people is fairly represented by the sum total of their savings; and the statements of our banking institutions reflect the successful efforts of men and women in the teeming cities, as well as those of the solitary ploughboy on the upland.

Power, therefore, as expressed by population, by cultivation of resources, by electric energy and that which makes it possible, is the mainspring of business.

Those in the profession cannot understand why the Longini in the prime and zenith of his "drag with the ladies" should have gone over to the "funny face".

The Longini knows why. The Dryad, with an ache in the midst of her love for him, knows why, too.

THE way Madamoiselle Dryad (Miss Sadie Hopkins) first became acquainted with Leslie Longini (Bill Buckmeister) was when they were both playing in the same musical quartet on the small-time circuit of a big vaudeville wheel. Madamoiselle Dryad played several wind instruments, the flute, the tuba, the oboe and a trilling arrangement of four reeds called Pan's pipes. Leslie Longini did a solo number on the xylophone, played the saxophone and joined in the quartet with a very loud and polished horn of enormous dimensions with a mouth to it that looked like the yawn of a negro comedian.

It was a successful quartet, assured of long bookings and, the third year out, Bill and Sadie pooled their interests by marrying.

At that time, Sadie was a petite, slightly-plump little beauty with bewitching brown eyes which she used to good effect with her audiences, and a pair of small, pretty feet which she used to equally good effect when Bill played the saxophone. After they were married, they continued for one year longer with the quartet and then they became an act by themselves, known as "The Dryad and The Longini."

There was supposed to be comedy in this because Sadie was a sweet young wisp of a girl and Bill a great, handsome, enormously tall fellow who was known to be a "knockout" with his matinees.

THE Dryad and the Longini act became one of those good, staple, dependable features that a manager likes to count in on a somewhat shaky bill. They worked about forty weeks out of the year and for a long time practically had the field to themselves. Women wind-instrumentalists were comparatively few and far between.

The Dryad had winsomeness and beauty with her somewhat strange accomplishment. Bill, who could twang a banjo, strike a wicked ukelele, play the xylophone with one hand and a set of graduated chimes with the other, had such a way with his feminine audiences that he was sure of a dozen recalls on any stage in any town of his circuit.

They got on well, these two. There had been, it is true, occasional upheavals. Bitter heartaches and stormy scenes had sprung out of the circumstances of Bill's "way with the ladies." The Dryad, who adored him, could never seem to muster up sufficient logic or sense of humor or forbearance to endure with equanimity the various inroads on Bill's time and interest by the infatuated ladies of his audiences.

It must be owned that Bill was not above answering some of the pink notes that found their way to his dressing-room or wearing an anonymous gardenia in his buttonhole or even sneaking off to lunch or to tea in the automobile of one of the local fair ones who courted his favor.

The Dryad could be bitterly jealous on these occasions. And Bill on his part could be cruelly thoughtless. He was a year or two younger than the Dryad and temperamentally endowed with twice her vitality. He loved his late supper after the theatre, when the Dryad, drooping in her tracks, was eager to carry home sandwiches and milk to their hotel bedroom, where she might drop out of her clothes and relax for a bite in the only seclusion they could call home—their lodging for the night.

He loved to be pointed out as "The Longini" and to attract the small local attentions that might come his way from the type of small local people who were willing to bestow them. The Dryad, on the other hand, had little time or use for what she considered these petty foibles. The theatre was a business with them, she argued, just as if they were selling clothes-pins instead of melody.

Sufficient unto the day thereof, sufficient unto all days, was the companionship of the Longini. She looked forward to the time when they would be able to retire to that actors' paradise, their own chicken farm. She was greedy of the Longini. His philandering eye, however harmless, was her constant source of concern.

AND then there began to happen the almost inevitable. Over night, as it were, and yet subtly in a way, too, the light of witchery began to fail in the Dryad's eyes. At the end of a certain season, something middle-aged had happened to the Dryad. It was not alone the ten pounds which she fought off valiantly, if unsuccessfully, nor the graying hair which she managed to keep dyed out. Something stodgy had happened to the Dryad. She knew it. The Longini knew it. And, worst of all, the audiences knew it.

A little thickening of the body. A little slowing up of the quick feet. Less prompt response to the Longini. Less prompt response to her audiences.

Literally, it was up to the Longini now to carry on the act. He did it in a way that was all his own, clowning a little where hitherto he had only permitted himself the legitimate, and doing his own fancy step to his combination xylophone and chimes solo where the Dryad had once done them before she had become too heavy.

And so it was that as the Longini held tenaciously and even a little magnificently to his prime, the Dryad began her descent. It was a quick descent, fight against it as she would; sob against it in the long watches of the night as she did.

Bookings were still not difficult for the Dryad and Longini act, except that the price of the turn had been lowered. Practically a one-man act now. The Dryad was excess baggage.

Excess baggage pathetically conscious of the fact. Making an effort at old-time gaiety and lightness. Making an effort not to be excess. A middle-aged dryad, afraid of the years to come, clinging awkwardly to the years that were forever gone.

There had entered by this time inevitably into the picture another picture. A lovely young cornet player billed as Azelia. Sometimes their acts crossed, too often for the Dryad's liking. When they did not, letters for Longini in Azelia's handwriting were everyday occurrences.

Strange, what the sight of that handwriting could do to the Dryad's heart. Make it feel as old and heavy and cumbersome as her body. A heart that pulsed with adoration of the Longini, gallant, good-looking, taking on middle age with grace and dignity.

ONE night, when they were all playing in the same Middle West town and, to the Dryad's heartache, the Azelia was dining with them in a local restaurant, the plan of including her in the Dryad and Longini act was frankly discussed. There was little that the Dryad could say. Certainly it was not controversial so far as the needs of their act were concerned. Something had to be done and obviously Azelia had the youth, beauty and old-time iridescent charm that had been the Dryad's. Not that the Longini had ever come out with it. He had been kindness itself in sparing the Dryad's feelings on this subject, but she knew that he knew.

And part of her loving him so passionately was the knowledge of the debonair manner in which he met her shortcomings.

Met them with a gallant attempt to ignore them. A knightly effort to make up for them. To give the audiences their money's worth. To make them forget that the Dryad was an aging, struggling, losing partner to the Longini.

And yet, withal, when the Longini looked at the Azelia, the Dryad knew too well what was in his eyes as well as his heart. He was feasting himself on youth and on beauty; the youth and the beauty he could no longer find at his own board.

THAT night, after plans for this new combination had been tentatively worked out, the Dryad, for the first time in the Longini's experience with her, went under, so to speak.

For a time he was so seriously concerned about her that he telephoned for the hotel doctor. Mrs. Longini's hysteria, said the doctor, was obviously the result of depression and undue nervous strain.

The fact of the matter was that the Dryad had reached the end of her rope. She knew too well, what with the Azelia coming into the act, that she and Longini would carry it to success insofar as they were able, considering the dead weight of the third person they were dragging along.

She knew. She knew. And her heart was breaking with the knowing, and, suddenly, so was the Longini's. He never in his life had been so gentle with her, so considerate of her, so subservient to her.

That night was born the idea in Longini's mind for an act which subsequently carried them both to a considerable success.

"The Longini and The Dryad" now do a clown act, using the same instruments and their same accomplishments, except that the Longini comes out in a red false bulb of a nose and with a pillow in his waistcoat. The Dryad comes out overstuffed, too, and with an absurd little comedy hat set on an absurd little wig of ringlets.

Those in the profession cannot understand why the Longini in the prime and zenith of what was known as his "drag with the ladies" should have gone over into the "funny face."

The Longini knows why. The Dryad, with an ache in the midst of her love for him, knows why, too.

CANADIAN FLOWERS IN ENGLISH GARDEN

Lady Byng Has Transplanted Plants to Her Home in Essex.

At Thorpe Hall, Essex, there is a bit of garden that will be forever "Canada." It is the garden where Viscountess Byng of Vimy, wife of the former Governor-General, has transplanted some of her most precious Canadian memories,—memories of glorious plant-hunting days that were sandwiched in between official engagements, all the way from Cape Breton to Vancouver Island.

In the May issue of Canadian Homes and Gardens, Lady Byng tells of the success that has crowned her efforts of the past two years in making the plants of Canada's marshes and fields and mountains feel at home in English soil. Strangely enough and unfortunately, these are the plants which would seem foreign to the average Canadian, for as this distinguished gardener points out: "One great drawback to the amateur collector in Canada is the fact that all nurserymen out there, as in South Africa, concentrate on providing their customers with English plants, and none touch the native flora, which have been neglected, so that some plants remain unclassified and unknown."

With regard to her actual methods of collecting, Lady Byng declares they "were scandalously unorthodox," but the result has exceeded her expectations. There are sturdy plants in her Essex garden now that owe their English career to what she terms her "seed-snatching stunt," when she would pick up any unfamiliar seed-pod on the off-chance that it would produce an interesting new bloom. "I was never—even on official occasions, when a vanity bag was very handy—without a packet of seed envelopes!" she writes. In the course of the seed snatching stunt, I sometimes landed on real weeds, but surprisingly few on the whole, and they were easily scrapped at home. One of my luckiest chances in this line was securing a pinch of Phacelia serizea from a railway bank, where only the seed-head was visible in the rank grass. Now I have a good plant of this lovely and effective blue flower."

Practically all the actual work of collecting devolved upon Lady Byng herself, and with characteristic energy she never, even during the busiest moments, gave up the scent. "Many an engine driver was begged to keep a look-out for certain plants when I knew we were approaching their habitat; many a guard was handed a pick or spade and sent clambering up a railway bank, if I was "all dolled up," as Canadians say, for a function and therefore unable to go myself. One and all responded to my appeals, though I think at times they considered me "a bit mad" for wanting what to them seemed "trash" from the railway banks."

Lady byng's Canadian garden might almost be regarded as a guide-book to Canada's flower places. "By the lake-side, are the Orchids—beloved of my soil," she writes, and tells of the delicate specimens which have settled down to a fairly happy life abroad—specimens such as "Sabot de la Vierge" as the Quebec habitant calls it, the Cypripediums of the West and the Calopogon which she "waded for in a peculiarly smelly New Brunswick swamp."

One of the doubtful ones is her Mariposa Tuplip, from Windermere, in the Columbia River Valley, B.C. "But why the little wretch should not prefer our sunny aspect and good soil to the awful spot where I found it seems to me rank ingratitude," Lady Byng laments. "At Windermere it was thriving on a practically undiggable clay bank, baked in summer, frozen hard in winter, with a below zero temperature, and it seemed inconceivable how so frail-looking a loveliness should choose so unpropitious a habitat."

"In the hottest, sunniest place to be found, I have built up a miniature desert for the benefit of the cacti from the vicinity of Medicine Hat, Alberta. Brickbats, stones, gravel, bound together with a little loam, is the medium for these queerly unexpected Canadians, and in it they appear to thrive."

Dozens of other purely native Canadians are flourishing in Lady Byng's garden, such as the Labrador Tea of the northern fastnesses, the numerous varieties of wild roses, creeping Mallow from the prairies, the spring flowers such as triliums, hepaticas, Spring Beauty, and Violets, which last year showed healthy blooms in November. The wild asters of Canadian fields, the quaint Joe Pie-Weed, and the vivid Pentstemons of the Rockies are all bearing glowing tribute to the fine garden sense of this most sympathetic of flower-lovers, Lady Byng of Vimy.

IRISH IMMIGRANT TALKS CONFIDENTLY

Former Belfast Clerk Expects To Become Successful Farmer in West.

WINNIPEG, Man., May 11 (By The Canadian Press).—"He wasn't smoking a black clay pipe, and he didn't wear knee-breaches, nor sing 'The Wearing of the Green' in lusty tones," says the Manitoba Free Press about a recently arrived immigrant. "but in every other noticeable respect he was Irish, and his name was Patrick McKenna, from Belfast. He sat upon a pile of baggage on the railway station platform, one of several hundred immigrants who were bound for western farms. The only thing that distinguished him from his fellows was a wicked-looking shellelagh which he carried with him—the Irishman's weapon of defence and of attack when occasion warrants. This time, however, he was only using it as a walking-stick, and he explained proudly that it had first belonged to his great-great-grandfather, 140 years ago.

"'They tell me when a man's been here two or three years he doesn't want to go away again. Is that true?' he inquired, and it was the on'y hint he gave of doubt. For the rest, he confided that he expected to make good in Western Canada. Later he left for Johnson, Sask., where he is going to work on a farm for a little while until he gets enough experience to start one of his own. Up to a few weeks ago he was a clerk in Belfast, and before that he was a sergeant in the Royal Field Artillery, fighting in France against the very Germans with whom he was rubbing shoulders when he boarded the train for the West.

"Apart from his hopes for success in the agricultural field, there's only one other thing Pat's looking forward to. He admits that if any of the Canadian girls take to him sufficiently kindly—he doesn't say what he might expect of them, but he says he hasn't a relation in the world."

CHILDREN'S SECTION FOR FRASER LIBRARY

Famous Montreal Institution Aided By Books From Friends.

MONTREAL, Que., May 11 (CP).—Montreal's noted library, the Fraser Institute, is entering a new chapter in the history of its growth, the opening of the children's section of the library. This will occur about the time the school children return to their schools after the summer holidays, and it has been made possible by substantial gifts in books and money from three well-known Montreal residents, T. B. Macaulay, Dr. Francis McLennan, and his sister, Miss McLennan. The children's department of the library has not been open for the fulfilment of its intended function because of the lack of funds, but now this has been changed. One of the most delighted persons in connection with the prospective opening of the children's section of the Fraser Institute is the librarian, P. B. de Crevecoeur.

The librarian, in a recent interview, said the Fraser Institute never had so many patrons as it has at the present time, and never have the library books been so free from theft by vandals. The latter, he said, was largely due to the fact that now there is a separate staff for each department of the library and vigilance over the activities of patrons is closer than in the old days when the staff on duty in the circulating section of the library was the same staff that supervised the reference room.

SPECIAL GLASS TO LET RAYS IN

Ottawa School Board Decides Better Health Will Warrant Cost.

OTTAWA, Ont., May 11 (CP).—Special glass will be installed in the southern windows of the new public school to be erected in the Elmdale district of Ottawa. The glass will cost more than the ordinary kind but will let in on the pupils health-giving ultra-violet rays. The feature of the expensive glass is its non-resistance to the life-stimulating elements of sunlight. The Public School Board decided recently upon installing the special glass in the new school windows that will have a southern view. It was claimed that the extra cost of the special glass would be well worth while because of the improved health of the children attending the school.

FRIENDSHIP CHAIN FOR EMPIRE WOMEN

Lady Apsley Tells How To Participate in Links of Empire Scheme.

LONDON, Eng., May 11 (By The Canadian Press).—Lady Apsley, President of the British Empire Union's Links of Empire Scheme, commenting on the recent publication of the details of the Links of Empire Scheme expresses gratification at the result thereof and says through responses following it the foundations of many warm and loyal friendships have been laid. For the benefit of those who did not see the previous article Lady Apsley has prepared a statement indicating the objects of the organization as follows:

"The Links of Empire Scheme was started in the summer of 1926 with the idea of exchanging correspondence between groups of women at home and overseas, thus fostering increased mutual interest between those living in the Home Country and in the dominions and colonies, and alleviating, in a small way, the loneliness and 'news-hunger' of those living in the outposts of the Empire. But with the success of the scheme another door has been opened. Not only the women, but the young folks, both boys and girls, are asking to come into this great chain of friendship.

"Needless to say, they are all most gladly welcomed, and we have formed a Junior Branch on the same lines as the Women's Branch. Already a great number of young enthusiastic links have stretched out friendly hands across the seas, in all parts of the Empire. But so great is the number of these in Great Britain to be linked overseas that I am making this appeal. All that is required is that anyone, of either sex, who wants a friend overseas or in the Old Country, should write giving his or her name and address to the honorary secretary, Links of Empire, British Empire Union, 180, Piccadilly, London, W.1, England.

"If a few details of the kind of link which would be congenial were given it would be helpful. Only by personal intercourse can real understanding grow. It is given to few of us to be able to travel overseas, so I beg you to be a link in the new chain which is being forged to bind together citizens, both young and old, of the Empire, and which will do much to establish a spirit of mutual understanding and permanent goodwill throughout the whole British Commonwealth of Nations and for the betterment of all mankind."

Airplane Shares Lead N.Y. Market Upward

NEW YORK, May 11 (Canadian Press).—Sensational advances in the airplane stocks featured the resumption of a broad upward movement of prices in to-day's stock market. Wright Aeronautical soared 18½ points to a new high record at 193½, Curtis Airplane advanced nearly ten points to a new peak at 145⅝. Scores of other industrials moved up one to eight points, while gains in the active rails ranged from one to six ploints. Trading, which had been restricted earlier in the week by stiffening money rates, showed a marked expansion in volume, total sales in the first three hours running over 2,300,000 shares.

Retention of the four per cent rediscount rate by the New York Federal Reserve Bank, the lowering of the call money renewal rate from 6 to 5½ per cent, and Secretary Mellon's prediction of easier money rates later in the year all helped to create bullish confidence in the market. Pools resumed operations on a broad scale in a wide assortment of coppers, motors, public utilities, oils, and merchandising issues.

The so-called "merger rails" again attracted a large public following. New peak prices for a year, or longer, were registered by Missouri Pacific Common and Preferred, Wabash, "Nickel Plate," and St. Louis Southwestern. Pittsburgh and West Virginia ran up six points in the face of official intimations that it might be necessary to reduce the dividend before the end of the year.

Strength At Liverool Causes Rise In Wheat

CHICAGO, May 11 (Canadian Press).—Owing largely to the relative strength of Liverpool quotations, wheat averaged higher to-day in the early dealings here. Dry weather in the Spring wheat territory counted also as a bullish influence. Starting unchanged to ½ up, Chicago wheat reacted a little, but subsequently scored an advance all round. Corn developed weakness, opening at ¾ decline to ¾ gain and later showing a slight general rise, but then undergoing a drop. Oats were firmer.

Opening prices were: Wheat, May 153¾, July 153¾. Corn, May 104½, July 107⅞. Oats, May 65¾, July 58¾.

Nickel's Rise Features Toronto Trading To-day

TORONTO, May 11. Canadian Press. — International Nickel's three point rise to 94 in brisk trading featured this morning's trading on the Toronto Stock Exchange. It was the most active issue of the listed stocks. Shredded Wheat coming next with a gain of ½ point. Massey Harris was also active but unchanged at 44½. Postbills led the unlisted section with a gain of 25c to 550. Hiram Walker was also active and was up 1 1-8 at 66 3-8. Super Petroleum gained 3½ points to 115½. Mercury Mills was up 2 to 37 and Canada Dry advanced 1 to 79½, while Home oil lost 20 at 3.20.

Offered in Units represented by partly paid Allotment Certificates. Each unit comprises one share of 6% Preferred Stock (par value $100), one-half paid; one share of Common Stock without par value, fully paid; and a Common Stock subscription warrant entitling the holder, after payment of the balance of the Allotment Certificate price, to subscribe, on or before April 15, 1933, for one-half share of Common Stock at the rate of $40 a share.

A simultaneous issue of these securities is being made in the United States, Great Britain and on the Continent.

The Preferred Stock is to be preferred over the Common Shares as to cumulative cash dividends at the rate of 6% per annum and as to assets in the event of voluntary liquidation to the extent of $105 a share and accrued dividends, and in the event of involuntary liquidation to the extent of $100 a share and accrued dividends. Dividends are to be payable April 15, July 15, October 15 and January 15, cumulative from April 15, 1928, at par at any branch of the Bank of Montreal in Canada. The said shares are redeemable as a whole or in part at any time on thirty days' notice at $105 a share and accrued dividends. If four or more quarterly dividends, consecutive or not, on the preferred stock shall be in arrears, then until all such arrears have been paid and the current quarterly dividend declared, the preferred stockholders are entitled as a class to elect one less than a majority of the directors, and to have one vote for each fully paid share in respect of all other matters.

The certificates for the fully-paid Preferred Stock and Common Stock and the warrants represented by the Allotment Certificates are to be delivered to the respective holders of the Allotment Certificates on surrender thereof, upon payment of the balance of the Allotment Certificate price or in any event not later than December 31, 1929.

Allotment Certificates and preferred stock, when delivered, transferable in New York City, Boston, Montreal and Toronto. Common Stock transferable in New York City, Montreal and Toronto. Dividends on Allotment Certificates and Preferred Stock registered in New York City or Boston payable in United States currency at par of exchange.

The Company has agreed to make application in due course to list the Allotment Certificates, the Preferred Stock when delivered and the Common Stock on the New York, Montreal and Toronto Stock Exchanges.

CAPITALIZATION—The capitalization of St. Lawrence Paper Mills Company Limited upon completion of the present financing will be as follows:—

	Authorized	Outstanding
6% Cumulative Preferred Stock ($100 par value)	$19,000,000	$9,500,000*
Common Stock (no par value)	1,000,000 shares	500,000 shares

*$9,500,000 to be fully paid and outstanding immediately; after October 15, 1928, $14,250,000 will be fully paid and outstanding; and after the final call, if made, $19,000,000.

Of the 500,000 shares of Common Stock authorized but unissued, 95,000 shares are reserved against the Allotment Certificate subscription warrants and 105,000 shares are reserved against other subscription warrants identical in form.

The following information has been summarized by Mr. Ernest Rossiter, President, St. Lawrence Paper Mills Company Limited from his letter dated May 9, 1928, and is subject to the more complete information contained therein:

THE COMPANY—St. Lawrence Paper Mills Company Limited has been organized under the laws of the Dominion of Canada and has acquired the entire business and assets and has assumed all of the liabilities, except funded debt which is being retired, of St. Lawrence Paper Mills Limited; the latter company having been successfully engaged in the manufacture and sale of newsprint since June, 1925.

The plant, located at Three Rivers, Que., consists of a four-machine balanced newsprint paper mill of 300 tons daily rated capacity (recently increased from 150 tons), advantageously situated with respect to pulpwood resources, power, water supply, labour and transportation both by water and rail.

The entire output of the mill for 1928 has been sold under contract to 41 publishers located throughout the United States and Canada, and a contract has recently been entered into for the sale of 45,000 tons of newsprint a year for ten years beginning in 1929. In order to handle this business the company proposes to install two additional newsprint machines with a combined rated capacity of 150 tons, increasing the capacity to 450 tons a day, or about 135,000 tons a year.

The Company believes that sales will justify a further increase of capacity before 1930, and in that event it proposes to install two additional newsprint machines, thus further increasing the capacity to 600 tons a day or 180,000 tons a year.

The Company's present pulpwood resources as estimated by Mr. R. O. Sweezey, Forestry Engineer, total approximately 9,000,000 cords, which, with pulpwood contracted for, will be sufficient to last for at least 40 years operating at the full capacity of 180,000 tons a year.

MANAGEMENT—Mr. N. A. Timmins, president of the predecessor company, will be chairman of the board of the new company. Mr. Ernest Rossiter, vice-president and general manager of the old company, will be president of the new company. These gentlemen, together with the other executives who have been responsible for the success of the old company, will continue in the management of the new. Mr. N. A. Timmins and Mr. Ernest Rossiter who owned substantial amounts of the Preferred and Common Stocks of the predecessor company, have invested in the Common Stock of the new Company an amount in excess of the cash distributable upon their shares in the predecessor Company.

CALLS ON ALLOTMENT CERTIFICATES—The Allotment Certificates upon issue will be partly paid. The balance of $50 in respect of each unit is payable in two installments, $25 on October 15, 1928, and $25, plus accrued dividend, on call by the directors on sixty days' notice not earlier than April 1, 1929, and not later than December 31, 1929.

On payment of the last installment of $25 per unit, or if the said last installment shall not have been called on or before December 31, 1929, the fully paid Preferred Shares (being three-quarters of one preferred share per unit, in case the last installment shall not have been called), all the Common Shares, fully paid, and all the Common Stock subscription warrants represented by each unit will be distributed by The Royal Trust Company, the Depositary thereof, to the respective holders of the Allotment Certificates, in accordance with their rights thereunder.

Arrangements will be made for the adjustment of fractional shares. Dividends on the fully paid Preferred Shares deposited as aforesaid will be paid to the holders of the Allotment Certificates.

PURPOSE OF ISSUE—The proceeds of the first payment in respect of the Allotment Certificates, the proceeds of 180,000 Common Shares purchased by certain officers of the company above referred to and the proceeds of 130,000 Common Shares which have been offered for subscription, are to be used by the Company for the acquisition of the business and undertaking of the predecessor Company, to provide funds for development of timber resources and for other corporate purposes. The installment of $25 per unit payable on October 15, 1928, will be used by the Company to pay for the installation of two additional newsprint machines. The last installment of $25 per unit in respect of Allotment Certificates, will be called only in case the Company has determined to install the second two additional newsprint machines, to increase the capacity to 180,000 tons per year.

EARNINGS—Net earnings of St. Lawrence Paper Mills Limited (predecessor company) after provision for all taxes have been as follows:—

	Before Depreciation	After Depreciation
For the year ended June 30, 1927	$1,025,388	$610,425
For the year ended June 30, 1928 (Nine months actual and three months estimated)	1,230,000	750,000

Annual dividend on $9,500,000 new preference shares to be immediately outstanding, $570,000

The recent increase in the predecessor company's capacity from 150 tons per day to 300 tons was not fully reflected in the earnings until the first three months of 1928.

Based on the sale of the Company's output at current prices for newsprint and on operating costs as estimated by Mr. Hardy S. Ferguson, consulting engineer, the management estimates that net profits after all charges including depreciation and depletion, and after deducting all taxes, on the basis of the proposed capitalization of the new company, will be as follows:

Estimated sales (tons)	Net profit available for dividends	Annual Dividend requirement on preferred stock with $14,250,000 outstanding	Annual Dividend requirement on preferred stock with $19,000,000 outstanding	Times such dividend earned
135,000 (6 machines)	$1,857,000	$855,000	.....	2.17
180,000 (8 machines)	2,563,000	.....	$1,140,000	2.25

N. A. Timmins, Pres., Hollinger Consolidated Gold Mines Ltd.
W. M. Chadbourne, Chairman, Board of Directors of Abercrombie and Fitch Company

PLANING . BUILDING . FINANCING

BUILT FOR ENDURANCE

E. A. Butler, Architect.

Here is a very compact sensible little home which, although of a very economical nature, in both construction and upkeep, is nevertheless a home to be proud of. Its appearance relies almost solely on good proportions, and the beautiful texture of the brickwork. The quality of the former may be readily realized by a study of the perspective, and the reader has but to imagine the walls of brown rug brick strongly contrasted by raked black mortar joints, to appreciate the factor of texture.

Not an inch of waste space is indicated on the plans, which undoubtedly show one of the most practical and convenient arrangements possible. The entrance layout is particularly noteworthy as may be seen by considering the minimum of steps necessary in going from any part of the house to either entrance, or another room. The position of the stairs and coat closet, convenient but unobtrusive, is another commendable feature and one which unfortunately is rare in small houses.

Owing to its unobtrusiveness a corner fireplace is always best suited to a moderate size room, and here, built of brown range rug brick with a limestone mantle, does much to give character to the living room. From the living room a quite spacious sunroom may be entered which, when the connecting doors are open, becomes a very pleasant adjunct which may be made to possess much of the desirable atmosphere of a conservatory.

Passing to the upper floor we find a square hall from which open two bedrooms, a study, bathroom, and a linen closet.

Turning to construction we find footings and foundation walls of concrete, with brick veneer on frame above. All trim is of chestnut, while floors are red oak throughout.

This house, the over all dimensions of which are 25 feet 6 inches by 34 feet, contains 2,260 cubic feet, and would cost approximately $6,500.

Readers desiring further information regarding a house of this design should communicate with Home Building Information Service, 345 Adelaide St. West, Toronto, Ont., who will see that it is supplied. When writing please mention design number 123. Copyright, 1928.

TWO WAYS TO BUILD—BOTH HAVE MERITS

Letting bulk contract will save time, but you miss a lot of fun.

Now that you have the site and have selected the plan, the next thing to consider is just how you are to build. There are two ways of going about it.

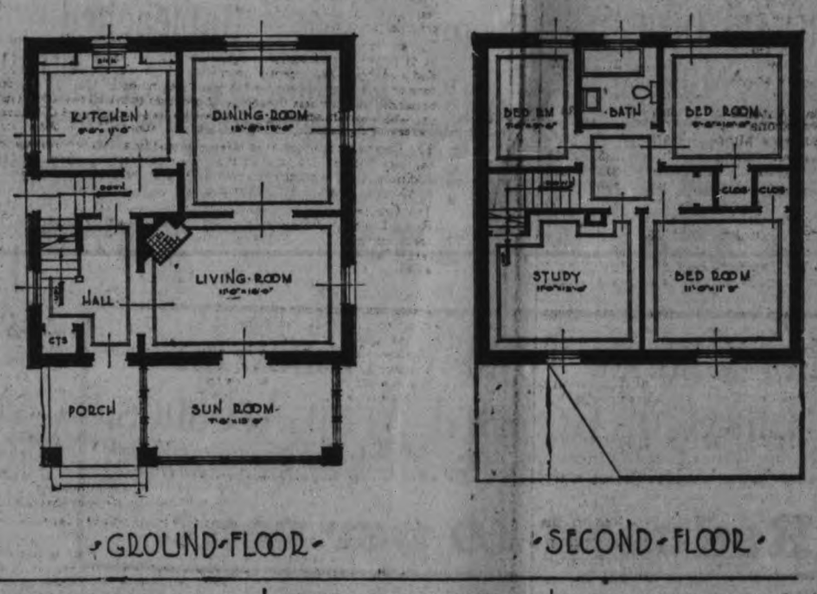
First, you can throw the responsibility for the entire job on the shoulders of a general contractor, with whom you can make arrangements to have the house built by a certain date at an agreed-upon total price, plus extra charges for any changes that you wish made during the period of construction. Preferably the work should be carried out under the supervision of the architect who prepared the working drawings and plans. This plan throws the onus of co-ordinating the work of the different sub-contractors on the general contractor and relieves both owner and architect in this respect.

Second, you can buy the materials and employ day labor with the exception perhaps of the mechanical trades, and practically build the house yourself, with the advice and supervision of the architect.

The drawback to this second plan is that it is difficult to estimate what the final cost will be, and it gives rise to the tendency on the part of the owner to make changes as the work proceeds. These changes speedily increase the cost, and in the end your home is likely to cost you much more than you figured: It is true the added coast will almost always represent added value and convenience; but if your resources are small and the house an unpretentious one the contract method is usually the best. You get what you pay for, and you know in advance just what the total cost will be.

Payments should be made at regular intervals at the rate of eighty per cent of the value of the work done. The remaining twenty per cent to be retained until thirty-one days after the completion of the work to safeguard against liens for unpaid materials or labor. Liens must be registered within thirty days from the completion of a contractor's work and not more than twenty per cent of the contract price can be collected from you.

This thirty-one days also gives you an opportunity to thoroughly inspect the work and be satisfied that it has been executed according to contract.



McGILL WILL GIVE GRENFELL DEGREE

Noted Missionary and Others To Become Doctors of Laws.

MONTREAL, Que., May 11 (by the Canadian Press).—Sir Wilfred Grenfell, K.C.M.G., founder and superintendent of the Labrador Medical Mission, Labrador, now the International Grenfell Association, will receive the honorary degree of doctor of laws from McGill University on May 30. The university intends conferring the degree on Dr. Grenfell, who is one of the best-known missionaries in the world, in recognition of the great service he has rendered to the population along the Atlantic coast of Canada and to Newfoundland in establishing and maintaining for many years past a series of hospitals and nursing homes, and in many other ways rendering much needed and most valuable help and educational assistance to a people previously largely neglected; and also for the services which he has rendered in making known to the world the resources of the Labrador coast and the possibilities of its future development.

Others who will be honored by McGill University on the date mentioned include Rev. Dr. H. J. Cody, rector of St. Paul's Anglican Church, Toronto, former Minister of Education for the Province of Ontario, who will also receive the honorary degree of doctor of laws. A similar degree will be conferred on George Iles, author, New York, formerly of Montreal.

A device for electrocuting flies has been patented. The flies are attracted by an electric lamp inside a case, beneath which is a trap baited with something that appeals to their appetites. They are then either electrocuted by coming into contact with a solenoid wire or stunned so that they fall into the trap, from which they cannot escape.

Mistake Financier For Bremen Fliers

CHICAGO, May 11.—(Canadian Press.)— Thousands of Chicagoans awaiting the arrival of the Bremen trans-Atlantic fliers were jubilant when Captain Alfred Loewenstein, Belgian financier, landed at the municipal airport after a flight from Ottawa, at 5:15 p.m.

The heavy cordon of police restrained the crowd with difficulty, but the spectators subsided when announcement was made that the Bremen fliers were delayed.

CHAPTER V

"You have been to the bathhouse, Ross?" asked Dixon, straightforwardly.

"Yes, sir."

"You found Mr. Folsom's clothes there?"

"Yes, sir. The key was with the bathing master. He gave it to me, and I brought Mr. Folsom's clothes back here and put them in his room."

"They were all in order, then—nothing missing?"

"Why, yes, sir. I suppose so. I didn't look in the pockets, sir, and Mr. Folsom never wears any valuable jewelry when he goes to bathe. Just a collar button and cuff links. And his watch—that was all right, sir."

"Well, of course, I didn't anticipate any molestation of his belongings. The bathing master wouldn't give up the key to a stranger. How did he come to give it to you?"

"I don't know, sir. I just told him the circumstances and said I was Mr. Folsom's man."

"All right, Ross. Did you put the clothes away?"

"No, sir, I just left them in a pile on the couch in the sitting-room. The chambermaid is in the bedroom, doing it up, and I thought I'd better report to you at once, sir."

"You did just right. Now, Ross, consider yourself in charge of Mr. Folsom's effects until we can get advices from his sister. We are going to telegraph to her. Perhaps you would do it?"

"Just as you say, sir. If I do it, I will ask her for orders."

"Not a bad idea. Go, then, and send the telegram in your own way."

Ross went off and Neville said thoughtfully:

"Going some, to leave that man in charge of all Folsom's belongings—"

"I know," returned the detective. "I watched his face for a gleam of satisfaction at the prospect, but he seemed to take it as a matter of course."

"Oh, it's all right, I know how Folsom trusted him, as a servant and as a general right-hand man. But somehow it seems—"

"It certainly does," put in Carmelita Valdon. "It seems wrong to leave a mere valet in charge of a rich man's goods."

"His valuables are in the safe," said Dixon. "I've already ascertained that. Late last night he brought two or three sealed envelopes to the desk and took a receipt for them. As to jewelry or money, I suppose the valet is honest."

"Oh, yes—that," said Neville. "I was thinking more of letters or private papers, not of a value to be put in the safe, but which ought not to be left around loose."

"Indeed they ought not!" said Mrs. Valdon, with decision. "I should think as Mr. Neville is a great friend of Mr. Folsom and more or less associated with him in business—"

"Were you partners?" asked Dixon directly.

"No," Neville returned, "not partners, but we worked together on many cases, and I think I may say I know more of his private affairs than any one else."

"It would seem then, Mr. Neville, that you are the one to take charge of the whole matter. Will you take the keys then from Ross and consider yourself the responsible one?"

"Not quite that," Neville said, his face a little perplexed. "Suppose you let me take the room key that Mr. Folsom carried. Then either of us can have access to the rooms."

"Yes, that is a good plan," and relieved at the settlement of the question, Dixon rose to go.

"I can't see that we have anything more to do until Miss Folsom comes or wires," Neville went on. "If you want to consult with me when the doctor comes, I'll be somewhere around the hotel."

"Very well, Mr. Neville," Dixon said, and bowed out the three guests with a feeling of satisfaction that the interview was over.

"As a matter of fact," he thought to himself, "I'd trust that honest-looking valet before I would the gentlemanly Neville, but it's all none of my business. If these people are friends of the daed man, it's up to them to care for his interests. Hello, there's Mr. Barron. I suppose I ought to ask him a question or two."

So he stepped up to the party of five, who had just come into the lobby.

"A word or two, if you please, Mr. Barron," he said, in a low tone, and as Ned Barron looked amazed, Dixon went on:

"Nothing much, only I want to know if you were acquainted with the gentleman who died in the water this morning—Mr. Garrett Folsom?"

"No, I was not," said Barron, a little shortly.

"But I'm told you were talking to him just before he had his heart attack, or whatever it was."

"You were misinformed. That is, he was talking to me, but I cannot say I was talking to him. Except to return short answers to his unasked-for remarks, I said nothing to him at all."

"You were annoyed by him?"

"Oh, it's going too far to call it annoyed. But I never like to have a stranger address me in the ocean, and that is what he did."

"You were unacquainted with him?"

"Entirely so. I never saw him before, and, presuming on the informality of the sea, I suppose, he began to chat. I was decently polite, but in no way did I encourage his conversation."

"None of your party was acquainted with him, then?"

"No—that is, I don't think any of them were. I'll inquire."

Ned Barron turned back toward the people who had come in with him and who stood waiting while the detective spoke to him.

"I say, Sears," he beckoned to his friend, "you didn't know that man Folsom, did you?"

"Not socially," Croydon Sears replied, stepping closer to them. "I've had a little business with him once or twice, but it was some time ago—I doubt if he remembered me at all. Why?"

"Mr. Dixon wants to know. How about you, Robin?" and he turned to Sears' son. "Did you know Folsom?"

"No; never heard of him till the commotion on the beach. Somebody told me his name then."

"And the ladies?" Dixon turned to the two women of the party.

But both Madeline Barron and her young friend, Miss Fair, asserted that they had never before heard of Garrett Folsom, and so Dixon concluded the interview with an apology for the intrusion.

"Rotten business," he told himself. "Don't see why I should pester any more people about it. The hotel will get a bad name if we don't hush the thing up as soon as we can."

Whereupon Dixon saw to it that strict orders were given to all employes to say nothing whatever on the subject of Mr. Folsom's death, which orders were publicly obeyed and privately disregarded.

The elevator men refused any information asked of them by curious passengers and the bellboys told patrons that they knew nothing of the circumstances, but somehow the news flew about and knots of talkative chambermaids gathered in the halls and waiters in the pantries whispered unceasingly.

On the deck, after luncheon, many of the guests of the hotel sat about and those who had seen the affair at the beach in the morning eagerly told the story to those who had not been present.

Roger Neville, who felt in a way conspicuous as being a friend of Folsom's, would have preferred to absent himself from the crowded scene.

But both Mrs. Barnaby and Mrs. Valdon insisted on his presence and he couldn't well desert them.

"My heavens!" exclaimed the Duchess, "don't you dare leave us alone! Why, we'd be besieged by gossip-mongers and what in the world could we say to them?"

"What can I say to them, my dear lady?" asked Neville. "Suppose we go for a ride in the wheeled chairs. Don't you think it would do you both good?"

"No," returned Carmelita. "It would not do to go away now. The manager might want to see us, and, too, I want to be here when word comes from Miss Folson."

"You know her, don't you?" said Neville.

"I've met her a few times, and, between you and me, I didn't take to her at all."

Neville laughed. "Who could take to her? Anastasia is not an attractive person, I'll admit."

"Anastasia!" exclaimed the Duchess, "what an intriguing name! I'd love to meet somebody named Anastasia!"

Certain of Carmelita Valdon's actions begin to look suspicious. Read the next chapter.

While an intelligence test given five-year-old Billy Miller of Hamilton, by a member of the university department of psychology, does not class his remarkable, memonic feats as those of an infant prodigy, the verdict of the psychologist was that Billy possessed a high intelligence quotient. His ability to memorize days and dates, although he cannot read or write, is considered rather the result of remarkable motivation than the manifestation of mathematical genius.

THORNTON PAYS GREAT TRIBUTE TO ENGINEERS

Wonderful Works of Ancients Surpassed in Construction of Present Day.

LABOR GIVEN CREDIT.

Co-operation of Two Produces Great Results, He Tells Niagara Institute Branch.

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., May 11 (Special).—What the achievements of engineering mean to modern civilization were stressed by Sir Henry Thornton, chairman and president of the Canadian National Railways in an address delivered here on Monday at the annual banquet of the Niagara Peninsula branch of The Engineering Institute of Canada. Sir Henry, who was the chief speaker of the evening, spoke not as the chief executive of the largest railway system on the continent, but as a member of the Institute and paid high tribute to the engineering skill which made possible such gigantic works in the Niagara district as the Welland Ship Canal and the plants of the Hydro-Electric Commission of Ontario, coupled with the debt which the people of today owe to the work of the engineer.

Sir Henry mentioned labor without whose intelligent co-operation it would have been impossible to have made the achievements possible and thus the wheels of progress would have been stayed indefinitely. Sir Henry Thornton, accompanied by Lady Thornton, A. E. Warren, General Manager of the Central Region; C. R. H. Fish, General Superintendent of the Southern Ontario District; T. T. Irving, Chief Engineer, Central Region, and others, arrived at St. Catharines in the afternoon. He was met by C. H. Scheman who presided over the banquet at night, A. J. Grant, Chief Engineer of the Welland Ship Canal, and a number of members of the Institute branch, and at once proceeded to make a trip of inspection of various plants and works under way on the peninsula.

Sir Henry took this opportunity to visit the terminal and yards of the Canadian National Electric Railways at St. Catharines, after which he went to view the construction of the canal locks at Port Weller and lock two, where Sir Henry had the honor of officially opening the new Queenston street bridge by being in the first car to drive over it. Subsequently other sections of the canal were visited.

A thorough inspection of the Hydro-Electrical Commission's power plant at Queenston was made and Sir Henry expressed himself as particularly impressed by the magnitude of the work and the masterly way in which the plant was constructed and operated. Upon the arrival of the party at Niagara Falls the new terminals of the Canadian National Electrical Railways, now nearing completion at the upper arch bridge, were also inspected, as were the new yards. Sir Henry complimented the engineers responsible for both works for the skill they had shown.

A. J. Grant, who introduced the speaker of the evening spoke of Sir Henry Thornton both as an outstanding engineer and also as a railroad executive of equal importance. He pointed out that the history of the growth of Canada was the story of the transportation development and that in this development the engineer has occupied a prominent position and that tonight the gathering had the privilege of honoring a member of the Institute "by reason of his outstanding executive ability has placed Canada in a most enviable position in the eyes of the whole transportation world.

"Assigned a task, only a comparatively few years ago, of almost unsurmountable proportions," continued Mr. Grant, "not only has Sir Henry accomplished this task to a degree far exceeding our most optimistic speculations, but in its accomplishment he has exemplified the underlying principle of engineering, the scientific adaption of the materials and forces of nature to the service of mankind."

Sir Henry when he arose, spoke of the pleasure which it gave him to address his "fellow craftsmen" and painted on a broad canvas the development of engineering science from its rude beginnings to its present high condition. He aroused considerable merriment by speculating that possible the discovery of gravitation went back ages before man left even the crudest of paleolithic records behind him to the day when the remote ancestor, as envisioned by Darwin, discovered that if he did not hang on to trees by use of hands, feet and tails, he would be sure to fall to the ground beneath a painful school of learning. Sir Henry opined but one which preceded the construction of the great monuments of antiquity.

"There is a popular notion prevailing to-day," said Sir Henry, "that the engineers of the present would have difficulty in reproducing the works of the past ages. We hear much of a complimentary nature of the achievements of the ancient craftsmen, but little of the developments of to-day, but I believe that all structures of antiquity, however great, fade into insignificance when compared to such mighty works as our power plants, magnificent canals, great bridges, and other structures which are living monuments to the strides made by the engineering science."

Sir Henry drew attention to the fact that in rearing the structures of antiquity the ancients had at their disposal unlimited supplies of man power, which cost them little or nothing, and could they be called upon today to rear the same structures as make for our modern civilization they would break down utterly. "To-day we do not have the utter disregard of manpower in our great engineering works," Sir Henry continued, "nor do we have the same viewpoint as did the ancients in the necessity for our engineering requirements. The duty of the engineer now is to accomplish something for the benefit of civilization and in this he is assisted by the co-operation and intelligence of labor and I think that this intelligent co-operation should be given due recognition wherever engineers meet, for without the loyal support labor gives the engineers in bringing to fruition their vast schemes these would fall by the wayside and thereby the wheels of progress would be stopped indefinitely."

Sir Henry paid high tribute to the Hydro-Electric Power plants, which he characterized as an outstanding engineering achievement, and to the Welland Ship Canal, a stupendous work that will link the East to the West and the North to the South, and mark a new era in the history of the Great Lake fleets when completed, in conclusion, Sir Henry touched upon the new Canadian National Electric Railways terminal at the upper arch bridge and the yards and said that it was a special gratification to him to inspect them and to show that the Canadian National system was growing with the progress of the city and make every effort to assist in its growth.

Previous to his arrival in the peninsula Sir Henry spent a few hours in Toronto, where he had a conferenc with general Manager Warren on matters of current railway business and also accompanied by Mr. Warren, paid a call of respect to the new chief magistrate of the city, Mayor S. McBride.

HOROSCOPE

The Stars Incline, But Do Not Compel

(Copyright, 1928, McClure Syndicate)
FOR SATURDAY, MAY 12, 1928

Again contrary aspects are read as strong in the horoscope of this day, according to astrology.

The early morning is auspicious for financial discussions and transactions.

Newspapers and magazines will benefit tremendously in the next few months when there will be much interest in reading.

Advertising is to gain and to change its methods and policies so that great efficiency is assured.

Whatever concerns lands should be carefully conducted at this time when malign influences are discovered by the seers.

Real estate methods are to be severely criticised in many parts of the country and drastic reforms instituted, it is forecast.

The summer is to be most propitious for the buying and owning of homes, if the stars are rightly read.

Persistently, astrologers predict for farmers increase of prosperity and unexpected profits.

The prophesy is made that some big event will unite the people of the country in a bond of understanding that will eliminate religious and racial prejudices.

The evening of this day is not a favorable time for visiting influential friends, for they are likely to be critical.

This is not a lucky day for giving presents and it is especially threatening for those who bestow engagement rings.

Women are to devote attention to a new line of beauty cultivation that will be marvelously successful for it will combine art and science.

Persons whose birthdate it is have the forecast of a year of success. Men must be careful in their conduct with women.

Children born on this day probably will succeed by actual effort. The subject of this sign usually are gifted but not lucky in receiving special favors.

LYRICS OF LIFE

THE STRAIGHT ROAD

Dad went as far as he could go
Along the road with me,
And tried his best the road to show,
The journey yet to be.
Dad said, "I'm getting weary, son,
And here I'll have to rest.
You'll find new roads, but only one,
The straight road, is the best."

I thought he meant the road of right,
But more than that he meant,
For many by-roads came in sight
On every road I went.
Of course, I wandered now and then,
As youth will often do,
But always found the straight again
The road to get me through.

If I had something I must say,
To commoner or king,
I found the straight the easy way,
The truth the easy thing.
And when a hill I had to climb,
Or mud I had to plow,
I always found the easy time
To do a thing was now.

And, sonny, when we come to where
These legs of mine give out,
You, too, will find the same roads then
Your grand-dad talked about.
Remember what your elders said
Who laid them down to rest:
Whatever roads you find ahead,
The straight road is the best.

RHEUMATIC AGONY

Can Be Ended.

There is absolutely no reason why any one who is constantly subject to attacks of Rheumatism, Neuritis or Gout should go on suffering the terrible torture and awful pain of these dread afflictions. For today any rheumatic sufferer may get amazing and quick relief from the use of Rheuma, a harmless remedy which has proved itself in thousands of cases.

Rheuma will absolutely stop your rheumatic suffering or it will not cost you one penny. If you really want to get rid of those awful stabbing knife-pains—if you really want to drive those dull, grinding, numbing aches out of your system, just step into McDermid & Jury and ask for a bottle of RHEUMA, for they, and druggists everywhere, sell it with a positive guarantee of money back if it does not rid you of all rheumatic torture.

CALIFORNIA CLUB TO CLIMB ROCKIES

Sierra Mountain Climbers Move North To Canadian Peaks.

WINNIPEG, Man., May 11 (by the Canadian Press).—Mount Robson, the highest peak in the Canadian Rockies, is one of the chief objectives which the Sierra Club of California has on its programme for this summer's mountain-climbing. Mount Whitehorn, another peak in the same area, will be another objective. The Sierra Club has never attempted to negotiate the high peaks of the Canadian Rockies as a club, though individual members of the organization have done some climbing in Western Canada, and the club will attempt to scale both Mount Robson and Mount Whitehorn this summer.

Members of the Sierra Club from Los Angeles and San Francisco, numbering 300, will make the trip. They will leave San Francisco on July 7 for Vancouver and thence proceed to Jasper.

Although Mount Robson has been climbed a number of times ascent can be made only under the most favorable conditions, and a great ice wall more than 100 feet high barred the way of the mountaineers of Seattle last summer when they tried the ascent. If the Sierra Club reaches the top it will be an outstanding achievement in its history. Almost as difficult is another peak in the same area, Mount Whitehorn. This has only been climbed once.

SEEDING WELL ADVANCED.

EDMONTON, Alta., May 11 (Canadian Press). — Seeding of wheat is from sixty to seventy-five per cent. completed in the southern part of Alberta, and from thirty-five to fifty per cent. in the central and northern sections, according to reports received by the Agriculture Department.

Alice Elizabeth Meuse, a 16-year-old pupil of the Roblin consolidated school in Dauphin, is Manitoba's champion orator this year and will represent that province in the Canadian oratorical championship in Toronto, May 16. Last year Manitoba's representative was Mlle. Simone Landry, who, speaking in French, made a profound impression at the Canadian finals and finished second to the winner, Frederick Hotson of Tavistock, Ontario.

Why We Do What We Do.

WHY BABIES ARE HELPLESS

By Mehran K. Thomson, Ph.D.
(Author, The Springs of Human Action)

Of all baby animals the human infant is the most helpless. The new born colt has extremely long legs and is quite wobbly. But in a remarkably short time he is able to run about and shift for himself. The same is true of the young of all the herding animals. The safety of the herd depends on the speed of the youngest and weakest members, hence even the new born among them must be able to keep up with the herd.

The period of babyhood for a colt is three to four years, that of the calf is from one to two years, etc., approximately one fifth of the normal span of life for the species. Man is the exception to this rule. His period of infancy is about twenty-five years. It seems like a great waste of time to spend half of one's life getting ready to live.

This is the chief reason why the human species is superior to all the other animals. The longer the period of infancy the better chance there is to become adjusted to new conditions and learn new ways. What seems like a great handicap is in reality a tremendous advantage in the struggle of life.

Babies remain plastic for a long period in order to adjust themselves more favorably to the conditions of life. If the infant were to become an adult in a few years he would have that much less time to acquire new ways. Animals live mostly by instinct because that is all they have to go by. The bumble bee is said to be as big the day he is born as he will ever be.

The long period of infancy means opportunity for growth and development. Blessed is the man who maintains this period to the day of his death so far as it is mentally if not physically possible. The moment a plant ceases to grow it has begun to die. The moment a human being stops growing mentally he is already dead. He is walking around to avoid funeral expenses.

DRESS

By MARY MARSHALL

The sleeveless jacket of jet is one of the latest French fashions. Here it is made of jet sequins worn over a black georgette frock with a narrow belt of the sequins.

Short set boleros made either in jacket form or pull-over form are among the new things in Paris. Usually the jet is put on in the form of sequins, and the jackets are usually posed over simple gowns of black georgette. A belt of the jet may be worn a few inches below the edge of the bolero.

I heard the proprietress of a smart dressmaking establishment remark rather boastingly the other day that of course "they never had anything to do with beaded dresses." The idea implied in the remark was that they didn't have to—their gowns were so distinctive, so well cut, so perfectly made that they didn't need the glitter of glass or cheap gleam of metal.

Well, I suppose beaded frocks were rather overdone a season or so ago. Everybody wore them—and sometimes they left a trail of beads behind them as they went.

This dressmaker had doubtless gauged the temper and taste of her clientele when she decided to hold out against beaded frocks.

I did notice, however, that she had a number of models showing the new black beaded bolero, others showing bands of spangled or beaded trimming. Obviously it is not the beads that she objects to or that her customers have grown weary of, but the old type of beaded or spangled frock.

LARGER SUBSIDY FOR BROADCASTING

British Government Bases Payments On Number of Licenses Issued.

LONDON, Eng., May 11 (by the Canadian Press)—The income of the British Broadcasting Corporation for the next twelve months will be increased by $375,000 and will total $4,000,00. The British Broadcasting Corporation is controlled by the Government, it having replaced the old British Broadcasting Company in December, 1926. The first full year's working of the corporation came to an end on April 5, 1928, at which time the number of wireless license-holders had reached 2,487,000. It was on the basis of this figure that the estimated increase in the British Broadcasting Corporation was fixed by the Post Office Department, which has direct supervision of the corporation.

From the total amount received by wireless licenses the Post Office deducts 12½ per cent. for the cost of collection, then takes 10 per cent. of the balance in respect of the first million licenses, 20 per cent. in respect of the second million, and 30 per cent. in respect of the third. The remainder of the money is handed over to the British Broadcasting Corporation.

The steady growth in the constituency for which the Corporation caters is shown by the fact that three months ago the number of license-holders stood at 2,383,726, while in December, 1926, it was 2,178,259. Under the present sliding scale the State will be assured of a revenue of more than $1,250,000 a year from the deductions made by the Post Office.

During the last year of its working, the old British Broadcasting Company had a revenue of $3,650,000 and it is interesting to recall that when the present corporation was formed, Lord Clarendon, the chairman, expressed doubt whether the estimated revenue they would enjoy ($4,000,000) would be sufficient for the proper development of the corporation "on progressive lines."

Now that the income of the Corporation is to be increased by $375,000 it will be instructive to see in what directions the money will be applied.

FIGHT IN LAW COURT.

Here are shown Patrick Sullivan (left) and D'Arcy Hinds (right) who came to blows at Osgoode Hall, Ontario's law headquarters at Toronto, after Mr. Sullivan had called Mr. Hinds a "liar." The row started while a bill for legal services rendered Misses Small in connection with Ambrose J. Small was under discussion.

ATTACKS ON ITALY.

BELGRADE, May 11 (Canadian Press).— Bitter attacks on Italy, charging her with unjustifiable domination of Albania and attempts to isolate Jugo-Slavia, were made in the course of a debate in Parliament last night.

In Walberg and Grove, the Philadelphia Athletics appear to have two of the best left-handed pitchers in the game this year.

MIGRATION REMEDY FOR UNEMPLOYMENT

Sir Robert Horne Urges Migration on Big Scale to Help Dominions and Britain.

GLASGOW, Scotland, May 11 (by the Canadian Press).—Sir Robert Horne M.P., former chancellor of the Exchequer, eminent financier and industrialist, speaking at Glasgow recently attributed a large proportion of the unemployment in this country to the fact that there were more women in industry today than before 1914 and there had been much less migration from Great Britain since the Armistice than was usual previously. Sir Robert said that although there were as many persons in employment as before the war, and much that was encouraging in the statistics of trade and the increasing prosperity of certain industries, there were still over a million persons without employment. The first of the conditions he had mentioned must be accepted as permanent.

The second, however, had led many people hopefully to look forward to solving the problem by means of emigration on a large scale. He had himself investigated this problem in a recent voyage to Australia and New Zealand. He had found that as a result of local problems of unemployment New Zealand had for the time being shut her doors to all except juvenile immigrants, and the States affected in Australia were likely to suspend the acceptance of new adult citizens for some months to come. It might therefore be assumed that there would be no outlet in the Dominions for the larger portion of those at present unemployed. But there were no types of emigrants whom the Dominions welcomed so readily and whom they would gladly take in large numbers as boys under the age of 17.

Societies which helped in the work of emigration were grievously hampered for want of funds. "By the Empire Settlement Act of 1922, which I as Chancellor of the Exchequer was the means of passing," Sir Robert said, "the Exchequer is under the obligation to provide 3,000,000 pounds a year to aid suitable schemes of emigration, but this provision is clogged with the condition that the Treasury will only give half of the money required for any particular plan. Somebody else must furnish the other half. The result is that only a comparatively small portion of the Exchequer's money has ever been claimed. I am strongly of the opinion that the time has arrived to dispense with all such restrictive conditions and to make Treasury grants for this purpose possible up to 100 per cent in order to carry out a programme of emigration whose success is vital to the welfare of Britain and essential for the development of the Dominions."

The conditions which awaited the citizen who was breaking new ground in the Dominion were much easier than those which confronted the earlier pioneers, Sir Robert said, "and it was impossible to suppose that the call of new and adventurous life would not in our day still sound in eager ears and echo in ardent hearts. The chances of fame and fortune overseas for the youths of character and industry were not less today than at any time in the past. Not all would gain glory or leave imperishable names, but they would, at least have a share in the praiseworthy and patriotic endeavor to establish and extend the fortunes of British people throughout the world and to maintain and strengthen the beneficient power of the British Commonwealth of nations.

DAILY ANNOYANCE, TROUBLESOME NIGHTS

Caused by Bladder Weakness Are Wrecking Health of Thousands Who Should Be in Prime of Life.

A big percentage—some claim two out of three—of men and women of mature years are troubled with Bladder and Urinary Weakness, causing Backaches, Nervousness, frequent night risings and burning irritations throughout the day. These conditions not only make life miserable, but they sap vitality, undermine health and frequently lead to most painful operations.

In order to swiftly relieve and comfort even the most obstinate and distressing of these conditions, a well known Chemist has recently devised a grand new treatment—called Syrol Tablets—which any good druggist can now furnish on a binding guarantee of certain satisfaction or money back on first box purchased. Syrol Tablets come in plain sealed packages containing two weeks' supply of treatment—and you are invited to try them at once without slightest risk of cost unless pleased.

Don't Envy Big Concerns -Imitate Them

SMALL BUSINESSES have much to learn from large businesses, because all large businesses were at one time small.

About fifty per cent. of small business concerns are to-day not making money. Their volume is not big enough. The public does not know about them or their product. Why? Simply because they do not advertise in the Daily Newspapers.

Plenty of money is being made in business to-day—but it is being made by the big Corporations. And these firms are big because they advertise. They began in a small way, they turned out a good article and they knew it was good; they created in the public mind, through newspaper advertising, a desire to buy. The public now knows all about them and has confidence in them. That is one of the first lessons on the road to Success which Small Business has to learn.

IT IS WIDE OF THE MARK to say that opportunity is lacking to-day. Opportunity is knocking louder in 1928 than it ever did. And the helpful forces in operation now are more numerous, more powerful, more effective, than they were even a very few years ago. The psychology of selling has been organized and used as never before.

First and foremost among these helpful influences is the Daily Newspaper Press. There is no question about that. Whoever heard of an advertising campaign being successful without the aid of Daily Newspapers? The successful corporations are depending on the daily newspapers and are using more space in them than they ever did. Last year they spent more money in newspapers than in all other forms of publicity combined.

THE SERVICES of more than a score of officially Recognized Advertising Agencies are available to Small Business just as they are to Big Business. These Agencies are experts in marketing methods. They know how to prepare copy for the newspapers, copy that will arrest attention and convince prospective customers. They have mastered this great art. Their services are free to advertisers. The Newspapers pay the cost.

If your business is not growing as rapidly as should—it is not making money—both Daily Newspapers and Advertising Agencies are eager to help you get started on the high road to Success if you will but use them. Why not make the start to-day?

MEN RISK LIVES TO RESCUE DOG

Pull German Police Dog From Narrow Ledge Over Niagara Rapids.

THERE THREE WEEKS.

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., May 11.—Imprisoned three weeks on a ledge above the whirlpool rapids, a great, gaunt, starved German police dog was rescued yesterday by William "Red" Hill and H. Brooker. The two men risked their lives to bring the animal to safety.

Maddened by hunger ,the dog put up a wild fight, biting her rescuers and tearing their clothing. Finally she was lassoed and brought to the top of the bank. The animal was very thin and had a broken paw.

The dog has been missing for three weeks. Just at dusk on Wednesday she was first seen but it was too late to start dangerous rescue work.

The spot where the dog had fallen over the bank is a steep precipice and covered with rank growth and underbrush. The dog had worn a pathway through the brush but had been unable to climb the steep sides.

Yesterday a rope was attached to the Spanish aero cableway and Mr. Brooker descended the rope and gave the animal two pieces of meat. The dog gradually became quieter, but would not submit to capture. Finally a rope was thrown over her head and later attached to her collar in spite of frenzied resistance.

An attempt was made to bring the animal up on the rope, but it would have strangled and it was necessary to pull it along through the brush to the old tow path and so to the top.

Dr. Hodgson to whose dog hospital the animal was taken, said it had been down there for three weeks. There is no clue to its identity although it is believed to be a thoroughbred.

MRS. BLACWELL IS RE-ELECTED PRESIDENT OF A RT ASSOCIATION

Will Fill That Office For the Fourth Consecutitve Term.

GOOD REPORTS GIVEN.

For the fourth consecutive term, Mrs. W. Blackwell was elected as president of the Women's Art Association, at the twenty-second annual meeting held yesterday afternoon in the studio of the Conservatory of Music. The slate of officers presented by the nominating committee was accepted unanimously by the members present.

Reports of the year's work were given by the treasurer, Mrs. H. W. Morphet, showing receipts of $716.76, expenditures of $578.80 and a balance on hand of $137.96, by the secretary, Mrs. F. C. Webber, the convenor of the Art Study Club, Mrs. B. L. Barns, and the convenor of the Guild of Arts and Crafts, Mrs. J. E. R. Munro. At the conclusion of the reading of Mrs. Munro's report, Mrs. Barns spoke of the splendid progress in actual work made by the Guild of Arts and Crafts, under Mrs. Munro's supervision.

Mrs. Blackwell asked the members if they would be in favor of allowing an artist member of the society to hold a solo exhibit of her original work under its auspices, and the consensus of opinion leaned strongly to the affirmative, several members asserting that one of the chief aims of the society was to encourage the production of art, as well as to show appreciation of it. The matter will be left in the hands of the incoming executive.

Mrs. N. H. Sutton, convenor of the Hanging Committee, thanked her assistants of the past three years and Madam Sifroy Goulet injected an original note into the program of reports by giving a review of the activities of the "Causerie Francaise" or French Conversation Class, in French.

Mrs. Blackwell spoke of the good work done by the members generally throughout the past year and of the amicable and cordial relations which had existed at all times between them. She thanked her executive, also for their support and co-operation.

An appreciation of the fine leadership of their president, Mrs. Blackwell, "for her good work and the way she has kept us all in good humour," was voiced, and other votes of thanks were passed to the secretary, Mrs. F. C. Webber, the treasurer, Mrs. H. W. Morphet; the convenor of the Refreshment Committee, Mrs. H. E. Connolly; the convenor of the nominating committee, Mrs. J. F. Allan, the corresponding secretary, Miss Grace Reinhardt, to Mrs. R. Gliddon, for use of extra rooms at the Conservatory, and to Miss Cathleen McCarthy of The Examiner, for excellent reports of the society's various activities.

Mrs. Blackwell announced a picnic and bridge party to be held at Chemong Park during June or July, when several of the members have offered their cottages for the occasion.

The report of the Nominating Committee, composed of Mrs. J. F. Allan, Mrs. N. H. Sutton and Mrs. R. J. Kidd, was presented by Mrs. Allan. After several years of service, a number of the officers resigned this year, including Miss Grace Reinhardt, corresponding secretary, Mrs. G. N. Gordon, vice president, Mrs. N. H. Sutton, convenor of Exhibitions and Mrs. B. L. Barns, convenor of the Art Study Club.

Officers for 1928-1929.

Members whose names were presented by the nominating committee and passed by the meeting yesterday, were:

President, Mrs. W. Blackwell; 1st vice-president, Mrs. F. C. Neal; 2nd vice-president, Mrs. V. Eastwood; 3rd vice-president, Mrs. B. L. Barns; 4th vice-president, Miss F. Hatton; treasurer, Mrs. H. W. Morphet; assistant treasurer, Madam Masson; recording secretary, Mrs. F. C. Webber; corresponding secretary, Mrs. F. E. Saltman; convenor of the Art Study Club, Mrs. R. J. Kidd; convenor of the Guild of Arts and Crafts, Mrs. J. E. R. Munro; convenor of the Social committee, Mrs. H. E. Connolly; assistant convenor, Mrs. A. Barton; librarian, Miss Grace Reinhardt; convenor of Exhibitions, Mrs. R. C. Cummings; press secretary, Mrs. N. D. Seaton; convenor of the "Causerie Francaise," Madam Sifroy Goulet; convenor of the Dramatic section, Mrs. L. J. Pettit; Program committee, Mrs. R. Gliddon, convenor, Mrs. G. N. Gordon and Miss A. Wood; telephone convenor, Mrs. C. B. Adair. Representatives were named: Mrs. E. W. Borbridge, Mrs. T. Cruikshank, Mrs. J. J. Craig, Mrs. V. S. Foster, Mrs. J. H. Seels, Mrs. N. H. Sutton, Mrs. W. R. Widdess, Mrs. G. E. Porter, Mrs. J. F. Allan. To these the meeting added the names of Mrs. J. Kennett and Miss Mamie L. McCarthy.

Report of Secretary.

I beg to present the following report of the activities of the Peterborough branch of the Women's Art Association for the year 1927-28—the 22nd year.

Under the leadership of our enthusiastic President, Mrs. Blackwell, we have again had a year most profitable and enjoyable.

The officers for the year were as follows: President, Mrs. Blackwell; 1st Vice-President, Mrs. J. E. R. Munro; end Vice-President, Mrs. F. C. Neal; 3rd Vice-President, Mrs. G. N. Gordon; 4th Vice-President, Mrs. V. Eastwood; Recording Secretary, Mrs. F. C. Webber; Corresponding Secretary, Miss Grace Rinehardt; Treasurer, Mrs. Morphet; Assistant Treasurer, Madam Masson; Archivist, Miss F. Edwards.

These, with the members' representatives and the convenors of the various clubs and committees, formed the executive.

During the year eight executive meetings were held with an average attendance of 15, which is a decided improvement over last year's average of 11.

While not a money-making organization, we have succeeded during the year in purchasing another $100 bond, which, with a bank balance of $137.96, and no outstanding debts, puts us on a sound financial basis.

The Art Study club, with Mrs. Barns as convenor, and the Guild of Arts and Crafts under the leadership of Mrs. Munro, have again been most beneficial and enjoyed by their members. To these two study clubs have been added this year the designing class, with most instructive lectures by Miss Young of the Normal school staff and the Causerie Francaise. Both these classes have a large and enthusiastic membership.

At the Kiwanis Club's "Made in Canada" Exhibition in October, under the convenorship of Mrs. Sutton and Mrs. Munro, there was staged an exhibit of craftwork, including French handicraft, as well as local work, and articles loaned from the Toronto branch of the W.A.A. Many beautiful things were shown, such as homespuns, hooked and crocheted rugs, woven hats and scarfs, batiks, hand-painted china and handmade jewelry. A large number of these things were sold, the local club getting 10 per cent. Mrs. H. A. Staunsfield, of the W.A.A. of Toronto, Mrs. J. Kennett of Peterborough, and Mde. Mathilde Cimon with her sister from Quebec, demonstrated their skill in various types of weaving, and in the making of hooked rugs.

It was decided at the February meeting to continue giving the annual prize of $5.00 to the art exhibit at the annual local exhibition (fall fair), with the condition that a different subject be chosen each year.

At the April meeting it was decided to join the Carrillon Book Club of Canada. This is a patriotic movement to popularize Canadian literature, and we will receive during the year six of the outstanding and distinctly Canadian books, selected by a group of well-known Canadian writers and critics. Miss G. Rinehardt was appointed librarian and is devising a system of distributing these books among the members wishing to join.

Our hearty thanks goes to Mr. O. R. Henry for his help during the year in operating the slides for the illustrated lectures.

While nearly all our officers and members have been active during the year, there are some who for their untiring effort and whole-hearted interest deserve special mention. Among these are Mrs. Connolly, convenor of refreshments, and Mrs. Sutton, convenor of exhibitions; and Mrs. Munro, who is responsible not only for the success of the Guild of Arts and Crafts but also the designing class, the wonderful exhibit of craft work in the studio, who, with Mrs. Sutton of the exhibition at the Kiwanis fair, and with Mrs. Barns of the pageant of shawls, and Mrs. Barns who has done such splendid work with the Art Study club and who takes a vital interest in so many other things as well, and last, but not least, Mrs. Blackwell, who is energetic in every phase of the work and who is responsible for the French class.

It was with deep regret we learned of the death of two of our valued members, Mrs. William Meredith and Miss Wood.

The sincere gratitude of the association is due to Mrs. Gliddon and her assistants, Mrs. Gordon and Miss Annie Wood for a most enjoyable year's program, beginning in October at the reception when Mr. Owen Staples delighted his audience with "A Talk on Things Artistic," at the close of which he presented them with one of his own etchings, a most appreciated addition to our list of treasures.

At the first November meeting Miss Francis Loring gave a most interesting illustrated lecture on sculpture.

Later in November, Mr. J. H. Burnham spoke to a large meeting, contrasting the women of the Victorian age with the modern woman.

For three days in November, there was hung in the studio an exhibit of Miss Hatton's beautiful paintings. These were done by Miss Hatton during her trip abroad and also in Western Canada, and were greatly admired and a large number sold.

On December 8th an exhibit and sale of work under the auspices of the Guild of Arts and Crafts, proved very successful. Many beautiful things were on view, showing the artistic ability of our members. On the following day a Christmas musicale was thoroughly appreciated by a large audience. The musicians contributing to this were Mr. and Mrs. Liddle, Mrs. W. H. Hohner, and a string ensemble directed by Mr. A. Spencer.

The first January meeting to O.K. the form of an illustrated lecture by Prof. Iliff from the Royal Ontario Museum, who spoke on Ancient Rome; "Modern Ways in Roman Days."

The Rev. Dr. R. C. Blagrave was the special speaker on January 27th, when an attentive audience listened with appreciation to a scholarly address on "Ramifications of Art."

On February 10, Mr. W. A. Irwin, M.A., D.B., Ph. D., spoke on "Some Phases of the Art of Ancient Babylonia," while on February 27th Mr. V. J. McElderry chose as his subject "Some Aspects of the Greek Drama."

Dr. Alexander McMillan proved most delightful when, on March 9th, he gave an address entitled "A Romance of Sir Walter Scott," with readings from "Red Gauntlet," one of the lesser known Waverly novels.

For three days, March 22, 23 and 24, there was hung in the studio an exhibition of paintings, including works of Mr. Arthur Lismer and others of the group of seven. On Friday evening of that week we were very fortunate in having with us Mr. Lismer himself, who spoke to a large audience on Canadian Art. A great many of the members took advantage of meeting Mr. Lismer afterwards in the studio.

The meeting held April 13th proved one of the most interesting and instructive of the year, when Mrs. A. J. Madill, assisted by Mr. Madill, gave an illustrated lecture on geology. The subject, "Geological History of Canada and a General Survey of Ontario," was presented to her audience by Mrs. Madill in such a manner as to prove most fascinating.

The evening of April 27, when Mrs. Munro and Mrs. Barns again presented their beautifully staged "Pageant of Shawls, and Canadian Historical Women," brought to a close a delightful year's program.

G. R. Weaver, Secretary.

THE HOODOOED COON

Sh! Not so loud! There's a play down at All Saints'. that's worth seeing. That is, if you want to laugh. There is little drama to it, and the plot is rather sketchy, but humor abounds and many times last night the actors had to delay their lines until the roars of laughter diminished. The name of it? "The Hoodooed Coon," and it was presented again tonight by the members of All Saints' Athletic Association, and some of their lady friends. All take their parts with youthful lack of self consciousness and the action moves apace.

The curtain rises on a railway waiting room at Slabville, Missouri. Misery Moon, the hoodooed coon, comes seeking a handout, but gets thrown out.

Samantha Slade comes looking for her employer's granddaughter, who is expected home from school. She doesn't come, but Tom Risale, who is slated to marry the girl, does appear, and gets the idea that Samantha is his prospective bride. Refusal to marry her would cost him a million, so he hires Hiram Tutt, a mysterious person, to impersonate him and insult the lady, so she will refuse him. Tutt is hiding from his wife, Paula Maleek, who is after him with a bomb, and his constant warning is "Sh! not so loud!" Gideon Blair, owner of the railway, arrives and finds the agent out in the park with a girl. To make him settle down he orders him to get married and the curtain falls on the postnuptial embrace of the agent and the lunch counter girl.

In the second act Paula continues on the trail and finally hurls the bomb at her husband, who runs, leaving Blair, who is confined to a wheel chair, to be blown up. Misery seizes the bomb and rushes out, coming back after the explosion with his clothes in tatters. Meanwhile Rosebud has arrived at the station, and awakened Tom Risale by kissing him.

In the third act all is straightened up. Rosebud tries to make Tutt refuse her, so she will get her million without marrying him, but finally all is straightened out. Rosebud finds that Tom is the one she is supposed to marry, and Tutt goes back to Paula. Blair gives Misery a thousand dollars and pushes him around in the wheel chair. The cast:

Misery Moon, a hoondooed Coon, Spencer Hope.
Gideon Blair, a millionaire, Gordon Young.
Tom Rissle, as slick as a whistle, Jack Hope.
Hiram Tutt, an awful nut, Charles Thomas.
Patrick Keller, a ticket seller, Homer Lundy.
Samantha Slade, a poor old maid, Miss Dorothy Worboy.
Rosebud Reese, a charming niece, Miss Ina Young.
Paula Maleek, a Bolshevik, Miss Margaret Lacheur.
Lulu Pearl, a ragtime girl, Miss Ivy James.
Passengers, Extras, etc.

Executive Staff.—Directors, Spencer Hope, Homer Lundy; Property manager, Fred Dyer; Stage Carpenter, Jack Hope; Electrician, George Glenblet, Jr.; Stage Manager, Miss Dorothy Worboy; Advertising Manager, Charles Thomas; Treasurer, A. Hope.

Between the acts, Spencer Hope and Homer Lundy presented a comic sketch, "Interruption." An orchestra composed of A. Clark, D. Sproule, and P. O'Keefe added to the enjoyment.

ARGENTINE GOLFER LEADING IN BRITISH OPEN

TWO GOLFERS IN TIE FOR SECOND PLACE

Sarazen and Hagen Following Hard on Heels of Leader.

FIFTY-TWO FOR FINALS

British Hopes of Capturing Title Dimmed With Argentine's Victory.

SANDWICH, Eng., May 11.—(Canadian Press.)—A meteor from South America and the shining work of invaders from the United States somewhat dimmed British hopes of capturing the British open golf title yesterday. Four Britishers, however, held close upon the heels of the leaders, and Archie Compston was in a tie with a total score so far of 149, for fourth place in the line-up with Bill Mehlhorn of the United States.

The Argentine flash, Joe Jurado, whose sensational 69 in qualifying rounds threw a bad scare into everybody concerned, tore off a startling 71 yesterday to lead the whole field with a total of 145. Gene Sarazen and Walter Hagen of the United States were tied for second place with 148 per man and after that came Mehlhorn and Compston with Stewart Burns, Fred Taggart and O. M. Williamson following hard at 150.

The featherweight Jurado has a difficult day ahead of him to-day, with these seven waiting for him to drop one or two strokes.

The axe representing fifteen strokes behind the leaders, fell on many a good golfer yesterday, including Arthur Havers, who won the open in 1923, and Roger Wethered, the famous British amateur. The invaders were not immune, Tommy Armour, United States' open champion, Johnny McHugh, California amateur, and Bo Stupple, Chicago pro, also went down for the count.

Right behind the leader last night was Percy Allies, British-born but pro at a Berlin club, who scored 151, and George Duncan had 152.

T. A. Torrance scored 153 to lead the amateur field, four other amateurs survived, C. C. Hezlet, T. P. Perkins, Rex Hartley and A. J. Evans.

Two stalwart veterans, Harry Vardon, with 157, and James Braid at 159, also remained in the competition.

Mitchell Out.

The British favorite, Abe Mitchell, failed again yesterday, although he had royalty watching him perform. His 153 placed him eight strokes from the leader.

Jurado, regardless of the outcome, has proved the sensation of the tournament. The question now is whether the trim little Argentine has sufficient stamina to last through the grueling final rounds. He has a good break in the draw, for he will go out early paired with the famous Jim Braid.

He was paired with the no less famous Harry Vardon when he returned his spectacular 69 to lead the qualifiers.

No one doubts Jurado's skill and veterans who have watched these championships for a lifetime pay him tributes as one of the most finished golf stylists Great Britain's galleries have seen. Should fortune favor him for the title, he would be a tremendously popular winner.

Sensational Play.

His 71 yesterday will live in the annals of the St. George's course for after going in a shaky 38, he turned against the long homeward holes and conquered them in 33 strokes.

Hagen's 73 yesterday was only slightly less sensational.

The hard fighting pro put all his skill and experience into every stroke to show Britons that he was far from finished after an unmerciful pre-tournament drubbing from Archie Compston.

Mehlhorn lost his putting touch and had ten fives on his card, five of them in succession to score 78.

Sarazen's round of 76 involved two disastrous holes, and an ugly seven at the 14th and five at the 15th. The seven resulted from a pulled drive into the rough and a shot into the "Suez Canal." He finally used five strokes to reach the green and was down in two putts. At the 15th he had three putts.

Make Game Fight.

SANDWICH, Eng., May 11. — Although Great Britain, at the conclusion of the fourth day of play in the British open golf championship, is again unable to claim a representative holding a position among the three leaders, who are all invading golfers from the Argentine and the United States, she is cherishing subdued hopes that Archie Compton's fighting qualities will carry him through to the championship in today's final round. Compston lies within striking distance of the leaders with 150.

Late yesterday there was a momentary revival of British expectations that Abe Mitchell would join Compston in the British counter-attack against the challenges of the Americans for the championship, but Mitchell, averaging fours to the 10th hole failed to maintain his form and finished in a shower of rain with a 75 score for an aggregate of 153, 8 strokes behind the leader. This left Compston to fight alone the battle to-day to retain British golfing prestige.

Behind Compston follows the Scottish champion, Stewart Burns, Fred Taggart of Cheshire, a lad of 22, and the veteran Tom Williamson, who all have scores of 150, and may prove useful supports in the final round.

Other prominent British golfers and their scores are Major Hezlet 76-155; Tom Barber 78-155; McCullough 78-156; Smith 77-156; R. Whitcombe, who is the only one of the three Whitcombe brothers to qualify, 78-156; G. Gadd 73-156; H. Jolly 78-157; Wingate 82-157; Harry Vardon, 79-157; Ockendon 78-158; A. Massey 79-158; B. Hodson 79-159; W. Perkins of Castle Bromwich, former native amateur amateur champion, 79-159; J. Braid 79-159.

All scores of 160 or more are automatically retired and at the conclusion of yesterday's round there were but 52 left to contest the final round.

Amongst to-day's notable failures are Arthur Havers, C. Whitcombe, J. J. Taylor, each with 160, E. Whitcombe 161, Sandy Hard and Roger Wethered 163.

WILL HOLD FIELD DAY

C.G.E. Track Club to Campaign for More Athletes in Plant.

GOOD PRIZES

The Canadian General Track and Field Club is now well under way and the runners are endeavoring to get into condition for the Lindsay meet. At the meeting held last night it was decided to campaign for more athletes in the plant. The secretary has sent for blanks to be filled out for amateur cards and he reported that no answers had been received as yet from the letter sent to the Lindsay Club. A field day will be held and the club will branch into other sports for that day. Good prizes are going to be offered and keen competition is expected. The question of club colors was discussed and it was decided to leave it in the hands of the committee composed of Bates, Tranter and Pilling.

Several shop teams of the Canadian General have been practising on the works grounds during the last few days and it is expected that the Inter-shop League will get under way within the next week. On Monday night a practice was held for all those intending to try out for the City League team. Bill Bennett will pilot the team this year, and having twenty teams in the shop league to choose from, he should be able to trot out an all-star crew. There was a good turnout at the practice, with Crary, Jones, McDonough, Weese and Frost applying for infield berths. The line-up is unknown as yet, but the outfield will probably be picked from Hope, Woods, Wilson, Calladine and Holland.

VIEWS ON SPORT

To aid developing Junior ball in the city this year, three dozen baseball have been donated to the City League by local business men.

Controversy over the matter of signing of players ended last night when a motion was passed at the City League executive meeting allowing fifteen active players to be signed on a team at the same time.

* * * * * * *

The practise grounds problem was also thoroughly discussed. The Juveniles will play at the Exhibition Park diamond and the Junior will have one night a week apiece at the King Edward school grounds—Kiwanis on Monday, C.P.C. on Tuesday, Royals on Thursday, and the Lockworks on Friday. Wednesday night to be left open for league games.

Deloro at it again. Manager Hemphill's gang are out showing their wares for 1928 on the local lot. The infield with some new additions, is showing up well, and the dust boys are backed up by a healthy outfield. The Deloro crowd, true to tradition, are working hard and promise to make their presence felt in the C.O.B.L.

* * * * * * *

It being deemed by the Deloro Amateur Athletic Association that the fostering of races for children is good training for future Olympic events, this association has decided to repeat to some extent on July 2nd next, the field day as initiated last year. Open to aspirants from Hastings County, resident since January 1st of this year, and coming within the same age limit, the road race to Marmora and back for the Kent trophy will be the premier attraction. The cup won last year by Charles Fairweather of Stirling will again be competed for, the winner to hold the same for one year and to receive a small replica for permanent keeping. A road race on a smaller scale with Marmora Station as the returning point is being tried for boys under 16. Valuable prizes are being given to encourage entries in each race. In all probability, these juvenile marathons will be carried out in the forenoon. In the afternoon, other children's sports are being held, while girls' softball, baseball, a social, and fireworks are being considered by the committee by way of completing a full day's program. Notice of entries with final arrangements will be published on or about June 1.

* * * * * * *

Many inquiries are coming in to the Monarch Club regarding the big meet on May 24th, and to prove that news travels far and fast, some of them from points like Guelph, Galt, Kendal and Belleville. Harold Webster, good Marathoner from the Hamilton Olympic Club is the latest to inquire the road to Lindsay. Webster has already been picked to represent Canada at this season's Olympic at Amsterdam and is anxious to show his wares in our 15-mile event.

For the senior 100-yard race, Sammy Calvert will probably be on hand to compete with the local stars such as Floyd Forbert, "Doc" Lyon, Pete Spratt of the Monarchs, and Hodgson and Bagley of the L.C.I.

Cliff Rich should provide somebody with a good race in the half-mile and the mile, but as this is a handicap race everybody has a fine chance and Peterborough may be well represented.

Doug. Loomis of the Peterborough YM.C.A. is the starter for the day and should be able to keep the boys well lined up, as he has certainly had lots of experience in this game.—Lindsay Post.

JERSEY WIN FIRST GAME

Doyle Loses 7 to 5—Three Errors Count Big Against Leafs.

RABBITT PLAYS LOOSELY

MAPLE LEAF STADIUM, May 11. —Gilhooley, Lawry, Walsh and Devine of the Jersey City Club celebrated their return to old pastures by protecting the leaders in most approved fashion yesterday 7 to 5. Shoffner, a southpaw, not only stood the Leafs pretty on their heads in all but two sessions, but won his own game with a homer over the right field fence with one and a single which was just as good as he made the round trip when Rabbitt let the ball leak through him. Doyle not to be outdone doubled with the bases filled for Toronto and three runs in the second.

Rochester lost to Baltimore 9 to 4 here yesterday in the opener of the series, also losing a chance to gain on the leading Toronto club.

Guy Cantrell allowed but five hits, three double plays helped reduce the Redwing chances to score. Cantrell drove home five runs and scored one himself.

A corking pitching exhibition by Harrison, right hander of the Reading Keys, cost the Buffalo Bisons their opening game of the series with the trailers here yesterday afternoon. The score was four to one. Harrison blanked the Bisons after the first inning and allowed only three safeties, two of them by Bobby Barrett.

The Keys got to Leo Mangum for three runs in the eighth to break a deadlock which existed from the first round.

BEARS LOSE OUT 11-6.

MONTREAL, Que., May 11.—(Canadian Press).—The inability of five Newark pitchers to find the plate cost the Bears the opening game of the series here with the Royals, 11-6. Newark outhit the locals, 14-8, but Falk, who went the full route for the Royals was steady in the pinches and chalked up his second straight win.

Bentley was driven off the mound in the third and fourth. Bear pitchers passed in quick review before the game was over. Elliott's homer, a triple by Gulley and a triple and double by Fewster were the batting high lights of the afternoon.

Gains-Sharkey Bout Is Not For Montreal

MONTREAL, Que., May 11.—The Herald yesterday says: "A despatch from Toronto stating that Larry Gains and Jack Sharkey would stage a ten-round battle at the new stadium here on May 23 is not founded on fact according to Jake Carey, matchmaker at the Montreal Exhibition Company. Yesterday morning Mr. Carey said it was all news to him and there was a mistake somewhere, as he had no intention of staging such a bout here. The fight is evidently scheduled for Toronto."

EVEN SERIES WITH INDIANS

Ruth's Seventh Homer Enables Yanks to Defeat Cleveland 4 to 2.

SENATORS 6-5

NEW YORK, May 11.—(Canadian Press).—Babe Ruth's seventh home run of the season with two on base in the sixth inning enabled the Yankees to defeat the Cleveland Indians, four to two, here yesterday to even the series in one each. Willis Hudlin had given the Yankees only two hits up to the sixth when Combs and Koenig opened with singles, Ruth then found the range of the left field grandstand, giving the Yankees the runs which eventually won.

Hudlin gave way to a pinch batsman in the seventh and Bayne pitched the last two innings for Cleveland. He yielded a run in the eighth on singles by Dugan, Grabowski and Pipgras.

Pipgras kept the Cleveland hits scattered save in the third when a walk, Hudlin's double, Jamieson's outfield sacrifice, and Lind's single accounted for two runs.

Washington at home yesterday, came from behind to tie the score in the fifth inning, only to lose to Detroit in the tenth, six to five, when Gehringer tripled and Fothergill doubled.

Brown, recruit from the Southern Association, started for the Senators but was removed in the third after the Tigers had scored four runs. Whitehill, for Detroit, also left the box in the third after Ruel doubled with two men on base. Fothergill got three hits, scored one run and drove in three others.

Boston Ousted.

Chicago ousted Boston from seventh place in the American League by taking the second game of the Boston series 9 to 2, here yesterday. Six errors and loose pitching by MacFayden and Bradley accounted for most of Chicago's runs. Bill Regan, Red Sox second baseman, made his first error of the season. Blakenship allowed Boston but six hits.

Hammering Tony Blaeholder and his successors in the box for 19 hits, the Athletics won their second straight from St. Louis at Philadelphia and their fifth victory in a row by a score of 11 to 1.

Joe Hauser hit his sixth home run of the year with two on base in the third and Bing Miller also hit for the circuit with two on in the fifth. Ty Cobb and Tris Speaker each had a pair of singles and a double in the slugging bee.

Mickey Cochrane hit four singles in a row before flying out in the eighth inning.

C.G.E. DEFEATED DE LAVAL 4 TO 1

Good Crowd Witnessed the First Evening Soccer Game.

A good turn-out of spectators witnessed the first evening game of soccer last night at King Edward Park between the De Laval and C.G.E., when the latter won a brace of points at the formers' expense. In the first moiety the youthful aggregation held the more experienced players—C.G.E.—to a nil account, but finally made it four goals to one.

THE GAME

Right from the kick-off, De Laval made tracks for the C.G.E. goal through nice combination on the left wing, which was frustrated by the defense. Quick as a flash Robb transferred the play to the other end, where James broke through between the full backs, but his effort was nullified by Fowler coming out of goal and stopping his progress.

Ten Men Against Eleven

De Laval played with ten men for the first fifteen minutes of the encounter, but James Mitchell filled the vacancy as soon as he got away from business. His presence immediately transferred his team from the defensive to the offensive. Play was of a ding-dong charteer thereafter, with the respective forwards missing scoring opportunities aplenty.

Fowler Conspicuous in Goal

The DeLaval custodian got more to do than his opposing keeper. On one occasion, James dribbled his way right into goal until he met his defeat easily, when Fowler ran out to compel him to put the ball over the bar. Then excitement ran high when the De Laval forwards harassed the C.G.E. time and again to gain nothing tangible, except a claim for a penalty that not such, because the ball hit the attacking forward's arm, not the defensive man. Play was in mid-field, when the interval arrived. No score.

HALF TIME

In the second half, C.G.E. obtained the lead when Burgess beat along the line with the sphere at his toe, then placed Mitchell in possession in front of goal, who banged the ball into the net along the ground. Three minutes afterwards, from a corner-kick, Laidler made a snappy pick-up to completely outwit the custodian. Exchanges continued even thereafter, until ten minutes from the finish, when the C.G.E. increased their lead through Laidler.

Ward Reduced the Lead

Ward went up into the front rank from centre-half to upset the C.G.E. full-backs, who were caught napping when Ward scored from close range encouraged by their success, they enlivened the proceedings with repeated attacks but Blowers made sure of the two points when he rattled the net with a left foot drive that the goal-keeper had no chance to stop. C.G.E., 4; De Laval, 1.

Goal scorers—De Laval, Ward; C.G.E., Mitchell, Laidler (2) and Blowers.

De Laval—Fowler, goal; Downer and Cross, backs; J. Mitchell, Ward and Pulley, halves; Watkins, Dyer, Jones, Hanson and Gravell, forwards.

C.G.E.—J. Wade, goal; F. Wade and Munkley, backs; Mann, Robb and Blowers, halves; Clarke, James, Mitchell, Laidler and Burgess, forwards.

Referee—Alex McKinley.

Linesmen—Alex. Mitchell and Dan Dick.

CARDS TAKE THIRD PLACE

Stage Rally in Eighth to Win From Philadelphia 5 to 4.

PIRATES WIN 5-4

NEW YORK, May 11.—(Canadian Press).—Staging a three run rally in the eighth inning, the St. Louis Cardinals advanced into third place in the standing by a 5 to 4 victory over Philadelphia here yesterday, sweeping the series. It was the fourth straight triumph for the Red Birds.

Blades pounded out a pair of doubles to feature the hitting, driving in the tieing run and scoring the winning run on Manouse's single.

The Giants bunched hits off Remy Kremer early in yesterday's Pittsburgh game for five runs, and defeated the Pirates 5 to 4. The victory was the second for the Giants in the three games thus far played in the series, and made the New York team's position in the lead more secure.

Fitzsimmons scattered the Pirates' nine blows and pulled successfully through Pittsburgh rallies in the last two innings with a net damage of only one run. Kremer was in trouble almost from the start and finally gave way to Russell in the fourth.

In a tenth inning battle for runs, Boston eked out a 7 to 6 victory over the Reds at Cincinnati.

The Braves reached Carl Mays, tenth inning relief pitcher. Four hits, one of them a double, and broke a tenth inning 3 to 3 tie by scoring four runs.

A single and two doubles in Cincinnati's half of the tenth scored two runs and drove Delaney to the showers.

Allen's single off Robertson gave the Reds another score, but Robertson held two batters to pop flies and struck out Dressen to leave the Reds one short of again deadlocking the game.

Establish Chain Of Evening Papers

LONDON, May 11 (Canadian Press Cable).—Inaugurating his scheme of establishing a chain of evening papers in the various provincial centres, Lord Rothermere has purchased the Derby Daily Telegraph, a Liberal newspaper. Announcement of the acquisition was made yesterday at the same time that Sir William and Sir James Gomer Berry made public their purchase of the Derby Daily Express, a Conservative daily.

Wednesday it was announced that rivalry between the Berry brothers and Lord Rothermere for domination of the provincial newspaper field had involved the Aberdeen Journal which the Berry brothers succeeded in buying in competition with Lord Rothermere.

EXECUTIVE DISCUSS GROUNDS PROBLEM

Junior City Baseball League in Need of Playing Grounds.

The problem of playing grounds for practise and league games was the principal topic of discussion at the City League executive meeting last night held in the board room of the Duffus Bowling Academy. Representatives from the East Peterborough League the Council and the Exhibition Board were in attendance and many suggestions were heard as to making a new ball diamond in the Exhibition park. The E.P.L. representatives offered to allow the City League the use of the big diamond in the Exhibition grounds for one night a week.

Mayor Denne in voicing the need for co-operation in building up this League, suggested that everyone interested should get together at the park next Monday night May 14, to meet the Exhibition board and form a bee to prepare a diamond suitable for practice games.

The player controversy was settled after a short discussion when a motion was passed alowing fifteen active players to be signed on each team at the same time, it being understood that only three pitchers will be signed on each team.

JUNIOR MEMBERS REPORT GOOD DEEDS

Donald Howson Presides at Regular Meeting of Humane Society.

The weekly meeting of the Junior Humane Society was held on Thursday. In the absence of President Kilcher, Vice-president Donald Howson occupied the chair. The secretary also being absent Miss H. Bradley was elected acting secretary.

The opening song was "Ring the Bells of Mercy." The pledge followed.

The treasurer's report was read.

The members sang the song "The Snow Birds." This was followed by the roll call which showed that there were a great many absentees.

Vera Kilcher sent in a report as follows: Removed glass from road; phoned Inspector Smith about a dog which was in a most ghastly condition. It had distemper rheumatism, sore eyes and was lame in one leg.

Warren Turner read an article from the Havelock Standard telling of the harm done to animals by boys with catapults in that town.

Alfred Pink told how he had prevented some boys from throwing stones at birds which they had enticed out of trees; and also that he had built a bird house, and had now one boarder in it.

Miss Annie Solbie rendered a very fine piano solo.

Miss Helen Bradley then favored the meeting with a story entitled "Old Dick, the Faithful." This was indeed a marvellous story.

Billy Bartlett then recited a poem known as "Jerry." The program was then drawn up for next week. The National Anthem closed the meeting.

STEAMER ON REEF.

PANAMA, May 11 (Canadian Press). — Radio messages received here to-day said the steamship Mexican of the American-Hawaiian Line, had gone aground on a reef off Bird Rock of the Bahama group.

FINE COMEDY AND THRILLS IN FOX DRAMA

"Square Crooks" Story of Regeneration Splendid Entertainment Crammed with Interest.

Excellent Featured Cast.

"Square Crooks," described as an American comedy drama of the underworld, had its first showing at the Regent Theatre last evening. There is abundant comedy, with many tense situations, which give it variety.

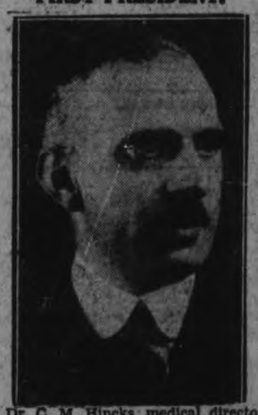
The story is about two former crooks, Eddie Elison and Larry Scott, both of whom are trying to go straight. It is no fault of theirs that a dying friend of Larry's steals a diamond necklace and begs Larry to dispose of it and send the porceeds to his wife and family.

Suspicion falls on the boys as they were discharged a day before the robbery. Complications set in when the jewels again are stolen by Mike Ross, a crook wanted for murder. The manner in which they unravel the mystery and capture Ross forms the basis for a thrilling and emotional comedy drama.

There is an excellent cast, with Robert Armstrong as Eddie Ellison; Dorothy Appleby as Kay Ellison his wife; Dorothy Dwan, cute and vivacious as Jane Brown, in love with Johnny Mack Brown, who enacts the role of the other crook.

Others in the cast include Eddie Sturgis, Clarence Burton, Lydia Dickson and Jackie Combs.

FIRST PRESIDENT.



Dr. C. M. Hincks, medical director of the Canadian National Committee for Mental Hygiene, was elected president of the Canadian conference on social work held in Montreal. Due to the success of this first conference a permanent organization was formed with Dr. Hincks at its head.

NEW MINERAL AREA.

The Ontario department of mines has announced the discovery of rich mineral deposits in the Favorable and Sandy Lake areas and also at Fort Hope on the Albany river. This map shows the location. Gold, silver, lead and zinc have been discovered. The district can only be reached by canoe and aeroplane in the summer and dog team in the winter.

Uncle Wiggily

By HOWARD R. GARIS

UNCLE WIGGILY AND THE SASSAFRAS.

Copyright, 1928, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

"Hi, Jingle, are you ready?" whispered one little rabbit girl to the other as they stood outside Uncle Wiggily's hollow stump bungalow one morning.

"Yes, Jangle, I'm coming!" answered Jingle and away the two hopped over the fields and toward the woods.

A little later Mrs. Littletail and Nurse Jane Fuzzy Wuzzy came out of the bungalow to see if the forty 'leven little bunny boys and girls were ready to start for the Hollow Stump School taught by the Lady Mouse. But, in great surprise, Nurse Jane squeaked:

"Why, there are only forty-nine bunnies here! They should be forty 'leven!"

"Jingle and Jangle are gone!" cried Mrs. Littletail. "Oh, the little tykes! If Baby Bunty were here I would say she had coaxed them to run away, but I guess Jingle and Jangle did it all by themselves this time. Oh, dear!"

"What's the matter?" asked Uncle Wiggily hopping out of the bungalow to go adventuring.

"Jingle and Jangle have run away instead of running to school," said Mrs. Longears. "Oh, the little tykes!"

"I'll hop after them," said Uncle Wiggily, rubbing the talcum powder off his pink nose. "I suppose they thought we wouldn't notice that they were missing. But I'll catch them! Hop along to school my other little forty-nine little bunnies," he said, "and I'll soon bring along the runaways."

So Tingle and Tangle, Bumper and Stumper, Custer and Buster, with the others, went to school, and Uncle Wiggily went adventuring.

"But first I must find Jingle and Jangle," said the rabbit gentleman to himself. "And I think I know where to find them. They will be down by the brook. For last night, before going to bed, I heard them talking about going there to gather some of the pretty shells Baby Bunty found. I shall look near the brook for the runaways."

Surely enough, when Uncle Wiggily reached the brook, there were Jingle and Jangle, hopping up and down the shore, looking for periwinkle shells.

"Hello there!" suddenly called Mr. Longears.

"Oh! Oh!" screamed Jingle and Jangle, but when they saw it was only their daddicums they weren't afraid.

"How did you find us?" asked Jingle.

"Oh, a little bird told me!" chuckled Mr. Longears. "It was either a bobolink, a catbird and a kingfisher. Ha! Ha! Ha!"

"Why those are the names of the birds in the puzzle pictures you made in school yesterday, when Bunty brought in the shells," said Jingle.

"Yes, those are the puzzle birds," said Uncle Wiggily. "A bobolink, the letter O and the link of chain spells bobolink. But you little tykes mustn't run away from school. I have come to take you there."

Just then Jingle, who thought she knew more than she really did about bark, roots and other things growing in the woods, dug up a bit of root and nibbled it. But it was strong, spicy sassafras root and it made her tongue so sting and bi.. that Jingle cried "Oh! Oh! Oh!" three times.

"What's the matter?" asked Jangle.

"She has eaten too much sassafras," said Uncle Wiggily. "But don't cry, Jingle," he went on, wiping away her tears. "See, I'll make you a puzzle picture here in the sand by the brook. I'll make four little pictures with mistake words under them. See if you can correct the mistakes." So Uncle Wiggily drew the mistake pictures you see here. And Jingle tried so hard to guess the right answers that she forgot all about crying because the sassafras bit her tongue.

IN PETERBOROUGH CHURCHES

ST. PETER'S CATHEDRAL.

Last evening's mission services in St. Peter's Cathedral was marked by the largest attendance yet during the week, the body, transepts and galleries being completely filled with girls and women, while extra seating accommodation was provided in the wings at the front. Rev. Father Kehoe, Redemptorist Father of St. Patrick's church, Toronto, preached an eloquent and powerful sermon on the doctrine of "Hell." The speaker proved the existence of hell from various parts of Holy Writ and described in a graphic and fearless style the two-fold suffering of the lost soul, the pain of the loss of God and the pain of fire.

God's Prison House.

"Hell is the chastisement which God inflicts upon his enemies. Hell is God's prison house, the home of every man or woman who dies with the stain and guilt of mortal sin upon the soul. God always acts as God and whatever He does, He does with a grandeur which far surpasses our understanding. When God chastises the unrepentant sinner He chastises him as a God, an almighty God, an angry God, an eternal God.

"Obey God's Law and you can expect a reward exceedingly great. Resist His commandments, refuse to submit to His holy laws and that same infinite and almighty God will crush you forever beneath the weight of His avenging wrath As long as God shall be God, He shall bear down upon you with that eternal curse, "Depart from me ye cursed into everlasting fire." All the power of His omnipotence, all the terror of His anger shall fall upon your head. All the hatred of His revenge will drive you from His sacred presence, for remember the Lord is God and He punishes as a God.

"We can defy Him now; yes, we can despise His precepts, but never forget we must pay for our despising and our forgetting. The day will come when His mercy will be at an end and His justice will bind you hands and feet. Then we shall pay for our folly and hell, eternal hell shall be the price. Then we shall know at last that God meant what He said, "Revenge is mine and I will repay." It is a terrible thing to fall into the hands of the living God.

Scripture Refers To Hell.

"Many people try to work themselves into a conviction that there is no hell. How they do so is a very strange thing indeed. There is no teaching of our holy faith so strongly supported in Holy Writ as the existence of hell. No less than fifteen times in the Gospel alone does Jesus Christ solemnly declare there is a hell. 'Depart from Me ye cursed!' What is that but hell, eternal hell? God says 'Deyart from Me.' What is this departure, this sepaartion from God but the worst of all the pains of hell, the loss of God, the very hell of hell.

"It may be very consoling for the man who refuses to give up sin to think that there is no hell. Just because the sinner thinks there is no hell, that does not do away with the existence of hell. What are we going to do with those fifteen passages of Sacred Scripture words which fell from the lips of Christ Himself; words which prove beyond all question that there is an abode of everlasting torture?

Dives and Lazarus

"When the rich man described in St. Luke's gospel sat at his table clad in purple and fine linen and feasted sumptuously every day, when he refused to the starving Lazarus the very crumbs which fell from all table; he, too, during life may have convinced himself that there was no hell. But now he knows there is a hell and he will know it for all eternity. St. Luke, the inspired writer, says: "And it came to pass that the beggar died and was carried by the angels into Abraham's bosom. And the rich man died also, and he was buried in hell. And lifting up his eyes when he was in torment, he saw Abraham afar off and Lazarus in his bosom. And he cried and said: Father Abraham, have mercy on me and send Lazarus that he may dip the tip of his finger in water to cool my tongue; for I am tormented in this flame." The rich man cried out to Abraham that he was tormented in flame. What is that flame but the undying tortures of the next world?

Heaven Only for the Just

"Let the man who sneers at the doctrine of hell take up his crucifix and do a little thinking. Who is that figure hanging upon that cross? It is a God whose hands have been nailed and whose side has been pierced. And why—just for one reason, to save us from the eternal pains of hell. Did Christ die to save us from a hell that did not exist? The thought is blasphemy. Has Jesus Christ the same eternal home ready for Judas Iscariot, the traitor, as He has for His own pure mother? Has Jesus Christ the same home ready for the impure and sinful girl of today as he has for the pure virtuous God-fearing girl? Has Jesus Christ the same home in the next world for the unfaithful married woman, who lives only for her own selfish whims, shirks her obligations to husband and family, as He has for the faithful, devoted wife and the most sacrificing of mothers? Will the treacherous Judas and the pure Mary, will the sinful girl and the purest of maidens, will the most unfaithful mother and the most perfect mother all occupy the same home in eternity?

The Loss of God.

"The great torment in Hell is the sinner's separation from God. This is by far the worst torment of God's eternal prison house. Once that eternal curse is pronounced on the sinner never again shall he behold the face of God. To-night we cannot realize the enormity of this loss because we don't know God as He really is. But the moment we leave this world we will see God face to face. Then we will be attracted to Him with every faculty of the soul. However if that soul be in mortal sin the all holy God will bid that soul to depart from His sight: "Depart ye cursed into everlasting fire." That one word 'Depart' will strike the sinful soul with an untold and indescribable terror, and that "Depart" will resound in the ears of the sinful soul for all eternity. This is the very essence of Hell—this separation of the soul for all eternity from God, the all beautiful and all holy."

In concluding, Father Kehoe exhorted his hearers to turn their minds to this all-important thought of eternity, an eternity to be spent in the presence of the God-head, or a miserable eternity, time without end to be spent separated from God, His beauty and His majesty. He asked them to persevere in the good-will they had shown up to now in making the mission well known. The mission he concluded, was a time for the Christian to put in order the things of his soul; it was a time to spend in serious meditation upon the things of man's destiny that really matter after all.

ACIDS IN STOMACH CAUSE INDIGESTION

Greater Sourness, Gas and Pain How to Treat.

Medical authorities state that nearly nine-tenths of the cases of stomach trouble, indigestion, sourness, burning, gas, bloating, nausea, etc., are due to an excess of hydrochloric acid in the stomach. The delicate stomach lining is irritated, digestion is delayed and food sours, causing the disagreeable symptoms which every stomach sufferer knows so well.

Artificial digestants are not needed in such cases and may do real harm. Try laying aside all digestive aids and instead get from any druggist some Bisurated Magnesia and take a teaspoonful of powder or four atblets in water right after eating. This sweetens the stomach, prevents the formation of excess acid and there is no sourness, gas or pain. Bisurated Magnesia (in powder or tablet form—never liquid or milk) is harmless to the stomach, inexpensive to take and is the most efficient form of magnesia for stomach purposes. It is used by thousands of people who enjoy their meals with no more fear of indigestion.

DEAN'S APPEALING WINDOW DRESSING

Considerable attention is being attracted to the pretty and effective dressing of the window in Joe Dean's Candy Shop, 301 George street.

The striking layout of this single window is very creditable to the artistic taste of the dresser. It compares well with the more pretentious window effects in the city stores. The suggestion has been carried out in pleasing remembrance of Mother's Day, May 13th. The decorator has excelled in the good taste displayed in combining delicate shades of pink and yellow silks, which harmonize with fancy colored paper mache drapings. Bricks of Neilson's popular ice cream are shown to good advantage, as well as pretty boxes of fancy chocolates and other confections, and sample bottles of O'Keefe's Canada Dry Ginger Ale, and other summer beverages

NEW BUILDINGS ARE DISCUSSED BY FAIR BOARD

Tenders Received From Contractors For Construction of Cattle Barn.

BASEBALL DIAMOND.

Committee Appointed To Look Into Possible Construction of Main Building.

Discussion of new buildings occupied most of the time at last night's meeting of the Peterborough Exhibition Board, held in the council room of the Chamber of Commerce. The meeting was quite well attended, and the president, His Worship Mayor Denne, declared adjournment one hour and a quarter after the meeting opened at 8 o'clock.

Two tenders, one from F. Finnie, the other from F. Dummit, were submitted in connection with the building of the new horse and cattle barn, and after some discussion the entire matter was left in the hands of Thomas Brown and William Knox. This building will be completed in time for the 1928 Exhibition, it is understood.

Baseball Diamond.

Alderman Stan. Lowe started some lively discussion when he inquired what was being done relative to baseball teams using the diamond in the Exhibition Grounds, and thereafter for fifteen minutes or so the various members expressed themselves on the subject. The main feeling seemed to be that while baseball should be encouraged rather than discouraged, still the Board should not be expected to keep up the diamond and place the grounds at the disposal of ball teams unless some revenue were forthcoming. The old membership ticket idea was frowned upon and was set out of reach by a motion which provided that no membership tickets be issued save to exhibitors. The matter was left over until representatives of the various ball clubs may be interviewed.

Main Building.

On the table was also several sketches and prints of the proposed new automobile building which has not, as yet, been decided in favor of. Discussion of this building at first interrupted replies to Webber Turner's query, "Why do we not discuss a main building and get the ball rolling for something which will benefit the Fair more generally both in the production of revenue and in the attraction of more and better exhibits?" Finally the automobile building was forgotten and several ways and means were suggested to make possible a main building. Though this would not be ready for the 1928 Exhibition, the Mayor and several others were appointed to look into the matter.

Two Army Planes Fly To Greenely

MILLER FIELD, N.Y., May 12.—(Canadian Press.)—Two army amphibian planes from Bolling Field, Washington, D.C., landed here on the first leg of a flight to Greenely Island, where they will aid in removing the trans-Atlantic plane Bremen.

The pilots gave no indication as to when they would continue the journey north It is the War Department's plan to send the planes to Labrador with Fred Melchior, chief Junkers mechanic, before the ground at Greenely becomes too soft from the spring thaw to permit a safe take-off in the Bremen

BUTTER SCARCE THIS MORNING

Late Season and Large Number of Creameries Blamed For This.

40 AND 42 CENTS ASKED.

Butter was scarce on the farmers' market this morning and what was offered for sale brought from 40 to 42c a pound. So many creameries in the city and the lateness of the season were given as the chief reason for there being so little butter offered for sale. Potatoes were very plentiful and were of excellent quality and size. They were being offered at $1.70 and $1.75 a bag according to the variety. Eggs were a little more abundant than on previous markets and were priced a little lower. The farmers are taking up the grading of the eggs very seriously, and from the quality exhibited for sale this morning the egg grading act has certainly been a benefit to the consumer and the producer.

Extras brought 30c a dozen and firsts 28c. For one basket of extras that has been candled the lady had no difficulty in getting 35c.

Green vegetables made their appearance, onions and lettuce being sold at 5c a bunch and rhubarb at 10c. The few chickens that were offered for sale were easily disposed of at 28c a pound. Cabbage, asters and tomato plants were going at 20c a box.

Little Brown Leghorn chickens were sold on the outside market by the auctioneer at 12½ apiece. These chickens were several weeks old and were considered by everyone present a wonderful buy. Little pigs brought $5 a pair.

The auctioneer was bid five cents, which he offered to pay himself, for an old-fashioned hand windlass for drawing water out of the well. The windlass was in fine condition but no further bids could be obtained so the old article was not sold. Evidently the farmer does not want to draw his water by hand any more.

JAPANESE PLAN LEAGUE APPEAL

Would Place Country's Position in China Before Nations Council.

NATIONALISTS ADVANCE.

GENEVA, May 12 (Canadian Press).—Japanese officials are considering the advisability of having Japan herself submit the Shantung dispute to the League of Nations, the Associated Press was informed today from a reliable source. Should the Tokio Government adopt this course, it would not be officially taken as a consequence of the Nationalist protest to the League, which has no juridical standing under the terms of the covenant, but as an independent move by a member of the league desirous to explain her position; this being that Japan has no ambition or intention whatsoever to violate Chinese integrity and territorial independence.

Nationalists Move North

TIENTSIN, May 12 (Canadian Press).—The calvary forces of General Yu Hsiang, now allied with Nationalists, are continuing the southern drive on Peking, occupying Tenchow on the Shantung-Chihli border last night. Reports were received to-day that the advance guards of the southerners have reached Wukiao in the Province of Chihli itself and that the Northern Commander has begun a withdrawal to Machang, which is only 35 miles from Tientsin.

Calm in Tsinan

TSINGTAO, May 12 (Canadian Press)—Japanese Consular telegrams indicated to-day that the situation at Tsinan, capital of Shantung, is becoming stable. The Japanese authorities who took over the city are in consultation with the Chinese Chamber of Commerce and other representative bodies regarding appropriate measures for the maintenance of order in the native city.

King George, whose enthusiasm for yacht racing is well known, has put up three cups for competition in England, Scotland and Ireland by yachts of three different classes during the forthcoming racing season.

POLICE COMMISSION COMMENDS BOTH MATTHEWS AND MAKER

Tribute Paid Late Provincial Constable at Meeting Held To-day.

MATTHEWS EXONERATED.

Shot in Self Defence, Commissioners Decide After Hearing Inquest Evidence.

Constable Leonard Matthews was completely exonerated by the police commission of the city at a meeting of that body held this morning, from all blame for the shooting of David Montgomery. The commission also put on record that it was convinced that Constable Matthews acted in self defence. Touching references were made to the death of the late Provincial Constable N. F. Maker by His Honor Judge E. C. S. Huycke and His Worship Magistrate O. A. Langley, the two members of the commission who were present. The secretary was also instructed to forward a message of sympathy to Mrs. Maker.

The contract for clothing for the police force was let to H. LeBrun and Company, the price being $32.50 a suit.

Permission was granted the Salvation Army to have a tag day on Saturday, May 19.

The communication from the city council stating that $25,000 had been put in the estimates for the police commission for the year was received. Payments for the first four months of this year have amounted to $7,492.19, being January $1,842.88, February $2,022.62, March $1,813.65, and April $1,812.64.

Chief Constable Newhall was asked by the chairman, Judge Huycke, to make a statement to the commission as to the shooting at the Montgomery Hotel on May 3rd. Chief Newhall described what had happened and the evidence submitted at the inquest. He commended the action of Constable Matthews, saying he believed he shot in self defence and to wound rather than to kill, as he aimed at Montgomery's shoulder. Because of a sudden turn by Montgomery, the bullet went into the man's breast. He said he felt very strongly about the matter, and believed that if the trouble had been reported to the city police things might have been very different to-day, as the city officers thoroughly understood the nature and temper of the man they would have to deal with.

Constable Matthews, said the Chief, is a very quiet and conscientious constable, and there is none better on the force. In view of the report, the following minute was placed on the books of the Commission, moved by Judge Huycke and seconded by Magistrate Langley:

"In view of the report of the Chief Constable and in view of the verdict of the coroner's jury which inquired into the death of David Montgomery, that this Commission fully exonerates Constable Leonard Matthews from all blame in the connection of shooting David Montgomery, and we are convinced that he acted in self-defence."

Judge Huycke, in paying tribute to the late Provincial Constable, said: "I have seen a great deal of Constable Maker and have learned to admire him very much. He was always fair and took no advantages of witnesses who were put in the box; but what impressed me most was the harmonious way he worked with the city police. This has not always been the case with previous Provincial constables. This may partly have been due to Chief Newhall, but to a great degree this was due to the personality of Maker himself."

Magistrate Langley said: "He always appeared a gallant officer. I have been struck with his bravery, in regard to many arrests. He never feared danger, and never wanted to have assistance, although I often mentioned to him, and am led to believe in some cases he accepted that assistance, but he was always willing to go where duty called him, no matter how difficult the case was."

The secretary was instructed to call for tenders for twenty-five tons of egg coal and three tons of nut coal to heat the police station and garage.

MANY HAPPY RETURNS.

Begin Consideration of Appropriations For Harbors And Rivers In Provinces

OTTAWA, Ont., May 12 (Canadian Press). — The House of Commons in committee of supply began consideration of the various appropriations for harbors and rivers in the different provinces of Canada yesterday. The first vote to be considered was one of $492,100 for the harbors and rivers in the province of Nova Scotia.

R K Smith (Conservative, Cumberland) said that he wished, for the third time, to protest against the lack of suitable harbor facilities at two places in Nova Scotia. The first port to which he referred was Port Greville. There were no railway facilities at this point, and the people were dependent on water transportation. Mr. Smith also urgd the extension of the breakwater at West Advocate for a distance of 100 feet. The item then carried.

K. D. Short (Conservative, Digby-Annapolis) complained of the insufficiency of appropriations for harbors and rivers in his riding. The situation was handicapping the activities of the fishing industry. A series of items totalling $316,600 for harbors and rivers in Nova Scotia was then passed. This total included $30,300 for the railway wharf at Bridgewater, and $23,800 for dredging at Guysborough.

GASOLINE, OR WHAT HAVE YOU?

We want our gas, we want it pure
Let that blamed stuff go down the sewer.

Barnum was right, but even Mr. Bailey's famous partner probably never thought of pulling them with "smell-less gasoline." Maybe you can't fool all the people all the time, but down around the crossroads where car tracks, reminiscent of "electric city" days take the count to Gasoline Alley truckers, east of where they've got more gas pumps than traffic cops, it's a cinch you can fool some of the people some of the time.

One afternoon this week, at about 4.30, those who happened to be near the corner of George and Charlotte streets were startled, astonished and amazed, to say nothing of astounded to behold, before their very eyes, a number of men taking gas from the several compartments of a large Shell gas truck and dumping said gas into the gutter, five gallons at a time.

The caretaker of a nearby building was the first to fall. He approached and with considerable diffidence asked permission to fill a pail.

"Could I have a pail full of that?"

"Certainly, it's going to waste, anyway."

The elated one disappeared into the building and after emptying his vessel returned. Though he did not wish to impose, he wondered if it would be all right for him to give a five gallon can.

Slightly suspicius at the ready acquiescence of those in charge he queried.

"What's the matter with this gas anyhow?"

"Its overstrength and the government wont allow us to sell it."

"But will it hurt my car?"

"It all depends on which end you put it in."

The disgruntled one saw the joke and beat a hasty retreat.

The next one to make bold was the keeper of a well-known tonsorial shop who dashed across with a forty-ounce bottle and a toy-sized funnel.

"For goodness sake, don't waste it!" he remonstrated.

"Oh that's all right there's plenty more."

Customs Official—"What are you going to use it for?"

Barber—"I'm going to put some of it in my cigarette lighter."

C. O.—"It should last you a long time."

And as if that wasn't enough a youngster appeared from a drug store, armed with a couple of containers.

"Say, mister, could I have some of that?"

"You might as well."

The lad carried away two containers filled with the precious liquid but a few moments later, after analysis had taken place at said drug store, returned and with some chagrin declared: "Say mister, my dad says that's the kind of gas they use in steam engines."

By this time, the customs officials, having calibrated the compartments, one of which had not been emptied of the water used in the test, allowed the truck driver to depart and to the utmost amazement of the by this time large crowd, the big gasoline buggy went on its way out Charlotte street with one of the emptying cocks wide open and gas (water) flowing freely. Gasoline Alley was christened.

One man who had witnessed a similar sight the day before was heard to remark that this was the second time he had seen that blamed fool running around spilling gas like that.

However, what he had really seen was another truck of the same company which had been ordered to the Customs Department for inspection the day before, making a similar run out Charlotte street following inspection. This truck, too, had given a couple of travellers a start when they had previously beheld it parked on Charlotte street east with one of the tanks emptying freely. The first to discover it dashed for the Empress Hotel bar to inform the driver; the second departed in all due haste for the police station, a third also set out to seek the driver, while a fourth gifted with more sense than imagination, pulled the tap tight. He was later informed that it was only water. Next!

Witnesses of the accident had a hard time rescuing the trio from the submerged auto.

Much Damage Done In Montreal Suburbs

MONTREAL, Que., May 12 (Canadian Press). — The waters of the Riviere des Prairie rose another two inches yesterday and several more Montreal suburbs were flooded.

At Cartierville, where the floods are the worst, boats were being used on two streets and scores of cellars were filled with water. Reports received here last night indicated that should the raise continue, several families will be forced to vacate their home.

The bridge at St. Eustache, about eighteen miles from here, is almost covered with water and indications are that if conditions do not improve shortly the structure will be closed to traffic.

Two feet of water covers the highways at St. Rose and Rosemere and many of the fields in the neighborhood are flooded.

High Water in Ottawa River Causes Shutdown This Morning.

NO POWER FOR EDDY'S.

Tributaries Are Higher and Are Expected To Force Main Stream Up.

OTTAWA, May 12 (Canadian Press).—The big saw mill of the Booth Company at Chaudiere Falls in this city closed down to-day on account of high water, throwing a total of 750 men out of employment, including those already laid off by this firm as a result of the floods. The Eddy Company in Hull had to shut off more of their machines and 75 men are laid off there.

The yards of the saw mill are under water in several places, but the chief difficulty is the lack of power as the tail races of the power plants are so high that there is very little head from the dam above the falls. Chaudiere Falls is a spectacular torrent and many visitors are photographing them.

The water in the Coulonge River rose two inches during the night and it is now presumed that with other tributaries in the same position, the water in the Ottawa river will be still higher over the week-end.

OTTAWA, May 12 (Canadian Press).—The Ottawa River went up about two inches last night, according to readings at the locks at the foot of Parliament Hill to-day. This indicates that the advance in the river levels, which has pushed on day after day, slowly but with never a pause, is at last almost at a standstill and only a big rain, it is thought would send it much higher.

Meanwhile a determined battle is going on to avoid shutting down the plants of the Booth Company and the Eddy Company, which would throw some eight or nine hundred men out of employment. Already about 175 men have been laid off on account of the encroachments of floods at these industries. Log crib works have been constructed and extra pumps installed to keep the water out of the vital spots in the plants.

Despatches from the north country indicate that the head waters of the Ottawa River are still rising. This would indicate the possibility of the river here mounting still higher, although those vitally concerned are hoping that the peak is reached.

A cold north wind to-day is adding to the discomforts of those residents at Gatineau Point, who are living in the upper portions of their houses because the main floors are awash or actually under water. Milk men, bread men, and other tradespeople are making their deliveries by boats on several of the streets.

FLIERS HAVE NARROW ESCAPE

Forced Down on Ottawa River After Engine Cut Out.

MISS TREES ON BANKS.

OTTAWA, Ont., May 12 (Canadian Press).—Forced down after its engine cut out when the gas feed line became blocked, a Vickers Vedette flying boat of the Royal Air Force piloted by Flight Lieut. H. W. Hewson, and carrying Lieut. A. L. Johnston as a passenger, landed safely on the Ottawa River yesterday afternoon after narrowly missing the trees fringing the river bank. Other members of the Air Force at a substation nearby heard the plane's motor going "dead" and rushed assistance to their comrades who had volplaned the ship onto the river at Riverside Park, about two miles from the centre of the capital.

Lieuts. Hewson and Johnston received quite a wetting from the spray thrown up as the ship struck the river. The plane itself suffered no damage and was flown to its base some hours later after the gas line had been adjusted.

OFFICERS ACCUSED OF MANSLAUGHTER

Cole and Chalmers fired on the automobile in which Aiello was riding, in the belief that they were about to capture a liquor runner. No liquor was found.

Distillers Are Making Settlement

OTTAWA, May 12 (Canadian Press).—Hon. N. D. Euler, Minister of National Revenue, stated last night that Gooderham and Worts, distillers, are making settlement in full of the Department of National Revenue's claim for arrears of sales tax. The amount involved is some $675,000 and there will be no appeal from the judgment secured by the department some weeks ago.

A considerable number of the breweries have already made settlement and a number of others are pending. Total amount of the Department's claims against the brewers and distillers for which writs have been issued is nearly $5,000,000.

ENVOY SPEAKS WELL OF WEST

Hon. William Phillips Tells of Tour To Pacific Coast.

AMAZING ONLY SYNONYM.

OTTAWA, Ont., May 12.— (Canadian Press.)—"I fear that I have been overtaxing the term 'amazing' in discussing my tour of Western Canada, but if I change it I must go into 'astounding' as the only adequate synonym," remarked Hon. William Phillips, United States' Minister to Canada in a short talk to newspapermen yesterday upon his return from his tour to the Pacific coast. He was accompanied on his trip by Mrs. Phillips.

Mr. Phillips recalled that his previous visit to the west was in 1898 and his recollections of conditions then as compared with those that now exist formed the theme of an interesting conversation.

"While I shall have considerable to say of the development of the west in various material ways," said Mr. Phillips, "what impressed me most and what best illustrates the progress of the country is the remarkable advances made in cultural lines. At Regina, for example, we saw and heard several outstanding orchestras and vocal aggregations, representative of the Conservatory of Music in that thriving city. These had attained a very great degree of excellence and perfection and their performances would do credit to long established and more noted centres. When you consider what Regina was some twenty-five or thirty years ago one gets an idea of what real progress means. And what is true of Regina obtains in very large degree for other prairie cities. All the prairie centres are developing culturally and materially in a way that presages a future that we may only conjecture at present."

Mr. Phillips expressed himself as most gratified at the place won in the wets by former American citizens. Most of the latter were on the land. They had come into Canada with more or less capital and taken up agriculture in earnest. To-day they formed a very large and very loyal element in the population. "They are all British citizens and very proud of their adopted country," said Mr. Phillips.

"The Panama Canal has had a striking influence on coastwise trade," said the United States' envoy in discussing Pacific province conditions. 'All the Alberta wheat—I am speaking roughly in this connection—and one half the Saskatchewan output is going to the coast and being shipped through the Panama Canal to Europe The trade to the Orient in this way is developing satisfactorily and the future of Vancouver, for example, is assured as one of the great shipping points of the continent. In addition British Columbia is enjoying a remarkable tourist trade, hundreds of thousands of my countrymen visiting the province yearly. And they are in this way helping to cement better relations between the two countries. Personal contact with people is the best way to remove any existing prejudices or misunderstandings. Reverting to Vancouver, it is, to my mind, astonishing to recall that only 42 years ago there was only a small and insignificant settlement on the site of what is now one of the most advanced cities on the continent.

"The feeling throughout the west is one of intelligent optimism. The depression which we all experienced during and immediately following the war has now been dissipated and the country is advancing in every way. In Saskatoon, Regina, Moose Jaw and other centres building construction is no equal to or surpassing pre war developments in this line.

Mayor Wants City To Provide Plane

SAN FRANCISCO, May 12 (Canadian Press).—Mayor James Rolph wants the city to furnish him an airplane. The want was published yesterday in the Mayor's budget requests. He said the plane was needed to extend the city's greetings to notables who arrive by air, for police work, and possibly for official trips.

FLOOD WATERS STILL RISING IN TEMISKAMING

Municipal Pumping Station Is Threatened By Floods—Officials Remove Motors.

WEATHER COLDER.

Property Holders Along Ottawa and Gatineau Rivers Fear For Homes.

COBALT, Ont., May 12 (Canadian Press). — The flooded waters of Lake Temiskaming last night were within a foot of the floor of the Haileybury Dock, and were still rising. A short distance away, the municipal pumping station was threatened as the flood was creeping gradually nearer the top of the protecting concrete breakwater. For safety's sake two of the three motors have been removed from the building and town officials were frankly apprehensive that the water would be over the wall before long. A change in the wind about noon piled ice high along the north wall of the wharf, and there was considerable pressure from this cause last night.

The weather is turning colder, following upon a number of showers during the day. All the rivers draining into the lake last night still were in high flood, and the Montreal River at Latchford had reached almost to the floor of the bridge carrying the Ferguson Highway across that stream. It is about four feet above normal. The road is under water in several places close to Latchford, but the railway has not been affected, and communication by this means continues without interruption. The Niplissing Central Railway, operating between Cobalt and New Liskeard, also is running on normal lines, although the waters of the lake are within a short distance from the tracks at one point.

Power Plants Operating.

According to B. V. Harrison, general manager of the Canada Northern Power Corporation, all of the plants of that company throughout the north are operating except the Auxiliary Station at Indian Chutes, on the Montreal River, near Elk Lake It has been flooded out, Mr. Harrison says, the stop logs are out of all the dams in the territory, and there has been no serious trouble as any of the other plants, although it has been found necessary to change the load at some of the places to meet conditions. On the Mattamami River, he says, flooding was due to a log jam. There is no danger at either the Quinze or Temiskaming dams, his information indicates.

FEAR FOR PROPERTY.

OTTAWA, Ont., May 12 (Canadian Press). — The flood situation is one of anxious waiting for residents of low lying lands along the Ottawa and Gatineau Rivers. The relentless advance of these two rivers for days has brought their levels to the point where another foot or even less would mean heavy losses. While most persons accustomed to the vagaries of the two streams think they will not rise much higher, those whose homes and property are at stake are not so confident.

The Ottawa River at Pemroke only rose one and a half inches during the night and scarcely any yesterday, so that with the dam at Temiskaming holding, only heavy rain would make the situation critical. Another six-inch rise would be very serious for the match company, and a number of stores in the business district will be flooded if the water goes much higher. They have made rrangements in many instances to move their stocks if it becomes necessary. The wharves in the vicinity of Pembroke are all under water. Where the Muskrat River Dam usually has a drop of 20 feet, there is now only a fall of a little over two feet.

The chief concern in Ottawa is with the J. R. Booth Company's plant and the E. B. Eddy Company plant at the Chaudiere Falls having been forced to lay off additional men yesterday, the high water interfering with the sawmill, particularly the piling yards in the case of the Booth firm and with the paper making departments at Eddy's.

The high water in the tail races has considerably reduced the power production of the Chaudiere Falls, whereas on the other hand the mills are requiring considerable power for pumps to keep the water out of the plants.

The city water works department is preparing to start the pumps in the old station should the new plant at Lemeux Island a few hundred yards above Chaudiere Falls go out of commission. The pumps at the island are operated with electricity, and some of the conduits carrying the wires are now under water, although normally they are several feet above. So far, however, they have proved water tight.

There is no change in the situation along the Gatineau. Maniwaki reports the levels the same as yesterday morning, and at Gatineau Point, which is by far the greatest sufferer, the slight raise in levels was not enough to make any material change.

The highway between Hull and Gatineau Point is now flooded for a distance of about 200 feet. Between

PAVEMENT FOR FRONT STREET IS NOT DEFINITELY DECIDED ON; NEW PETITION TO BE BROUGHT IN Campbellford Council Hears Request of Merchants For Permanent Road.

NEW SEWERS NEEDED.

Local Men Not Employed By Paving Company, Some Councillors Charge.

CAMPBELLFORD, May 12. — Whether or not Front street will be paved in the business section was the problem responsible for the special council meeting last night. The mayor and all members of the council were present and from eight o'clock till twenty minutes past eleven, the matter of pavement and road work of various descriptions held the attention of the council. Decision in the paving matter was not reached. Only one or two other items were brought before the meeting. One was the installation of a red light telephone signal for use with the police telephone; the other was the matter of local men employed or not employed on the paving work. The police will have their telephone signal and the matter of paving employment was discussed at some length, without any definite action being taken. It is understood that the situation will be investigated further.

J. A. Irwin, who had been the first speaker when the request for paving Front street was first laid before the council, was the first owner and ratepayer to address the council in the matter last night. He said he thought the feeling at the previous meeting had been for a petition and he had secured the signatures of most of the property owners and tenants in the business section of the street. The petition was "pretty well signed," he stated, and only four owners had refused to put their names on it. The others had needed no persuasion and he had got all the signatures in a little over an hour. The petition also contained the names of tenants who were paying business taxes in the town and all were of the same opinion that if the street were not paved, it would become a side street and the businesses situated there would suffer accordingly.

Reeve Davidson said that he was supposed to have secured a similar petition from the owners south of Bridge street on Front and Mill streets, but that he had not done so, since he had been away yesterday morning, and the places of business were closed for the half holiday in the afternoon. He was certain that he would have no trouble, since most of those concerned had signified their desire for pavement. They wanted it to extend as far south as the fire hall and the Regent Theatre.

57 Signatures.

At the request of the mayor, the clerk read the names of those who had signed the petition. There were thirty-seven in all and the first signature was that of Thomas S. Baker. There followed a lengthy discussion as to whether the pavement should be continued as far north as Market street and if so would it be from curb to curb after it passed out of the business section or would it revert to the twenty-foot strip in the centre of the road. The cost of the paving had been estimated as $10,788 The storm sewer would cost $2,880 extra and it was also deemed advisable to install a sanitary sewer at the same time. Estimates for this were being prepared, Councillor Wiggins reported. Another question which arose was whether or not it would be necessary to lower the water main and if so what would be the cost. Would the pipe be in fit condition for relaying or would new material be required. At present it was buried about four feet deep and this was not considered deep enough. Five feet would be the minimum depth to guard against frost.

W. J. Armstrong, as a merchant on Front street south of Bridge, did not think it possible to obtain a

GOITRE NOT A DISEASE

Milwaukee Doctor Makes Remarkable Discovery.

MILWAUKEE, Wis.—It has been brought to light by scientific research that goitre is not a disease and is not to be treated as such. Dr. A. A. Rock, Dept. 730, Box 737, Milwaukee, Wis., a prominent goitre specialist for over 24 years, has perfected a different method of treatment for his patients that has proved remarkably successful. This same method is now being used for a home treatment of goitre ful. This same method is now being used for a home treatment of goitre cases all over the country with astonishing results. The Doctor states that goitre is a condition which grows worse with neglect and recommends immediate attention no matter how small the growth may appear. He strongly opposes needless operations. Dr. Rock is the author of a book that tells in a simple way about treating goitre at home. He has published this book at his own expense, and will send a copy free to anyone interested. GASOLINE TRAIN FOR TWEED LINE

Old Engine Has Been Replaced With Modern Locomotive By C. N. R.

COMBINATION CAR.

TWEED, May 12. — Old Puffing Billie has been taken off the Kingston-Tweed C.N.R. line, and a modern gasoline motor driven engine put in its place. Ever since the early seventies, when the line was built into Tweed from Kingston by the old Bay of Quinte Railway Company this village has had a train from the Eastern Ontario city enter in the evening.

Last week the steam engine was taken off and a modern train, which included a gas motor driven engine and baggage car all in one coach and a passenger coach, made up the train.

For three evenings the new train entered, and when it could be heard coming miles back, many citizens rushed to the station to see this kind of railway transportation pull in. Then for several days old Puffing Billie was back on the line again, but on Thursday night the new train made its appearance again.

It is claimed by railway officials that the line was not paying with the steam outfit, so a gasoline engine, which can be run a great deal cheaper, is being tried out.

Being hard pressed for time and a little short on ideas, I am glad to get such good material. If my friends who read these columns week by week get half as much pleasure and profit out of the philosophy of my carpenter friend's sayings and cullings as I get, they owe us both a vote of thanks!

One of John's acquaintances is known as Professor Happy. He has been regaling a number of his friends with what is often described as "wise cracks." John assures me that what he has given to spread before our readers came to him on a lettuce leaf tucked away within the goodness of a baked potato. He tells me that the ink with which Happy wrote this wisdom, or nonsense—take your choice—was extracted from fresh fruits. His pen was probably the tip of a carrot.

Let us light the candles, unfold our napkin, and serve the entertainment.

Sense and Nonsense.

Sleep with your window open and your mouth shut.

Stand up straight! There's a lot more ahead of you than there is on the ground.

Take a lesson from the sailors, who always weigh the anchor. If fishes have scales, so have you. Weigh yourself sometimes—your weight is your fate.

I don't think anyone has ever been able to prove that thin soup ever made anyone fat.

Drink at least four glasses of water every day, and leave strong drink alone until some reputable doctor prescribes it.

Have horse sense and eat oatmeal.

Health is wealth. Don't be a spendthrift even if you don't want people to think that you were born in Scotland.

If you must cry, cry over spilled milk.

More of the Same.

Clean ice-cream is wholesome. Don't drown yourself trying fancy "Floats." If you must drown, try water!

Doesn't a baked potato taste, smell, feel, do good? Oh Boy!

God bless every good cook and increase their number in the world.

Don't find fault with the baker because there are holes in the bread. Those holes are to hold butter.

A draught is an ill wind that blows nobody any good unless it be some undertaker.

Brush your teeth at least once every day and don't overwork the dentists.

Take a bath more than once a week. It is good for yourself and for others, even if the water sometimes feels that it is getting a "dirty" deal.

Don't be a Prude.

When you are hungry between meals, try a glass of water.

A stooping body is like a kinked hose. A little golf advice might not be bad—straighten out and get greater distance!

Three hearty meals are worth a whole day of bites. And don't forget that the first course of every meal should be served in a wash bowl.

While it is not necessary to have all your taste in your mouth, remember that he who cleans his teeth has good taste.

Every mother should lower some fruit down her own son's neck each day in the week—and if her son happens to be a daughter, do it anyway.

Never put off 'till to-morrow the milk that is warm to-day. Use it, on yourself, on the family, on the cat or on the dog.

Long nights of sleep mean long years of health. Moral: Get to bed early.

For the Children.

When you're washing, remember you're the only one who can't see the back of your neck.

If you eat everything that appeals to you, don't be surprised when the time comes that no food appeals to you.

Get out the dictionary now and then and find the meaning of the word "Soap."

If you want to reach the pink of condition eat plenty of green vegetables.

Take a shower now and then and avoid looking like a storm.

Laughing is a much better exercise than kicking.

Bread is the staff of life. Eat it and be thankful it isn't a wheel chair.

Brush your teeth as well as your shoes.

For Older Folk.

The thoroughbred horse gets a rub-down every day. What sort of a horse are you? Don't be an ass! And, if at times you feel a bit of the mule working up within you, give the brute a good whipping and starve it to death. No humane society will punish you for that.

Don't sit down in the valley and look up at the hills. Run up on the hills and look down in the valley—and while you're up there, give your lungs a chance.

Have you got the latest piece of dining-room furniture—a Vitamine Table?

Never throw a bunch of spinach. There's too much iron in it.

Remember that a good complexion cream is cream.

When the reckless escape uninjured, it's only another accident.

When you tire—retire!

Mix your chocolate milk shake at home. You need the exercise.

Don't be late with your dates—inside or out.

The next time you feel like ordering a soda try vegetable soup. We know that this is good advice because we have some inside information.

Some children get far less attention than the average automobile.

Apple sauce is stewed happiness. Try some!

Wash the neck of your milk bottles—also your own and save on your laundry bill.

No matter how much work it is—rest!

Just because you take a bath in private, don't think the public can't tell whether you've had one.

Make your shoes fit your feet—not your feet fit your shoes. There are lots of corn cures on the market, but why spend your money on such things when there are so many other ways in which you might spend it?

That's All, To-day!

Eat fresh vegetables for 85 years and you certainly won't die young.

When Dr. L. Emmett Holt read through this he was willing to risk his reputation by saying:

"This nonsense is the best kind of practical sense in health matters. The teaching is adapted not only to children but to grown-ups."

So, "Gentle Reader," if you don't like it, remember that you are at liberty to leave it alone. And if some of the phrasing is not acceptable to your highly polished intellectual machine, I'm sorry for your machine. The stuff is good even if it is served in homely fashion. And in any case the amount you are being charged for it, three cents, even if that were all you were getting for your money, is little enough in all conscience. But, I hope you'll like it, and ask for more. We are not trying to start some new kind of a religion. We are quite satisfied with an inspired Book without any man or woman-made key to it. The virgin birth, the sinless humanity, the vicarious atonement, the bodily resurrection, the actual ascension and the returning redeemer give us foundation enough for our faith; and our favorite song still is:

In the cross of Christ I glory,
Towering o'er the wrecks of time;
All the light of sacred story
Gathers round its head sublime.

—Allan Fairbairn.

It is the quality of guilt to defile as well as pitch unless you know how to handle it.

The Minister Remarks--

—I don't know that the bird deserves so much credit for early rising, considering that he sleeps in a tree.

—A merchant may be able to get along without advertising—so can a waggon without grease, but it goes slow.

—Having read in a certain newspaper, "Hand-Made Frogs That Live and Croak," I am wondering how a frog can live if it croaks!

—What kind of a husband is he who can think of nothing more cheerful to say to his wife than that the dog is man's best friend?

—Is it not true, in a measure, that you think you have met a broad-minded person when you meet one who agrees with you?

Your Mother and Mine

MOTHER'S DAY! What does it mean to us? Is it only a matter of a white or pink worn for her, or does it link up in our mind some thought of loving service for her, some token of love, some expression of appreciation? That being is to be pitied who does not long to praise God for the sweet ministries of motherhood in human life.

It was a mother who bore us in travail and loved us the more for the pain we gave. A mother it was who nourished us at her breast and hushed us to sleep in the warm security of her loving arms. What we owe to her tireless love, her voiceless prayers, we shall never fully know in time.

Is there one among us able to fully appreciate the agony with which she followed us through our sins and won us back to the paths of righteousness and peace? How little do we understand the pain we caused her during those sleepless nights when she lay awake and wondered where we were and what folly we could be engaged in as she watched and waited for our return. And when we did come home there was no scathing rebuke, but a look of mingled pain, disappointment and love, far harder to bear than any blows would have been Ah! if we had only half known the enormity of our guilt her pain would have been less and her nights more restful.

May God forgive us if we have taken, in thoughtless selfishness, her love as our due without giving her the tenderness which every mother heart craves as her sole reward. And if the great treasure of a mother's life is still spared to us, may we do for her feebleness what she did for ours.

"Most of all the other beautiful things in life come by twos and threes; by dozens and hundreds: Plenty of roses, stars, sunsets, rainbows, brothers and sisters, aunts and cousins; but only one mother in all the world."

"Her love outlasts all other human love,
Her faith endures the longest, hardest test,
Her grace and patience through a life time prove That she's a friend, the noblest and the best."

—A. F.

Children's Corner — TELL US A STORY

IT is recorded of a Chinese emperor, that, on being apprised of his enemies having raised an insurrection in a distant province, he said to his officers, "Come, follow me, and we shall quickly destroy them." He marched forward, and the rebels submitted upon his approach. All now thought he would take the most signal revenge, but were surprised to see the captives treated with mildness and humanity. "How!" cried the first minister, "is this the manner in which your promise is fulfilled? Your royal word was given that your enemies should be destroyed, and, behold, you have pardoned them all, and even caressed some of them." "I promised," replied the emperor, with a generous air, "to destroy my enemies. I have fulfilled my word; for see, they are enemies no longer. I have made friends of them."

THREE persons in close conference, a fourth, a little apart, has charge of a steed. One of the three is prostrate in fear or sorrow; the action is misunderstood by one of them, but interpreted aright by the other; the latter chides his companion and at once sends him on an errand, at the same time putting something into his hand.

It is a strange injunction that has been given him, and he goes forth with an air of immense importance, although I think at the same time he feels a little scared at the message entrusted to him.

Never surely was such a charge given to mortal man before or since! Twenty miles or thereabouts have to be traversed, and at this harvest season the heat is great, but the messenger hastens on; it is true that no life hangs on the event, but yet there is a weirdness about the message that causes him to hasten.

At last, bearing his light burden, the city is reached—the street—the house—the room!

Expectation gleams in his eye as he proudly performs his task, but it is a failure!

So far as he is concerned the journey has been made in vain.

SOLILOQUY TO A FALLEN HAIR

Thou miserable wisp of brown,
Thou renegade of my fair crown,
Come, tell me of thy discontent
To rooted stay as Nature meant!

What caused our "falling out," pray tell?
Did I not always treat thee well?
Bespray thee with sweet-scented oil
And brush thee with incessant toil?

To nourish thee on alcohol,
God knows, it nearly took my all;
While absent treatments, e'en I sought,—
As if allegiance could be bought!

Ingratitude, thy name is hair!
I will no more thy feelings spare,
A rootless thing, what good art thou?
Thou hadst some future on MY brow.

On thee alone, the blame I place
Who now wouldst make my head all face.
Go! sink into Oblivion's sea,
Thou offshoot of hairredity!

The Hour Is Here

IF a new alignment is inevitable, we need have no regrets that the hour has come for dissipating the fog which modernism has caused to rest upon the Christian world by its obscurations, its evasions, its negations and positive denials.—"Jesus Christ at the Crossroads."

Islam Is a Problem Of the World To-Day

PROFESSOR LOUPTI LEVONIAN, of the School of Religion, Athens, Greece, says that Islam is a problem to-day because there are over 230,000,000 Moslems in the world, one-seventh of the whole population of the world. Islam is important also because it is the only great religion which has arisen after Christianity, and has passed its judgment over Christianity. It holds geographically a very strategic area in the world between the West and the Far East. Whatever affects the Moslem world will affect the Far East and Europe also. There is a great sense of pride among the Moslems, which adds to the problem. They have been the ruling race wherever they have settled, and they look down on Christians.

The greatest weakness of Moslem ethics is that there is no clear distinction between right and wrong, and they have no great ethical figure to found their religion on, such as Christians have in Jesus.

Good Advice & Cheap

PUT on Chicago's North Side there used to be a quaint shop where the chief attraction for those who sought to while away idle moments was an old fellow who bartered crude philosophy for alms.

One of his choice bits of advice when an argument was started was: "Go out in a rowboat and think it over." And by means of this advice he prevented many a serious quarrel.

Silly as the expression may sound, it isn't.

How many of us would not have avoided many unpleasant hours and memories if we had just "thought it over" first! —A. F.

Too Much Paganism In Modern Funeral

BISHOP BRENT of the Episcopal Diocese of Western New York says that average funeral of to-day is about as pagan a thing as can be found in modern civilization. We have succumbed to the undertaker, according to the bishop, and make our funeral ceremonies brilliant and pompous. We bury our dead in such splendor as marks pagan rites, as if the body meant everything. Instead of burying the body simply and humbly, we let the undertaker plan an elaborate funeral, and make a supposedly fitting ceremony for the deceased. According to Bishop Brent there is no reason for such rites because we remain exactly the same five minutes after deats as we wre five minutes before death. Life continues just the same as always, and there is no magical change wrought in death.

—A. F.

A goat will eat anything, even a red rag on a clothes line; too many Christians go goating, then wonder why they are like Paraoh's lean kine; a sheep hears the Master's voice, and eats at the table prepared for it.

The Ministry Of To-Morrow

THE simplest and the most obvious use of sorrow is to remind us of God. It would seem that a certain shock is needed to bring us in contact with reality. We are not conscious of breath till some obstruction makes it felt. We are not aware of a heart till some disease comes. Suddenly joy or sorrow rouses it into extraordinary action. And we are not conscious of the mighty cravings of our half-divine humanity. We are not aware of the God within us till some chasm yawn which must be filled, or till the rending asunder of our affections forces us to become fearfully conscious of need.

CROWDING THEIR LUCK.

Apropos of the highway safety campaign, it has been suggested that there are too many traffic regulations, that they are unnecessary in many cases, and that so long as a driver avoids accidents he is doing about all that can be expected of him.

There may be too many laws and some of them may not be all they should be, but a careful motorist, so long as they remain on the statute books, will endeavor to obey them.

The man who doesn't and yet calls himself a good driver because he has kept out of accidents is merely crowding his luck.

He has been getting away with it—but that doesn't excuse his conduct.

The Examiner is satisfied the majority of car-owners try to be careful and to observe the regulations, but there is a reckless minority who are a constant danger, and it is with them that the safety campaign must deal, either through an appeal to their decency and common sense, or failing that, by evoking the penalties prescribed for glaring breaches of the law.

SPEARING MASKINONGE.

The case reported from Coldwater in which six men pleaded guilty to charges of spearing maskinonge and were fined $20 each, throws some light on the reason why magazines devoted to outdoor life are beginning to warn ardent anglers to stay away from many parts of Ontario.

These doubtful citizens were found in possession of twenty fine maskinonge, averaging twelve pounds, and many of them dripping with spawn.

There is no reason for believing that this was an isolated case; on the contrary, it is undoubtedly true that such slaughter as this goes on in many parts of Ontario every year at this time, and it does not require much thought to appreciate what the effect is upon the fishing throughout the Province.

Appeals to good sportsmanship are lost in the case of such poachers as these, and all that remains is to see that sufficient overseers are employed at this season to prevent the practice from being extensively carried on.

A large force of officials could do much to make the spearing of game fish a decidedly unhealthy occupation.

PLAYING THE OLD GAME.

They're getting ready to play the old game down at Ottawa.

It is stated that May 26th has been decided upon as the date of prorogation, and the annual rush to get away will begin to assume the aspect of a panic.

This is the usual history of a parliamentary session: weeks wasted at the beginning in debate that gets nowhere and accomplishes nothing, valuable time devoted to business that is non-essential, then suddenly a we've-been-here-long-enough complex on the part of Government and Opposition alike, an agreement to wind up on a certain date, and the wild dash for home.

Millions of dollars in estimates go through with scarcely a question asked, important legislation is scrapped or else rushed through almost without consideration—nothing matters save a getaway on the day agreed upon.

These hard-working statesmen who are going to see that their services to the country are recognized by voting themselves an increase of $2,000 a year have a queer sense of values.

What they should do is to apologize for the time they have wasted and for the things they have left undone, and then clock themselves $2,000 each for going home with their work uncompleted.

This haste at the eleventh hour is not just the conduct that might be expected from men who think their services are worth $6,000 a year.

TEACHING TEMPERANCE.

Some comment has been occasioned by the fact that Premier Ferguson, in his capacity as Minister of Education, has written a letter advising school teachers to be mindful of changing social and moral conditions, and to teach the children "truth, loyalty, sobriety, purity and temperance."

There is nothing in that advice with which fault can be found.

The simple truth is, that in recent years there has not been enough attention paid to temperance education.

There seemed to be an idea abroad that a prohibitory law made such teaching unnecessary.

If the sale of liquor were forbidden then, hesto presto, there would be no more drinking.

But it was not as simple as that.

Those who wanted liquor managed to find it, and worse than that, the conditions that were created, with home-brewing a major industry and the carrying of liquor a somewhat popular practice, put temptation in the way of people who had been previously immune.

Now that liquor is once more sold legally in the Province, the laxity of the past decade in regard to temperance education makes itself felt, and the Minister of Education in seeking to have children taught the folly of intemperance is giving a lead that should be followed.

While opinions may differ as to how the liquor problem should be handled, there surely can be no controversy over the desirability of temperance education.

A CHICAGO VIEW.

So far as American information goes, the great volume of Canadian sentiment is in favor of the St. Lawrence seaway project. The Canadian power interests, of course, are not. Quebec is not, and, for various general and particular reasons, some other districts and interests are not.

One particular reason for Canadian objection is the desire to bring American capital to Canad ato develop power wholly inside the border, as has been done already on a huge scale on the Saguenay. Why, ask these objectors, make the St. Lawrence an immense power house, part of its power to be sent to New York and New England to operate industries which, without it, might be compelled to emigrate to Canada to use power wholly Canadian? Such removals are already taking place, but at present on account of raw material rather than power.

Canadian railroads complain that they are overbuilt and dread the competition of long-haul waterways. Montreal objects that, with the seaway built, it would cease to be a great seaport, and become only a way station for passing ships. The northwest provinces want money for railway connections with the Pacific coast, new railroads to Hudson Bay and the development of communication with Europe by way of Frobisher's straits, leaving out Montreal and the St. Lawrence.

But, incredible as it is to Americans, one consideration among Canadians who object to the seaway is said to be fear—fear of annexation. That fear is stronger in Quebec than elsewhere. The St. Lawrence seaway, some Quebec objectors argue, would be like the Polish carridor through Germany to Danzig—they would lose their sovereignty by it. Further, they claim to fear the American agrarians of the middle western states who, knowing little and thinking less about Canada now, would think more about it if the seaway were constructed, and so the annexation idea would grow.

Canadians who worry about annexation sentiment in the United States are nursing a mere phantom. Occasionally some New England newspaper indulges its fancy by discussing the benefits of the annexation of Canada, but in the United States as a whole the subject receives no serious thought.—Chicago Daily News.

AT 19 CENTS PER HEAD.

Canadian politicians of both parties who are eternally boasting proudly of Canada's heightened status within the British Commonwealth, should cut out the subjoined quotation and pin it in a conspicuous place over their desks. It might modify and make less resounding and bombastic some of the perorations that we have grown accustomed to, but, on the other hand, it might make them ring a little more true. The quotation is a Canadian Press despatch from London, to wit:

Contributions by Great Britain and the Dominions towards naval defences, according to the estimates of 1927-28, are given as follows in a Parliamentary return:

Great Britain, £58,000,000; Canada, £364,850 ($1,755,006); Australia, £5,736,000; New Zealand, £667,324, including the first instalment of its contribution to the naval base at Singapore, South Africa, £125,479.

The proportion of expenditure on naval defence to the total import and export trade for 1926-27, respectively, is given as follows:

Great Britain, 2.87 and 2.83 per cent.; Canada, .07 and .08 per cent.; Australia, 1.63 and 1.91 per cent.; New Zealand, .60 and .70 per cent.; South Africa, .09 and .07 per cent.

The expenditure per head of population for 1926 and 1927, respectively, is given as follows:

Great Britain, 25 shillings, 8 pence, and 25 shillings, 6 pence; Canada, 8 pence and 9½ pence (16 cents and 19 cents); Australia, 16 shillings, 6 pence, and 18 shillings and 5 pence; New Zealand, 8 shillings, and 9 shillings, 4 pence; South Africa, 1 shilling, 1 penny, and 1 shilling, 6 pence. (Contributed by the European section of the population only).

We know of no comment that any Canadian should care to make about the foregoing. It is enough, as the lawyers say, to submit the evidence without argument.—Ottawa Journal.

SHOOTING HOLES IN PROHIBITION.

Prohibition's worst enemies seem still to be some persons engaged in enforcement of the law. Two Fort Niagara coast guardsmen, detailed to watch for rum runners along the highways near the border, have shot and seriously injured J. D. Hanson, secretary of the Niagara Falls lodge of Elks. The guardsmen were clad in overalls and sheepskin jackets. It was late at night. Hanson, ordered to stop, apparently thought his pursuers were highwaymen. He did what anyone would do under the circumstances. He stepped on the gas. Shots were fired by the two guardsmen. One entered Hanson's temple, destroying his right eye. The guardsmen are now confined in Fort Niagara. The fort has refused to give up the men on a warrant. Meanwhile an innocent motorist is probably crippled for life. No explanation of the incident has been made at the fort.

Yet such an explanation is clearly called for. In the first place, why were these guardsmen dressed like roughs while engaged in official business? In the second place, a statement is due as to what the agents were attempting to accomplish by the shooting. Did they mean merely to halt the car or did they deliberately aim at the driver, intending to maim him? If they meant merely to halt the car, why did they shoot so high as to strike one of its occupants instead of firing low at the tires?

Popular indignation over the killing of law-abiding citizens by prohibition agents has been growing for some time. But it seemingly has brought no reform. Apparently the prohibition department means to continue to shoot first and repent afterwards. Apparently it means to continue to spirit away the shooters to less dangerous ground, obtaining dismissals and acquittals in Federal courts, where prosecution is all but lacking. For the good of prohibition, it were better that a thousand bootleggers escape than that one peaceful citizen be killed or maimed.—Milwaukee Journal.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Driving conditions can and must be made safer in Peterborough, but everybody's help is required.

Motorists who are making speedways of some of Peterborough's streets would soon slow down if they found the game expensive.

If we're going to pay our members of Parliament $6,000 a year, we have a right to expect more work and less talk from them.

There was a complimentary dinner to General Sir Arthur Currie in Montreal last night, but we understand the Port Hope Guide was not represented.

The interest shown by the local cadets in preparing for their annual inspection would lead to the belief that they have never heard of Miss Agnes MacPhail, M.P.

He who drinks and speeds away should never drive another day.

If you don't think Parliament can move fast, watch the wild rush to wind up the session.

The Canada Dry-Coca-Cola merger is off. We always understood that Canada Dry would mix better with other beverages than with Coca-Cola.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE

MONTREAL, Que., May 12 (Canadian Press). — There was an improved demand from exporters for grain in the spot market here yesday, and sales of No. 2 Canadian Western oats were made at 10½c per bushel over the Winnipeg May option, c.i.f. Montreal, for May shipment from Fort William, and in addition to this several loads of barley changed hands. The car lot trade was quiet and prices were unchanged.

The flour trade was without any new feature to note, prices for spring and winter wheat grades being steady under a moderate demand.

A fair amount of business was done in all lines of millfeed owing to the continued good demand from local and United States buyers. Prices were unchanged. The trade in standard grades of rolled oats was quiet, but values were steady.

There was improved inquiry from United Kingdom buyers for Canadian baled hay, but as the prices bid in most cases were not satisfactory to exporters the volume of business was small. The local market was quiet and prices were steady.

There was no actual change in the condition of the local egg market, the undertone being firm with a good steady demand.

Prices for imported beans were well maintained, with a small trade passing in a jobbing way in choice white hand-picked at $4.40 per bushel, ex-store, and car lots were quoted at $4.20 per bushel, ex-track.

Owing to the continued steady demand from local interests for butter combined with some inquiry from outside sources and the fact that supplies of fresh made goods in first hands were pretty well cleaned up, the tone of the market was stronger again and prices scored a further advance of ¼ cent per pound. The receipts were 1,787 packages.

There was no further change in the condition of the cheese market, prices being steady with some business passing over the cable and between local houess, but the volume was not large owing to the small supplies of fresh made goods available as yet. The receipts were 3,599 boxes.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, May 12 (Canadian Press). — Enlarged export demand together with dry weather northwest unfavorable for the spring wheat crop, did a good deal yesterday to turn wheat prices upgrade. It was estimated that Europe bought 1,000,000 bushels of wheat yesterday for prompt shipment from North America.

Closing quotations on wheat were unsettled, ¼ cent to 1¼ cent net higher, with corn varying from ¼ cent decline to ⅜ cent advance, oats ⅜ cent to 1¼ cent up, and provisions unchanged to a rise of 7 to 10 cents.

Upward swings yesterday of the wheat market here received additional impetus by reason of the fact that Liverpool traders had shown decided unresponsiveness to Thursday's fall in values on this side of the Atlantic. It was also apparent that some important interests were disinclined toward the selling side of the market until heavy rains should give assurance of better prospects for spring wheat, even though reports were at hand telling of an improved outlook for winter wheat, especially in Kansas.

Speculative buying of wheat yesterday was also due to the fact that the market appeared to have had a thorough house-cleaning, and was in some cases 19¾ cents a bushel under the recent high level.

Selling yesterday of one million bushels of wheat into store here had little effect on prices, the transaction representing wheat already known to be coming here from the North-west. Some additional Duluth wheat is expected to arrive in Chicago next week.

Corn rallied at the last, influenced by wheat. Earlier the corn market was affected by reports that more than fifty per cent. of Illinois corn was already planted, and that Kansas City was offering old corn to Chicago at close to a working basis. Oats owed their strength largely to unfavorable crop reports.

Provisions sympathized with an upward trend in the hog market.

STERLING EXCHANGE.

MONTREAL, Que., May 12 (Canadian Press). — Sterling exchange rates were quoted here yesterday as: Demand—$4.86 to $4.86⅛. Cables—$4.86⅛ to $4.86 3-16.

GOD'S MINUTE

A PRAYER FOR MOTHER'S DAY

Lord, I thank Thee for the tender care and constant prayer of a godly mother. May the "unfeigned faith" that dwelt in her dwell in her son also. Help me to keep ever before me the high ideal of service and character which she impressed upon the mind of my youth. Help me to make bright the sunset of her days and by my life and faith to be a living answer to her prayer; and when I mourn "as one that mourneth for his mother", may her memory still be with me, a star to guide me on my journey through the broken and uneven ways of life till travelling days are o'er. In the name of Him whose last earthly thought was for His mother, when He said, to that disciple whom He loved, "Son, behold thy mother." Amen.

Peel it by stripping the skin off in small pieces which leaves more of the green part. Mince the avocado fine and put on the ice until you have whipped (not too stiff) a half pint of cream which may be sweetened slightly with about two tablespoonfuls of maple syrup. Fold in the minced avocado, and about one third of a cup of chopped, toasted almonds. Pack the bowl in ice and salt for about an hour before serving in sherbert cups. Sufficient for 6 or 8 persons, according to size of avocado.

Questions and Answers.

Question: Mrs. L. H. writes: "I have been told that falling hair is caused by thyroid gland trouble. Is this correct?"

Answer: There is, no doubt, a close relationship between the growth of hair and the function of the thyroid gland. Those who have an insufficiency of the thyroid secretion usually become fat and have a poor growth of hair, while the thin person is usually of the hyperthyroid type and has plenty of strong hair.

Question: V. K. asks: "Is uncooked plain bran good for curing constipation?"

Answer: The best bran to use is that contained in real wholewheat flour, where the bran is completely pulverized. The plain bran is liable to be "scratchy" and, although the intestines are excited by its irritation, the inevitable result will be only more constipation, and colitis.

Question: Alice W. writes: "A blood specialist told me that I had pernicious anemia. I lost 25 pounds and was too weak to walk upstairs. Now after treatments and dieting, I am very much better and am gaining weight, but I still have a burning and tingling feeling in my hands and feet."

Answer: Your symptoms will disappear as soon as the anemia is entirely overcome. Your heart is probably not functioning properly, but will do so as soon as the new blood has time to strengthen it.

Around the City

At 9.20 last night the entire fire brigade turned out in answer to an alarm from Fontaine's Garage, Hunter Street. A line of hose was laid down but was not used as the cause of the call proved to be merely some trouble around a chimney. Chemicals were used instead.

At 1.49 this afternoon, a call came in from 226 Perry Street. A fire had started in the chimney and pipes and the house was filled with smoke, but the damage did not appear to be very extensive.

DIPPING SHEEP

Ticks and lice are always with the sheep. In the spring they migrate from the sheep to the lambs, in the fall from the lambs to the sheep; and so on infinitum if some means are not taken to stop them. These insects live on the blood supply and in the course of a season will make very serious inroads on the health and thriftiness of the flock, depending entirely on the numbers present.

Dipping sheep and lambs in a standard solution of some good dipping powder or solution will effectively control these pests and give the young lambs a chance to make real gains and reach the market when the prices are high.

By installing a concrete dipping tank the job of dipping becomes an easy chore instead of a dirty hard task. Your Agricultural Representative has a set of tank forms which can be borrowed without charge.

In dipping sheep, use a standard preparation according to directions. If well water is used take the chill off it before putting the sheep in the tank. Do not dip sheep when they are over-heated, full of feed or wet. Aftery they come out of the bath give them a good chance to dry off before turning them out on pasture. Many of the dipping mixtures are poisonous and must be kept away from animals and children.

Wool graders claim they can tell a dipped from an undipped fleece, and anyone can tell the difference between a dipped and an undipped lamb.

Profits depend not on the price received but on the difference between the price received and the cost. Anything which lowers cost without reducing quality means profit.

WOOL

Prospects for wool look good. Prices reported quoted and paid by dealers in Ontario range from 24-28 cents which is about 30 per cent higher than the prices offered at this time last year. These prices are for wool free of rejects. Visible supplies in the old country are low; and will probably remain so until the Australian clip comes in in the fall.

Naturally with high prices for wool, dealers are going to discriminate more heavily against rejects, seedy chaffy wool, dung locks and all those things which affect the washed yield of a fleece and lower its quality.

A little care at shearing time to remove dung locks, seedy necks, and patches of black or grey wool helps to keep up the quality and encourage the buyer to pay better prices for the good article.

The farmer who prides himself on the quality and cleanliness of his fleeces should by all means have that wool graded and sold on that basis. In this way he will receive the benefit of the care he has given to the product.

Never use binder twine in tying up fleeces. A special paper twine is available for this purpose at small cost. Cotton store twine if tightly wound is satisfactory, or lacking any of these it is better to roll the fleece carefully and pack without twine rather than use binder twine. Binder twine become unravelled, does not take dye and goes through the machinery like wool. When the cloth is being inspected after manufacture twine fibres are very noticeable and have to be removed by hand. This process is inexpensive and the quality of the cloth is lowered thereby.

Increasing the quality of an article increases the outlets. Increased outlets give us better prices.

Profits depend on the difference between cost and price. Anything which helps increase the price helps to increase the profit.

IN PETERBOROUGH CHURCHES

ST. PETER'S CATHEDRAL.

Last evening at St. Peter's Cathedral, Rev. James A. Cloran spoke to the women and girls of the parish, taking for his subject, "The Precepts of the Church" and beginning with the text, "He that will not hear the church let him be to thee as the heathen and the publican." He referred to the church as the new Sinai, whence proceeds the law and the new Jerusalem, where the word of God is spoken. "We cannot have God for our father unless we accept the church for our mother. This means that the obedience due to God is inseparable from that which we owe to the church. In order to save your souls it is not sufficient to keep the commandments of God. You must also keep the commandments of the church." The speaker spoke of the power to make laws possessed by the church, giving two reasons for this power, firstly because the church was a society and secondly because that power came from God.

Authority.

"The first and essential condition for the existence of any society, large or small is authority. Authority is the pivot on which revolves the whole social order. A society must have the right to make laws and pass resolutions that will tend to further union among its members and determine their privileges and obligations. Take the family for an instance. What would it be without authority? What would it be if no one had the right to command and no one were willing to obey. Do you think that family could get along?

"What would become of a school without discipline or authority where pupils could do as they pleased? Would they make any progress in learning? What would become of a village or township where there would be no administration, no council or reeve, where there would be no one who would have the right to make laws or the power to enforce them? Could that village or township ever become progressive or prosperous?

"The church is certainly a society. Its authority extends over the faithful of all kingdoms and states of the Christian world. Therefore it has the right to make laws and enforce them. It can make precepts that are strictly binding on all Christians, no matter what position they occupy, whether they be high or low, rich or poor, kings or subjects. This right and power the church in past centuries has exercised with the fullest independence, at all times, in all places and under all circumstances.

The Church a Divine Society.

"Jesus Christ was true God and true man. He was therefore king. On the cross on which He was crucified He was proclaimed king, 'Jesus of Nazareth, king of the Jews.' Now for the past nineteen hundred years He has reigned over the hearts of men. And not only has He reigned but He has also ruled. Though He is in heaven, His spirit and His power are even more perceptibly amongst us. Before leaving this world, He established a society to continue His mission. To this society He delegated all His power as king and ruler. "All power is given to me in heaven and on earth," He said to the apostles and their successors. 'As the Father hath sent me, so do I also nse dyou.' 'Go they therefore and teach all nations.' 'Whosoever hearsend you.' 'Go thee therefore and piseth you, despiseth me.' 'He who will not hear the church, let him be to thee as the heathen and the publican.' These various texts show us that Christ delegated power to His apostles and their successors.

The Power to Teach.

"In virtue of the authority given by God to the church, she has a twofold power over the faithful: the power to teach and the power to rule. This two-fold power of the church supposes on the part of the faithful the duty to believe and to obey. They must believe all the truths that she proposes for belief. It is God's word they believe; it is divine revelation that they accept, but it is the church in final analysis who tells them beyond a doubt what is God's word and what are His revealed truths.

"Our Lord and Saviour established His church as the highest tribunal to interpret with certitude the true meaning of the Sacred Scriptures and tradition. We are bound to believe her teaching in matters concerning faith. If our faith depended on private judgment, there would be in the church almost as many beliefs as there are persons.

St. Peter refers to many things being in Holy Writ which are hard to be understood, which the unlearned and the unstable wrest to their own destruction.

The Power to Rule.

"Besides this submission of our judgment to the church, we owe also the submission of our will and our conduct. For just as she has received from God the infallible light and power to teach, so in like manner she has received the authority to make and enforce all the laws and precepts necessary to regulate our conduct and ou life.

"This right to instruct and to govern, the church has exercised for the past 1900 years. The apostles exercised it in the beginning. Their successors continued to exercise it in time of persecution as well as in peace. When there was question of replacing the traitor Judas, of electing deacons, of settling a dispute concerning certain observances, the apostles met, deliberated, pronounced upon the matter, and their decision was accepted as from the Holy Ghost.

"From the birth of Christianity down to our own day all history is a proof that the church has always exercised this same authority. We see her according to the circumstances, and needs of the faithful, making new laws, approving or abrogating laws of the past. We see her deciding with sovereign authority matters of faith and morals determining the liturgy and sacred ceremonies, making canons of discipline, dispensing with certain circumstances, establishing pastors, limiting or revoking their jurisdiction, correcting the children by imposing on them salutary penance, sometimes even expelling them as incorrigible.

St. Paul on Authority.

"If we are obliged to respect the civil authority how much more are we not obliged to respect the authority of the church, which is none other than the authority of God Himself. 'Whosoever heareth you, heareth me; whosoever despiseth you, despiseth Me.' Listen to St. Paul on authority: 'Let every soul be subject to higher powers; for there is no power but from God; and those that are, are ordained of God. Therefore ye that resisteth the power, resisteth the ordinance of God, and they that resist purchase to themselves damnation.' When the church speaks to us God speaks, because the church is the mouthpiece of God, guiding and ruling our conduct in this life.

God's Laws and Church Laws

"There is this difference between the Commandments of God and the precepts of the church. The Commandments of God are eternal, unchangable and do not admit of dispensation or exception. We cannot remain long in ignorance of them because they are engraven upon our hearts. Our conscience tells us when we are disobeying them. They can never be abolished or changed by custom. They bind us under every circumstance.

"The precepts of the church on the other hand can be abolished, changed or modified according to time, condition or circumstance. We can be at times in ignorance of them through no fault of ours. What is more, they do not oblige under grave inconvenience. For example, you can cease fasting if by doing so you would impair your health.

"But if it is quite possible for you to obey and you experience no serious in convenience, these precepts bind you and were you to violate them, you would be committing a mortal sin, just the same as if you violated a commandment of God.

Precepts or Laws of the Church

"The first law of the church is to hear Mass on Sundays and hold days of obligation. The Mass is the sacrifice of the body and blood of Jesus Christ. It is a sacrifice, an offering we make to God and as such is the principal act of our religion. Sacrifice means the offering up of something to God in token of God's dominion over us. In olden times the Jews offered up a portion of their property to God in token of God's dominion. This act was agreeable to God and was sanctioned and approved by God. But under the new dispensation, God expressed the wish that He be no longer honored and worshipped by such sacrifices. The Mass is a sacrifice and the greatest offering we can make to God, hence we sanctify Sunday by the hearing of Mass and we are bound to do so by a law of the church.

Another law of the church is to fast and abstain on certain days throughout the year. The church commands us to fast and abstain in order to mortify our passions and appetites and to satisfy for our sins by doing penance for them. You were asked during the late war at certain times to be economical in the use of food. You did so because there was a lofty purpose in view—the conservation of food. We Christions likewise have a lofty purpose in view when we fast, the restraining of our lower natures.

The church also commands us to confess our sins at least once a year, to receive worthily the Blessed Eucharist at Easter time, to contribute to support of our pastors, and not to solemnize marriage at forbidden times or within forbidden degrees of kindred.

PLEASING RECITAL.

Pupils of Mrs. E. Kitney, A.C.A.M., Sing and Play Well.

Pupils in piano and vocal music, taught by Mrs. E. Kitney, A.C.A.M., gave a pleasing and well-attended recital last evening in Wesley Hall, assisted by Miss Phyllis Moore, elocutionist, and pupil of Mrs. F. G. McNeely. Encores were general for the bright numbers, which showed a great deal of excellent tuition of the small pupils, the majority of whom were under twelve years of age. Miss Moore also received much applause for her clever readings, which included "The Crippled Boy," "A Welsh Classic" and "Two Offerings." The platform was attractively decorated with a profusion of pretty ferns and lighted floor lamps. At the conclusion of the recital, a bouquet of flowers from her pupils was presented to Mrs. Kitney by little Margaret Shaughnessy.

The program was as follows: Piano duett, "The Norwegian Hunters' March," by Mrs. E. Kitney and Millicent Elston; piano solo, "The Varsity Cadets," by Keitha Hopkins; piano solo, "Pretty Kitty, Little Kit," by Master Stanley McCormick; piano solo, "Little White Rose," by Margaret Shaughnessy; vocal duett, "Carmena," by Mrs. Wm. Liddell and Miss May Ritchie; piano solo, "The Drummer Boys' March," by Doris Dossett; piano solo, "Heart Fancies Waltz," by Gladys Arnott; piano solo, "Over the Waves," by Hilda Houghton; vocal solo, "The Dove," by Mrs. Liddell; piano duett, "Radiant," by Doris Dossett and Keitha Hopkins; piano solo, "Nodding Daisies," by Edna Millard; vocal solo, "Break o' Day," by Miss May Ritchie; piano duett, "The Village King," by Edna Millard and Gladys Arnott; piano solo, "The Whippoorwill Waltz," by Millicent Elston; and piano duett, "Under the Double Eagle," by Mrs. Kitney and Hilda Houghton.

Uncle Wiggily

To-day's Bedtime Story

By HOWARD R. GARIS

UNCLE WIGGILY AND THE PERIWINKLE

"Oh, here you are," squeaked the Lady Mouse Teacher in the Hollow Stump School as Uncle Wiggily hopped into the room followed by Jingle and Jangle. "Why are you late?"

"Daddicums isn't late. He doesn't have to come to school," said Jangle. Jingle couldn't talk very well on account of her tongue being swelled because she ate too much smarty, biting sassafras root.

"Dear Lady Mouse Teacher," said Uncle Wiggily

"I know Uncle Wiggily doesn't need to come to school," said the Lady Mouse Teacher kindly. "Though we are always glad to see him. But you two little rabbits are quite late," and she looked at the Hickory Dickory Dock Clock on the wall. "Why it is?"

Jingle and Jangle hung their little pink noses in shame. They had tried to play truant and stay away from school, as I told you in the story last night. But Uncle Wiggily had followed and found them gathering pretty shells on the bank of the brook.

"But Jingle cried 'cause her tongue burned," confessed Jangle, "and Daddicums made her a funny puzzle picture and we both laughed."

"Well, then I shall forgive you for trying to run away from school," squeaked the Lady Mouse, "but you must show us, on the blackboard, the puzzle pictures Uncle Wiggily drew in the sand."

So Jangle took a piece of chalk and drew the pictures. And the little bunny boys and girls were so smart that they guessed, almost at once, that the tongs were for carrying ice, and not water, though ice is water that has been frozen into a solid block. And they knew the rake wasn't used for scrubbing floors, nor the brush for carrying ice.

So the puzzle mistakes were quickly corrected and Jingle and Jangle took their seats. Miss Mouse gave Jingle some cold cream to put on her burning tongue which made it feel better. And Uncle Wiggily stayed in school.

Oh, no, Uncle Wiggily didn't stay to study his lessons, but he liked to sit in class and hear the animal boys and girls recite to the Lady Mouse Teacher.

But after a while the dear, old, rabbit gentleman saw that the little pupils were getting rather tired and sleepy, for it was a fine, warm, sunny day with bees humming in the flowers outside.

"Dear Lady Mouse Teacher," said Uncle Wiggily suddenly, "don't you think it is time for the periwinkle class to say their lessons?"

"The periwinkle class!" squeaked Miss Mouse. "Why, we haven't any such class in our school, Uncle Wiggily. What is a periwinkle, anyhow?"

"A periwinkle, dear Lady Mouse Teacher," said Mr. Longears, "is a little creature like a clam or an oyster, only much more cute. A periwinkle lives in a pretty shell house near the water. It is true you have no periwinkle class, but I am doing to start one now. Let's all go outdoors and look for periwinkles on the banks of the brook."

"A very good idea," said Miss Mouse. "Come, children, Periwinkle class!"

"Hurray!" cried the animal boys and girls happily.

"If periwinkles are like a clam or oyster they might pinch us with their shells," said Baby Bunty, cautious like.

"No! No!" laughed Uncle Wiggily. "Periwinkles won't bite!"

So the rabbit gentleman, the Lady Mouse and all the children went out to look for periwinkles near where Baby Bunty had found the other pretty shells. And all of a sudden, as Miss Mouse stooped down to pick up a large, red shell, she gave a scream.

"What's the matter?" cried Uncle Wiggily.

"Oh, there's a very large periwinkle here!" squeaked Miss Mouse, "and when I put my paw in his open shell he bit me."

"Please, ma'am, excuse me! I didn't mean to," said the periwinkle. "It was all a mistake on my part. What can I do to show how sorry I am?"

"Draw a puzzle picture like Uncle Wiggily does," said Baby Bunty quickly, as Miss Mouse rubbed her sore paw. So in the wet sand the periwinkle made a picture of four bushes. Sticking above the bush tops were four hats.

"See if you can guess who are under the hats," said the periwinkle

TOURISTS EAT MUCH PRODUCE

Chamber of Commerce Calculates Their Value to Farming Community.

MILLIONS OF MEALS.

Through various chartered banks and individuals qualified to speak on the matter, the Peterborough Chamber of Commerce has gathered that in the year 1927, the Trent Waterway district or Central Ontario derived a sum in excess of $1,500,000 from the tourist traffic while the city of Peterborough, alone, benefited to the extent of $507,000.00. The Chamber has learned that, everything considered, each tourist spent an average of $4.00 a day, so that the above sum would indicate that 126,750 tourists were in the city for at least one day last year, consuming the products of the farm, the dairies and other basic industries.

Careful tabulation of the visitors throughout Ontario in 1926 shows a consumption of provisions possibly beyond the anitcipation of any person not giving much attention to the subject. It shows a total of 8,189,466 tourists, 6,682,386 of whom were motorists. Consumption amounted to: Butter (1¾ ounces daily), 384 tons; eggs (1 egg daily), 56,871 gross; milk (1 pint daily), 1,023,683 gallons; potatoes (4 potatoes daily), 136,491 bags; Meat (½ pound daily, calves, 3,050; cattle, 3,661; lambs, 13,556; sheep, 13,072; hogs, 2,450; bread (¾ loaf daily), 2,047,366 loaves.

To the above must be added the consumption of fowl, vegetables, grains for cereal foods and domestic fruits. (Total food consumption by visitors to Ontario in 1926 was equal to the amount consumed by the entire population of the province in seven and a half meals.)

The above figures dealing with consumption of provisions allowed for 8,189,466 tourists being in Ontario in 1926. In 1927 the estimated number of tourist arrivals in the province was 11,423,023 so that the food consumption would be much higher.

IN MEMORIAM.

HAMBLIN.—In memory of Mr. Herb. Hamblin, who passed away May 13, 1926.

"Sweet is your memory Herbert, dear, to my heart,
The place you have there will never depart,
And all through the years, be it many or few,
Will be filled with remembrance, dear husband, of you.

Sleep on, dear father, your cares are ended,
Rest in peace, your work is done;
You are gone where those who loved you
Will meet you one by one.

Peacefully sleeping, resting at last,
The world's weary troubles and trials are past,
In silence he suffered, in patience he bore,
Till God called him home to suffer no more."

MISUNDERSTOOD.

When in 1640 the Scots invaded the North of England, the soldiers made themselves at home in the houses of the residents of occupied town. A certain braw, God-fearing Sergeant-major, attached to one of the Scottish regiments, took the trouble to explore the rooms of his unwilling host. In one chamber he discovered a portative organ, at which he gazed with astonishment. "Art thou a kirkman?" demanded the soldier. "No, sir", replied the trembling musician. "Then," thundered out the Scot, "what the de'il man, dost thou with this same great box o' whistle here?"

POPULAR YOUNG MAN IS COMING TO CITY

Russ. Wood, of Lindsay, Has Been Transferred By Shell Oil Company.

A transfer which takes the form of a well-earned promotion, occasions the departure from Lindsay of R. B. (Russ.) Wood, for the past two years clerk in the local depot office of the Shell Company of Canada. Mr. Wood left this morning for Peterborough to assume charge of the new Shell service station at the corner of Charlotte and Rubidge streets.

Possessor of a genial, yet unassuming disposition Russ Wood earned for himself an enviable record in studies and athletics while attending Central School and later the Collegiate Institute. He was a member of the school orchestra, identified with the L.C.I. Rifle Club and a member of the Officers' Club of the Cadet Corps. He was also treasurer of the O.R.B. Club and a member of the Semper Fidelis class of First United Church Sunday school.

Last Thursday evening a number of friends gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. R. O. Watson, Sussex street, where, during the course of the evening, they accorded Mr. Wood a presentation which he acknowledged in most acceptable manner. The gifts were a beautiful bathrobe and slippers.

It is understood that for some time at least he will also be connected with the local depot which supplies the Peterborough station and will therefore be enabled to visit home friends and town frequently.—Lindsay Post.

Frogs In School; Boys Go To Court

OTTAWA, Ont., May 11. — Because frogs are not considered proper occupants of a school room, six boys appeared in the County Court yesterday morning to answer charges of placing 75 frogs in Bellevue Separate School.

The frogs were taken from a pond adjacent to the school. They were discovered by school trustees who visited the school. Although the greater number were captured and forcibly ejected, a number still have dodged the searchers.

At a special meeting of the trustees it was decided to prosecute the boys responsible for the misdemeanor.

Talking Crow Plowman's Aid

WARSAW, Ky., May 12. — "Talking crows" are a reality. Last summer Dan Furnish captured a young crow on his place and tamed it. The crow's tongue was split and now it can say several words as plainly as a person. It says "Dan" and "I'm hungry" and "Let's go to town," and many other words. The crow rides on the plow and repeats the commands to the horses. Sometimes it will say "Whoa," when it gets tired of riding.

NASH

Points of extra value in this NASH Sedan

It is easy for us to prove that "Nash Leads the World in Motor Car Value."

The illustration above is the big Nash Advanced Six Sedan. Other sedans at its price haven't the low-swung, fleet, rounded lines which identify Nash as a finer mode of motoring.

Other sedans at the price still use the 4-bearing crankshaft. Every Nash motor has 7, for greater smoothness and extra power.

No other sedan is so easy on the arms that drive and park the car. Nash owners are exceptionally enthusiastic in their praise of Nash steering.

No other sedan is so charming in its interior decoration. The upholstery used is fine mohair, set off by panelling of walnut-finish.

This sedan has the Nash straight-line drive, for extra power; alloy-steel springs plus shock absorbers front and rear for greater ease of travel; and 2-way 4-wheel brakes for supreme safety in any emergency.

And the big built-in custom trunk at the rear is standard equipment with no extra cost. Other sedans don't have it!

Come in and check these statements. It is easy to see how much more you get for your money, when you buy this Nash sedan.

This SYMBOL NEVER MEANT MORE

IN BODY design as in mechanical excellence, the new Oldsmobile represents a brilliant interpretation of the fine car ideal——for Oldsmobile's new bodies are Fisher bodies . . . and never has the Fisher symbol carried greater significance.

In their bold, refreshing grace is expressed the whole new spirit of our times. In their artfully executed refinements, is revealed the artist's appreciation of luxurious detail. And Oldsmobile bodies by Fisher have the inherent soundness which always appeals to those motorists who demand enduring worth. Body frames are built of selected hardwood — carefully mortised, glued, screwed and bolted. Over this are applied panels of steel—a resilient combination assuring maximum strength and freedom from drumming. And the generous use of fabric beading where metal would otherwise touch metal, prevents the development of annoying squeaks and rattles.

In itself, this achievement in fine body building is worthy of widespread approval. But combined as it is with new performance abilities, new steadiness and new stamina—it stamps the new Oldsmobile the fine car of low price!—the choice of thousands of to-day's buyers.

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Death strikes Garrett Folsom while imming with a party of friends at ean Town, N. J. At the Hotel ajusaca, where they all had been ests, an inquiry is begun, after a ctor, perfunctorily examining him on beach, pronounces him dead.

Folsom's companions had been Roger ville, Mrs. Helen Barnaby and Carlita Valdon. It is established that lsom, just before his death, had been nding next to Ned Barron, who was e of a party including his wife, Made- e; Angelica Fair and her fiance, bin Sears, and his father, Coydon ars.

It is decided to telegraph Folsom's ter, Anastasia, in New York.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER VI

Everybody liked Helen Barnaby, but body loved her. Her gilded hair was bbed, and her smart clothes were too lish for her years, but she was a comtable sort and her friendship with the autiful Carmelita was advantageous both.

They had been intimates for years, t this was the first time they had been ay from home in company.

Fairly well to do, the Duchess cared ly for her own comfort and ease Men re of secondary consideration, save as ey entertained or amused her.

Carmelita Valdon, on the other hand, s a born coquette and a siren. With ry little money, she contrived to dress ll and her beauty and charm did the st.

At heart she was an adventuress, but careful was she of her reputation that no breath of scandal or even reproach had ever touched her.

Yet she schemed to meet and attract rich men and women and usually succeeded in making friends with them.

Garrett Folsom she had known for some years, and though they were friendly, it could not be said that he was in love with her. Roger Neville, too, was an old-time friend, but not an adorer; so while at Ocean Town Carmelita had endeavored to find a new friend who would be a devoted slave.

There were many who would readily accept such a position, but the lady was exigent in her requirements and she flouted those who were not sufficiently generous or who did not amuse her.

"We can't take up with anybody," she told her friend. "I won't have to do with ordinary men. I must have my friends among the especial ones of earth."

"Yes," said the Duchess, only slightly interested. "But you can get any one you go after, Carmy. What about that sandy-haired chap who sits around all day on the deck? He seems exclusive—"

"And he is! That's Titus Riggs. He's an eccentric millionaire. If we could annex him we'd be right in the heart of everything!"

"He isn't popular."

"That's his own fault, then. Everybody is crazy to know him, but he won't meet many people."

This conversation had happened some days ago, and since then, though Carmelita had secured an introduction, she had not succeeded in drawing Titus Riggs into her net. He had been polite but that was all. Never did he seek out the lovely Carmelita and her jolly friend.

So they were both surprised and pleased when, as they sat with Neville on the hotel deck, Riggs rose from his chair and sauntered over to them.

"Oh, Mr. Riggs," said Carmelita, "do cheer us up a bit. We're feeling so sad over the morning's tragedy. You know, Mr. Folsom was our friend."

"Yes, I know," Riggs said. "Do you mind talking about it?"

"No," Carmelita returned, her eyes filling with tears, "not to some one who is sympathetic. Did you know Mr. Folsom?"

"Only slightly. But here comes a bell-boy. He's looking for you, I think Mr. Neville."

It was the plump youngster called Tubby and he stepped up to Neville with his little chest puffed out full of importance.

"Mr. Tuttle sends you this sir" he said and held out his tray on which lay a telegram that had already been opened.

It was addressed to John Ross and with a murmur of apology Neville read it.

"It's from Miss Folsom" he said "to Ross the valet. It says: 'Carry on till I arrive. Am starting at once.' It is signed A. Folsom and it is from New York city.'

"Then she ought to get here tonight" Titus Riggs said.

"Yes she probably will," Carmelita agreed. "Roger, will you come for a little walk with me? I feel I must have some exercise."

Neville rose at once, and leaving Riggs to the tender mercies of Helen Barnaby, the pair walked away together.

"Very stunning woman," said Tite Riggs, looking after Carmelita, and the unmistakable sincerity in his tone robbed the words of all hint of rudeness.

"Yes," agreed the Duchess. "Very clever, too. And a most staunch and loyal friend."

"Yes, she seems so. But I'm sure all you friends are that."

"Now, now, Mr. Riggs, you mustn't flatter me as you would a school girl!"

"Why not? Is there a distinction to be made in flattery?"

"I think there ought to be. A school girl can be taken in by insincere compliments—"

"And can't you?"

The Duchess laughed. "Of course I can! Any woman can. You're clever, Mr. Riggs."

"Yes, I am. That's my only claim to a life worth living."

"Have you no other virtues or graces?"

"None that count. But my cleverness I really bank on."

"What do you do with it—mostly?"

And then they settled down for a talk about ideals and ambitions which was mere airy persiflage on both sides, but which was amusing and gave Helen Barnaby a respite from the sadness brought about by the death of the morning.

But Carmelita was indulging in no light chatter with Roger Neville.

"Roger," she said, as soon as they were well away from the hotel, "I want you to lend me the key of Garrett Folsom's room."

"What for?" he asked bluntly.

"I want to go in there—and before his sister comes."

"You're crazy! You can't do a thing like that!"

"I must! He has something—something of mine—that I must have. I must get—"

"What?"

"Something important—never mind what. Just let me take the key for half an hour. I'll bring it right back to you. Oh, Roger—do give it to me. I must have it!"

"Carmelita, you don't realize what you're asking. I'm willing, more than willing to let you have the key, but think how it would look—for you to go into his room!"

"Nobody will see me. I'll be careful."

"I'll get you what you want. Tell me what it is? Did you leave something in there? When?"

"Oh, no! Nothing like that! I've never been in his rooms. But he had something of mine—oh, Roger, don't torment me! Give me the key, do!"

Though they were on the crowded boardwalk, Carmelita's tones were low, and her manner quiet. But Neville could see the underlying excitement and he feared an outbreak if he refused longer.

Unwillingly he drew a key from his pocket.

"At least, let me go with you. Or let me stand guard outside the rooms."

"No, that would be far worse, if any one saw us, than for me to go alone. I must do this, Roger. I must! Don't worry. I'll make sure where his valet, Ross, is first and then I can slide in and out again in a few minutes."

So Neville perforce acquiesced, and after escorting her back to the hotel he put her in an elevator and himself strolled outdoors again.

Carmelita went straight to the rooms that Folsom had occupied. She did not find out first where Ross was, thinking if he were in the room she would make some excuse to ask about Miss Folsom's arrival.

There was no one in the halls and she slipped the key in the door and turned it.

She found herself in the sitting-room and her quick ears told her she was not alone. She felt sure she had heard a hurried footstep as she entered.

But a hasty investigation showed no other person present, and even though she looked in the bedroom and the bathroom and all the closets and wardrobes, she could see no sign of any human being but herself.

So she set to work on the seach she had come for. She quickly ran through the papers and letters in the desk in the sitting-room. There were not many, and the merest glance at most of them proved they were not what she sought.

With a sigh of despair she turned to the large trunk, but it was locked, and she well knew only its own key would open it.

She hurriedly ran through the contents of two or three suitcases and kit-bags, but was not rewarded with the treasure she sought.

About to depart, she again heard that faint sound as of somebody in the room. This time she went so far as to look under the bed, and there she saw a long slim leg in a pale colored stocking and a low shoe.

Who is it Carmelita finds in Folsom's room? The next chapter tells that—and a startling fact about Folsom's death.

MILLBROOK BOYS PASS INSPECTION

Cadets Make Fine Showing—Medals Presented For Shooting.

MILLBROOK, May 12.—Major Dupre, assistant inspecting officer for Military District No. 3, was here on Thursday in connection with the annual inspection of the Continuation and Public school cadet corps.

The Cadets turned out approximately fifty strong, and presented a smart appearance with their new khaki serge suits, going through their marching and various other movements with precision, and a snappiness that won for them frequent bursts of applause from the onlookers, and the hearty approbation of the inspecting officer when he made his address at the conclusion of the manouvres.

The inspection took place on the school grounds at, 11 a.m., and there was a fairly representative number of citizens in attendance. It is regrettable, however, that the people of the community and the surrounding district do not turn out in as large numbers as the importance of the occasion warrants, when this event is creditably carried through each year.

The local instruction officer, Captain B. B. Dawson, who was repeatedly congratulated upon the fine showing made by the Cadets, personally conducted the physical culture exercises by Platoon No. II, which were one of the most popular features of the day's proceedings, the other officers being: Captain Aubrey Todd; Lieutenant Gordon Armstrong for Platoon No. 1; and Lieutenant Eddie Nattress of Platoon No. II; Sergeant Kenneth Skitch of Platoon No. I, and Sergeant Nelson Davis of Platoon No. II; Gerald Todd is the drummer, and George Sayles is corporal this year.

Speaking at the close of the inspection, Major Dupre explained that Captain Herron, who has been here in previous years and has a keen interest in all cadet work, had been obliged this year to secure an assisting officer on account of the large number of cadet corps in the district.

Referring enthusiastically to the manner in which the boys had gone through their manouvres, and also to their smart and soldier-like appearance on parade, the inspecting officer spoke highly of the excellent training given by Captain Dawson, and of the credit due Miss Muir, principal of the Continuation School, for her interest and co-operation.

Others who spoke briefly were Miss Muir, for the school staff, A. A. Smith, secretary-treasurer, for the school board; Colonel Odell, public school inspector for this district; Rev. J. O. Totten for the clergymen of the community and neighboring vicinity and lastly Captain Dawson, who made special reference to the fine record made by members of the rifle team in their shooting competitions during the past year.

The Laura Secord Cup won by four of the boys last fall was on display, an appropriate cabinet having been secured by the school board for its safekeeping. In connection with the Dominion rifle shooting contest, five of the boys have made an excellent showing in recent months, and were presented with the medals sent from the Militia Department at Ottawa, by Major Dupre, the names being: Carmen Ingram; Eddie Nattress; Henry and George Gray, and Burton Russell; the first two have the highest score so far.

Medals for the neatest cadets went to Henry Gray of Platoon No. I; and Norman McBain of Platoon No. II. These were pinned on by Major Dupre, and Captain Dawson, as were also those given to the officers: Aubrey Todd, Gordon Armstrong and Eddie Natrress.

Cheers for the King, for Major Dupre, and for Captain Dawson, followed by the school yell, and the announcement of the usual half holiday, with a generous treat at Lambert's confectionery, brought a very successful inspection to a fitting close.

discussed the matter. Thus assuming the estimation of the unapproached people, the total stood at 26 for, 9 against, and 9 who had not been approached on the matter.

After some discussion the Council expressed themselves as in favor of the petition method of procedure, and asked Mr. Irwin if he would bring in another legal petition for the entire section north to Market Street. He expressed his willingness if the Council would assure him that the first petition would not be "side tracked" if the second one failed. He thought he could have the petition ready for Monday night, but the Mayor advised him that when the petition was ready, he would call a special meeting of the Council. Mr. Irwin said he would advise the Mayor as soon as he had approached the owners.

Outside Labor Hired.

Councillor Wilkinson brought up the matter of local labor being employed by the paving contractors. He understood that the firm was to bring twenty men of their own and employ the rest locally. This had not been done and he wondered what was the cause.

Messrs. Davidson and Bygott agreed with Councillor Wilkinson, and Reeve Bygott expressed the belief that the town men were being discriminated against. Men from out of town were here living in tents, while he had sent good men to the foreman, and they had not been given jobs. Almost immediately after the local men had been refused work, other men were taken on. He was aware that some of the town men had found the work too hard and had left on that account. He agreed that the work was hard and that it was not every man that was physically able to stand it.

Councillor Abernethy named several town men who were on the job, and was aware that some of them had been laid off and taken on again. He thought that he could get work for the Campbellford men.

Fred Dinwoodie, a foreman with many years' experience, advised the Council that the foreman had a difficult position to fill with regard to this particular. He recalled an experience in Bradford where he had been placed in a similar position, and had been decidedly unpopular with the people of that town.

Mayor Kingston, when the discussion of the affair ended, advised the Council that 190 feet of twelve-inch tile were required for the Rear Street sewer connection. It was cheaper to order in carload lots, and the local dealer had asked him to find out if any more than that amount would be required.

Councillor Stone was instructed to consult with the engineer and report to the dealer what would be required.

Fred Dinwoodie requested the road and bridge committee to inspect a place in the sidewalk near his property when a half moon had been blown out by the sewer blasting four years ago, and never repaired. He thought it should be repaired, and the Mayor promised that the committee would investigate. Later Mayor Kingston intimated that the tax rate would have to be struck next week.

Deputy Reeve Davidson reported that he had been in conversation with the chief of police and had learned that the extra cost for the telephone signal which the police had requested would be $1.25 per month, and that the cost of installation would be $8.00. He was instructed to proceed with in the installation.

Calcium Chloride Advocated

Mr. Hemmerick of the Dow Chemical Company, Midland, Michigan, addressed the council to explain the action of calcium chloride on the roads and the results which might be obtained by its proper use. It could be applied for half the cost of oil, he asserted, and its chief actions was to increase the moisture content of the road. Six counties in Ontario have adopted it for use on their roads within the last two weeks. Many of the towns were changing from oil to calcium chloride this season. Those who had used it last year were increasing their orders for this season. It would keep the roads fifteen per cent. smoother than pavement, and the State of Michigan spent hundreds of thousands of dollars on the product every year.

One of the councillors who had motored through this state last season agreed that he had never seen better gravel roads than in that State.

The product was easy to apply, said Mr. Hemmerick, and a good apparatus could be built for the small cost of between six and eight dollars. It should be applied after a rain and,unlike oil, could be put on the roads at the convenience of the users. The chloride could be shipped in any quantity desired from one hundred pounds up to raveral train loads. For this district a 20-ton car lot was the cheapest shipment and was a minimum for car lot quantities. This amount would treat between two and a half and three miles or road sixteen feet wide. Deliver to Campbellford could be made in from seven to eight days after receipts of order.

It was pointed out to Mr. Hemmerick that Warkworth had tried the chloride and had not been satisfied. The experience there was that it had formed mud. This was due to the fact that the chloride had been applied to a road covered with loose dust, which should have been removed first. This would form a "cream," he said. It would not be fully efficient on streets that had been oiled with heavy oil unless a top dressing or road material about half an inch thick were laid over the oil. Light oils did not matters.

After considerable discussion of the matter, it was agreed that the council meet Mr. Hemmerick at seven o'clock in the morning and go over the roads on which the chemical would be used together.

MINERAL SPRINGS OF CANADA

The production of mineral waters in Canada in 1927 amounted to 30,529 gallons, valued at $14,686, and derived from mineral springs located in Ontario and Quebec. Spring waters containing minerals in solution, or as they are usually termed, mineral waters, occur in many parts of the Dominion. Many of them are utilized commercially, both as potable waters and for bathing purposes. At several of the springs where the waters have curative properties, hotels or sanitariums are operated. Some of the thermal springs are utilized principally for mineral baths.

PAVEMENT FOR FRONT STREET

petition from the property owners of that section.

J. A. McGregor, clerk, said that he was interested in the paving program as a property owner and was not agreeable with the plan to pave Front street this year. An engineer of one of the recognized paving companies had said that it was impossible to make a permanent job of paving over a street that had been recently torn up for sewers. The ground was too unsettled. He was in favor of building the sewers and the paving after a suitable time had elapsed for the ground to settle.

Armstrong— "I don't think three inches of pavement is very strong on top of loose ground."

Councillor Stone replied that he had never heard an engineer oppose the plan except to say that the pavement should be reinforced with concrete where the broken ground was located.

M. Mulhearn expressed the opinion that since the sewer was proposed as far as Market street, it would be a good plan to continue as far as the other two properties north and connect up with the water main there and thus give complete service. It would do away with the present dead end.

The discussion was wandering from the point originally submitted and the mayor recalled the fact to the attention of the council. Councillor O'Sullivan asked, "Mr. Solicitor can a tenant sign a petition?"

"No," replied D. J. Lynch, town solicitor.

This made it necessary to check over the list of names to see what owners had signed and to reject the names of tenants. There were in all twenty-nine owners in the section suggested as the business section. Of these, twenty were in favor of the pavement, four were opposed and five had, for one reason and another, not been approached

Not Formal Petition.

Again Mr. Irwin asked leave to address the council. He said that the view he had taken was not that the petition was required for the action of the council but that it was merely to show that the majority was in favor of the paving of the street and furnish the council the necessary assurance that they were doing the proper thing by proceeding with it. It was merely a signed proof, he said, of what the people concerned want.

Since the proposal to extend the sewer and pavement as far north as Market Street had been considered and there was no evidence as to the feeling of the property owners, the Council decided to make an estimate as to how the matter would be taken. Of the fifteen owners, he believed six would be in favor of the scheme, five against, and with four they had not

Members of the Women's Music Club were at home to their friends last evening in one of the most successful bridges of the season, held in the hall of the Conservatory of Music, which was very attractively arranged for the occasion. The stage had lighted floor lamps and ferns as a setting and the walls were decorated with cornucopiae of blue paper dotted with gold circles and filled with pussy willows. Scalloped blue paper curtains, ferns and boxes of artificial flowers made the window spaces bright with color, and the "bluebird" tally cards and blue and white candy holders carried out the general pretty color scheme. Fifty tables of bridge were played, followed by the service of dainty refreshments at the tables. A general atmosphere of bright cordiality made the evening very pleasant. The guests were received by the president, Miss Mabel Clarry, and the honorary president, Mrs. R. Gliddon. Mrs. J. F. Allan, former president and first vice-president of the club, was unable to be present owing to indisposition. Arrangements were in the hands of a very capable and energetic social committee, with Mrs. N. D. Buchanan as convenor, assisted by Mrs. T. H. Gillespie and Miss Laura Belleghem. Mrs. Gillespie also had charge of the card games. Mrs. Gliddon and Mrs. J. H. Vernor assisted materially in the arrangements of the evening. HOROSCOPE

FOR SUNDAY, MAY 13, 1928.

Astrologers read this as an uncertain day. Early in the morning benefic aspects prevail.

The morning is an auspicious time for making peace in case of family quarrels for it is possible to reveal oneself at one's best while this rule prevails.

Preachers are well directed to-day which should assure responsive congregations and general interest in spiritual matters.

It is not a favorable day for any sort of travel and even picnics may not be successful, for delays and even accidents are indicated.

Missionary affairs may not be satisfactory under this sway, although it is foretold that there will be many calls for aid from residents of oriental countries.

Again astrologers foretell interest in spiritualism and other strange faiths. New teachers will gain many followers in the summer.

Hotel owners and proprietors are to profit, although they may lose.

Astrologers see grave disturbances among the planets which they declare may change the orbits of certain stars of strong influence.

This is read as an unlucky wedding day since it seems to forecast much financial uncertainty.

Theatres may suffer from the direction of the stars which again foreshadow changes in management and much experiment in choosing plays.

Persons whose birthdate it is may expect important matters to favor them in the coming year.

Children born on this day may have the gift of genius, but they must be wisely trained.

LYRICS OF LIFE

WHAT I WOULD LIKE TO DO.

What would I like to do today?
Well, buy me something, some might say,
Or go some place and see the splendor
That gilt and glass and marble render,
Or ride with footmen at my back,
Parade the wealth that others lack—
And yet today, if joy pursuing,
These are not things that I'd be doing.

What would I like to do today?
Over the hills and far away,
To see the bees and bettles winging,
And hear the birds above me singing,
And then to see, when that was done,
The kittens playing in the sun,
Or watch the cows come homeward mooing,
These are the things that I'd be doing.

What would I like to do today?
There's something in the air of May,
That makes a fellow want to follow
The sighing wind, the singing swallow,
To walk awhile, and rest awhile,
And learn to loaf, and learn to smile—
Although today my path pursuing,
Tomorrow that's what I'll be doing!

WEDDING BELLS

RONCO—LEMOIRE.

HASTINGS, May 12. — A very pretty wedding took place at the Church of Our Lady of Mount Carmel, conducted by the Rev. Father Maguire, when Veronica Lemoire, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Lemoire, of Hastings, became a bride of Philip Ronco, of Rochester, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ronco of Peterborough.

The bride looked lovely in her wedding dress of white georgette over taffeta, trimmed with silver and pearls. Her sister Miss Marie Lemoire, acted as bridesmaid, and wore peach colored georgette over taffeta, while Mr. Frank Ronco, brother of the groom, acted as best man.

After the wedding service the relatives and immediate friends of the bridal couple motored to the bride's home where the wedding dinner was served and the remainder der of the day spent in music and games, after which the party motored to the groom's home in Peterboro where a shower was held, and the happy couple left for their new home in Rochester, Nw York.

DRESS

By MARY MARSHALL

Printed black and white foulard was used to make this unusual dinner gown—worn with a velvet ribbon belt.

The woman who more than anyone else sets the fashion for women in Spain—Queen Victoria, wife of King Alphonso XIII—is no more a Spaniard than I am. She is an English princess, a grandchild of Queen Victoria, with considerable German blood in her veins, and her skin is fair, her eyes are grayish blue, and her hair is fairly light. Apparently she has never gone out of her way to wear local Spanish fashions—as Queen Marie did in Roumania—and doubtless the Spanish liked her just as well for not attempting.

Recently M. Jean Charles Worth of Paris, whose fathers before him devoted themselves to the grave business of designing clothes for queens, went to Spain to display some of his attractive new frocks and things to the queen and the ladies of her court. When the blue-eyed, English-born queen chose a frock with especial enthusiasm, the Spanish ladies ordered others of much the same sort.

A certain foulard evening gown called Caro Mio I am told proved a great favorite. It is made of foulard with a black ground and large floral designs of red roses and green leaves. The gown is straight in silhouette, with two large poufs at the natural waistline at the back, from which drapery hangs down perfectly straight to within a few inches of the floor. The bodice is round in front and cut to a deep v at the back, where a red and green ornament fastens the poufs.

Printed foulard is not a material which has often been used for evening frocks, but there is no reason why it should be used exclusively for day-time frocks. Keep your eyes open and you will see many foulard evening gowns. The sketch shows one seen recently, made of black and white foulard in striking design, with side drapery on the skirt and a simple black velvet ribbon belt.

Why We Do What We Do.

Why we Take Chances.

(By Mehran K. Thompson, Ph. D., Author the Springs of Human Action.)

The gates were down at th railroad crossing. The express train was only a few hundred yards up the track coming full speed. Presently a man swept past us, d ucked under the gates, and started across the tracks in the path of the express train. We held our breath. He barely made it. Some one remarked that our man must have been in a terrible hurry to take a chance like that. But when the last car of the train had thundered past we saw him on the other side where he ha l been leisurely watching the train go by.

We all do such foolish things for the thrill of taking a chance. This urge runs deep and motivates all forms of gambling and every situation where something is risked either for pleasure or for profit.

Without taking chances we should never make any progress. This impulse, like all others, is capable of abuse and men take chances on trivial stakes. Sometimes it gets into a man's blood and he risks his life and fortune on the most flimsy pretext. The more foolhardy the risk the greater the thrill.

Taking a chance is a fundamental law of life. All life activity is at best a gamble. We never know for a certainty what is going to happen next. It is this lure of the unknown that adds zest to our existence.

Man is incurably optomistic. He is hopeful of the best in the midst of the most trying conditions. He likes to take his chances with the god of chance because he believes he is a favorite to win. In case of defeat he gives in more gracefully as giving in to a vastly superior force from whose decision there is no appeal. It is the supreme court of the universe.

We cast lots, turn a wheel, toss up a coin, draw cards or use some other mechanical device when we have an important decision to make. We like to take chances because there seems to be a certain finality and impartiality about taking a chance with fate that is lacking in the decisions based on reasoning and the judgments of men.

Better than a mile a minute for 5000 miles

The Dictator '1555 to '1875
F. O. B. FACTORY

BY traveling 5,000 miles in 4,751 consecutive minutes, the Studebaker Dictator has established a record unequaled by any stock car in the same price class—comparable to the existing world record of 5,000 miles in 4,559 minutes made by the Studebaker Commander last fall.

And not one, but two Dictator Roadsters, fully equipped, each traveled 5,000 miles in less than that number of minutes. The run was made at the Atlantic City Speedway, April 20-23, under the supervision of the Contest Board of the American Automobile Association. Before and after the run, the cars were checked by the Technical Committee and were pronounced strictly stock models.

CLAIMS vs. FACTS

Automobile advertising is full of extravagant claims of performance. But Studebaker offers you definite FACTS supported by the certificate of the highest motoring authority. Under A. A. A. supervision The Commander has made a record never approached by any other car on earth (25,000 miles in less than 23,000 minutes). The Erskine and The Dictator have made records unequaled by any other stock cars at or near their prices.

The high quality of materials, the precision workmanship, the rigid inspections and the engineering genius in the Studebaker Dictator are proved not only by its ability to travel 5,000 miles in less than 4,800 consecutive minutes, but also by the fact that any Dictator can be driven 40 miles per hour as soon as it leaves the assembly line at the factory.

Backed by Studebaker's 76-year reputation for quality and value, The Dictator offers champion performance at a low One-Profit price.

Lou Gehrig Makes Fourth Homer Of Season

YANKEES WIN FROM INDIANS

New York Sluggers Slam Cleveland Hurlers For 7-6 Victory.

ATHLETICS WIN 11-5.

NEW YORK, May 12.— (Canadian Press.) — The New York Yankees took the deciding game of their series against Cleveland, a dramatic ten-inning engagement here yesterday, 7 to 6. Lou Gehrig apparently gave the Yankees a copper-riveted lead in the sixth when he hit his fourth home run of the season with three on base. Luke Sewell also hit for the circuit in the seventh, and Cleveland took a lead of six to five in the eighth, which saw Sam Langford, late of the Western League, knock one over the fence with two on base.

New York tied it with two out in the ninth on a pass to Durst, Ward's error which permitted Durst to reach third, and Paschal's amazing 'squeeze play.' Paschal beat out the bunt for a single as Durst raced home.

The Indians filled the bases with one out in the first half of the tenth, but failed to score when Hodapp hit into a double play.

The Yanks went out and won when Meusel doubled with Ruth on second.

Leading pitchers of the rival clubs suffered alike in the home run barrage which developed after Hoyt and Shaute had engaged in a five inning pitching duel.

The Athletics battered their old team mate, Sam Gray, out of the box in less than three innings at Philadelphia and swept the three game series from St. Louis by a score of 11 to 5.

Gray was clouted for six runs in the second inning and was removed from the box in the third when Cochrane hit a home run behind a pass to Houser. Bishop starred in the attack with a double, triple and home run. Schulte and Kress hit Walberg for successive home runs in the fourth inning.

Hitting Billings and Holloway freely, the Senators won the odd game of the Washington series with Detroit yesterday ,9 to 5.

Boston pushed Chicago back into last place in the American League standing yesterday by taking the final game of the Boston series 4 to 3. Todt's home run off Adkins in the sixth, which scored Ruffing, was the deciding factor in the Red Sox victory.

VETERAN HOLDS PHILLIES 3-2

Grover Alexander Helps Cardinals Make Clean Sweep of Series.

HAS NINE STRIKE-OUTS.

NEW YORK, May 12.—(A.P.)—The Phillies outbatted the Cardinals at St. Louis yesterday, but Grover Alexander had control when control was necessary ,and the Cards made a clean sweep of their four game series by winning, 3 to 2. Alexander had nine strike-outs.

The winning run came in the eighth when Sweetland walked three men and Frisch sprinted home on Mancuso's sacrifice fly to short centre.

Jimmy Wilson, veteran Philly catcher, was taken out after the second inning when he became the property of the Cardinals in a trade involving several players. Wilson, who replaces Bob O'Farrell, traded Thursday to the Giants, will catch tto-day for McKechnie's team.

Artie Nehf, who won fame as a southpaw for the Giants, pitched airtight ball against Dazzy Vance of Chicago yesterday, and the Cubs won the last game of the series from Brooklyn, 3 to 0. It was the sixth straight Chicago victory and the third over the Robins. Nehf never was in danger.

Mack Wilson, who shared National League home runs with Cy Williams last season when each hit 30, made his fourth of the current campaign with none on in the sixth.

Red Lucas held Boston to seven scattered hits at Cincinnati, beat them 3 to 0 for his sixth win in seven games, and banged out a triple in the fourth, scoring the final run shortly afterward.

The Reds ran their string of double plays to forty. They regained their position of a game behind New York in the standings yesterday when New York and Pittsburgh were rained out.

Victorian Takes Preakness Stake

PIMLICO RACE TRACK, Md., May 12 (Associated Press).—Victorian, Harry Payne Whitney's bay son of Whiskbroom II. and Prudery won the rich Preakness Stake yesterday in a whipping finish so close that the immense crowd witnessing the feature was left in doubt as to the result.

Toro, E. B. McLean's entry, lost only by a nose after coming up the stretch and passing Victorian at one time, only to have the Whitney colt forge up again at the finish.

By the victory, Mr. Whitney retained the famous Woodlawn Vase, prized racing trophy, since 1860 and at stake in the Preakness again through the courtesy of Mr. Whitney, who held it by reason of Bostonian's Preakness victory last year. It was the third time a Whitney horse had won the classics.Bromspun having brought the prize to the Whitney Stable in 1921.

Inside Sportin' Dope—By a Wise Cracker

Mister Sporting Editor:

I been looking over the Central Ont. League schedule, Mac, and what with double-headers and everything it looks like a real affair. The boys what like to see 2 ball games for 1 ticket is going to get there chance this summer when Deloro plays here in the tail end of the season, for the Smelters are booked for 2 battles the 1 day. Our lads play 2 double bills away from home in Belleville and Deloro, cutting off the expense of 2 trips, while they ain't got no worry about celebrating Dominion Day seeing they is booked to play Belleville here in the a.m. and then hop into their Packards, if any, and hike to Deloro for a afternoon engagement. All of which makes it look like Mister Heckman and Mister Hardill better get their flinging arms in shape early and keep 'em that way. Double-headers has been kinda of a novelty in the Central loop, though back in '22 before Mister Heckman was a blushing bridegroom he heaved 2 games in 1 afternoon against Leaside, and copped them both, even if the visitors did save their pitching ace for the 2nd battle to make things tough for the Peterborough gunner.

Everywhere round the league circuit looks good for a fine season, Mac. Up in Oshawa they got so many players they hafta practice in shifts, but mebbe they'll need 'em all before the race is over. Some old faces will be seen on Mister Joe Daley's Kingston line-up, and most of the Belleville crew won't be exactly strangers either. It won't be long now, for 2 weeks from this Sat. Belleville is here for the opener.

While I'm talking about the Central League doings, Mac, I just wanta remind the customers about the show, "Now Fawncy That," to be give next Wed. night to help the boys get new uniforms. Last fall when the Swanston talent was spilling the Saint Georges outa the running their outfits didn't exactly fit into the scenery up there at the Leafs' Stadium. Of course, what happened to the Saints proves that uniforms don't win no ball games, but you gotta admit it hurts when somebody is rude enough to shout, "Hit down at that bundle of rags." We're going to have a good ball team; all we want them to look like 1—hence the show next Wed. Insteading of asking for subscriptions, the Petes is going to give you something for your money—a rattling good theatrical performance that you're going to like—and they just ask their friends round town to come through, see the show, and help provide new togs for the boys, who has been wearing the same outfits 3 or 4 seasons. Don't forget the date, next Wed. night. You can get tickets from any of the gang. Line forms on the right. Let's go.

The various jr. leagues round town is looking prosperous, Mac. Of course, the old trouble is in sight where teams try to grab off more players than they can use and leave the other fellows short-handed. It is a short-sighted policy that practically killed ladies' softball here, and will kill any kinda sport if there is much of it. A limit on the number of players that will prevent this kinda thing might do a lotta good, Mac.

Well, Mister Sporting Editor, I ain't got no tips for the customers neither on the King's plate or the bunion derby, so I'll quit now.

Sportfully yours,

A. WISE CRACKER.

P.S.—Don't forget the ball club's show next Wed. night, "Now Fawncy that."—A.W.C.

HAGEN WINS THIRD GOLF CHAMPIONSHIP

United States' Professional Champion Has 72 Hole Score of 292.

TAKES EARLY LEAD.

Archie Compston, British Leader, in Third Place With Score of 295.

SANDWICH, England, May 12 (A.P.).—Walter Hagen yesterday won his third British open golf championship with a 72 hole score of 292, coming through with what the British call "a Hagen finish.' The United States professional champion scored two 72's on his last two rounds, taking the lead in the morning and holding it to the end.

He was followed home by Gene Sarazen, another professional from the United States, who needed only 294 for his 72 holes, 73 in the morning and the same score in the afternoon. Archie Compston, British leader, also finished with a pair of 73's for a score of 295 to take third place.

The Prince of Wales put the seal of royalty on Hagen's artistry as he handed him the famous trophy which was won by Bobby Jones last year and the year before, and with Hagen's victory yesterday has been in the hands of golfers from the United States in seven of the last eight years.

"I congratulate that fine sportsman, Walter Hagen," said the Prince won for the first time over this same

Winning yesterday as dramatically as he lost a special match to Archie Compston two weeks ago, by the one-sided score of 18 up and 17 to play, Hagen effectively silenced stories that his defeat by the giant Compston marked the beginning of his decline as a player in important competitions.

Hagen's victory gives him the sensational record of three victories, one second and one third in the British classic since 1922, when he won for the first tiem over this same Royal St. George's course.

Three strokes behind Jose Jurado, the Argentine, yesterday morning, Hagen went out steadily and confidently to play himself into the lead by a stroke at the end of the third round and a two stroke lead when all the returns were in.

Sarazen was the last threat. Jurado, a featherweight with a lot of nerve, slipped from his leading position of the morning to a tie with "Long Jim" Barnes and Aubrey Boomer for sixth place.

The wee Buenos Aires pro lost none of his popularity as he faded from the picture under the gruelling test. The marvel of those who watched him play was not that he slipped but that he stayed so long among the giants of the game. He fought a gallant fight against men almost twice his size, and with years of experience to help them.

To Jim Barnes, who has also won the title in years one by, went the honor of having the best round of the closing day. His 71 was a great performance and landed him well among the first ten when he seemed doomed to finish far back after taking 76 yesterday morning and with the nightmare of an 81 brought over from Thursday.

The final day's play resolved itself into a battle between four men of three nationalities, Hagen, Sarazen, Campson and Jurado. Net until the home stretch was reached could be winner be certain, so close was the margin Hagen had over Sarazen and Compston.

Under a brilliant Spring sky, with a gallery of 4,000 to 5,000 persons drawn from all Britain and including the Prince of Wales, who watched both Hagen and Sarasen, as he twisted his path through the rushing crowds like any other golf fan, the championship struggle continued.

Bad putting put Jurado out of the running early in the afternoon, and the fight was narrowed to Hagen, Sarazen and Compston, the last two challenging the 292 Hagen had set for them to shoot at.

Rounding the turn and emerging from the hills, valleys and gigantic sand dunes featuring the terrain of the outward journey, Sarazen knew as he started the stretch leading to the long homeward holes, that he had to do 70 to beat Hagen.

Sarazen was the last player to leave the first tee for the last time in the championship, and just in front of him was Compston, carrying the hopes of Britain to save the nation's golfing honor. He, too, knew what he had to do—69 to win—and difficult as that task was, he struggled heroically and never gave up. A birdie 2 at the 16th hole aroused cheers carrying all the way to the clubhouse, but Compston needed two birdie 3's to tie Hagen, and they were not in his bag. He finished with a four and a five.

Not a single six got on Hagen's card in any of the four rounds. This explains some of the genius of the bronzed champion, thrice crowned here and twice in his own country.

"After the Moor Park match, I did a lot of thinking," Hagen said, "and I resolved during this championship whenever I got into trouble. I'd take a shot to get out and go in. Determined to take no long chances, but play my game well within myself and I stuck to it."

The Prince of Wales seemed to enjoy the day. Dressed in brown, checked plus-fours, with a checked cap and collar and red tassels showing from his stockings, he was on top of the play all the way. He talked to Hagen and Sarazen about golf and stood on the brink of a bunker to which the stocky Gene escaped.

He laughed heartily when Sarazen collapsed on the green after a long putt at the 13th unexpectedly dropped in.

WANT MORE ENTRIES

The City Softball executive wants an eight team league. Five teams are considered likely to enter. How about three more teams?

Entry list closing date for City Softball League was set for May 21st at the executive meeting held last night in the Belmont club rooms. All entries are to be addressed to Norman Lewis of the Post Office staff accompanied by a check for $15. With an eight team league as their objective it is considered likely that the Knights of Columbus, Lockworks, General Electric, Knights of Pythias, and Percy Harrison's team from the north-end will be among those listed.

Belleville comments on the fact that Oshawa ball club secured twenty-seven certificates for players. It might be added that Oshawa was the only club in the loop that had all certificates in accompanied by amateur cards. According to the secretary's records, that official is still waiting for amateur cards from Belleville, Peterborough, Kingston and Deloro.—Oshawa Times.

TO-DAY'S GOLF MENU

It would be interesting to know how many millions of strokes were thrown away each season by the millions of golfers now playing, through the rankest sort of judgment.

I recall playing a round a few days ago where the distance on a a second shot called for full wood, even from the best possible lie. It was 2 to 1 against reaching the green with a good lie. The ball happened to be resting in a cupoy lie, with a bunker 100 yards on ahead. The only sensible shot to play was an iron, a short pitch an easy 5. But out came the wood, the ball sailed into the bunker and a 7 resulted against my opponent's 6.

"Never again" was the first thought, but the same things came up a few holes later on—and out came the wood again with almost the same result. Ordinarily it is hard to throttle the wild desire to take the gamble, no matter what the odds. Once in about 10 or 20 times the miracle comes off. But where it wins one hole it loses 10 or 15. It is ridiculous, of course, to gamble saving one stroke against losing two or three. Yet it is a hard temptation to resist. It is much saner and better golf to gamble on a good short approach, or sinking the first putt, than it is to risk a wooden shot from a bad lie with trouble to carry. The safer side is the system that leads to better scores and a greater number of victories.—Hamilton Spectator.

LEAFS LOSE SECOND GAME

Pinch Hitters Failed to Come Through in the Last Inning.

BLACK CATS WIN 4-1.

MAPLE LEAF STADIUM, May 12. —Jersey City again man-handled the Leafs yesterday afternoon, taking the second game of the series, 4 to 1. Horne was good in the pinches and was well supported, Walsh robbing Sheedy and Jacobson of triples by magnificent efforts. The visitors played smart ball in every respect and deserved their victory. Prudhomme didn't pitch a half bad game but had little luck as usual, his defence failing him at critical moments.

Rochester evened the series with the Baltimore Orioles at Rochester yesterday, winning 16 to 8. Rochester scored four runs in the sixth inning on one single. Jack Dunn used five pitchers during the game.

The Buffalo Bisons bombarded Jack Wisner, former Rochester heaver, from the mound in five innings at Buffalo yesterday, and as a consequence easily defeated the Reading Keys 10 to 7. The trailers made it look a bit close in the ninth when they staged a four-run rally and forced Lefty Williams, who had hurled good ball, to retire and allow Jack Hollingsworth to retire the final batsmen.

Defeat Royals 17-9.

Newark pounded four Montreal pitchers for 21 hits and defeated the Royals 17-9 to even the series in the second game played at Montreal yesterday afternoon. Shawkey's retirement at the end of the fifth was at the request of Umpire Gaston, who ordered him off the bench for remarks made while Newark was at bat. Shawkey protested that another player was the culprit, but the arbiter was firm and Buckalew was on the mound for Montreal at the start of the sixth.

The game, the slowest one played here since the season's opening, was an exceedingly dull one throughout. Zubris, who started on the mound for the Bears, was also knocked off and Fischer finished the game.

TWO PROMOTERS SEEK SERVICES OF LIGHT HEAVY

Fugazy Wants Loughran To Meet Latzo at Ebbets Field.

TUNNEY TRAINING.

McMahon Suggests Slattery at Yankee Stadium On June 7.

NEW YORK, May 12.—Tommy Loughran, the light heavyweight champion, was the storm centre of frenzied activity in the offices of New York's two leading promoters yesterday.

With the receipt of definite word that Leo Lomski will not be able to fulfill his May 30 date with Pete Latzo, both Humbert Fugazy and Tex Rickard found themselves desperately in need of Loughran's services.

Fugazy wants Loughran to substitute for Lomski on the May 30 date at Ebbets Field. He offered Latzo as the opponent, and naturally it would have to be a championship match.

Jess McMahon, Rickard's matchmaker, suggested Jimmy Slattery as an opponent, June 7 as a date, and the Yankee Stadium as a site. McMahon has another opponent up his sleeve; namely, Jack Delaney, the former boss of the light heavies.

Judging by what Fugazy says Joe Smith has told him, the Brooklyn promoter has a good chance to land Loughran. The champion's manager likes Latzo as an opponent. He dislikes Slattery, and he will not consider Delaney under any circumstances. His antipathy to Delaney developed when Bridgeport Jack insisted on meeting Jack Sharkey instead of Loughran. Both Loughran and Smith wanted him first, and pointed out that he could always fight Sharkey.

Loughran believes he can outbox both Lomski and Latzo, who depend on punching more than speed. He regards Slattery as the most dangerous of all the contenders. The Buffalo boy is a remarkably clever boxer, and gave Loughran his closest fight a few months ago at the Garden.

Smith was in the city last night and conferred with both promoters. A decision will be announced to-day.

Tunney To Start Training.

Gene Tunney, world's heavyweight champion, will leave to-day for Speculator to begin training for his coming title match with Tom Heeney. This became known through Billy Gibson, his manager.

Before leaving Tunney, Heeney and Promoter Rickard will stage the formal ceremony of signing the papers.

As for the stories that Heeney might be displaced by Jack Sharkey or any other heavyweight, Gibson pointed out that both Tunney and Rickard have named Honest Tom as the opponent both publicly and officially. Telegrams for both of them to this effect are on file at the State Athletic Commission.

While Rickard is not ready to make a formal announcement, the date has been set for July 26 at the Yankee Stadium.

THREE STARS IN "BUBBLING OV ER" AT THE GRAND MAY 18-19.

THEATRES

AT THE GRAND.

THE DUMBELLS COMING TO THE GRAND MAY 18 AND 19 IN THEIR NEW SHOW "BUBBLING OVER"

A striking proof of the fact that the Dumbells' latest springtime revue, "Bubbling Over", was an acknowledged success from the very first performance, is found in the following criticism of the premiere. We quote the eminent critic, Mr. Jamieson of the Vancouver Daily Province, one of the best-known journalists in Canada, and in view of the fact that the Dumbells are billed to present their new show here at the Grand theatre May 18-19 evening, we give the full text of his review, as it appeared in the issue of Feb. 29th:

"Followers of The Dumbells, those ex-soldier entertainers who are perpetuating their performances in France by their seasonal appearances in the Canadian entertainment world, often speculated on how good the new show will be.

The present writer, who has seen every production of The Dumbells since the war, is of the opinion that "Bubbling Over," which had its premiere at the Vancouver Theatre on Tuesday night, is Captain Plunkett's best effort.

In this new offering The Dumbells reach a higher musical and artistic standard than hitherto, and that they are abreast of public taste was shown by the encores which had to be satisfied despite all the rules and regulations of the company.

The second part of the revue is a studio scene and it was this phase of the entertainment which scored the biggest success. The company has been notably strengthened from a musical standpoint by Harry Binns, tenor, and Cameron Geddes, basso. Freddie Emmey, the new comedian of the "silly ass" school, not only proved a leading laughter-maker but also turned out to be a skilled pianist, and helped Al. Plunkett notably in several of the latter's songs.

As advocated by this writer for several seasons, the jazz band has been abolished. It wasted the time of musicians capable of far better things. Cutting out this feature gives us a chance to hear Howard Fogg, violinist and orchestra leader, in solo work to the sympathetic accompaniment of Louis Crerar. Half a dozen of the fellows sitting around the studio contribute numbers in such a non-theatrical but "happy evening with the boys" manner that the audience simply could not have enough of it. And as an added surprise, Captain Plunkett, Harry Binns, Al. Plunkett and Cameron Geddes gave a first-class quartette work, even tackling "Comrades in Arms" with the fire and verve of a Welsh male choir.

The broader fun is provided by Red Newman and Pat Rafferty. Little Pat doesn't have so much to do as in former productions. The only touch of the war is furnished by Red who sings a song dedicated to the creator of "Old Bill." This number, if memory serves, was written in war years by a former Vancouver man, B. C. Hilliam, now a radio entertainer in London.

The most pleasing number in the first part of the bill is Marjorie's song "Anything to Make You Happy" in which Al. Plunkett, Harry Binns and Cameron Geddes assist. It was done with taste.

Glen Allan shows steady improvement in his dances, and Jock Holland, another of the "girls", has two good numbers.

Al. Plunkett and ukulele delight with some of those little songs which he sings in such a musical, effective way. An almost capacity audience put its seal of approval upon the revue, and general comment was that The Dumbells have reached new heights.

AT THE REGENT.

ACTORS IN UNIFORM RUN FOUL OF CADETS IN "DRESS PARADE"

William Boyd, Star, and Other Players Have Thrilling Experiences.

The fact that William Boyd, Hugh Allan, Maurice Ryan and Walter Tennyson, all members of the company which, under Director Donald Crisp, filmed "Dress Parade" at West Point military academy, constantly wore cadet uniforms, caused many embarrassing and laughable happenings, during the filming of the photoplay.

Mr. Boyd, star of the picture, had finished work one day, and, in plebe uniform, was walking across the area in the barracks smoking a cigarette, when an uppe classman met him and snapped at him:

"Drop that cigarette!"

Boyd made no argument, but dropped the cigarette on the gravel, saluted and passed on.

Ryan one day started back to the Hotel Thayer, where the company was quartered, and he also bumped into one of the first classmen who halted him and commanded:

"Tenshun!"

Ryan, fat, and a comedian, grinned. The first classman grew angry.

"Salute!" he commanded.

Ryan grinned again and the first classman asked:

"What company do you belong to?"

Ryan gave a third grin, wider than the others, and answered politely:

"The Cecil B. DeMille company, sir."

Whereupon he was allowed to continue on his trip to the hotel.

Clarence Geldert, who has the role of the Commandant in the picture, and who wore khaki with all the insignia and ribbons necessary to the character, was standing in front of the Administration Building when Colonel Hodges, the real Commandant, emerged. Colonel Hodges glanced at this soldierly figure and said to an aide who was with him:

"Who is that strange Colonel; I haven't seen him around here before?"

Introductions followed and the apparent breach of etiquette—because Colonel Geldert had not called on Colonel Hodges—was condoned.

"Dress Parade" will be shown at the Regent theatre on Monday next. Bessie Love plays opposite Mr. Boyd. The picture is said to be intensely dramatic and thrilling.

AT THE CAPITOL.

MADGE BELLAMY IN "SILK LEGS" ON THE SCREEN

Can women compete successfully with men as drummers on the road and at the same time retain their feminine charm?

This question is dealt with humorously in "Silk Legs," Fox Films' screen version of Frederica Sagor's fascinating story of Atlantic City, featuring Madge Bellamy, which will be the feature screen attraction for the first three days of next week.

Ruth Stevens is a very successful hosiery drummer until the advent of Phil Parker, twentieth century edition of the modern drummer, whose business methods play havoc with Ruth's orders.

Parker's methods are old but reliable. He believes in playing the female buyers, who fall for his line of salve. As for Ruth, she sells her wares on their merits.

"Can she compete against such odds?"

Miss Bellamy, the clever little comedienne, answers that question in "Silk Legs" in a manner that is sure to appeal to everyone.

A particularly well-chosen cast supports Miss Bellamy, including James Hall, Joseph Cawthorn and Maude Fulton. Arthur Rosson directed the production.

The I.O.D.E. Drawing for prizes will take place on the Capitol Stage—Monday Evening—Madge Bellamy, in "Silk Legs" will be the feature screen attraction.

The Peter Robinson Chapter, of the I.O.D.E. will have the drawing for the three valuable prizes, for which tickets are now being sold, take place on the stage of the Capitol theatre on Monday evening. Every one holding tickets should be on hand, as who knows—you might be one of the lucky winners.

RICH, RED BLOOD A REAL NERVE TONIC

The Source of All Nervousness is Weak, Watery Blood.

Many people, both men and women, find themselves run down hrough overwork, or anxieties. Such ufferers find themselves tired, low-pirited and depressed. Their nerves eem to be worn out and they suf-er from headaches and other nerve pains. All this comes from starved nerves.

Doctoring the nerves with poisonous sedatives is a terrible mistake. The only real nerve tonic is a good supply of rich red blood. Therefore to relieve nervousness, and run-down health Dr. Williams' Pink Pills should be taken. These pills enrich the blood, which tones the nerves, improves the appetite, gives new strength and spirits and makes hitherto despondent people bright and cheerful. Miss Irene Denne, R.R. No. 1, Washago, Ont., tells what Dr. Williams' Pink Pills did for her as follows:—"I suffered for a long time with my nerves and a generally run-down condition. I grew so weak that I had to lie in bed a part of every day. I could not do any work and was taking medicine all the time, trying one medicine after another. I was advised to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and I have reason to be thankful that I acted on this advice, as this was the first medicine that gave me any relief, and in a comparatively short time restored me to the blessing of good health. When I think of the marvellous good these pills did me, I can most highly recommend them to all weak, nervous epople."

If you are at all run-down, or weak, you should begin at once to take Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and you will soon be well and strong. These pills are sold by all medicine dealers or will be sent by mail at 50 cents a box by The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

FIRE BURNS OVER 70 ACRES OF SLASH

Several Hours Fighting Needed To Conquer Blaze in Mayo Township.

TWEED, May 12.—The first forest fire of any size in the Hastings-Peterborough-Victoria County district broke out in Mayo Township in the County of Hastings this week. Smoke chasers and forest fire rangers were soon at the scene of the conflagration and after several hours' fighting the blaze was gotten under control, but not before 70 acres of slash woodland had been burned over. In this district, according to H. W. Crosbie, district forester, there have been several small fires, commencing as early as April 16.

Along Bridge Street, occasional piles of gravel prophesy paving operations to be in progress there in a few days. Grand Road is still closed to traffic, with a detour via the C.N.R. Station or the Canal Road on the east side.

BODY IS FOUND FLOATING IN LAKE

Walter Minaker, Prince Edward County Farmer, Had Been Missing Since November.

TWEED, May 12.— The body of Walter Minaker, Prince Edward county farmer who disappeared last fall while hunting in the north of Hastings county, was found in the early part of the week floating on Papineau lake by Dan Goodwin, the station agent at Maynooth.

The remains were taken to Bancroft, after Coroner Lamb had been called and an inquest was opened and later adjourned to a future date.

Minaker left home in November of 1927 with Arthur Langstaff, another farmer. The latter missed Minaker one day and a search was immediately started and although the lake, which is on the northern boundary of the country, was dragged, the body was not recovered. When cold weather set in the search was discontinued. It was then thought that Minaker had taken a boat out into the lake and it had capsized, for a boat was found a few days later floating on the lake. Minaker was married and leaves a wife and eight children. He was born in Brighton.

BABY'S OWN TABLETS THE HOME DOCTOR

Baby's Own Tablets meet all the needs that exists in every home where there are young children. They are a laxative, but do not gripe. They are soothing, but do not contain one particle of opiate or other ingredient, that can in any way do the slightest harm to the most delicate child.

Baby's Own Tablest reduce fever, relieve colic, banish constipation and indigestion, check diarrhoea, sweeten the stomach and allay the irritation that accompanies the cutting of teeth. They quiet the nerves and promote health-giving sleep and repose. In fact they are as good as a doctor in the home, and once a mother has used them for her little ones she will use nothing else. Thousands of mothers bear testimony as to this. Among them is Mrs. Hurst, Pine Falls, Man., who says:—"I was told to try Baby's Own Tablets by a friend who had used them for all her little ones and said she could not do without them. After using them for my baby boy I quite agree with her and certainly think they are the finest medicine in the world for little ones."

Giving a tang to Sandwich fillings

Cucumber Sandwiches

Butter some very thinly sliced brown or white bread; then, with a wine glass turned down, cut out rings of this bread a little larger than the cucumber slices. Cut the cucumber in thin slices which are then soaked for a few minutes in a mixture of oil, vinegar and a pinch of Keen's Mustard. Put the sliced cucumbers, previously well seasoned with pepper and salt, between the rings of bread well buttered. This dish is fresh, appetizing and very nice in appearance.

Write for free recipe book entitled "Salad Secrets."

Next time you entertain at bridge or tea, have your sandwich fillings prepared with English Mustard as an ingredient. You will be surprised at the way in which the addition of mustard brings out the sandwiches' flavour. Also, you will be delighted at the admiration which your sandwiches will win from your guests.

English Mustard is pure, full strength and healthful. It has been known and used by famous cooks and chefs for generations. Make it one of your first kitchen assistants.

TRUTH VERSUS ERROR.

The preaching of Satan's lie — "Thou shalt not surely die," and all the other untruths that must be told to bolster up the first lie, is a gross imposition on an unsuspecting public, especially when it is done under the guise of Christianity. The preacher of all these unreasonable and unscriptural untruths (whether done wilfully or in ignorance) can rant and bellow with furious zeal; but the granite rock of truth remains steadfast and sure, long after the preacher's passion and rage is still. While we are compelled to use strong language at times to combat palpable error, we do not wish unnecessarily to hurt anyone. We are quite well aware of the extreme and intense opposition to truth on the part of many who (sincerely or otherwise), are clinging to old time ecclesiastical errors. Numbers, however, are finding out to be honest, they are compelled to withdraw from all systems of error.—M. T. Butcher.

OBITUARY

SISTER M. ST. EDWARD

Shortly after three o'clock yesterday afternoon, at Mount St. Joseph, there occurred the death of Sister St. Edward, one of the pioneer Sisters of St. Joseph's Community, Peterborough.

Until two years ago Sister St. Edward had been engaged in teaching in this city and in Sault Ste. Marie, Ontario. Her health had been rapidly declining since then, but death, though coming unexpectedly, did not find her unprepared to answer the great summons.

The funeral will take place Monday morning at 9.00 o'clock from Mount St. Joseph.

MISS CORRINNE LEGENDRE.

The funeral of the late Corrinne LeGendre took place at nine o'clock yesterday morning, from the residence of her grandfather Mr. N. T. LaPlante, at 87 Lock street, to the Sacred Heart Church, thence to St. Peter's cemetery for interment.

The funeral mass at the church was sung at nine o'clock by Rev. J. J. O'Brien who spoke later of the fine example of young Christian womanhood afforded by the life of the deceased and of the many splendid qualities displayed by her during life, and of the sorrow felt by her many friends over her demise and the poignant circumstances surrounding this third death within a year in a happy family circle.

Rev. Father Finn of St. Peter's Cathedral assisted at the funeral mass and Rev. C. Moloney at the graveside.

The pall bearers were Douglas and Clare McDonald, Raymond and Joseph Paquette Ray Rose and Alric Letellier.

JAMES McILVENA.

The death occurred at Toronto yesterday of James McIlvena.

Funeral will take place at Warsaw Monday, May 14th, at 1 o'clock.

The Answer to The Burning Question

If Your Back Is Weak

Or painful you can be sure there is some interference with the nerves along the spine or hips. This could result from some jar, twist, strain, exposure to cold or assuming a faulty posture. Any of these can cause a misalignment of spinal bones capable of producing constriction of nerves, which will make muscular movement painful and difficult. Various ailments, such as are often brought about in this way. Our experience has proved that Chiropractic Spinal Manipulation is capable of restoring health and comfort to numbers of persons who have suffered with ailments of the back and hips.

ST. ANDREW'S ANNIVERSARY IS OBSERVED

Rev. Dr. Kent of Queen's University, is Special Preacher For To-day.

HELPFUL SERMONS.

Choir Led By John Crane Renders Suitable Music at Both Services.

"I have fought a good fight; I have finished my course, I have kept the faith." This well-known verse, the seventh of the fourth chapter of St. Paul's second epistle to Timothy, was chosen by the Rev. H. A. Kent, D.D., Principal of Queen's Theological College, for his evening sermon at St. Andrew's United Church yesterday, when the anniversary was observed. Particular attention was paid to the last phrase of the verse.

The sermon was replete with historic reference, from which he drew many helpful illustrations and comparisons. He opened by speaking of Henry Second of England, who was an able ruler who gained his ends, in many cases, by unscrupulous ways. When his sons turned against him and defeated him in battle, burning his birthplace, he died cursing God. Cardinal Wolsey was another man who rose to great eminence and who used his power in state and church in such a way that he was greatly hated. Finally the king, his patron, turned against him and he crept to Leicester to die, alone and defeated, saying: "Had I but served my God with half the zeal with which I served the king, He would not have left me naked to my enemies."

The text, said the speaker, was written by a man near death. He, too, was old, not in years but because he had gone through many trials and accomplished a great deal. He had been cast into prison just as he was about to start a great campaign for his Lord and Master. He had been of a distinguished family and a member of a proud race, but had given these things up to become hated throughout the world. He gave up race and preferment for a crucified man he called Christ and went abroad to teach about Him. What had he got for that? As the world counts success, not much. There were a few groups of Christians, but there were not many of them and they were people of low class, slaves and outcasts.

They were a sorry kind of Christians. The people of Galatia would listen to each new teacher who came along and he had to write a sharp letter to them. The Thessalonians were sure the end of the world was at hand and had to be given the homely advice that he who would not work could not eat. The people of Corinth were given to drunkenness, vice and dissension, and had to be reproved. The congregation at Rome forsook him when he was in prison, and he had to write to Timothy to bring him a cloak from Troas to keep him warm.

Paul might have said that he had lost everything and asked why he had served God if this was to be the end, but there was no word of complaint about all he had gone through. He said, "I have kept," instead of, "I have lost." He was an outcast, despised by his family and hated by his race; yet he said: "I have kept."

One of the tragic things of life, continued Dr. Kent, is the things people lose. They lose things through their own folly, but in spite of good living there are certain things they must lose; such as youth, children, friends, the things of childhood. God will not give these things back, and there must be some compensation for their loss. This man might have told about the things he had lost, but instead he said, "I have kept the faith."

The speaker went on to explain the meaning of faith. It is a word used now in many senses. People speak of the faith, meaning some set of doctrines, things they believe with their heads. That is not what St. Paul meant. He did not mean that his opinion of God had never changed. It seems, continued the speaker, that many people think that it is possible to learn more about anything but God and religion, and that it is not right to learn more about Him.

Dr. Kent gave many instances to show that knowledge and understanding of God have increased. In 1796 the Presbyterian Church Assembly of Scotland voted down a proposal to send out missionaries to foreign lands. The Covenanters excommunicated a man for listening to a missionary sermon. "Don't you think," he asked, "we have gained greater knowledge of the wideness of God's mercy?"

In 1770 the first Presbyterian minister came to Canada. He was a man of God who did a great work all through the Maritime Provinces, but in 1780 he had two negresses in his home as slaves. They were mother and daughter, and he kept one, selling the other because she had a bad temper. His great-grandson, who bears the same name, is a missionary to the negroes of Africa.

The Westminster Confession of of Faith was drawn up by great men, but there is no mention in it of missionary responsibility. It was not written to Christianize the world, but

Storm Is Raging Over Spitzbergen

KING'S BAY, Spitzbergen, May 14. — (Canadian Press). — This Northern archipelago which is serving as the base for the polar expedition of the dirigible Italia under General Umberto Nobile was buried under more than a foot of snow yesterday with more constantly falling. Such storms are not exceptional at this time of year and it was said that the dirigible was in no danger.

The well-known Spitzbergen engineer Varming has asked permission to join the expedition. It is believed that General Nobile will consent since Varming is well versed in polar conditions.

PLANE HANGARS UNDER WATER

Residents in Threatened Flood Districts Hopeful Danger is Past.

COTTAGES FLOODED.

OTTAWA, May 14. — Canadian Press. — Following a rise of about two inches on Saturday night the Ottawa River remained stationary yesterday and residents in the threatened areas are hopeful that the danger of floods is past.

At Shirley's Bay the air force hangars are under water and most of the planes have been moved to higher ground. The government ice house in which the summer supply of ice for the air force was housed, was partly swept away by the flood waters on Saturday and much of the ice stored has been lost. So far no damage has been done to the airplanes.

Along the shore line at Britannia summer cottages close to the normal edge of the river are flooded and can be reached only by boat. The damage here is not thought to be heavy.

At Woodroffe the water has risen almost to the level of the Canadian Pacific Railway tracks, and a ballast crew worked yesterday filling in a portion of the roadbed where the water had seeped through.

While the water is high at several points along the river front from Britannia to the city limits the damage will not be great, residents of the district believe. At one point, just west of Britannia village the water has come close to the main highway, but has several feet yet to rise before it overflows the road.

U.S. ARMY PLANES LEFT FOR GREENELY

Will Land at Long Point, Opposite Island, Where Bremen Now Lies.

ST. JOHN, N.B., May 14 (Canadian Press).—The two United States army amphibian planes on the way to the mainland near Greenely Island to bring the Bremen to the United States, left here at 9 a.m. for Pictou, N.S. From Pictou the planes will proceed to St. George's, Newfoundland, and then to Long Point, opposite Greenely, where the Bremen now is waiting.

One of the pilots, Lieutenant Muir Fairchild, took ill Saturday night, threatened with appendicitis, and Brig.-General Frechet, in command of the expedition, yesterday wired Washington, requesting that another plane be sent to St. John to take the sick man home.

EMILY FARMHOUSE BURNED TO GROUND

Harold Laidley, Near Omemee, Loses Unoccupied Frame Residence.

OMEMEE, May 14. — A two-story frame house, located on the farm of Harold Laidley, about a half mile west of the village, was completely razed by a blaze of unknown origin which started slightly after 9 o'clock last night, while two barns, only a short distance from it, escaped undamaged. It is understood that the house was unoccupied and contained little, if any, furniture. It was believed to be partly covered by insurance.

The heavier timbers were still burning early this morning, and a man, posted nearby, kept watch lest a spark reach the barns. Since the house was not within the village limits, the Omemee fire brigade was not in attendance.

THE WEATHER

The temperature keeps cools, especially at night. The night temperature is generally below the freezing point. This morning it was two degrees below. The season is backward—at least ten days. At this date the maples should be in half leaf, whereas at present they are only in the budding condition.—W. P.

Eighteen building permits, involving the sum of $19,760, were issued during the past week by City Engineer Parsons. T. C. Ephgrave has received the contract from Hughes and Lillico to alter the Munroe Hotel and build a new addition to the back of the hotel. The hotel is to be changed into a modern sales-room and workshop and the addition to be built will be one-story high. The work, it is expected, will be completed about June 1st, and the estimated cost is $7,000.

The Toronto Savings and Loan Company has given J. G. Graham the contract to built two houses on Murray Street West. The houses will be 26 feet by 24 feet brick veneer walls and finished inside in pine and basswood. Hot air heating systems will be installed and the work is to be completed about September 15. The estimated cost is $3,000 each.

William McKnight of 694 Armour Road is erecting a new front to his house at an estimated cost of $1,400. Other small contracts are: Mrs. William Davidson, 520 Dickson Street, a veranda, estimated cost $400; J. S. OTTAWA FLOOD RETAINS LEVEL

Little Change During Night—Mississauga River Falls Slightly.

LARGE AREAS FLOODED.

OTATWA, May 14 (Canadian Press). — With the Ottawa River swelled to the highest point in the past 19 years, the levels both of it and the Gatineau were approximately the same this morning as they were last night. The feeling here is that unless there are some unexpected developments in the north country, the peak has been reached.

NORTHERN FLOOD PERSISTS.

SAULT STE. MARIE, May 14 (Canadian Press). — The drop in the high water in the Mississaugi River over the week-end is hardly noticeable, and the river at Iron Bridge is still about 18 feet above normal. The trunk road between Iron Bridge and Dean Lake and Blind River is still blocked to traffic by the flood. Old timers in the section say the water is higher than at any time in forty years. The streams near the Sault are going down gradually, and no further trouble is expected from this source.

FAMILIES HOMELESS.

FORT COULOGNE, Que., May 14 (Canadian Press). — Desolation stretched for miles as scores of families were rendered temporarily homeless with the steady rise of the Ottawa and Coulogne Rivers, which virtually transformed this village into an island. Fifty-two years have passed since Fort Coulogne and the surrounding districts have witnessed such destruction of property on account of flood waters and the loss to date will run into thousands of dollars.

VARIED PROGRAM AT CENTRAL SCHOOL

Readings, Songs and Instrumental Music at H. and S. Meeting.

A program of readings, songs, and instrumental music was given at the close of the business session of the Central Home and School Association last Friday evening. A ninepiece orchestra, under the leadership of Mr. Boorman, added greatly to the success of the evening, which was very much enjoyed by a large and appreciative audience. Others taking part were Kenneth Gadd, Hudson Hall, Ernest Davis, Roy Pitchford, Douglas McPherson, Thelma Buller, Mrs. and the Misses Boorman, Miss Bacon played the accompaniments for the boys trio. "The Canadian Boat Song," unaccompanied by the girls' trio, deserves special mention. The meeting closed with a hearty vote of thanks to the entertainers.

Provided the husband is ready to give, the average wife is quite ready to forgive.

Musical Sheep Makes Her Debut In Parisian Opera—Delights Audience

PARIS, May 14 (Canadian Press).—A musical sheep has made her debut in opera and her "baas" are furnishing humor to relieve the "blah" that critics find in this particular modern music.

This ewe who hasn't been named on the program is the main attraction to most of the audiences at Sarati le Terrible, just produced at the government-subsidized Opera Comique. The accomplished animal suffered stage fright at first, but once well on the stage, although cast only for a thinking part, joined actively in the performance. She showed deep interest in the way Albert Wolff waved his baton in conducting the orchestra. She got entirely outside of her role as a part of the scenery and tried out her voice with hilarious effect.

Her tuneful bleatings appear always to have been in key with the orchestra, which is not strange, for Irving Schwerke writes: "The title of the opera contains all that need be said about the music,' while French confreres agree that "there is much noise, lots of brass, many fortissimi, but not an enormous quantity of music."

The sheep saw her opportunity in this maze of blare and dissonance, sauntered toward the footlights, nodded her head rhythmically and from time to time gave forth baas and bleats that brought roars of laughter and much applause.

NEITHER VICTOR NOR VANQUISHED IN MODERN WAR

Crime Against Humanity, Rev. Dr. Blagrave Tells Rotary.

LEAGUE OF NATIONS.

Speaker Describes Efforts To Bring About Outlawing of War.

League of Nations as an agency for outlawing of war was eloquently described before the Peterborough Rotary Club at the weekly luncheon today, by Rev. Dr. R. C. Blagrave of St. John's Church, whose interesting treatment of the subject was much appreciated.

The speaker, who was introduced by Rotarian W. R. Morris, pointed out that three important opinions in regard to war had developed as the world reflected upon the various aspects of the Great War. In the first place, it had been realised that war was a crime against humanity. Secondly, it was seen that war belonged to a barbarous age, and in the third place it had been discovered that in modern warfare there was neither victor nor vanquished. These things being true, sensible people believed that it should be possible to have international disagreements settled as were dissensions and disputes within the nations themselves, by legal and judicial proceedings and not by an appeal to physical force.

Rev. Dr. Blagrave then proceeded to discuss the League of Nations as an instrument for this purpose. While it was true that such an organization might require physical force to ensure the carrying out of its edicts and decisions and that the time was not yet ripe for nations to surrender their independence and support a super-state to see that these things were done. The speaker stressed the fact that there was a moral force developed from the Association of so many nations in a movement for world peace, that could not fail to have a very great effect. In this connection he drew attention to the fact that the League of Nations already had to its credit the prevention of half a dozen wars. It had also done much along the lines of suppressing the illicit drug trade and the white slavery traffic. Rev. Dr. Blagrave emphasizing the League's activities in the direction of making the world a better place in which to live.

In conclusion he urged an interest in the work of the League of Nations on the part of every one who realized the inhumanity of war, pointing out that in spite of the efforts of statesmen, and writers and others who tried to prevent such a conditions, nations sometimes drifted into war, propelled by an invisible force that was difficult to withstand. In the Rotary movement, he saw an agency that could make a very important contribution to the cause of world peace.

In moving a vote of thanks, Rotarian S. R. Armstrong stated that the development of a better understanding among the nations was one of the chief objects of Rotary and this fact was also stressed by President A. L. Killaly and Rotarian W. R. Morris who referred to the emphasis given the sixth object of Rotary at the various district conferences and at the annual convention of Rotary International at Ostend respectively.

At to-day's meeting Rotarian George A. Gillespie, who attended as representative of the Peterborough club, a conference called by the Toronto club to discuss the Ontario Boys' Farm at Bowmanville, gave a short report of the proceedings. Premier Ferguson, he said, had asked Rotary to give the enterprise its support, and the Toronto club, after visiting the institution at Bowmanville, had decided that a gymnasium was very badly needed and was accordingly sponsoring a movement to have this building provided by Rotary; the idea being that all the Rotary clubs in Ontario would participate. The estimated cost, he said,

FINE STATION TO BE ERECTED

R. H. Dawson Lets Contract For Service Station on McDonnel Street.

TO BE READY JUNE 15.

On the southeast corner of McDonnell and Reid streets, R. H. Dawson is erecting one of the finest service stations in the city. The new station will have a basement 30 by 40 feet, and will house one of the largest vulcanizing plants in the city, equipped with modern electrical appliances. The exterior will be very attractive in appearance, with stucco walls, brick corners, and a cottage roof extended at the rear to offer covering for outside work.

On the main floor will be a ladies' waiting room, show room, accessory counter, booth and office. At the rear of the building two grease pits will be installed. There will be two air lines and two electric gasoline pumps of the latest design, standing only a few feet high, and measuring to the twentieth part of a gallon. There will be a storage capacity for 10,000 gallons of gasoline, which will be unloaded from the tank cars right at the service station as the Railway Board has granted permission for the C.N.R. to cross Reid street with a siding.

At night the exterior will be lighted by two one thousand watt lamps on different standard. F. Dummitt has received the contract and work is expected to be completed by the middle of June.

EIGHT DROWN IN MAINE LAKE

Motor Boat Springs Leak and Sinks With Vacation Party.

ONE SWIMS ASHORE.

ROCKWOOD, Maine, May 14. — (Canadian Press).—Eight members of a party headed by Dr. A. F. Peterson, of Brockton, Mass., are reported drowned in Moose Head Lake late yesterday afternoon, when a motor boat capsided off this place. Chief Daley of the Brockton fire department is believed to have been rescued, while eight others, including Dr. Peterson and Sam Buddin, of Greenville, who was operating the boat, were drowned.

The party left Greenville yesterday afternoon, bound for the Tom Hegan Camps. According to the story told by Daley when he reached shore, the boat sprung a leak, the engine stopped and the craft filled with water when about a mile above Kineo towards Greenville, and near Sandbar Island. Daley said he and Dr. Peterson got on life preservers and started for shore, Daley in the lead.

That was the last Daley saw of any of the party. He was so exhausted and unnerved by the happening that he was unable to give a detailed story. No word has been received as to any others of the party, and the searchers felt certain none but Daley survived. All the members of the party were men.

BASS AND LUNGE SOLD ILLEGALLY

Protective Association Officers Point Out Purchaser Breaks Law.

SEASON STILL CLOSED.

The Peterborough Fish and Game Protective Association has been informed that fish caught out of season, presumably from near by waters, were sold in this city last week. Officers of the Association point out that persons who buy this fish are liable to penalties of the law, and are warned to be careful about the kind of fish they buy this season. It is understood that the fish that were sold here were bass and lunge, which are still protected by the closed season, and if an action can be taken now against the person who is alleged to have sold them, it is likely that the Association will endeavor to make an example of the offender.

Such illegal fishing and sales apparently persist in spite of all the efforts of the local Protective Association and provincial officers to prevent it. For that reason both a warning an an appeal is made by the Association to the public to co-operate in the movement to conserve the supply of game fish during the present spawning season.

Members of the Association are determined to make an example of the offenders against whom they can lay an action that is likely to succeed in the courts. Various other reports of illegal fishing have been received lately and a very discouraging aspect of them is the intimation that persons have been boasting that they are getting fish in spite of the law and its penalties, and of the Protective Association and its plea for public co-operation in preserving an exceedingly valuable natural resource. If the association can obtain sufficient evidence in these or any other infractions of the law they will ask the maximum penalty

DIVORCE GRANTED.

New Stop Signs Placed On Streets

Stop signs are being erected on Rubidge and Hunter streets, although the by-law has not yet been passed by the city council. It was proposed by the special committee appointed to draft a traffic by-law that Rubidge from Charlotte street to Park street be made a through street and also Hunter street from St. Peter's Cathedral to the Westclox, except at Aylmer, George and Water streets.

The city council this year is taking no chances in having the by-law held up after it passes, as was the case last year, so it is having the signs erected in order that the law will go into force as soon as it is passed.

Spanish Fliers Will Try To Set Record

SEVILLE, Spain, May 14.—(Canadian Press).—The Spanish aviators Jimenez and Iglesias, who reluctantly abandoned their plane for a trans-Atlantic flight to Cuba following pressure from the Spanish government, intend to take off Monday afternoon for India in an attempt to establish a non-stop distance record.

Their plane, the Jesus Gran Poder, which crashed into an automobile when the fliers attempted to hop off a few days ago, has been repaired and only bad weather can prevent the start of the flight.

There are twenty applications on file yet, which Mr. Gillespie expects will be filled with men who are coming in during the next day or two.

The men have been placed with Mr. Gillespie through the agency of the C.P.R. Immigration Bureau, and in almost every case have proved satisfactory, and are satisfied with the positions they have obtained.

REPORTS READ AT MEETING

Annual Meeting of Women's Institute Held at Lakefield.

ELECT OFFICERS.

LAKEFIELD, May 14. — The annual meeting of the Women's Institute was held on Wednesday afternoon in the Memorial Hall, with the president, Mrs. J. H. Payne in the chair. The ladies answered the roll-call by paying fees for the ensuing year. The secretary-treasurer, Mrs. Leslie Harrison, read her report. The Women's Institute year begins with the May meeting, so as the Lakefield branch was organized in July last, the report dealt with the activities of the past ten months. During that time dishes, spoons, and kitchen utensils had been purchased, a layette provided for a needy mother, Christmas cheer given to the inmates of the House of Refuge, and also to some persons in the village; a nursing class was held for the first two weeks of March, which had proved of inestimable value to the community national organization. It quilts and one quilt was completed for use in relieving cases of distress.

During the year nine meetings were held and several money-making entertainments held. The branch membership was 95, and the total receipts from all sources amounted to $116.94, and the expenditures to $70.71, leaving a balance on hand of $46.23.

A pleasant feature of the afternoon was the presence of Mesdames David Miller, Weller, Wallace Anderson, and Theodore Douglas, who are members of the Warsaw branch, which has such a splendid record for achievement and progress in its quarter century of uninterrupted activity.

Mrs. Miller took the chair for the election of officers, and gave a short address congratulating the Lakefield branch on its large membership, its

MUCH DAMAGE DONE DURING CHINA CRISIS

Latest Estimates of Casualties Place Total at More Than 2,250.

CIVILIANS KILLED.

Nationalist Armies Make Further Victories Over the Northerners.

TSINAN, May 14.—(A.P.)—The latest estimates of the casualties suffered by the Japanese and Chinese since the fighting broke out on May 31, place the total at more than 2,250.

The Japanese authorities have announced that 41 Japanese soldiers were killed and 189 wounded, while 16 civilians were known to have been killed. The Chinese estimate that 2,000 of their countrymen were killed or wounded, including 200 civilians.

Only the accuracy of fire of the Japanese artillery during the bombardment of the walled city kept down the civilian death toll, it was said. The crowded residential quarters escaped damage for the most part, the shells dropping almost entirely on the military points.

The Nationalist defenders of the native city, who are now said to have numbered only 1,500, stubbornly resisted the efforts of the Japanese to clear the city, despite the urgings of the Chinese Chamber of Commerce to evacuate. They made repeated bayonet charges against the hail of Japanese machine guns and rifle fire, with a resulting heavy death toll.

Nationalists Evacuate.

On the evening of May 10, General Fukuda, commanding the Japanese forces, gave non-combatants 12 hours to evacuate the city before ordering his forces to take it with high explosives.

By daybreak of the following morning, more than one-third of the population had left. The remaining Nationalist soldiers discarded their equipment and abandoned the city. By eight o'clock the Japanese had quietly taken control.

The Japanese action here appears to have split the Nationalist forces. Part of the Southern army has gone south to Tsiao where General Chaing Kai-Shek is believed to be making his headquarters. The remainder went to the North. All have now been expelled to beyond a six-mile radius of the city.

The Japanese have cut the Tientsin-Pukow railway in two places to prevent Nationalist reprisals. Since the Japanese have disavowed any plan to establish a military government, the responsibility for policing the city has fallen to the Chamber of Commerce and other organizations. It is understood here that Japan has decided to adopt three measures pending settlement of the Tsinan affair. The first is the occupation and direct operation of the Tsingtao-Tsinan railway; the second the occupation of the foreign settlement here and the last, the establishment of a neutral zone ten miles wide along the railway and around Tsinan.

Ho Yao-Tsu Dismissed.

SHANGHAI, May 14.—(A.P.)—The Nationalist government council yesterday passed a resolution of dismissal of General Ho Yao-Tsu, whose army was implicated in the collision with the Japanese troops at Tsinan.

Another Victory.

SHANGHAI, China, May 14 (Associated Press).—The Nationalist armies yesterday claimed another decisive victory over the Northerners which, if confirmed, again brings the front of the civil war into close proximity to a large foreign settlement.

General Yen Hsi-Shan, military governor of Shansi, claimed that his troops by a lightning advance have captured Tsanchow, taking prisoner 7,000 Northerners with large booty and arms and ammunition. Tsangchow is midway between Tientsin and Tehchow, which the Southern troops were said to have occupied without firing a shot a few days ago.

Apparently the Shansi forces allied with the Southerners had swept down the valley of the Puto Ho River and cut off the retreat of the defeated Northern forces from Shantung and the Southern part of Chihli province.

Southerners Advancing.

The Southern army is said to be advancing on Tientsin. To the rest of the world, the capture of the city would mean that a large foreign population had been placed in a precarious situation, such as resulted in the grave clashes at Nanking and Tsinan.

However, Tientsin is garrisoned with 8,600 foreign troops. About 4,000 are Americans, equipped with 20 airplanes, five tanks and five field guns. One thousand are British, 3,300 are French and 400 are Japanese. Most of the Japanese had been withdrawn for duty in Tsinan and other Shantung province points.

The foreign military commanders at Tientsin held a conference on

INSPECTION OF HIGH SCHOOL CADETS HELD AT LAKEFIELD

Boys Commended By Major Dupre For Fine Showing Made.

ALL IN UNIFORM.

Officers of Corps Decorated With Medals By Inspecting Official.

LAKEFIELD, May 14.—The annual inspection of the High School Cadets was held on Thursday afternoon and was very successful in every particular. The weather was ideal and the boys presented a neat, soldierly appearance which could not but rouse a spirit of pride and admiration in their schoolmates, their parents, their teachers and every citizen who took advantage of the general invitation to attend. This year the school colors, black and gold, were worn in the uniforms, and gave an individual touch to the trim khaki. Despite the short period of training, owing to the late spring, the corps was in almost every particular up to any other year's record. In 1915 the first cadet inspection was held at the Lakefield High school in those early days of May when Canadian hearts and homes were stirred by the achievements of Canada's sons overseas, and during the course of the Great War, the cadet corps, contributed many of its members to the cause of King and country.

The Lakefield corps has splendid traditions and has fully lived up to them in the past and the 1928 squad was no exception By rather a curious coincidence the captain for 1928 is the younger brother of the captain for 1915, W. J. Lemay.

The cadet officers for 1928 are: Company commander, Norman Lemay; second in command, Lemuel Panment; platoon commanders, Gordon Northey and Harry Sherin; quarter master, Gordon Kidd; drummer, Ronald Kemp. The drum added greatly to the marching and also to the efficiency. The inspecting officer was Major Dupre, of Kingston, who reviewed the corps and commended them for their good appearance, their march past and also for the excellence of the Strathcona exercises. Captain Heron had told

MADOC LIBRARY WELL SUPPLIED

Books in Various Sections Are of High Quality and Good Variety.

5,409 CIRCULATION.

MADOC, May 14.—Situated above the post office on St. Lawrence street east, the Madoc public library serves its purpose well. Under the able management of Miss E. A. Crawford, librarian, some one hundred and twenty members are served and the calibre of the reading material, whether it be fiction, biography, history, poetry, or reference is uniformly high.

The library is divided into various sections, that headed "fiction" boasting some 782 volumes; "literature," which may be considered as more classical fiction, contains 1,234 books; juvenile, 368; biography, 168; voyages, 228; history, 291, while twelve volumes of "Makers of Canada" have been recently added. These will be placed in the history section. Science has 180 volumes, poetry 35, and religion 100.

According to records for the year 1927, the total number of books taken out was 5,409, some 120 members being responsible for this number. During the summer months, when schools are closed, the number of juvenile and youthful readers naturally increases, while in the autumn, winter and spring, adult readers are in the majority.

In addition to the "Makers of Canada" series, there were added, about the last week of March, some 45 volumes of fiction, four volumes of reference material, "World of To-day," five other history volumes, Lindbergh's "We," Lawrence's "Revolt in the Desert," and "Lawrence and the Arabs," by Robert Graves.

OPENING NATIONAL PARKS TO MOTORISTS

The building of first class motor highways and the provision of campsites and other facilities have served to make the Canadian national parks much more accessible to our own people, and it is a noticeable fact that Canadians are alive to the opportunities which are open to them: tourist records shows that a higher percentage of Canadians is visiting these great reserves each year.

GUARDING NATIONALS.

SHANGHAI, May 14. —(Canadian Press.)— Foreign forces prepared to guard their nationals today as Nationalist troops advanced on Tienstin, sixty miles south-east of Peking, their objective in the spring drive.

IN POLICE COURT

CAMPBELLFORD, May 14.—Sarah Sinclair appeared before Magistrate Payne on Saturday to answer to a charge of defamatory libel laid by the Crown under the criminal code. The charge arose out of two letters received by Mrs. Roy Varty, Havelock, which Sarah Sinclair is alleged to have written. W. F. Kerr, K.C., of Cobourg, appeared for the Crown. The accused elected to stand her own defence.

George Nicol, manager of the Bank of Montreal here, was the first witness called. He identified the handwriting of the letters by the peculiar spelling of the word "to," the unusual construction of the letters I and H, and the use of the word they where "the" was obviously the word intended.

Chief Light was called to say that he knew the defendant and had seen her write Exhibit A, which she had written in his office and at his request.

Mrs. Roy Varty identified the letters, one having been received June 26, 1927, and the other just before Valentine Day, about February 8, 1928. She knew who had written the second one since she had the writing in the first one for comparison and the first letter had been signed. The letters had been received through the Campbellford Post Office. Mr. and Mrs. Varty reside about two miles from Havelock, about fifteen miles from here.

After hearing all the evidence which was at hand, Magistrate Payne adjourned the case till 10.00 a.m. Saturday, May 19, when it is expected there will be more evidence to be heard.

Campbellford

CAMPBELLFORD, May 14.— The Rev. J. A. Kennedy, Omemee, and formerly of Calgary, Alberta, occupied the pulpit at St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church at both services yesterday.

Several members of the Town Council accompanied Mr. Hennerick in a tour of inspection of the streets in town where it was thought possible calcium chloride might be used in place of oil. No orders was given for the material, but one of the councillors who was on the tour expressed the opinion that an order for several tons would be given. Mr. Hennerick expects to be in town again in about ten days' time.

Whether or not Campbellford is to have a softball league this year will depend largely upon the issue of the meeting held in Riendeau's store tonight. The fate of hard ball in town will depend on what is done at the meeting of the baseball league to be held in Warkworth Library to-morrow (Tuesday) night.

HERE AND THERE

CAROL RULED BY SOVIET?

PARIS, May 14.—(Canadian Press.)—L'Echo De Paris to-day said there was every reason to believe that former Crown Prince Carol of Rumania has fallen into the toils of Moscow. The Soviet, the paper said, was in constant touch with Carol and manoeuvred him during his stay in France.

SOCIAL GATHERING HELD AT CAVAN

Under Auspices of Women's Institute — Program Presented by A.Y.P.A. of Perrytown.

CAVAN, May 14.—A very successful bazaar, supper and concert was held in Cavan Community Hall on Thursday evening, under the auspices of the Cavan Women's Institute. The bazaar was held in the afternoon, the hall being prettily decorated for the occasion in red and white. An attractive candy booth was in charge of the Misses Irene Howson and Helen Kennedy. The candy being principally home-made, was both nice in appearance and good to taste. Other articles, including horse radish, marmalade, were also for sale at the same booth. A long table in charge of Mesdames Howden, Carr and Armstrong, was filled in articles and garments of many kinds, towels, pillow cases, centre pieces, cushions, aprons, dresses, under slips, etc., everything being of good quality and found a ready sale. The ice cream was sold by the Misses Eileen Hunter and Lilian Syer. Mrs. Lloyd Sutton sold tickets and Mrs. R. Matchett collected them.

In the basement two long tables were laid for supper. The decorations were also in red and white, with blooming plants in the centre. The tables were in charge of Mrs. Elliott, Mrs. Fee, Mrs. Perrin and Mrs. Staples.

The program was given by the A.Y.P.A. of St. Paul's Anglican Church of Perrytown, and consisted of a play, "The Adventures of Grandpa," with an orchestra supplying music between acts. Their rector, the Rev. Mr. Crisall, of Gore's Landing, was with them, and read the following cast and gave the outline of the play.

Montgomery Ray, grandpa's grandson, E. Wilson; Tod Hunter, a young dancing master, V. Wilson; Otis Hammerhead, grandpa from Yellowhead, Ohio, A. Seymour-Taylor; Officer McCormick, who sees his duty and did it, Richard Gardiner; Lucy Hunter, or little wife, Mrs. P. C. Hanna; Dorothy May, just out of college, Miss Maretta Gray; Mrs. Pansy Hotshott, fair, fat and forty, Mrs. Richard Gardiner; Marie Riveau, a girl from Paris, Miss Victoria Wilson; Kloompy, twelve days from Copenhagen, Mrs. A. Seymour-Taylor.

The play was full of fun from beginning to end. The parts being exceedingly well taken, each one knowing his part thoroughly, doing away with prompting which often mars the effect of a good play.

The proceeds for the evening was $125.

Moon in her new apartments over the New Fire Hall, on May 11th. A specially large crowd were present to enjoy the fine musical program prepared by the committees in charge, and the social good time usually had at these interesting gatherings.

During the afternoon, Mrs. W. A. Bailey sang with excellent effect, "Take up thy Cross", and a piano solo by Miss Muriel Rousehorn was much enjoyed. A recitation by Rev. G. W. Rivers, "All for Jesus", was as usual well chosen and interesting. A ladies' chorus, "Closer to Thee", was given by Mesdames Maybee, Rivers, Henderson, and Miss Wood, and the Ladies' Orchestra very kindly furnished several numbers to the great enjoyment of all present. The orchestra consisted of Misses Ferguson, Foster, Ross and Schofield, with piano, violins, and banjo-ukelele.

Mrs. E. Tumelty and Mrs. M. Maybee presided at the tea tables, and Misses Ferguson and Rousehorn served assisted by Mrs. Hough and Miss Wood.

The floral decorations were beautiful daffodils kindly presented by Mr. William Hawthorne, and grown in his own garden.

The guests were received by Mrs. Moon and Mrs. L. Ashley. The assistant hostesses were Mesdames S. Ashley, Pringle, Wellman, A. Reid, Henderson and Dingman.

MISS DARLING CHOSEN HEAD

Elected President of the Junior Institute at Lakefield Village.

REVIEW ACTIVITIES.

LAKEFIELD, May 14.—Miss Lulu Darling was elected president of the Junior Institute at the annual meeting held in the rooms of the Canadian Legion on Wednesday afternoon with a good attendance present. A review of the year's activities showed progress made both in point of membership and work accomplished, and the spirit of enthusiasm which was shown at the meeting, was a forecast of even better things to come.

Miss Margaret Sanderson took the chair for the election of officers which resulted in the following: President, Miss Lulu Darling; first vice-president, Miss Mabel Mullen; second vice-president, Miss Irene Northey; secretary, Miss Edna Franklish; treasurer, Miss Marjorie Franklish; district director, Miss Ona Dunford; directors, Miss Genevieve Armstrong, Grace Bickell and Mary Nicholls; auditors, Misses Olive Dunford and Mabel Mullen.

Grove Cadet Inspection.

The annual inspection of "The Grove" cadets was held on Thursday, May 3, with Captain Heron as the inspecting officer. The corps was a creditable one, maintaining the past traditions of the school and giving a good account in all branches of the drill. There is genuine regret at the fact that Captain Heron is being removed from the 3rd Military District, as he has made many friends who, although they regret his departure, they rejoice in his well deserved promotion. His splendid personality was an inspiration alike to instructors and cadets.

Last Meeting Held.

The last regular meeting of the Ladies' Auxiliary to the Canadian Legion for the season, was held on Tuesday, May 8. The ladies will not meet again until the autumn unless at an emergency call.

Special Meeting Called.

A special meeting of the Woman's Institute will be held on Monday evening to discuss plans for an emergency call for relief work.

Mrs. Woodhouse was in Whitby on Thursday attending the funeral of her cousin.

Mrs. Langley spent Wednesday in Peterborough.

TWEED ACTIVE IN SPORT LINE

Softball, Hockey and Bowling Interest Residents at Various Seasons.

HAVE SPLENDID RINK

TWEED, May 14.—This village was formerly one of the leading baseball towns in this section of Ontario, but in late years a baseball team has been a thing of the past. The entering of Deloro into the Hastings County League and continual winning of the championship by the players who came to the mining village had a lot to do with the destroying of the baseball in this section of the country, according to old baseball enthusiasts of this village. Hockey still plays a big part in the sport of this village. Every winter a team is entered in the Hastings County Hockey Association, which is not affiliated with the O.H.A., and if the officials of the league have their way it never will be, for they claim under their own association they have just as much interest taken and a much longer season. One of the finest rinks in the country is situated here. It is a steel structure, excellent seating accommodation and is in every way one of the most up-to-date non artificial ice rinks. In the village is also a fine bowling green with an excellent club house. A softball association is being organized with the following officers: F. Hindle, president; Rev. W. P. Rogers, vice-president, and Jack Ryan, secretary-treasurer. Only Tweed teams are allowed to play in the association and the league will be made up of five teams: High School, Tweed Juniors, Steel Trough, East and West. M. Clark will be captain of the West team and Jack Orr captain of the East. An inside seat ball will be used and twelve players are the maximum number that any team can have.

LYRICS OF LIFE

SING ANYWAY.

I met a little colored man,
Much like his shoes, half black, half tan.
He shined a pair of shoes for me,
And sang a song so merrily,
I said, "I really understood
That trade was bad, it must be good."
"Uh, uh," he said, "it's slow to-day—
But then I just sing anyway."

He said, "That's all there is to do.
Two shines to-day, exactly two,
But two is twice as much as one,
And one is twice as much as none.
I'm always singing when I shine
A lot of shoes, when trade is fine;
And when the skies are kind of gray,
Well, then I just sing anyway."

Now, I was blue as blue could be,
For trade was rather bad with me.
I hadn't sold a single bill,
But I got up and said, "I will!"
When business isn't booming then
What shall we do about it, men?
I may not sell a thing to-day—
But then I'll just sing anyway!

HOROSCOPE

The Stars Incline, But Do Not Compel

(Copyright, 1928, McClure Syndicate)

FOR MONDAY, MAY 14, 1928.

Kindly stars rule today according to astrology, which finds that benefic aspects dominate.

This is pre-eminently a day in which women should push all their interests, avoiding the wastage of an hour.

The rule is fortunate for large organizations of women who will make their influence felt in political matters.

Much non-partisan agitation may be expected in the coming months when young women are to gain in leadership.

Fame is to come to a woman lawyer, it is prognosticated, and she will gain a tremendous following.

This should be a lucky wedding day, although it is likely to cause blindness to faults rather than lack of them.

Music is subject to a promising rule of the stars which seems to presage new uses for popular entertainment.

Astrologers foretell for summer concerts the same sort of popularity that movies enjoyed in their early days.

This is not a lucky day for theatres for both those that over pictures and those that offer the spoken drama are to face puzzling conditions.

More floods and storms may be expected this month, for the eclipse of the 19th brings ominous signs.

Southern Mexico, Indian and China are to suffer from the effects of the eclipse, astrologers predict.

Persons whose birthdate it is should avoid annoyance through money transaction, if possible.

Children born on this day usually have good heads for industrial projects. They are generally enterprising but inclined to take big risks.

(Copyright, 1928, McClure Syndicate)

FOR TUESDAY, MAY 15, 1928.

This is not a fortunate day, according to astrology, for sinister planetary influences are strong.

There is a fairly good rule for business projects unless they are connected with women.

Merchants and manufacturers should be cautious at this time, but the seers predict great profits for them later.

New fabrics are to be woven and new modes introduced that will be profitable to many persons.

Chemists are subject to the best possible direction of the stars and they are to bring many boons to humanity through their scientific discoveries, it is foretold.

Growers of wool and weavers of it have the forecast of much profit in the coming winter when world events will cause increased demand.

This is a sinister sway for domestic happiness, since it is believed to cause men to be lacking in sympathy or understanding.

Luck does not smile on this as a wedding day, for many quarrels and even divorce may be expected, astrologers announce.

Physical power rather than intellectual supremacy will be admired while this rule prevails. Sportsmen should benefit greatly.

Interest in engineering projects should be strong today and it is indicated that gigantic bridges as well as building will be constructed, especially in the West.

Again a progressive and militant political party is foretold by the seers and it will enlist many women, if the stars are rightly read.

Persons whose birthdate it is may expect big events in the comingyear which should be very fortunate.

Children born on this day may be too impulsive for their own good. The subjects of this sign usually have first rate business sense.

Why We Do What We Do.

WHY WE HAVE PAIN

By Mehran K. Thomson, Ph.D.
(Author, The Springs of Human Action)

Pain is the signal of danger. Something is wrong. Without this warning we might persist and get hurt or killed. If you felt no pain by coming in contac with fire you might burn up before you realized what was happening to you.

Pain is not a feeling. It is a sensation. The distinction is that in case of a feeling you have a vague notion of pleasantness or unpleasantness whereas in pain you have a distinct sensory experience. Feelings are not localized and have no specific organs. Pain, like every other sense such as seeing, hearing, etc., is localized in pain calls mostly on the skin and scattered through out the body. They are mostly found on the surface because there is where they are most needed as watch dogs of our health and safety.

Another reason why pain has been confused with feeling is that most pains are unpleasant and unpleasantness is a feeling. Feelings of pleasantness and unpleasantness are the accompaniments of all sensory experience of everything we see, hear, feel, touch. Some colors look good to us, others look ugly; musical notes are pleasant, scraping, shrill, loud noises are decidedly unpleasant; soft, smooth, velvety objects are plesaant to the touch; clammy, cold, ragged, sharp, uneven surfaces are unpleasant.

Although most pains are unpleasant some are neutral and a very few are positively pleasant. If you cannot think of a pleasant pain recall the sensation of poking a sore thumb to enjoy the pain.

Pain, then is not a feeling. It is a sensation. It is usually accompanied by a feeling of unpleasantness but may be neutral or even pleasant at times. We have pain to warn us of approaching danger and harm. Pain is our greatest friend in the struggle for existence. In avoiding pain we are compelled to remove the deadly causes.

THE CHURCHES

ST. PETER'S CATHEDRAL, SATURDAY EVENING.

"Mary, our Mother," was the subject of the sermon preached at St. Peter's Cathedral on Saturday evening by the Rev. J. O'Hara, C.S.S.R., in connection with one of the last exercises of the women's mission, which closed on Sunday afternoon. For this special sermon, the altar of Our Lady of Lourdes was converted into a shrine to the Blessed Virgin Mary. A very beautiful setting was contrived by the use of a profusion of snow-white flowers and lighted candelabra, with a large "M" outlined in twinkling votive lights, directly in front of the shrine. The church was filled to capacity. The children's choir sang the Benediction music and a procession of over one hundred tiny little girls, dressed in white, with white veils, filed down the centre aisle after the sermon, singing hymns to Our Lady.

Quoting from the Magnificat, the Blessed Virgin Mary's hymn of praise to the Almighty, "My soul doth magnify the Lord: My spirit hath rejoiced in God my Saviour," the Rev. Father O'Hara preached a very eloquent and beautiful sermon.

"We do not give Mary the honor that we give to the angels," he said, "because she is queen of the angels and deserves more honor than we give to her subjects. But she was only a creature, therefore we do not give her the honor accorded the Creator. God chose Mary above all other creatures, to be His mother. He was captivated by her exquisite purity, which had remained untarnished from the moment of her conception. Not the slightest imperfection ever sullied her soul.

"Mary was a source of comfort and of joy to Christ during his life on earth and He did not turn a deaf ear to her requests. His first public miracle at the marriage feast of Cana was in response to her petition.

"Mary is also our mother. A mother's love has ever been the greatest source of happiness to her children. Our mothers have always been our best friends. No hand can soothe the fevered brow like a mother's hand and no voice can be more consoling in hours of tribulation.

"We honor and love our Mother Mary, who loves us even more than a natural mother, and we can honor her most by being faithful to her and by calling on her in all our needs. We should take her for our exemplar and make her our model in every walk of life. We should show our appreciation of her by striving to imitate her life. Perhaps our own dear mothers have been called to God. What would we not give to have them back with us, even for an hour. But we can always turn to Mary and have unbounded confidence in her love for us and her desire to assist us.

"When we are sick, we call in the best physician available and when we are involved in a lawsuit, we turn to the cleverest lawyer for assistance. So, when we wish to make our salvation secure, we turn to Mary, who alone has all power before the throne of her Divine Son. As a child turns to its mother for help, so we can always turn to her.

"My dear Catholic women, you can rest assured that Mary will never turn a deaf ear to the voice of your supplication. A devotion to Mary will prove efficacious in saving the soul from damnation.

"The young women especially need a mother's loving care. The world is full of snares. It is only by the special grace of God that a young woman can go through life to-day and not stain her soul by some sin of impurity. To keep your souls spotless, you must have a devotion to Mary."

Repeating after the missionary the words of consecration, the little girls at the front of the church then declared themselves as desirous of being true children of the Blessed Virgin Mary and the women in the church followed with the same words of consecration to the Mother of God.

Sunday Morning.

"I will no longer call you servants, but friends," was the text of an inspiring and very striking sermon preached at the half past ten o'clock Mass at St. Peter's Cathedral yesterday morning, by the Rev. Father Cloran, C.S.S.R.

When man came fresh and untarnished from the hand of God, his Creator looked at him and saw that he was lonely. "It is not good for man to be alone," God said, and set about remedying the condition. "In our hearts, there is always the craving for companionship. We need friends. They satisfy the longing of our nature. But when they prove false, nothing in life can be more bitter, and friends also have their limitations, no matter how faithful they may be.

"If thou hast not a friend, thou canst not live happily, and if thou makest not a friend of Jesus, thy life will indeed be desolate.

"The only friend who is true and lasting is our Lord and Saviour, Jesus Christ. In the beginning of time, man was created as God's servant and all through the Old Testament, this remained true. We come across in the Scripture such sayings by the the Almighty as 'My servant Abraham, my servant Moses.' But man from the beginning disliked the term and rebelled against it. The first sin was the sin of rebellion against the term of servant. But, though the angels who committed that sin were hurled from Paradise by God, when man also rebelled, He looked down with a pitying and merciful eye upon His creature and He decided to put Himself on terms of equality with man.

"'I will call ye servants no longer. Ye are my friends,' said Christ to His apostles on the evening of the Last Supper. And he said also: 'Greater love hath no man than this, that he lay down his life for his friend.'

"Christ concealed His divinity from His disciples so that they might not go in fear and awe of Him. Down through the ages of the world, He has lavished His love on each individual, but do we really consider Christ as our Friend?

"When you commit sin, you wound and hurt Him. You actually crown Him with thorns and beat Him with whips. Is that the way to treat a friend?

"Friendship also calls for frequent intercourse. Do you think of dropping into the church as you pass by to have a word with Jesus in the Blessed Sacrament? You say you are lonely, that the failures of life are beginning to press heavily down upon you. Why not come to your Friend with your troubles? 'There stood One in your midst and you knew Him not.' Do you practise devotion to the cross of Christ? If you don't look upon it as the symbol of your salvation, then you don't love Christ as you should. The moment that a person is convinced that Christ loves him, then he begins to practise virtue. It was her strong conviction of the love of Christ for herself that led the Little Flower of Jesus to such a wonderful life of piety and devotion and self-sacrifice. If you are a friend of Jesus, He will make you happy in this life and you will be assured of an eternity of happiness with the angels and the saints."

Men's Mission Opens

St. Peter's Cathedral was filled at 7.30 last evening for the beginning of the men's Mission, conducted by the three Redemptorist Fathers of Toronto—Fathers Cloran, O'Hara and Keough. It was a record attendance and a splendid sight to see the body and galleries of the large church completely filled with men. "We are glad to see such a large crowd here," said Father Keough before the Rosary, "and we want this large crowd to continue. The Women's Mission was a wonderful success and we want the Men's Mission to be just as large. We want to see this Cathedral packed every night."

Rev. James A. Cloran, C.S.S.R., missionary in charge, who preached several masterpieces last week to the women, was the speaker of the evening; his topic being Salvation. The reverend speaker referred to the soul as being made by God and belonging to God and also said there were two homes in the next world awaiting the soul—a home of happiness or a home of woe. It was the work of man in this life to win for himself his eternal home in Heaven. "What does it profit a man to win the whole world and suffer the loss of his immortal soul?"

Call of St. Alphonsus

"In a certain city of Italy there lived a very learned and clever young lawyer. His sole ambition in life was to become famous. Once a very difficut case fell to his lot, and he felt if he were successful in defending it his name would be made, his fame secure. To this end he gave himself no rest. He worked night and day. At last the much longed-for day came. The court room was thronged to the doors and all eyes were upon the youthful lawyer. His address was a masterpiece. The more he spoke, the more he won the admiration of the crowd. But, alas, in the course of his reasoning, his opponent noticed a flaw. Quick to seize the opportunity, he jumped to his feet and exposed the fallacy of the young man's argument.

"In an instant all his hopes were dashed to the ground. The interruption was so unexpected, he was completely bewildered. He tried to speak, but the words would not come. The sympathy of the fickle crowd soon gave way to apolause and cries of joy for the victorious opponent. The decision was given and our young lawyer lost.

"The sting of shame and defeat were too much for him. He rushed from the court room, locked himself in his room, saw no one or took no food for three days. In his soul began a struggle. He wondered if he should continue in the law profession. How far, he thought, would this thirst for fame and glory lead him? And a small voice kept saying to him: 'What doth it profit a man to gain the whole world and suffer the loss of his soul?' It was the voice of God. He heard it and understood the meaning. He realized his folly. He left the world, entered a monastery, founded the Order of Redemptorists and became one of the greatest saints of the church, the great St. Alphonsus Liguori.

The Lure of the World

"The world has not changed since the time of St. Alphonsus. It still has its false charms and attractions. Nor has human nature changed. It still has a desire for what is hollow, unreal and unsubstantial. Men and women in city, town or country are still tempted to seek after the things of this life. If it is not honors, it is riches. If it is not riches, it is pleasures, and all more or less at the expense of virtue and right. When will the day come for us to realize, as St. Alphonsus did, the vanity of things earthly? When will the day come for us to understand the supreme importance of one thing and only one thing—the saving of our immortal soul?

"Has it come already? If so, thanks be to God. If not, when shall it be? For our part, we hope and pray it to be no later than the present mission. Let us begin to realize the vanity of earthly things this very night, this very hour. The object of the first sermon of the mission is to induce you to realize the importance of your salvation and to realize it as quickly as possible.

Our Two-fold Life.

"'What doth it profit a man to gain the whole world and suffer the loss of his own soul.' To any thinking person it must sound strange to have to be warned repeatedly of the existence of his immortal soul. Yet it is the great fault of losing sight of this truth that lies at the root of all our trouble. Look! we were made to live a two-fold life. One that will end with our latest breath, the other that will never end, but that will last for all eternity. Now one of these two is incomparably superior to the other.

"But strange to say the inferior life absorbs all our attention. Of the twenty-four hours of each day, barely a few minutes of even that are given to the thought of eternity. Of the seven days of each week, six days and a greater part of the seventh are given to the business and cares of the bodily life. Is it because you do not believe in the soul? As a matter of fact you do believe. Then why is it? It is simply because you do not sufficiently reflect.

Reason For Man's Existence.

"Christian men, you were not created for any purely temporary happiness. You were created for an eternal happiness. God created your soul immortal and He created you for Himself. St. Augustine says we were made for God, we were made by God and our souls will never be happy until they find their rest with God. We were created to live forever. Yes, and we do not depend on reason for this belief. It is the principal truth of our holy faith. It is consequently something we cannot be mistaken about. There can be no fear of the slightest error in this regard.

"False prophets may arise in the persons of certain philosophers and may tell us we are wrong, but their words will not affect in the least the truth of God's decree. Men may even defy God and attempt to destroy themselves with knife or revolver. It is all in vain. God created them to live forever and they shall live forever.

"Close upon this truth comes another. Man will live forever, but where? In one of two places in heaven or in hell. There is no middle state for man to live eternity. What an awful thought!"

"THE GARDEN WHICH GROWS IN YOUR YARD...ALL YEAR ROUND"

"Every Monday the backyards on our street are like flower gardens—when the clotheslines bloom.

"But pretty colored clothes do fade! To take the worry out of such tasks as this, I hunted for a soap which I could recommend to housewives for washing colored clothes. After hundreds of tests I have found it.

"Princess Soap Flakes will not cause colored clothes to fade if they are washable at all. Safe to use for anything which you can put in plain tepid water—will not hurt your daintiest, filmiest silks, and are the most effective soap I know for the regular washing. Use Princess Soap Flakes for dishes, too, floors, wood-work, any washing task. They are not expensive. A little goes a long way. It pays to buy good soap not made cheap by harsh chemical filler or harmful free caustic which are so hard on the clothes and on your hands."

Harold Stone Gives Hastings County Police Great Deal of Trouble.

BELLVILLE, May 14. — Canadian Press. — Harold Stone was charged on Friday afternoon before Magistrate Jarman with breaking and entering and theft, and being found guilty was sentenced to seven years in the Kingston penitentiary.

A great deal of trouble was experienced by Officers Thompson, McCoy and Gray in effecting the capture of this man, who after committing these offences took to the woods with his wife and small child, and for nearly two weeks kept the officers at bay. When the man was arrested he was armed but through the efforts of the police his arrest was made.

It is believed that Stone was connected with the burning of the Hubbel store at Paudash lake in which a los of $100,000 was incurred, but no charge of arson was made.

Paying cash for what one wants is a good way to break the habit of wanting too much.

All things come to those who wait. But you won't have to wait so long if you tip liberally.

The road to good health lies through the Kidneys. If they are kept strong and well all the impurities are strained out of the blood.

Dodd's Kidney Pills keep the Kidneys in good condition to do their work of cleansing and purifying the blood. Weak, Nervous, Run-down women should give Dodd's Kidney Pills a trial at once. They will give speedy relief.

DANGEROUS PRACTICES.

Chief Constable Newhall, as one step in the campaign to reduce the traffic accident hazards in Peterborough, has announced that members of the police force have been instructed to secure the names of bicyclists who are in the habit of carrying a passenger on their handle-bars, and that offenders will be brought before the magistrate.

Chief Newhall says that this practice is very prevelent in Peterborough, and in view of the heavy motor traffic, he regards it as particularly dangerous, having noticed several narrow escapes from serious accidents that have resulted from cyclists making their wheels carry two.

The warning should be enough to eliminate this hazard.

A cyclist on streets where traffic is heavy cannot afford to take chances and handicap himself with a passenger, and in view of the decision of the police department to take action, the practice should be discontinued.

Another dangerous habit that will also have to be cut out is that indulged in by many riders of allowing themselves to be towed along by the side of a motor car or truck.

DEADLY PLANTS.

The death of a Toronto boy as the result of eating the root of a water hemlock plant, a most deadly poison, has led to warnings being broadcast over the radio and through the newspapers to children everywhere as to the danger of eating unknown plants.

There are a number of poisonous plants in Ontario, the water hemlock and the toadstool being the most virulent, and while cases like the recent tragedy in Toronto are fortunately a rarity, this fatality brings home the thought that other children have escaped a similar fate merely by chance and not because the danger was realized.

The father of the Toronto victim is anxious that others may be protected from this little thought-of peril, and has asked that the warning be widely distributed in order that parents may instruct their children of the danger that may lie in putting roots and plants that they know nothing about into their mouths.

It is to be hoped that the advice will be generally acted upon by parents; a very real danger exists, and children should be informed of it in a manner that will leave a lasting impression on their minds.

BASEBALL GROUNDS.

A situation has developed in regard to baseball grounds that is giving some concern to those who realize how desirable it is that Peterborough should have available ample facilities for this popular sport.

Although James Stevenson Park is at the service of ball clubs without expense for several nights a week, City League organizations would rather use the Exhibition Grounds, with the result that the accommodation there promises to be severely taxed.

It cannot be expected that the Exhibition Board should continue to provide playing facilities for most of Peterborough's teams without enough revenue being forthcoming to carry the necessary expense.

Nor can the City Council be expected to go on providing a baseball grounds at James Stevenson Park if the local clubs refuse to make use of the facilities there.

If the present trend continues it may eventually develop that the Stevenson Park grounds will be no longer available, and the result will be that the Exhibition diamond will be monopolized by the clubs capable of producing the most revenue, leaving other organizations out in the cold.

City League clubs would be well advised not to create conditions that would justify the City Council in abandoning James Stevenson Park as a ball grounds.

Only the fact that the senior ball club operates there now is saving this fine baseball plant for Peterborough's teams, but instead of trying to sell the idea that the park is indispensable the present actions of some of the local clubs is having quite the opposite effect.

Such clubs had better decide to make some use of the park now or the time may soon come when it is no longer available, and then baseball will find itself in a tight corner.

PRIVILEGES—WITHOUT RESPONSIBILITIES.

If we interpret correctly the theory of the Toronto Star, Canada is now a nation in her own right, merely attached to the British Commonwealth of Nations to enjoy the privileges of membership in such an Empire without accepting any of its responsibilities and receiving the protection of the British navy without contributing to its upkeep.

To the Star apparently all is right with the world so long as Canada can select her own Governor-General, have her own flag, make her own treaties, and send her own ambassadors all over the globe.

It doesn't matter that when Canadian missionaries have to be rescued out of China it is the British marine and the British sailor who have to do the trick.

It is of no consequence that should our ambassadors abroad need protection the rescue expedition will wear the blue of the British navy.

The school the Star speaks for is quite willing to let Britain police the Empire and to have Canadians the world over shelter under the Union Jack—so long as it doesn't cost Canada anything, and so long as we can show the universe all the trappings of nationhood with none of the responsibilities that usually go with such a status.

Apparently people who think that way are trying to put Canada into a position as indefensible as would be that of a young man who on reaching his twenty-first birthday says to his father something like this: "From now on I'm going to be my own boss. I'm of age, have a good job with a nice salary, and I'm going to handle my own affairs and have something to say about how things are run around here. Of course, I'll continue to live at home, enjoy the shelter of your roof, drive your car and that sort of thing, and still be one of the family, but I'm not going to pay a cent of board or contribute anything to keep up the home. I'll show the neighbors you can't order me around, but we won't sever all our connections, Dad—I'll let you pay all the bills."

ON THE BENCH AND OFF.

Whatever they may gain in the shape of increased emolument, the judges who appeared before the special committee, appointed by Parliament to inquire into the adequacy of their salaries, lost neither in dignity nor in prestige. Hedged around, as they are, by traditions, precedents and the sense of aloofness that is associated with their elevated position, it required some courage on the part of the representatives of the judiciary to descend from the bench and submit themselves for judgment at the bar of public opinion.

Apart from a consciousness that they were, perhaps, violating the old legal axiom that a judge must not be a witness in his own case, they had to overcome a natural reluctance to cast aside their robes of office, and appear as suppliants for financial assistance. They had, moreover, to contend with a sentiment that was not wholly favorable to their claim, and that, in some quarters, was obviously hostile. Accustomed to trying others, they were in the novel position of being themselves tried. And, what seemed to some of them the greatest ordeal of all, they had to face the stern, magisterial authority of Miss Agnes MacPhail.

Judges and distinguished members of the Bar, before whom many a litigant or criminal had trembled, appeared to be overcome with awe and terror in the august presence, and under the forensic fire, of the fair member for Southeast Grey, who seemed to relish the privilege and opportunity of having a fling at the Bench and Bar without the risks attendant upon contempt of court. Her respect for law, she frankly avowed, was not as high as her respect for the struggling farmer and the poor worker: the dignity which could not live on nine or twelve thousand a year was, she averred, fiddlesticks, and as for judges who were starving on a salary of fifteen thousand per annum, she knew of wheat raisers and pig breeders who would gladly take their places for a third of the money.

It was in vain that one of Canada's most distinguished jurists, in his suavest manner, suggested that, of course, judges were not usually picked from the farmyard, that they had to be trained at the Bar, that forensic acumen was something different from bucolic efficiency, and that certain positions in life demanded certain standards of living. Miss MacPhail clung adamantly to the position that judges, however dignified, were no better than their fellows lower in the social scale, and that class distinctions were an abomination which the administrators of law and justice should be the last to justify.

But in spite of the lady member's critical attitude and unkindly comment, the judges and their supporters from the Bar Association emerged from the ordeal a little uncomfortable, perhaps, but with their dignity unruffled and their prestige undimmed. And those of the rest of us who wish to apply common sense to this subject have merely to tell ourselves that if we want good judges, we had better pay enough to permit a good lawyer to persuade himself to give up the larger money he can make at the Bar.

Miss MacPhail should carry her argument further. A judge, she thinks, should not get more than a farmer; a farmer manages to live. Then why should a farmer get more than a laborer? A laborer manages to live. And why should a laborer get more than a tramp? A tramp manages to live.

Based, as it is, on the British tradition, Canada has every reason to be proud of her judiciary. The system of political appointments is not above criticism, as many jurists themselves acknowledge, and there is something to be said in support of the view expressed before the Parliamentary Committee that nominees for the Bench should have the approval of the Bar societies as a precedent to their appointment.

But as the Minister of Justice pointed out, while not without certain anomalies and dubious practices, the judicial system in operation in Canada has worked out, on the whole, very well. It was the testimony of Mr. Lafleur, K.C., that looking back over a period of nearly half a century at the Bar he could not recall a single case of impeachment of a Canadian judge. That is a record which should command the respect of even Miss MacPhail, and one which merits the encouragement and adequate reward of those who are called upon to maintain it.—Ottawa Journal.

CATTLE, GRAIN AND PRODUCE

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE

MONTREAL, Que., May 14 (Canadian Press).—The export trade in grain here Saturday was quiet owing to the poor response from foreign buyers to the offers made by local exporters.

Owing to the weakness that developed in oat futures at Winnipeg the local market for cash oats was easier and prices were reduced one cent per bushel.

Extreme dullness marked the trade in Spring and Winter wheat flour but prices were unchanged.

The millfeed market was moderately active with a firm undertone. A fair trade was done in standard grades of rolled oats and prices were steady.

A feature of the egg trade was the stronger feeling that developed for fresh extras and prices were marked up one cent per dozen. The demand for all grades continued good. The receipts Saturday were 4,215 cases.

The demand for butter continued good and a firm business was done at unchanged prices. The receipts were 1,315 packages.

A moderate amount of business was done in cheese owing to the fact that English importers are commencing to show a little more interest in the fodder make at the present level on the market. The receipts were 1,551 boxes.

GOD'S MINUTE

I waited patiently for the Lord, and He inclined unto me, and heard my cry. He brought me up out of an horrible pit, out of the miry clay, and set my feet upon a rock, and established my goings. And he hath put a new song in my mouth, even praise unto our God; many shall see it, and fear, and shall trust in the Lord. Blessed is that man who maketh the Lord his trust.--Ps. 40:1-4.

Our Father, in Thee every family in Heaven and earth is named. We thank Thee for our own home and fireside. We thank Thee for the great family of mankind. For ourselves, and for all our brothers and sisters in all the world we pray Thee this day. Send us forth to our own work with willing hearts and ready hands, and fit us and all men for the burdens we must bear this day. Bring us to our home this night at the end of fruitful toil and at the day's end grant us rest and quiet sleep. Accept our thanks for all Thy mercies to us and to all men, and give to us the added blessing of grateful hearts. We ask in the name, as we seek to pray in the Spirit, of our Lord Jesus Christ. Amen,

A Thought

"THE POWER OF CHARACTER."
(By Velma Runnels, Campbellford.)

How many disappointed hopes lie about the path of every human life! After we are disappointed, we complain of life, yet flee from death. Why is it that some see life as a cruelty, and death a fearful cavern? It is because their character is weak and shaken. When a person's character weakens then the pride of his power sinks, and his once boundless knowledge becomes the tide of ruin.

Does one ever stop to think what the power of a strong character has on the staggering clutching humanity? Strong character is the light of a hidden glory. One does not have to have wealth and fame to hold a powerful character that will act as an attractive power to others. The king of Israel who possessed wealth of intellect and all the enjoyments of this life sums up the result of his life in one word: "Vanity." The Roman Emperor, who had commanded a world, said when he came to die: "I was everything, and have found that everything is nothing."

Character is everything. What is wealth and fame if one does not possess a clean, Christian character. When we throw ourselves away we are forgetting what examples we are setting for others. Surely we don't want to ruin our friends' names and leave the ignorant at a standstill.

Write your character on your face, and do not let your life be represented as a constant deception. The charm of a powerful, Christian character shows us a paradise of happiness. The energies of manhood must not be feeble, for to avoid evil demands power and strength in character.

A man is mad who rushes past the beautiful things and stretches out his hand for honor and fame; stirring up all kind of strife. He loses his character because he is laboring to attain the attractive end.

Character is powerful if it is strong in God. So build for yourself a character that will lead people to the truth and nobler things. Every deed well done is better material for the kingdom of God.

CROP REPORT

Below will be found a brief synopsis of telegraphic reports received at the head office of the Bank of Montreal from its branches. The branch managers have complete and intimate knowledge of each local situation and are in close touch with crop conditions in all sections of the districts mentioned.

General—Summary.

Seeding of wheat is proceeding rapidly throughout the Prairie Provinces and with favorable conditions in every district, the indications are that a larger area will be put under crop than last year. In Quebec, field work is from 10 to 20 days behind the average of recent years, and is not yet general. The season is also about two weeks later in Ontario. Seeding is well advanced in the western part of the province but in Eastern Ontario the land is still too wet to work. In the Maritime Provinces, average weather conditions have prevailed, and some work on the land is under way. In British Columbia, unusually cold and wet weather has made the season about three weeks late, but prospects now are favorable.

Prairie Provinces.

Alberta soil conditions generally hroughout the province are satisfactory with sufficient moisture for germination. Indications are that the total acreage will be slightly increased. Seeding operations are general. Alberta Northeastern Area—Wheat seeding is 15 per cent to 25 per cent completed under favorable conditions. Alberta Southeastern Area—Weather conditions are good and 25 per cent to 35 per cent of the wheat acreage has been seeded. Alberta Western Area—Wheat seeding is well advanced, with 35 per cent to 45 per cent finished. The sugar beet acreage will show little change. 80 per cent of the crop has been sown. Saskatchewan—Seeding started a week later than the ten-year average but work is being caught up under fine weather conditions. The acreage sown to wheat will probably be about 10 per cent more than last year, seeding of coarse grains has not yet commenced. Saskatchewan Northern Area—The soil is in excellent condition and wheat seeding is proceeding rapidly in ideal weather. Saskatchewan Southern Area—Conditions are favorable and wheat seeding on summer fallow is practically completed. Manitoba—Wheat seeding is proceeding earlier than last year, from 25 per cent to 60 per cent has been completed in the North, and 85 per cent to 100 per cent in the South. An increased acreage under crop is expected. The seeding of coarse grains is under way and conditions generally are favorable.

Province of Quebec.

Excessive moisture and continued cold weather have delayed the progress of farm work, but operations are gradually becoming general and on higher and lighter lands seeding will soon be possible if the weather continues favorable. Grass pasture and fruit trees wintered well. The season's production of maple syrup is reported to be light.

Province of Ontario.

Generally speaking, fall wheat came through the winter fairly well, although cold winds and frosty nights during April have had a backward effect. In the counties bordering on Lake Erie, fall wheat is a failure and many fields have been reseeded with spring grains. Old meadows are in good condition but the alfalfa is not promising, and some fields have been ploughed under. No serious damage has been done to fruit trees by frosts and in the Niagara district, cherry trees are now in full bloom. Pastures are backward.

Maritime Provinces.

Weather conditions are favorable and seeding should soon be general. The ground is in good condition. Grass pasture and fruit trees wintered well. The ground is in good condition. Grass pasture and fruit trees wintered well. The potato acreage is expected to be somewhat in excess of a five-year acreage, turnip acreage too will be somewhat increased.

Province of British Columbia.

While much seeding of grain has yet to be done, early planting looks promising. A good hay crop seems assured. The tomato acreage will show an increase but less is being planted to potatoes. Present indications are favorable to heavy crops in both tree and small fruits. Pasturage is excellent.

THE CATCHACOMA LAKES

The Rushworth Young Men's Club of Toronto is rushing its extensive club house which measures 80 x 80. Heavy truck-loads have been coming in to Gull Lake for it. The Kawartha Highlands, which are to Ontario what the highlands are to Scotland, are coming in to their own. They begin at Catchacoma and run to Algonquin Provincial Park.

The Kawartha Tourist Company has put Mrs. Lebner in charge of Westlake's for the season, Mr. Westlake having gone to Peterborough for treatment. Miss Westlake is on a visit to Toronto. It is expected that the beautiful sand beach and open camping-grounds will attract a number of health-seekers who will get their meals at Westlake's house.

Hugh Cochrane drove up a large number of cattle for his ranch on Friday. He will be full up with guests this summer.

George Nainor will have a number of fine cows on tap for cottagers.

It is a matter of general remark by strangers that the air up here is like air from another country or the Swiss mountains. Meals for day visitors will be available this summer, it is understood. Many come up and spend the day at the beautiful lakes boating and bathing and picnicing.

The Windovers are very busy preparing for a big season.

15th JUNE, 1928

EXPLANATION OF
THE ACT AND REGULATIONS

WHO MUST REGISTER

Every person who wishes to deal in securities will apply for registration unless he comes within the exemptions. See advertisement in next issue.

A. BROKERS doing a general brokerage business will apply for registration Form A; a broker doing business by himself may apply as an individual, but partnerships or companies may apply for registration as such. If the Attorney General approves of the partnership or company the partners or officers need not register separately. Branch Managers should always apply separately for individual registration. Partners or officers of companies will apply for individual registration if the partnership or company is not approved. The fee for all Form A applications is $25.

B. COMPANIES, SYNDICATES and other non-brokerage organizations selling securities of their own issue only will apply for registration Form B. Companies, if approved by the Attorney General, may be registered as such, thus relieving all officials except branch managers of separate registration. Officials of companies not so approved, and officials of syndicates and other unincorporated organizations, will apply for individual registration. The fee in all Form B applications is $25.

C. SALESMEN, whether representing general brokers or organizations selling securities of their own issue will apply for registration Form C. All salesmen must be registered individually before dealing in securities. The fee for salesmen whose employer is registered is $5, otherwise $25. Salesmen having no employer must register as brokers, fee $25.

OTHER EMPLOYEES not usually dealing in securities may be temporarily exempted from registration either as a class or individually. Thus, accountants, clerks, telephone girls, typists and the like need not be registered unless the Registrar requires, even although they may take an occasional order or otherwise do some act in furtherance of a transaction. Applicants will state what classes of employees they desire to have exempted, or may name individuals, describing their duties.

BONDS

SURETY BONDS from surety companies will only be required from salesmen whose employers do not register, but may be called for from any applicant, even after registration.

The $500 BONDS are to be signed by individuals, partners or companies in all cases, but not by salesmen. If a company official is registered separately a $500 bond will be required of the company.

REGISTRATION will ordinarily be completed within ten days from date of receipt of application form properly filled in. It may be temporary if further information is required. Receipts for fees and letters notifying of registration or not will be sent out. Exhibition of them to the public will be an offence.

Applicants will receive a copy of the Act and Regulations with the Forms.

Women who FADE because CONSTIPATION snatches away their BLOOM

UNDERMINING the health of millions is the growing plague of constipation. You may be a victim. You may be kept just below par and yet Not Know It!

Lack of the right kind of roughage in the diet is one of the main causes of constipation. Post Bran Flakes provides that necessary roughage. Taken every day, it keeps the normal person regular and helps those afflicted by constipation back to regularity. You'll like the tempting flavor in each crisp, golden flake.

Make this two weeks' test and note the difference

Constipation must not be neglected. Start a two weeks' test now. Order a package of Post's Bran Flakes from your grocer.

Start by eating a dish of Post's Bran Flakes for breakfast. Eat it as a cereal with milk or cream. You will like it as well as any cereal you ever tasted. Do this every day for two weeks. We predict you will find a real difference in the way you feel, and that you have been "regular" all the time.

But don't stop at the end of two weeks. Eat Post's Bran Flakes every morning for health and regularity. Post's Bran Flakes is sold by all grocers in a wax-wrapped package. Ready to eat.

It is dangerous to experiment with patent medicines and drug laxatives. They bring only temporary relief and may make matters much worse. Ordinary cases of constipation brought about by too little roughage in the diet should yield to Post's Bran Flakes. If your case is abnormal, don't experiment. Consult a competent physician.

SOCIAL GATHERING HELD AT CAVAN

met in the Parish Hall on Wednesday afternoon, with the president, Miss Annie Sisson, conducting the meeting. During the business session, Miss B. Touchbourne, Mrs. T. Sisson, and Mrs. Robert M. Howden were appointed as delegates to the annual W.A. convention in Toronto.

The society is preparing a play which they hope to stage at the annual garden party. This was practiced during the afternoon.

The serving of lunch by Miss Touchbourne and Mrs. Thacker and a social half-hour brought the meeting to a close.

good work and the splendid classes held. She expressed herself strongly on the value of the Women's Institute to the community—it counts for good not only for material good, and is a community national organization. It is non-denominational, and now with branches in thirty-three countries it is really world-wide, and if rightly conducted the Women's Institute can be a great factor in making for world peace. Of course, in branches misunderstanding creeps in often because of a different viewpoint and often because of women listening to gossip. When you elect your officers, stand by them and back them up in their efforts to further the interests of the branch. Treat people at their face value, and don't take other people's viewpoint, and above all, don't look for motives. Mrs. Miller related several anecdotes which proved her points.

1928 Officers.

The officers were elected as follows: President, Mrs. J. H. Payne; 1st vice-president, Mrs. W. M. Graham; 2nd vice-president, Mrs J. W. Ridpath; secretary, Mrs. Leslie Harrison; auditors, Misses Margaret Sanderson and Mary Adams; treasurer of the Flower Fund, Mrs. W. M. Graham; Board of Directors, Mrs. Fred Armstrong, Mrs. Hugh Kidd, Mrs. Howard Bullock, Mrs. O. E. Kingdon, Miss Doun, Mrs. Gordon FitzGerald; pianist, Mrs. John Northey; delegates to district meeting in Warsaw, June 6, Mrs. Cameron, Miss Sanderson, Mrs. S. Higgins, Miss Graham, Mrs. Hugh Kidd, and Mrs. Evans Blewett.

Following the election of officers, addresses were read to Mrs. J. H. Payne and Mrs. Leslie Harrison by Miss Graham and Mrs. Robert Bullock presented a silver pie server to Mrs. Payne and Mrs. Kingdon presented a sheaf of cut flowers to Mrs. Harrison. Both ladies replied suitably.

A vote of thanks was extended to the Warsaw ladies for their help on this the first annual meeting. Afternoon tea was served at the close.

OBITUARY

ALEXANDER T. DONALD

BURNBRAE, May 14—The funeral of the late Alexander T. Donald was held from his late residence, Burnbrae, on Friday at two o'clock. After a brief private service at the house, the remains were interred in the Burnbrae Cemetery. Service in the church was held immediately after interment. The service was conducted by the Rev. D. A. Mackenzie, who was assisted by the Rev. James Grier, Campbellford; the Rev. H. Shaw, Menie; the Rev. R. G. Fry, Amherst, and the Rev. J. J. Black, Barrie. Many beautiful floral tributes marked the high regard in which Mr. Donald was held. The pall bearers were Arthur Graham, E. S. McFarlane, Toronto; Alex. Hume, William Rannie, John Oddie and J. M. Hunter.

Rarely is such high honor done by so many people as was attributed to Mr. Donald. Motor cars lined the half mile of road between the house and the church and it was necessary to provide extra seating accommodation for those who wished to pay their last respects. Practically every member of the church choice was present to assist with the service.

From the opening psalm to the closing hymn and the Benediction, the service was most impressive, each of the five clergymen assisting. Choosing as his text the passage from St. John, "Let not your heart be troubled, ye believed in God, believe also in me. In My Father's house are many mansions. If it were not so I would have told you," Mr. Mackenzie delivered an oration which tended to remove much of the horror of death.

In closing, Mr. Mackenzie wished to make a few more personal remarks. The sudden death of Mr. Donald had cast a deep gloom over the entire community, he said. There was, perhaps, no other man so widely and favorably known. He was a Christian gentleman of the highest integrity, most hospital, genial, kind, pure, and good. His church life was an example for everyone. All his life Mr. Donald had been a devoted member of the Presbyterian Church and scarcely a Sunday passed that Mr. Donald did not occupy his usual place in the house of worship. "We have lost a good friend," said Mr. McKenzie in closing. "Our deepest sympathy is extended to Mrs. Donald in her sad bereavement. We believe in God, believe also in Me. In My Father's house are many mansions. If it were not so, I would have told you. I go to prepare a place for you'."

During the service, the choir sang, "Sometime We'll Understand" (McGranahan). The Rev. R. G. Fry also sang, "Saved By Grace."

The late Mr. Donald was in his seventy-fifth year, having been born in Burnbrae in the year 1853, the son of Alexander Donald and his wife, Jean Scott. In his early twenties he married Joan Watters of Campbellford. After a brief illness, Mrs. Donald died in 1893. Five years later he married Annie Oddie, Burnbrae, who survives. There are no children. Mr. Donald is the last member of a family of eleven. As a lifelong resident of Burnbrae, he was also a life long member of the Presbyterian Church there. Although he was never known to take any active part in politics, Mr. Donald was a staunch Conservative and seldom failed to cast his ballot in support of his party. He was not a member of any fraternal order. During his entire lifetime, Mr. Donald has farmed on the homstead at Burnbrae, but of late years has indulged in a remunerative hobby, insurance. Only the day previous to his demise, he was in Campbellford and wrote two policies for life insurance.

Such was the passing of the last member of the second generation of a family of pioneers who hewed the Scotch settlement out of the virgin forest, and one of the few whose entire lifetime has been spent there.

Among those from a distance who attended the funeral were Mr. E. S. McFarlane, Toronto; Mr. and Mrs. T. M. Hunter, Toronto; Mr. and Mrs. Kerr, Toronto; Mrs. D. A. Archer, Toronto; Mrs. J. McWilliams, Toronto; Mr. and Mrs. Walter Martin, Stirling; Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Caddy, Peterborough.

HAS NARROW ESCAPE.

Bonarlaw Man's Car Catches Fire As He Drives To Meyersburg.

BONARLAW, May 14.—David Wellman, Jr., had a narrow escape this morning from being burned to death. He was on his way to Meyersburg Cheese Factory in a closed car about 8.30, when the car suddenly burst into flames. Mr. Wellman barely had time to escape, and the car was destroyed.

that the boys would endeavor to live a clean life, they are the men of tomorrow and they should strive to live up to the highest traditions of manhood. Mr. Ross joined his congratulations to those of previous speakers.

Reeve C. S. Tanner also spoke briefly saying he had nothing but words of commendation on the excellence of the drill and the smart appearance of the corps. Next year he will have a son in the ranks who this year is not quite old enough to join.

The inspection closed with three cheers and a tiger for the King, Major Dupre and Mr. Simpson. Following this the cadets paraded the village marching up Queen street from Albert, receiving the admiring comments of the people on the street and winding up at Brown's restaurant where Mr. Simpson ordered ice cream and served to them at his expense.

The physical drill was especially good this year and several new features were added. An amusing incident occurred when a group of very small boys, too young by far to be cadets, approached the inspector and asked if he'd give them a half holiday. As the ceremony was not over until almost four o'clock, their request could not be granted. Another amusing feature was the fringe of diminutive youths who attached themselves to the corps and marched up Queen street, admiration and envy written in every little face.

The Soil Laughs a Harvest

OWING to its mountainous character, British Columbia has not been generally recognized as an agricultural province. Yet agriculture has within the last few years attained to second importance, with its revenue for 1927 estimated in excess of 73-million dollars! Ten per cent. of its total land area is possible farm land... approximately twenty-two million acres. Only three million acres of this vast territory have so far been placed under cultivation. Millions of virgin acres await the turn of the plough, to fulfill their promise of agricultural wealth to those who come to till the soil.

HIGH PRODUCTIVITY

The fertile soils of sun-flooded valleys and choice alluvial lands, and the equability of the climate, make record crops possible, and rotating crops continuous for the greater part of the year. No other western province has been able to compete with British Columbia's field crops. The average return per farmer in this province is $3,300 a year.

WORLD RECOGNIZED PRODUCTS

British Columbia's livestock is recognized among the best in the world today. British Columbia dairy cattle have won world records ... and dairying is becoming one of its main farm revenue producers. British Columbia poultry production has several world records to its credit ... owing to favorable climate and marketing conditions, there being more commercial poultry farms here than in all the rest of Canada. British Columbia apples, peaches, apricots, cherries, plums, pears and small fruits are known throughout the world ... apples winning the highest honors at the famous Wembley Exposition. Our vegetable and flower seeds are prize-winners, and widely sought from all over the world.

UNUSUAL DIVERSITY

There is a diversity in the agricultural production of this province that can scarcely be approached in any other part of the Dominion. Among the various classes of floriculture, horticulture and agriculture, tobacco-raising, bee-keeping, fur-farming, grain and fodder crops, are meeting with success.

FARM DISTRICTS ACCESSIBLE

Five principal farming districts are under development adjacent to main transportation lines. These are situated around the lower Fraser River Valley, Vancouver Island, the Okanagan and Kootenay Valleys, the Lillooet and Chilcoten districts, and Central British Columbia ... Northern British Columbia now bidding as a new rival. Government and railway boards have mapped out new settlement areas and are ready to co-operate with the settler of limited capital, to develop these lands. On a total tax rate of 13.5 mills, $1,500 exemption is allowed on improvements.

OTHER RESOURCES

Agriculture is but one of the rich resources of Canada's Pacific Province. The lumbering industry leads, with an annual revenue of 84 million dollars; mining is third, with over 62 million dollars a year; fisheries produce 27 million dollars. Over eight thousand industrial firms are recorded in the province, with an annual pay-roll exceeding 175 million dollars. The very diversity of its resources stabilizes British Columbia's prosperity.

SEE THE WEST!

Why not plan a vacation in British Columbia this year, and look over the Land of Opportunity for yourself! There are boat trips and train trips, hundreds of delightful resorts, and scenic motoring over nearly 18,000 miles of beautiful highways. You can hunt and fish, climb mountains, swim, golf, play tennis, polo, bowling ... do the thousand things your heart may desire.

CADET INSPECTION HELD AT LAKEFIELD

them of the good corps in Lakefield and he agreed with his verdict. He congratulated the cadets on the loyal superior officers and instructor, J. M. Simpson, and closed by hoping that th: good work would be carried on. Mr. Simpson thanked Major Dupre for his kind words and also for his message from Catpain Heron which he and the cadets heartily appreciated.

The late spring made the ground slow in drying and the drill was consequently later in beginning than is usual, which of course shortened the period of training. The captain, first lieutenant, company commanders and quarter master were decorated with medals by Major Dupre

J. W. Ridpath, chairman of the High Scohol Board, congratulated the officers and members of the corps on their appearance and drill, which was a source of gratification both to himself and the members of the Board. The local corps have a good reputation which was fully upheld this year.

The Rev. W. J. Creighton stated that he was present in a double capacity, as a member of the High School Board, and also as one of the local clergy and he was exceedingly well pleased with the showing, which was particularly creditable and means more than we always realize. The tarining is for the battle of life, rather than for warfare in its generally accepted sense, and it teaches the value of co-operation and no man can be a successful leader till he has first learned to obey. To learn to fall in behind and co-operate makes for success in life. The speaker was glad that the cadets of 1928 were upholding the reputation Lakefield deserves and he wishes them success in thei rfuture careers.

The Rev .T. M. Wesley also congratulated Mr. Simpson on the fine appearance of the cadets, the inspection is a public event and should be attended by a much larger number of citizens. The training is especially valuable for two reasons, first it teaches obedience and none can hope to command with success until he has first learned to obey, secondly it teaches the value of co-operation, it teaches one to keep step and in touch with the man next and is not a preparation for fighting alone but for whatever one undertakes in life. The drill is often hard but the results are justified.

The Rev. J. Ross urged that the moral and spiritual side of education should not be overlooked and hoped

Cash--And a Bird in the Hand

The man who shrewdly observed that a bird in the hand was worth two in the bush, may not have been a financier, but he stated a basic principle of business.

Ten dollars to-day is worth actually and demonstrably more than the promise of ten dollars after to-day.

When a merchant quotes a price available on time, he forgoes the profits of a cash transaction, and he incurs certain expenses. These expenses he must meet either by making a definite interest charge for the accommodation, or by quoting a higher average range of prices. A cash price means that the merchant shares with you the profits of your cash transaction.

A bird in the hand is worth two in the bush. C. D. S. cash pricing means lower prices.

CHAPTER VII

Carmelita grasped the foot and pulled vigorously, and a muffled voice said:

"Ouch, don't do that! I'll come out!"

And out from beneath the bed came a tousled-headed girl, in the uniform of the hotel chambermaids.

"What in the world are you doing here?" Carmelita cried, amazed at the sight.

"What are you?" said the girl, saucily.

"Don't be impertinent," Carmelita said, with a stern frown. "Suppose I report you to the housekeeper."

"Don't do that, lady," the girl begged, earnestly. "I didn't mean no harm. I was dustin' about, and I heard you comin' so I—I hid."

"That won't do. You—what's your name?"

"Myrtle, ma'am."

"Well, Myrtle, you were up to some mischief. You never were dusting, or you would have kept right on when anyone came in."

"Well, ma'am," and Myrtle fingered her apron, "let's make a trade. You don't tell I was in here, and I won't tell you was. Heh?"

Carmelita stood appalled. It was disastrous, indeed, to think of this girl telling she was in there. But was it not worse to make a compact of silence with her?"

Steps in the hall outside decided her.

"All right, Myrtle," she said, "that's agreed. Now, can we get out unseen?"

"Yes'm, come this way," and the girl led her to a door in the bedroom that communicated with an adjoining room, and which her master key easily unlocked. They slipped through just as Ross unlocked the door and entered the sitting-room.

With no word further to the girl, Carmelita entered a descending elevator and went downstairs.

Neville met her, and a look of relief came to his face as he saw her.

"You haven't been in his rooms, have you?" he whispered, eagerly.

"No," said Carmelita, sensing from his excited speech that something had happened. Could Miss Folsom have arrived?

"Good! Don't go in, for heaven's sake! Give me the key, quickly."

She slipped the key to him, unseen, and said:

"What is it? Why are you so upset?"

"The doctor has come," he said, "he has made an examination, and he says Folsom didn't die of a stroke or anything like that. He—he was murdered."

"Murdered! Killed in the water? Impossible!"

"Yes, he was. Come, sit down here and I will tell you all I know about it."

With a scared, white face, Carmelita sank down on a divan in the lobby, beside Neville, who began to talk to her in low tones.

It was late afternoon now, and the guests of the hotel were coming in from golf or from dancing on the piers or riding in the wheeled chairs.

Groups of gay and laughing people stood about, strains of low music could be heard as the orchestra in the palm room pursued its program, and the pleasant scent from the potted plants gave charm to the atmosphere.

Few knew or cared about the tragedy that had taken place that morning that even now was developing a dark and sinister side.

The management strove to keep the matter secret, for of all things to be avoided in a summer hotel is any hint of gruesomeness or crime. Death is bad enough and must be hidden as carefully as possible, but murder! The mere hint of violent death would send many of the best patrons scurrying from the place, and would cast a gloom over the house that would ruin its prospects for the whole season.

And already the watchful Tuttle could note signs of curiosity and apprehension on the faces of some of the onlookers. Though most of the groups in the lobby appeared as carefree and light-hearted as usual, yet other faces showed a restlessness and an effect of suspicion that all was not well.

Somehow, a breath of mystery had made itself felt; somehow, a hint of tragedy was in the air, and minds sensitive to fleeting impressions attuned themselves to vague doubts and fears.

And then, before Neville had scarce begun to tell Carmelita Valdon the story he had promised, Tubby came to them and delivered a message from Mr. Pelham asking for their presence in Room J.

This particular bellboy was a favorite with the management, because of his ready and willing service as well as his native wit and understanding. Already the manager was planning to train the little chap up in the way he should go to become later a valuable clerk in the hotel.

The only objection that could be raised against the boy was his overweight. This his superiors endeavored to reduce by advising the little gourmand against overeating and under-exercising. So far, they had not effected much improvement, but they persevered hopefully, and meantime they called on Tubby, whose census name was Thomas Riordan, for any errand that required a dash of brains.

A little unwillingly, Neville rose to obey the summons, and they followed the boy to the room designated.

"We're sorry to seem persistent in our appeals to you, Mr. Neville," Pelham said, apologetically, "but there is no one in the hotel who knew Mr. Folsom so well as you seem to. Wherefore, I see no other way but to ask your advice, or rather, your approval of my procedure. After all, it is merely a matter of form, for there is no choice possible on my part. Doctor Manning, informs me that Mr. Folsom was killed while in the ocean. Therefore, I am bound to report the matter to the authorities at once. But I deemed it wise to tell you of this, for until Mr. Folsom's sister can get here, I know of no one who is in any way concerned in his interests."

"You did just right, Mr. Pelham," Carmelita returned, not waiting for Neville to speak. "Mr. Neville is the only friend of Mr. Folsom's here that we know of. And surely, if anyone else knew him, he would come forward and say so; at any rate Mr. Neville will take charge in any way he can until Miss Folsom comes. Will you tell me how Mr. Folsom was killed?"

But Pelham had many matters on his mind. Chief among them was to get out and mingle with the guests of his hotel, in a hope that he could set at rest the seething interest that was already making itself noticeable.

"Doctor Manning will tell you all," he said, rather nervously. "And Mr. Dixon, here, will do whatever is necessary."

He slipped through the door, and Dixon immediately assumed leadership.

"Doctor Manning saw Mr. Folsom this morning as he was carried from the ocean and laid on the beach. As nothing was asked of Doctor Manning except whether or not Mr. Folsom was dead at the time, he pronounced life extinct, and then left the matter entirely in charge of the beach authorities. The body was brought here at once, and as Doctor Manning had a luncheon engagement elsewhere, it is only just now that he has returned and responded to our call for a death certificate. But here and now, having made a further examination of Mr. Folsom's body, Doctor Manning tells us that death was not due to natural causes. Perhaps, Doctor, you will tell Mr. Neville the facts of the matter."

Manning was of small stature, and possessed of the pompous dignity and sense of personal importance that small men sometimes exhibit.

He cleared his throat and, raising his hand, shook an impressive forefinger as he said:

"Mind you, I was not called this morning in any official, or even professional capacity. I was merely asked, as the nearest medical man, whether the man carried in from the surf was dead or alive. This question I answered at once, as life was positively extinct. Then, no further responsibility devolving on me, I went my way, not dreaming of any other reason for the man's demise than some natural cause. But as I had not been asked to determine this cause, I saw no reason for obtruding my further services, and I went about my business. As it chanced, I went away from the hotel for luncheon, and I have only just returned. The management had not called in any other doctor, as there was no thought of foul play, and so they merely waited for my return to ask for a certificate of natural death. But when I examined the body, I found at once that the man had been done to death."

Though neither of the absorbed listeners spoke a word, their faces asked the unuttered question, and the doctor went on.

"It is not only a mysterious case, but a most unusual, probably unique one. Mr. Folsom was killed by a stab wound in the abdomen."

The next chapter explains how Folsom was killed, but who was the murderer?

Ontario is putting up a strenuous fight with legislation and otherwise against the depredations of the corn borer. In six years this pest has reduced the acreage in Essex county from 81,256 to 20,214. Above is seen the destructive caterpillar and specimens of his work.

Leafs Lose Doubleheader To Jersey City

JERSEY TAKES DOUBLE BILL

Defeat Toronto Leafs by Scores of 7 to 3 and 3 to 2.

KEYS WIN 8-1

JERSEY CITY, N.J., May 14.—(Canadian Press).—The Jersey City baseball team came from its northern trip long enough to tarry for a double header engageemnt here Sunday with the Toronto Leafs, and pocketed both games by score of 7 to 3 and 5 to 4. The batting of Walsh featured. He came through with three hits out of four trips to the plate in both games.

KEYS WIN 8-1.

BUFFALO, N.Y., May 14.—(Canadian Press).—The Reading Keys made it three victories out of four over the Buffalo Bisons here yesterday, when they won the final game of the series by a score of 8 to 1. Socks Seebold hurled great ball against the Bisons, allowing only 4 hits. The only run scored off Seebold was a homer over the left field fence by Herb Thomas.

BIRDS LOSE TO ROCHESTER

ROCHESTER, N.Y., May 14.—(Canadian Press)—Rochester won the fourth and last game of the series with the Baltimore Birds here yesterday, 12 to 5. Joe Brown and Gelbert hit home runs in the last of the seventh off the delivery of Chambers to make the verdict certain after entering the frame one round behind.

LEAFS LEADING INTERNATIONAL

Play to Six Victories and Four Defeats During Past Week.

HOMERS FEATURE

NEW YORK, May 14. — Canadian Press. — Although their winning streak was broken at nine, the Toronto Maple Leafs again led the International league for the week ending Saturday night with six victories and four defeats. Their surprising total was reached by playing three double headers.

The Leafs made more hits and more runs than any other club and were tied with Newark for the smallest number of members allowed the opposition, despite the fact that the Toronto club played three games more than the ears.

Fans around the circuit now are beginning to see possibilities in Bill O'Hara's team. The hitting of Dale Alexander, first baseman, and Clayton Sheedy, the outfielder, has had much to do with the Leafs' success. O'Hara also has been getting some high class pitching from the former major leaguers on his staff

Montreal, Rochester and Newark each won four and lost three. Jersey City broke even on the week, but Buffalo, Reading and Baltimore each entered a deficit into its pennant book

Good pitching marked the week, particularly by Southpaws, who are fattening on left handed batters.

Shutouts were pitched by Jack Bentley and Don Brennan of Newark, Fritz Coumb of Baltimore, and Bill Martin of Toronto. Martin gave the Skeeters only two hits but the game went just seven innings. Of the shut out pitchers, only Brennan is a right hander.

The following table shows games won and lost and runs hits and errors, opponents' runs and home runs by each International League club for the week ending Saturday night:

Mlle Chaume Will Defend Title To-Day

HUNSTANTON, Norfolk, Eng., May 14.—(Canadian Press.)—The British women's golf championship title which for thirty years was successfully defended against all invaders is up for competition to-day.

The only foreigner who ever held the title holds it at present and will defend it. She is Mlle. Simone Thion de la Chaume of France.

Meeting the champion in the first round is Miss Glenna Collett, American champion, and the chief hope of the United States.

Great Britain will be represented by the present English champion, Mrs. E. F. Guedalla, the former Edith Leith, Miss Dorothy Pearson, runner-up in the open last year; Mrs. Garon, runner-up in 1926; Molly Goulray, native champion in 1926, and Enid Wilson former girl champion.

Neither the redoubtable Cecil Leitch nor Joyce Wethered are playing this year in the open. Miss Wethered retired from championship play when she and Miss Leitch were nearly mobbed at Troon in 1926 as they played the final holes. This year Miss Wethered will be filling in Scotland while the open title goes where it may.

There are 168 entries for this year, including five French players, three Australians and a German.

VIEWS ON SPORT

There will be a practise of the Kiwanis and Grafton's Bantams to-night at 5.15, in the field opposite the Park Street Baptist Church.

Detective William Carey has been elected manager of the Moose entry in the Juvenile group of the City Hardball League. Carey has some good players on hand and with a few new additions the Moose should make a real bid for the series honors. Any player wishing a tryout with the Moose can get information regarding same from "Bill" Carey.

The East Peterborough League is rounding out into shape for the 1928 championship race and prospects are bright for a successful year. It is thought likely that the E.P.L. will run a double schedule this season, made up of a country section and a city section, the winners of each group to play a three game series for the league honors. Keene, Curve Lake, and a team from either Lakefield or Millbrook with a city entry will make up the country section, while the Cogs, Crescents, Raybestos and Bethany will comprise the city group.

With twelve teams in the Junior ball league there is absolutely no need for any of the budding young players of this city under 20 years of age who would like to show his wares on the diamond to stay out of the game this summer. The Moose, a new entry in the juvenile series, are open for a few more players, while the Lockworks and the C.P.C. in the Juniors could stand a few good men on their line-ups.

Organized Junior ball promises to go over big this season and the executive of the league are asking the aid of local merchants and business to help finance this league, in the way of donating balls and other equipment necessary to the working of a league. Mayor Denne, W. H. Bradburn, M.P.P., and George A. Maddonald and Chris. Graham have come to the aid of the league by donating balls. Who will be next?

"Lightning strikes once in every five years" (1923-1928). In 1923 we had a banner year in amateur baseball, and this season we hope for a revival of that year when four Ontario championships were brought home to Peterborough. There are seventeen hardball teams to date in the city including the Senior Petes—four in the East Peterborough League and twelve in the City League.

Alex. Kay's Midget curlers eliminated Lindsay in the race for Eastern honors in O.B.A.A., and won a place in the Ontario finals; later at Oshawa they brought the Midget championship to Peterborough for the second year in succession, by whitewashing the Typos of Hamilton.

• • • • • • •

The Lakeviews captured the Junior O.B.A.A. honors, earning another championship for Peterborough by taking two out of three games from Niagara Falls in the finals. The record of the Lakeviews for that year show that they were real champions, real home brews, and real Juniors. Only once were they defeated by a Junior club, and that by a local team, losing a 5—4 decision to the C.G.E. Intermediate champions of 1922. Altogether out of twenty-three city league, O.B.A.A. and exhibition fixtures, the Lakeviews had won twenty, lost two and tied one—a most creditable record that showed how consistent the gait of the team had been all season.

• • • • • • •

The Bantam honors were also brought home when the T.A.B.A. dropped out of the finals, giving the championship to Peterborough. G.C.E. won the Intermediate O.B.A.A. honors by defeating Welland in the second and deciding game to make the fourth pennant brought to Peterborough.

The season of 1923 will also be remembered as a banner year of lacrosse in Marmora. The reason of this is very clear. In 1922 the Marmora team never won a single game, but in 1923 they rose to the semi-final game for the Junior championship of Ontario, but lost to the St. Simon's team of Ontario.

YANKS MAKE EIGHT HOMERS

Cubs and Cardinals Set Pace in National for Week.

RECORDS GIVEN

NEW YORK, May 14.— (Canadian Press.)—With the weak battling feebly against the strong in a large number of the week's engagements, baseball class asserted itself decisively through the seven-day period ending Saturday night. The Cubs and the Cardinals in the National League and the Yankees and the Athletics in the American, piled up convincing margins in their campaigns, waged largely against teams which are headed nowhere. The The Cincinnati Reds and the Cleveland Indians fought hard enough to remain only a step behind the pacesetting clubs.

Roger Peckinpaugh's lads closed their week by administering the Athletics' only defeat in a seven day period which netted Connie Mack four victories.

The home run bats of Ruth and Gehrig are striking telling blows—striking them, moreover, in close games where the circuit taps represent the difference between victory and defeat. The Yankees led both Leagues in homers with eight—three by Gehrig, two by Ruth and only three others for the rest of the team.

The Athletics had five home runs, two by Hause rand the Cardinals had four to lead the National.

The winning pace in the National League was set by the Cubs, who won six and lost none to run their string to seven straight.

The week's major league record of games won and lost, runs, hits, errors, opponents' runs and home runs, including games of Saturday, follows:

YANKS HOLD TIGERS 7-2

Make Four Runs in First to Make It Two Straight.

INDIANS WIN 2-0

NEW YORK, May 14.—(Canadian Press.)—A first inning tally, producing four runs, was all the Yanks needed to help Pennock trim Detroit by a score of 7 to 2 here yesterday, making it two straight.

Four singles, a base on balls and a sacrifice fly turned the trick.

Tavener's triple and Shea's single produced Detroit's first run, Rice hit a homer in the second.

Mark Koenig starred at bat with four hits in five times up, while Ruth got three in four.

George Uhle held Philadelphia to one hit and the Indains took their second straight game from the Athletics at Cleveland 2 to 0.

It was Uhle's sixth win of the season and he fanned six of the visitors. Mickey Cochrane, Philadelphia teacher, garnered that team's only hit, a double to right in the second inning.

The Senators sallied into three Cihcago White Sox pitchers for sixteen hits at Washington and took the second game of the series 10 to 3.

Hayes led the batsmen with three hits, including a three bagger.

Only three games scheduled.

HUGHES FIRST IN MOTOR CITY RACE

Canadian Runner Covers 26 Miles in Record Time.

DETROIT, Mich., May 14.—(Canadian Press).—Francis Hughes, 37 year old veteran of the Hamilton, Ontario, Olympic Club, won the annual Motor City Marathon here Saturday afternoon, covering the 26 miles and 385 yards in 2 hours 58 minutes and 20 seconds. The race was an official American Olympic tryout.

Alger Strom, Detroit runner, whose time was 2 hours and 59 minutes, was second.

Victor Glance, Detroit, who paced the field of 40 entrants through most of the race, weakened in the last few miles and jogged in third, 15 minutes behind the two leaders. Ben West, Cincinnati, finished fourth and Frank Zuna, of New York, winner of last year's marathon, and a member of the 1924 Olympic team, came in fifth. He was favored to win to-day.

Sixteen Canadian runners were permitted to enter under special dispensation of the American Olympic committee.

SENORITA ALVAREZ DEFEATED

BERLIN, May 14.— (Canadian Press).—Senorita Ella de Alvarez, of Spain, runner-up to Helen Wills in the Wimbledon championship last year, and one of the leading woman tennis players of Europe, was defeated yesterday in Berlin International Ladies' Lawn Tennis tournament by Fraulien Cecilie Aussen, German star. The scores were 6-3, 7-5.

In another match, Fraulien Ruth Kohnert defeated Frau von Resnicek, 6-3, 6-3.

Davis Cup Challenge Round May Be Played In England Instead of France

PARIS, May 14 (Canadian Press).—The Davis Cup challenge round may be played in England instead of France, holder of the championship tennis trophy. The French Tennis Federation is seriously considering staging the matches in England—Wimbledon preferred—unless the government abandons its policy of taking not only gate receipts at tennis tournaments but dues members pay various clubs as well. An official statement from the Tennis Federation, issued Saturday evening, reveals that a change of venue is under consideration.

The entire question depends on the outcome of several suits instituted in Paris courts by the Treasury against tennis clubs for recovery of taxes claimed, and which clubs have refused to pay. The suits will be heard before the end of May; should the decision go against the tennis clubs, the federation will insist that the Davis Cup challenge round be played at Wimbledon. Wimbledon officials have been sounded as to their possible reaction to such a proposal and the suggestion is said to have been received with enthusiasm.

Split Twin Bill At Montreal City

MONTREAL, Que., May 14. — Canadian Press.—Newark closed their first visit to Montreal by splitting a double bill with the Royals on Saturday afternoon. The Bears won the first game 5 to 1 and lost the second 8 to 2. The division gave Newark the series 3 games to 2.

Bentley was wild in the first game but the Royals could not cash on his generosity in giving passes, failing badly in the pinches when hits meant runs. Bentley was going strong at the end.

Excellent hurling by Bill Bailey gave the Royals a win in the second. Bailey held the slugging Bears to two hits while the Royals clouted five off Russell and Fischer, four of them for extra bases. Fowler with a homer and a triple batted in six of the Montreal runs.

ROBINS BREAK LOSING STREAK

Emerge Triumphant Against Champion Pirates by Score 8-5.

REDS LEADING LEAGUE

NEW YORK, N.Y., May 14. (Canadian Press).—Brooklyn broke its streak at home yesterday by emerging triumphant against the champion Pirates by a score of 8 to 5. Burleigh Grimes went the route in a wild ball game although allowing eleven hits and giving six bases on balls.

A bad throw by Gooch gave the Robins a run in the fourth and a balk by Grimes led to a three run Brooklyn rally in the fifth. Elliott's wildness almost spelled his doom in the seventh when the Pirates rallied to take the lead, but Grimes weakened in the Brooklyn half and the Robins went in front.

The Reds went into first place in the league race by defeating Philadelphia 11 to 4 at Cincinnati and with New York losing to Chicago.

The game was a hitting bee, the visitors greeting Carl Mays with a single and two triples which with an error gave them three runs in the first inning. The Reds scored six runs after two more were out in the same inning.

Richbourg Makes Homer.

Richbourg, Braves' right fielder crashed out a homer and a double to score four of the runs which defeated the Cardinals, six to five, at home yesterday. Hornsby's nine in so doing halted the six game winning streak of the Red Birds.

Hornsby and Bell, former Card performers, assisted in the defeat and one time St. Louis pilot connecting with a pair of singles and a double, while the Boston third baseman collected two singles.

Genewich, except for a bad fifth inning, held the Cards at his mercy. Four of the seven hits chalked up against him were unearned.

WEST PROSPEROUS SAYS W. S. DAVIDSON

Calgary Police Magistrate Visits Relatives in This City.

W. S. Davidson, police magistrate, Calgary, Alberta, is in the city visiting relatives and renewing old acquaintances.

Mr. Davidson was a delegate to the Imperial Council of Shriners held last week at Miami, Florida. He states that the gathering at Miami was a most gorgeous affair.

Mr. Davidson informed The Examiner that the West was in fine shape, even despite the fact that a great deal of grain was not threshed last fall. Conditions for seeding were excellent and he states that another good crop this year will produce wonderful prosperity in the West, which will no doubt be reflected on Eastern Canada.

Calgary is growing very steadily. Numbers of new and substantial buildings are to be erected this spring and summer, and it would appear that members of the building trades would have to be drawn from elsewhere to meet the building demands.

SKIPS NAMED BY BOWLERS

Tweed Club President Offers Shield For Competition Among Rinks.

GOOD SEASON EXPECTED.

TWEED, May 14.—The bowling club held a meeting on Friday evening in the council chambers for the purpose of appointing skips for the season in the local rink competitions of the Tweed bowling club. The following were appointed:

S. B. McGee, E. Myles, D. H. Morrison, C. H. Kerr, F. Hindle, William Beatty, D. P. T. Bowlby, J. F. Houston.

James Ryan, president of the club, offered to donate a shield as a prize for these competitions, the shield to be played for annually.

A good season of bowling is looked forward to and enthusiasm is high.

C.O.B.L. TEAMS ALL LOOK GOOD

Five Clubs Starting to Round Into Mid-Season Form.

The Belleville Intelligencer says:

"With Utronke, Gibson and Jeffery looking the best of the hurlers Belleville's pitching problem should be almost solved. Gibson and Utronke are right-handers while Jeffery throws them up from the opposite side.

"Gerow and Darragh can take a turn in the pinch and there is no denying the fact that they can go for at least five innings and hold their own in any man's league.

"The latter was the star heaver in the city league and has shown some promise and will likely be carried along by Pilot Gerow.

"Oshawa had thirty players signed with more to come, announced Harold Luke at Saturday's meeting. The motor city are certainly not lacking numbers.

"Kingston are more or less up against it for pitchers with Howard Reid playing in Toronto, Cairns in Windsor, and Jack Shea back with Deloro.

"Van Young will be back with the Limestoners and he always managed to buffalo the local team, although he was never more than an ordinary slabsman.

"Joe Daley will rely on the new bloods and Buck and Smith will likely take a turn in the box.

"Del Cherry can pitch a fair game at times although he is by trade an outfielder. Cherry has no peer as far as batting is concerned in this part of the country and can cover centre field with the best of them.

"'Sfunny how these old timers never know when they're through. In glancing through the list of Kingston's eligibles we noticed the name of Teddy Gallagher. Thought he had relegated his glove to the shelf, but apparently he is still hopeful of a come-back. Gallagher was at one time one of the sweetest pitchers in this neck of the woods but it is another case of old age having taken its toll.

"Peterborough, with Tommy Holyman at the helm, are relying on Jeff Hardill and Al Heckman to shoulder the load and this pair should be the means of winning plenty of ball games for the Petes. Heckman, although he has slipped a trifle, is still good, and Hardill possesses all of the qualities necessary."

THE DUMBELLS IN "BUBBLING OVER."

For several seasons now the Dumbells have carried out a policy of producing two complete revues each season. The first show opens in the East in August and plays as far as Victoria, reaching there in February. The second revue is given its premiere on the Pacific Coast and doubles right back over the trail blazed by what is termed the fall show. Each new revue is new in every sense of the word. When Captain Plunkett announced an entire change of program the public has come to know that he means just that, and not a rehashed version of a former revue.

The success of "Oo, La, La!" which was seen here earlier in the season, is a matter of mental record. Now he follows up with "Bubbling Over," a comedy revue that gives every member of his splendid company unlimited opportunity for individual success, as well as an entertainment replete with sketches that in some cases call for the full acting strength of the cast to adequately interpret the various characters.

In addition to the comic sketches, "Bubbling Over" boasts a miniature musical comedy, dropped down into the middle of the first act. This little musical gem is complete in every detail, songs, plot, scenery, costumes and stage properties. Ross Hamilton plays the prima donna role, while Al. Plunkett appears as the typical hero. At the Grand, Friday and Saturday, May 18 and 19.

AT THE CAPITOL.

TO-NIGHT, AT THE CAPITOL, THE I. O. D. E. DRAWING FOR VALUABLE PRIZES WILL TAKE PLACE.

"Silk Legs," With Madge Bellamy, the Feature Screen Attraction.

Who are going to be the lucky winners in the Peter Robinson I.O.D.E. prize contest? The drawing will take place on the stage of the Capitol Theatre to-night —everybody holding tickets should be on hand—perhaps you yourself will be one of the winners—who knows?

"Silk Legs," with Madge Bellamy on the screen. Girls! Girls! Girls! Blondes! Brunettes! Red Heads! All give a bewildering display of pretties in "Silk Legs," a Fox Films production featuring Madge Bellamy, which will be the feature screen attraction to-night.

The girl students of Marion Morgan, internationally known dancer, stage a brilliant fashion show to demonstrate the beauty of a certain brand of hose sold by Madge Bellamy, cast as the hustling stocking drummer.

The spirited little star carries the brunt of the comedy on her capable shoulders, and is assisted by a strong cast, and is assisted by a strong cast, including James Hall, Joseph Cawthorn, Maude Fulton and Margaret Seddon. Arthur Rosson directed the production.

AT THE REGENT.

OH WHAT A TIME HAS BILL BOYD AS CADET IN WEST POINT FILM!

William Boyd, star of "Dress Parade," a new Pathe-De-Mille Special production, a story of the Cadet life at U.S. Military Academy at West Point, spent a strenuous period of four weeks during the gliming of the photoplay at the Academy. The picture is now playing at the Regent Theatre 3 days, Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday.

He entered as a "Plebe" and, the classman who took him in hand is inclined to think that the upper forgot that he was just an actor, playing the role of a cadet.

"If I went to West Point with any idea of my own importance, I just lost it in the area of 'beast barracks,'" said Boyd.

Boyd got many a thrill for being mistaken for a real "Plebe" and took many call-downs humbly without protest.

One day while he was strolling from location in the barracks, he happened to be smoking a cigarette. An upper classman called him to attention, and ordered him to take that "snag out of his mouth," which he did. The plebes are not allowed to walk across the area which is the quadrangle surrounded by the barracks, but they have to go on a dog trot and more than once did Boyd find himself breaking into double time before the stern member of the "beast detail." When the boys enter the Academy, they are called "beasts" for two months and then become "Plebes." They are received into the corps at dress parade and from then on march with them.

Many such incidents occurred daily and Boyd got quite a thrill at the thought of being a real West Pointer.

Bessie Love plays a featured feminine role opposite Boyd and other members of the cast are Hugh Allan, Louis Natheaux, Clarence Geldert and Maurice Ryan.

QUAKERS WON LEAGUE MATCH FROM THISTLE

Mayette Opened the Scoring—Logan Evened Up the Game Before Half Time.

QUAKERS 3, THISTLE 1.

George Logan Added Two More Goals to His Total in the Second Half.

The Quaker Oats defeated the Thistle in a league fixture by three goals to one on Saturday afternoon before a fair attendance of spetcators. In the early stages of the tussle, the losers had only nine men but laterly made a complete eleven. The winners had the better of the play throughout the whole period, while the Thistle team lacked a complete understanding.

Mayette's Smart Goal.

Play started a few minutes later, with the Quakers at full strength and the Thistle with nine men. From the kick-off, the ball wento into the Thistle area, Bromley sent it back up to Mayette who bewildered the fullbacks nicely when he landed the sphere into the net past the custodian. After this sudden reverse the Quakers bombarded the Thistle goal from far and near, which only enlivened the proceedings as Griffine stopped the efforts in an easy fashion. Nice combination on the Quakers' left went unrewarded after beating the defense. Foster rapped a low, fast drive for the corner of the goal. Griffine threw himself at the ball to concede four corner kicks that brought nothing tangible.

Ten Flag Kicks Given.

Play was interspersed with visit to each custodian with the defense showing clever tactics against an elusive forward line on each team, in fact, the half backs were on an even basis, until the sudden attacks of the Quaker forwards terminated in a continued siege that brought flag kicks in abundance, no matter what they tried to initiate, Beggs and Bromley as full-backs frustrated them in clever manoeuvres when the ball hung around the danger zone. The Thistles' turn them came, with A Beggs conspicuous in dribbling tactics that kept the ball in the proximity of the Quakers' goal, but the finishing was very poor.

Logan Equalized.

Craig relieved the pressure with a punt upfield. Foster trapped the sphere nicely from mid-air, beat along the wing at a fast pace, then centered to Logan who jumped in between the two full-backs to gain possession and lift the ball into the net, out of Griffine's reach. Two minutes later half-time arrived with the teams standing at one each.

HALF TIME.

On resuming, the Thistle forced the play into the Quakers' territory and kept up a repeated attack that proved unsuccessful. A flag kick changed the situation into a battle in midfield—half-backs upsetting the forwards' movements until the Quakers' left gained a corner kick. Play continued in that corner until Foster swung the ball in ront of Thistle goal. Quick as a flash, Logan saw the opening and made use of it by putting his side in the lead. Exchanges continued even for a while until McPhate beat three men in succession and finished with a splendid effort.

W. Curtis Saved Goal.

From a peculiar angle, the Thistle outside left sent a rising shot for goal, but Curtis threw himself in mid-air to avert a tally, but conceded a fruitless corner kick. Time and again, Beggs would break through the defence, but only found two men opposing his way for goal He dribbled the ball past four men cleverly, then was stopped as the ball went in the air, but he followed to head it into Curtis' hands Runs by the Quakers' forwards and accurate finishing shots brought Griffine into action with clever clearances Each goal was visited in rotation; eventually the Quakers took up the matter more seriously to add to their total

Logan Got Hat Trick.

Attack after attack was launched on the Thistle goal, and at last, Logan gained possession from twenty yards out, but he was followed closely by his opposition in his progress towards goal Griffine came out of his goal to meet him, then Bromley gave him the shoulder, but it was too late because the Quakers' centre man had given the ball the necessary touch that went into the rigging. This practically finished the game and nothing important transpired in the remaining minutes. The whistle sounded, leaving the Quakers victors by three goals to one.

Goal scorers—Mayette for Thistle and Logan three for Quakers.

Thistle— Griffine, goal; W. Beggs and Bromley full backs; House, Bremen and Winks, halves; Mayette, Hallan, A. Beggs, Waddel and McPhate, forwards.

Quakers—W. Curtis, goal; H. Curti sand F. Honor, full-backs; Carmichael, Buchan and Craig, halves; Glen, Goldie, Logan, Rankin and Foster, forwards.

Referee—J. C. Russell.

BANQUET HELD FOR MOTHERS AND DAUGHTERS

Pledge Taken By Each Group To Be True and Help Others.

AT GEORGE STREET.

Men of Church Serve Meal—Attendance Very Large—Fine Addresses Given.

A delightful mother and daughter banquet was held in the auditorium of George Street United Sunday School on Friday evening, under the auspices of the W.M.S. The room was taxed to its utmost capacity, over four hundred being present, and a number could not gain admittance.

The tables were very pretty with fluted runners of yellow and green and white tulips in silver bud vases. Large yellow candles and small yellow and green candles completed the decorations. Harry Northrop delighted the audience with several fine instrumental numbers during the supper hour.

Community singing of such old favorites as "Annie Laurie," "Love's Old Sweet Song," "Roaming in the Gloamin'" was next on the program, with Don Munroe at the piano.

Rev. J. E. Todd acted as chairman and toastmaster, making a few humorous remarks, saying: "I suppose many of you are wondering why Mr. Thompson and myself are gracing the platform on such an occasion as this. I am here because 'greatness has been thrust upon me.' Mr. Thompson is here as my charming daughter, also to represent the gallant body of men from the Men's Club, who have served you this evening." He then proposed a toast to "The King," which was responded to by singing God Save the King.

Mrs. E. W. Coon, president of the W.M.S., explained the ceremony of the candles. The tall yellow candles represented Christ, "the light of the world." The small yellow candles represented the mothers, and the green candles stood for growth representing the daughters.

Several girls from the Mission Circle came in and lit the tall yellow candles, then the mothers at the tables lit theirs from the candles representing Christ and, standing, repeated the following pledge: "We the mothers here, pledge our help to the Lord Christ in making girlhood more beautiful. To our own daughters we pledge our love and comradeship to all other girls of whatever nationality we pledge a helping hand and a kindly word. We will honor the name of mother."

The daughters then lit their candles from their mothers' candles, and, standing, repeated the following pledge: "To my mother I will be true and loving. To every other I will be kind and thoughtful. To every girl with whom I come in contact, I will try to teach the noble life in order that the motherhood of the land may grow more pure and more Christ like as the years roll by. I will honor the name of daughter."

All united in singing "Blest Be the Tie That Binds."

Miss Daisy Murray rendered two beautiful solos accompanied by Miss Musa Cox.

A splendid toast to "Our Church" was proposed by Mrs. J. Stubbs, who spoke of the many organisations of the church and the wonderful work they were accomplishing and above all the loyalty to the church and the kindly feeling existing. This was followed by singing "The Church's One Foundation, Jesus Christ Our Lord."

A toast to "Our Mothers" was proposed by Miss Gladys Coon and responded to by Mrs. E. E. Harvey.

A toast to "Our Daughters" was proposed ty Mrs. A. Stinson and responded to by Miss Jean Kelly.

An instrumental duet by Mrs. Purdy and Miss Marion Purdy was much appreciated.

Mrs. F. J. Redpath, a member of the W.M.S., who was celebrating a birthday, was given hearty congratulations.

Chorus by C.G.I.T. girls.

Dr. Florence Murray, a charming young woman of Cape Breton, a missionary from Hamheung, Korea, home on furough, gave a very eloquent and inspiring address and referred to her co-worker, Miss Cardwell of Otonabee, who is engaged with her in the medical and social work there. She spoke of the joy and gladness with which they are received and gave a message of thanks from the Christians of Korea to the people of Canada. She spoke of what Christianity means to the women of Korea. Gives them a name, personality, position, clean habits, release peace and joy, social life and medical peace and joy, socal life and medical relief. She spoke of the great need of Hamheung's girls' high school and made a touching appeal for help.

This school has an attendance of four hundred and fifty and has been condemned. The building must come up to the requirements of the Japanese government and will cost $22,500. For six years the government has demanded a new building until now it must be built or abandoned. This one High school serves a population of 2,000,000. The Koreans wont's trust their daughters to the Japanese government schools, so it is really necessary to continue this mission school. The amount must be raised by individual subscription, as the estimates were compiled before the Dominion Board realized the urgent needs of this work. She concluded by saying she hoped the people of Canada would not turn a deaf ear to her appeal, which the girls have been praying for.

Mrs. S. R. Armstrong moved a vote of thanks to Dr. Murray and all those taking part in the program, and said she never before had been privileged to be at a gathering where there were three returned missionaries, Dr. Murray, Miss Paul and Miss Cardwell. She hoped and trusted lasting benefits would result from this banquet.

Miss Thelma Paxman seconded this motion. This was replied to by Rev. J. E. Todd and C. S. Thompson, after which the Doxology was sung.

Mrs. William Knox was convenor of arrangements. Miss Mary Elliott and Miss Thelma Paxman had charge of the decorating.

The president of the W.M.S. and the executive of the society regret that they were unable to accommodate all who wished to attend.

A MODERN CINDERELLA

A very interesting comedy entitled "A Modern Cinderella" was presented at the Y.W.C.A. by the Wohelo Club last evening. The proceeds of the entertainment will be for the Y.W.C.A. foreign work and club projects.

Miss L. Brownscombe outlined some of the activities of the club, which have included service for others, making a baby's layette and providing for the baby through the year, and entertaining small children at Christmas, educational programs, including cooking, sewing, and health and home nursing talks, socials in the nature of parties for club members and friends. The club also assisted at the Sunday afternoon friendly hours and followed the Y.W.C.A. world study course on the Life of Christ. The name Wohelo means work, health and love, and this motto has guided the club activities through the year.

For the play last evening the club members were assisted by Mrs. N. Porter, who took the part of Mrs. Mitford, principal of an exclusive girls' school, and Miss Kathleen Cooney as Cinderella O'Brien, the cook's daughter, who is working her way through school. Cinderella discovers the plot of the seniors and assists the juniors in capturing the senior banner, which entitles them to full privileges of seniors for the year. Cinderella also saves one of the girls from being expelled and wins her way to a place of honor among the girls. All parts were well played, and the play will probably be repeated at a later date.

The cast of the play follows: Cinderella O'Brien, Kathleen Cooney; Genevieve Nicholls, Loraine Coursey; Mary Smith, Elsie Simpson; Ester Barnes, Thelma Hatton; Louise Montgomery, Edna Simmons; Edna Gillet, Camilla Irwin; Hazel Piske, Myrtle Melrose; Pauline Mitford, Dorothy Copping; Lucile Woodbridge, Freda Pavey; Avis Cooke, Winnie Adkinson; Ethel Atkins, Audrey Allen; Enid Nelson, Margaret Simpson; Mrs. Mitford, Mrs. N. Porter; Miss St. Eustis, Gertrude Pagett; Mrs. O'Brien, Isabel Montgomery.

During intermission, little Margaret McMaster, in Scotch costume, danced the Highland Fling, accompanied by Rose Hayter, members of the Sunshine Club, and Margaret Pitchford of the elocution class gave a reading. A solo by Miss Grace Phillips, leader of the club, was much enjoyed, and Miss Musa Cox contributed a piano solo.

SELF-DENIAL DRIVE VERY SUCCESSFUL

In connection with the Salvation Army's annual self denial appeal, which is being carried on throughout the Dominion, the local canvass, under the direction of Ensign E. H. Green is meeting with a generous response from citizens irrespective of class or creed. The local objective set by the Territorial headquarters is $3,335, the same amount as last year. The Ensign states that the business and professional men have proved their continued confidence in the work of this world girdling organization by responding on the whole as well and in some cases even better than last year. The house to house canvass by the local soldiery, who by the way all carry credentials, is also being well received. The personal gifts of the members of the local corps towards the objective will reach $400.

The appeal will close as usual, as far as the city is concerned, with the Tag Day next Saturday. The citizens responded very liberally with $500 last year and with everything in their favor it is confidently expected that a similar result will be achieved this year, which will bring the local corps on top once again.

To-night in the Temple at 8 o'clock there will be a presentation in tableaux form, with musical accompaniment, of "Mother's prayer and what become of it." The admission is free and everybody will be amply repaid by availing themselves of the opportunity to see this effective and impressive service. It has been presented in Montreal and Toronto with capacity audiences.

ST. ANDREW'S ANNIVERSARY

to make England Presbyterian, and it failed.

In 1805 a pirate and three mutineers were hanged in Halifax and their bodies left hanging in chains until they rotted. In 1821 a boy of 19 was hanged in St. John for stealing a shoe. There are many things that show that people have now a more adequate conception of God's love than they did ten years ago.

The reason the preachers of those days talked so much about hell and depth, declared the speaker, was that life was cheap and death was seen on every side. Now there are new ideas about the love of God.

The word faith does not mean an intellectual collection of ideals. It means rather loyalty, that the door between Paul and Christ was never closed, that a cloud had never come between them. He had always had at his side, invisible but tangible, the presence of God. All through life he had met situation after situation with resources he never would have had if Jesus had not been at his side.

Reading the life of St. Paul one is amazed at what he did. Tradition says he was small, walked with a limp and that his speech was very poor, but he was the greatest man of history. He appeared before kings and rulers, and the power of Christ kept him. He came before Nero, friendless and helpless, and people would say that the powerful emperor would win out, but his name is now reserved for dogs and circus lions, while Paul's is applied to thousands of churches and borne by many Christians as a name to be proud of.

The power of Christ kept Paul, declared the speaker, and it is needed now. Nobody knows what is going on in the world, whether the yellow races are to take the supremacy from the white. By teaching them the love of Christ, the white races can avoid having their children become cannon fodder in the years to come. "Paul's defence was the presence and power of Christ. That's the thing, the only thing, that will keep us," were his concluding words.

Special music was given by the choir, under the leadership of John Crane. The morning anthem was Martin's "O God, Our Help in Ages Past," while in the evening "Praise the Lord,' by Elvey, and "Fierce Was the Wild Billow" were sung, the latter unaccompanied. Mrs. H. F. Doig sang "The Earth Is the Lord's," by Ward Stephens, at the morning service, and "The Voice in the Wilderness," by Prindle Scott, in the evening. E. Humpage and S. Smith sang a duet, Gounod's "O Divine Redeemer," at the evening service.

WISHART CAMPBELL SINGS AT ST. PAUL'S

The congregations at St. Paul's Presbyterian Church at morning and evening diets of worship yesterday were large, the seven o'clock service taxing the accommodation.

The special soloist—who just a few weeks ago delighted auditors with his renditions—was Wishart Campbell, baritone, and exclusive staff artist of station CKGW. Mother's Day was observed, and two of his numbers specially suited the occasion, "Mother o' Mine" (Kipling) in the morning and "Little Mother o' Mine" (Burleigh). Altogether, Mr. Campbell sang six numbers, three at each service, and many pleasant and complimentary remarks were expressed, others felt grateful, anent his renderings. His songs were:

'O God Have Mercy' (Mendelssohn).
'There's a Wonderful Story.'
'Hold Thou My Hand.'
'Mother o' Mine' (Kipling).
'Little Mother o' Mine' (Burleigh).
'Alone With God' (Abbott).

was $25,000 and there was to be a meeting at the end of this month at which all clubs were expected to be represented.

Rotarian James Juby reported that the Toronto club was contributing $10,000 toward the cost of the gymnasium.

Another feature of to-day's meeting was the presentation of a Just Kid's Safety Club button to Rotarian Bob Abbott, the honors being done by Rotarian Chris. G. Graham.

Rotarians Gordon S. Matthews and James Anderson called attention to the ball club's show on Wednesday night and a canvass of the members showed about a 100 per cent response in the matter of buying tickets.

DISCUSS PLANS FOR MINISTER'S TOUR OF CANAL

Representatives of Trent Municipalities Hold Meeting Here.

PRESS FOR COMPETITION.

Delegation Will Visit Ottawa in Matter—Tourist Attraction Stressed.

That there is more than a mere possibility of the Hon. Charles Dunning, Minister of Railways and Canals, coming to inspect the Trent Valley waterway and to visit municipalities interested, and that in the event of his coming he will be accorded a most sincere welcome, was evidenced by a meeting held yesterday afternoon in Hooper's Palm Room, when the special committee under the chairmanship of Joseph J. Duffus, met as guests of the Peterborough Chamber of Commerce, and discussed and completed basic plans for the Minister's visit. Representatives from those municipalities were present, and in the discussion almost every man was heard to voice his opinion on the matter. As a result of the meeting, a delegation comprising the Hon. G. Gordon, the Mayors of Peterborough and Orillia, the president and secretary of the local Chamber of Commerce, the secretary of the Orillia Board of Trade, Chairman Duffus of the committee and the president of the Trent Waterway Development Association, will visit Ottawa armed with resolutions from the various municipalities, in the hope that the Honorable Mr. Dunning may further persuaded to come to this district sometime during the summer. Yesterday's meeting, which took the form of a dinner meeting, made possible a very profitable exchange of views regarding the Trent Waterways as well as discussion of the program to be followed should the distinguished westerner come here. The possibilities of banquets and other entertainment as a tribute to his worth as a citizen and Minister were considered and the meeting decided to stress the desirability of the completion of the Severn district, for the value that the completed system would be as an attraction to tourists as well as for the importance commercially. Each municipality must be prepared to describe the advantages that the waterway has to it, should the Minister inspect the Trent.

Those present were: W. A. Allely, Town Clerk, R. I. Moore, Mayor, and Jas. McCrea of Lindsay; D. E. Eason, superintending engineer of the Trent Canal, Peterborough; F. D. Kerr, K.C., honorary vice-president of the Trent Waterways Development Association, Peterborough; Reeve H. T. Collier of Frankford; Mayor G. A. Ingston of Campbellford; James Hilton, president of the Peterborough Chamber of Commerce; Walter Childs, president of the Trent Waterway Development Association; Reeve W. C. Moore of Bobcaygeon; J. J. Duffus, chairman of the special committee; G. K. Fraser, honorary president of the association, Hamilton; Mayor George Gooden of Midland; George Ross, chairman of advertising and public affairs, Midland; Reeve Thompson, financial secretary, Midland; George J. Overend, secretary Orillia Board of Trade; N. K. Legg, manager of Georgian Bay Steamship Company, Midland; W. H. Mallum, secretary of Board of Trade, Fenelon Falls; Reeve R. C. Chesee of Hastings; and Councillor G. Simmons of Frankford.

LARGE SUM TURNED OVER

Campbellford Gets $20,000.00 From the Water and Light Commission.

REDUCE TAX RATE

CAMPBELLFORD, May 15.—Local ratepayers will appreciate the fact that the Water and Light Commission have turned over to the municipal treasury, the sum of $20,000.00. Last year the sum turned over by the commission to apply to the municipal account was $23,000.00. So far the tax rate for 1928 has not been struck, but it is usually the case that a mill represents about fourteen hundred dollars. Thus the grant from the commission will reduce the tax rate by about fourteen mills. It is also of interest to know that there have been debentures to the amount of $700,000 retired during the year 1927. The paving cost as stated in the contract prices is $60,400.00. Thus the grant will more than pay the local paving cost above the county grant and will leave a surplus to be applied to the payment of sewers being installed and other work incidental to the paving program. The tax rate for 1928 will be struck within the next few days.

Co-ed Burned To Death.

SPRINGFIELD, Ohio, May 15. — (Canadian Press).—Fire in Woodland Hall, a girls' dormitory at Wittenberg College, early to-day caused the death of Hilda Sypes, 20, a co-ed, and serious injury to three others.

Former Government Officials Are Indicted For Conspiracy

BUFFALO, N.Y., May 15 (Canadian Press) Roscoe C. Harper, former prohibition administrator in this district, and Leo A. Regan, former assistant administrator here, have been indicted for conspiracy to violate the prohibition law in connection with the alleged diversion of alcohol from the Illinois Alcohol Company of Buffalo. They will appear in Federal Court this morning to file bonds, it was announced last night by Richard H. Templton, United States district attorney.

Hugh R. Disart, general manager of the Illinois Alcohol Company, with headquarters at Belvidere, Ills., who is said to be vice-president of a bank in that city, also has been indicted and will appear in court this morning to file bonds. The Illinois plant in Buffalo is a subsidiary of the Bellvidere plant.

The diversion is said by Federal officers to exceed in amount the Waterloo Distillery diversion, which was alleged to have been in excess of $1,000,000 worth of alcohol.

More than 35 persons, including a group of dry agents, have been indicted in the Illinois company case after a four weeks' grand jury investigation during which a total of 160 witnesses were called to testify. Thirteen persons already have filed bonds following the indictment.

CENSUS OF WATER SERVICES IS ORDERED BY COMMISSION

Check-up Will Be Made During Summer — Last Made in 1922.

NOT LIABLE FOR FIRE.

During the summer months the Utilities Commission will carry out a water inspection in the homes of the city. This was decided at a meeting yesterday. Inspectors will be sent out to take the census of the number of taps and water equipment in each house. The last census was taken in 1922, and previous to that in 1912. Each time the inspection has been made the revenue from the waterworks department has been considerably increased.

The commission decided to accept the cancellation of the old Canadian Aladdin Company power contract, providing the company takes out a new contract on the K.V.A. basis, dated from the first of the year.

A letter was received from William Kelly, asking for damages for his cedar hedge that was burned at Chemong when an employee of the commission lit a bon fire, and the fire got into the grass and out of his control. The commission took the stand that it was up to the Hydro-Electric Power Commission of Ontario to settle for this hedge as the local men were employed by the Ontario body.

R. L. Dobbin, manager of the commission, will be one of the principal speakers at the American Waterworks Association's convention, to be held in San Francisco. Mr. Dobbin will describe the local waterworks plant, in his address. Gordon Matthews, the chairman and Mr. Dobbin, were appointed delegates to the convention, the commission paying $400 of their expenses.

Waters Are Receding In Northern Rivers

COBALT, Ont., May 15 (Canadian Press). — The water in some of the northern rivers is dropping slightly, according to reports reaching here last night, but Lake Temiskaming continues to rise. The Montreal River is lower at Elk Lake, and has not raised at Latchford, advices from these points indicate, while the Blanche River is down at Englehart. At New Liskeard flooding continues.

LOCAL CHAMBER IS REPRESENTED

Will Have Two Delegates at Meeting of Canadian Chamber of Commerce.

TWO RESOLUTIONS.

A. J. Reynolds, manager of the Peterborough branch of the Bank of Commerce, and vice-president of the Chamber of Commerce together with Secretary Frank G. Stinson of the latter organization, will represent the Peterborough Chamber at the third annual convention of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce, to be held on June 7-9, in the Chateau Frontenac, Quebec.

At the convention they will speak to two resolutions from the Peterborough Chamber, the one dealing with the method of presentation of resolutions, and the other urging adoption of daylight saving as a Dominion measure.

The latter resolution, if adopted by the convention of representatives of Boards of Trade and Chambers of Commerce from all over Canada, will urge upon the government the early enactment of laws similar to those in force in England, where the whole country moves as a unit in this matter by decree of parliament.

At the first convention of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce, held in Winnipeg in 1925, Peterborough was represented by B. F. Ackerman and E. B. Fowler; the second convention was held in Halifax, and the third in Vancouver, where A. M. Dollar, who recently addressed the annual banquet of the local Chamber, was elected president.

The resolution of the presentation of resolutions reads as follows:

Resolved: That the Peterborough Chamber of Commerce, believing that the effectiveness of resolutions, generally, is often lost through the method of presentation, recommends that the Canadian Chamber of Commerce and Ontario Associated Boards of Trade and Chambers of Commerce require member Boards and Chambers to: (1) Submit all resolutions dealing with Provincial matters to the Ontario Associated Boards Executive; (2) Submit resolutions of Dominion scope to the Canadian Chamber of Commerce; such bodies after having passed upon resolutions, whether during Executive Sesion or Annual Conference, to finally present such resolutions. A resolution presented in this fashion, having first been given either Provincial or Dominion endorsation would, in our opinion, be much more effective and satisfactory.

TORONTO MAN IS BADLY HURT

A. H. Wagstaffe, Missing Since Yesterday, Found in Private House.

CAR FOUND WRECKED.

TORONTO, Ont., May 15 (Canadian Press). — A. H. Wagstaff, who has been missing since yesterday afternoon following a motor accident here, was found to-day in a private residence where he had been taken following the accident. His condition is reported as not serious.

The finding the wrecked car of Wagstaff, who is a brick manufacturer, and former alderman, in a ditch on a country road just east of the city led to an investigation being started by the city and county police to determine his whereabouts.

The interior of the car, when discovered by Scarboro Township police, was spattered with blood, and it is thought one or more of the occupants was injured. Witnesses told the police two distinct explosions occurred, following which the auto struck a culvert, somersaulted, and fell into the ditch. A man's cap and a woman's hat covered with blood were found in the wreckage. It is thought four persons were in the car.

'CHRISTIAN' IS LIKELY TO RULE IN ANCIENT CITY

Fen Yu-Hsiang of Nationalist Armies Demands Control of Peking.

CHANGES BEING MADE

General's Return to Fore Now Seems Dependent on Three Factors.

LONDON, May 15. — Feng Yu-Hsiang, "Christian general" of the Nationalist armies, again seems coming to the fore to-day as the potential dominant personality in China.

Feng's return to the limelight in the civil war, after two years in the background, now seems dependent on three factors:

1—The outcome of the present race toward Tientsin and Pekin by three Nationalist columns, headed by himself, Chiang Kai-Shek, the Nationalist commander-in-chief, and Yen Hsi-Shan, "model governor" of Shansi Province.

2—The extent to which Chang Tso-Lin, Manchurian War Lord and commander-in-chief of the Northern armies in the civil war retires to Manchuria in the face of the National advance, and the rapidity with which he effects a retirement.

3—The power which Chiang Kai-Shek and Yen Hsi-Shek accord to Feng once Tientsin and Pekin are captured—if they are captured.

To Govern Pekin.

It is understood on high authority that when Feng recently resumed close co-operation in the strictly Nationalist cause, now headed by Chiang Kai-Shek, he exacted a pledge that if Pekin were captured he would be given sole charge of it.

This would make him again the dominant figure in the Chinese situation, as he was in the early civil war days, when by brilliant strategy and tactics he led his well disciplined army to repeated successes against the Northerners.

TWEED STREETS WELL KEPT UP

Concrete Sidewalks Laid in Most of Village—Waterworks and Sewer Considered.

MEETING ON WEDNESDAY

TWEED, May 15.—This village has no intention of not keeping up with the times. Last year many yards of sidewalks were built, and to-day finds cement walks in front of practically all the residences. The streets have been kept in splendid condition, and with the previous work that has been done on them, they are found to be in excellent condition this spring.

Waterworks and sewage disposal plants are now being considered, and the citizens are taking considerable interest in these new projects. Many of them think that the project is too much for the village, as the financing of it will put the village in debt for many years. On Wednesday night in the Town Hall a public meeting has been called when the matter which is causing so much interest will be discussed.

WEATHER CLEARS BUT PLANES WAIT

Cannot Start From Pictou For Newfoundaind at Present.

PICTOU, N. S., May 15. — Canadian Press.—The weather was clearing here to-day, but unless conditions this afternoon are unusually good the two army amphibian planes in command of Major General Fechet, chief of the United States air service, will probably not hop off for St. George's, Nfld. before 6.30 to-morrow morning.

The General said he would wait until his arrival in Newfoundland, before making further plans for bringing the trans-atlantic plane Bremen to the United State.

Says Passage of Revised Book Would Be More Grievously Regarded Than Rejection

LONDON, May 15 (Canadian Press Cable).—Sir William Joynson-Hicks, Home Secretary, in a letter to the Right Rev. Arthur Foley Winnington - Ingram, Bishop of London, who circularised the London members of parliament, urging them to support the new measure for revision of the Prayer Book of the Church of England, says he is convinced that throughout the country the passage of the Prayer Book as recently revised would be far more grievously regarded than its rejection would be.

Referring to disorder in the church and the Royal Commissioners' statement that there were many matters that could be amended without waiting for revision of antiquated rules, the Home Secretary says:

"The very fact that your Lordship's House made no effort whatever to comply with the wishes of the Royal Commission makes the mass of the people observe with grave suspicion the attempts you are making now to legalize what is illegal merely because you have not the courage to deal with it in any other way.

"Although your Lordship may say that the elements are reserved only for the sick and the dying you cannot tell me that you think no one will worship before them or in their presence."

Sir William concluded by asking how the Bishops were going to enforce the restriction on the reservation of the elements.

STORMY WEATHER DELAYS PROGRESS OF SALVAGE FLIERS

Bound for Greenely Island to Bring Back Bremen Monoplane.

BRAVE HEAVY STORMS

PICTOU, N.S., May 15 (Canadian Press).—The bad weather and ill luck which has delayed the progress of the two United States army amphibian planes almost continuously since they started out from Washington last Friday afternoon with a salvage crew to bring back the trans-Atlantic monoplane Bremen marooned on Greenely Island, stayed with the fliers yesterday in their flight over Nova Scotia. Last night the plane flown by Lieutenant Quesada and carrying Major General Fechet, chief of the army air service, was safe in port here after landing in the Shubenacadie River, fifty miles away and taking off later as a land plane when the receding tide left the machine high and dry on the mud flats.

The second plane, piloted by Capt. Ira Eaker, was near Tatamagouche, thirty miles from here, having left the Shubenacadie River in a hurry when threatened with being wrecked by the outgoing tide, the plane was forced down with empty fuel tanks in a field near Tatamagouche. Snowstorms were the cause of yesterday's mishaps and both planes will remain in their present havens until better weather offers for a continuance of their flight to St. George, Newfoundland, which will be their next scheduled stopping place.

Brave Heavy Snowstorms

The two planes left St. John, N.B.,

Bandit Is Given Three-Year Term

MONTREAL, Que., May 15 (Canadian Press).—Bert Warren, alias Rimer, who admitted committing twenty-eight robberies in as many boarding houses in the university district, was yesterday sent to the penitentiary for three years by Judge Marin. The prisoner has served several terms in penitentiaries for offences in Ottawa and Toronto and upon his release from St. Vincent de Paul he will be handed over to the Ontario police who want him for a long series of burglaries in boarding houses in towns in that province.

Warren's system was to rent a room in a boarding house, paying a day's rent in advance. He came usually during the day when the other boarders were out and soon after his arrival began to loot their rooms.

MADOC BUILDS NEW FIRE HALL

Brigade of 28 Volunteers is Organized to Man Equipment.

BIG PUMP CONSIDERED

MADOC, May 15.—As a result of the village fathers realizing that a well organized and equipped fire department is essential to the safeguarding of any community, Madoc has now such a department of which to be proud. Recently there has been completed a new fire hall on St. Lawrence street west, and in it is housed the village steam pumper, chemical truck, 1,500 feet of hose mounted on several reels, as well as other equipment to be manned by some twenty-eight vozunteer firemen in case of emergency.

"The new fire hall was completed last month at an approximate cost of $5,000," said Councillor Frank Wallbridge, the upstairs is fitted and mounted on cement foundation, and it is a two-story solid brick building. Needed to describe the new building, built when interviewed. They provide living quarters for a private family, the main floor and basement are put to the purpose implied by the name fire hall. This main floor is divided into three rooms—the main hall where the truck, pumper and hose are kept, and two storage rooms where electric light supplies of the village and other equipment of the department are kept. The building boasts modern plumbing and heating equipment. Three sets of doors provide ready exit for the brigade.

As stated above, the upper story is used as living quarters, comprising as it does, four living-rooms. In this home is located the telephone on which all calls are received, the large bell placed on the southwest corner of the building sounds the alarm, and on a recent occasion the truck was en route to a fire fifty seconds after the alarm was rung in.

The man whose family lives above the hall is also authorized to take out the chemical truck should necessity demand it. For the steam pumper the engineer is A. Smith, and the stoker is B. Richmond. J. N. Devolin drives the chemical apparatus.

In the office of Clerk A. S. Cochran is to be seen a neatly designed bronze plate on which is inscribed the names of the 1927 Councillors:

EVERYTHING PROPERLY DONE ABOUT SCARLET FEVER CASE DR. YOUNG ASSURES BOARD

Sick Children Were Removed and Father Prevented From Bottling Milk.

ALLOWED TO DELIVER.

Few Contagious Disease Cases in City at Present, Board of Health is Told.

J. J. Turner, at a meeting of the local Board of Health this morning, asked Dr. T. W. H. Young to make a statement as to the steps that were taken in regards to the scarlet fever cases at the home of John Hodson, a milk vendor. One of his children died in the Isolation hospital and a boy is in the hospital at present.

Dr. Young went into the details of the case. "One Sunday evening Dr. Hewett was called to the home where a child was found to be very ill. The next morning he called me up on the telephone and the two of us examined the case. On seeing the girl I said she would not live but I was not sure whether it was diphtheria or scarlet fever. The girl was taken to the Isolation hospital and as we were leaving the father said to me that one of the boys was ill also. I immediately examined him and had the boy sent to the hospital also. This case later developed into scarlet fever."

"Hodson is a milkman or really a deliverer, as he buys the milk bottled. A few days later I discovered that he bought part of his milk from a farmer and was bottling this at home, which I immediately stopped. The body of the child was kept at the Comstock funeral home and all possible precautions were taken."

Dr. Young charged that there had been a lot of fuss made by a doctor attending a patient in a neighboring house, who had got in touch with Dr. Sutton, District M.O.H., who went down and examined things.

Asked by one of the members why the house had not been placarded, Dr. Young said, "I do not placard the house when the patient is taken out. I treat those who are left as contacts. Placarding the house says there is such a disease in that dwelling. Everything has been done properly and absolutely right, and it has been a deliberate attack to try and butt in."

Mr. Turner: "I am satisfied with Dr. Young's explanation."

Miss Price, matron of the Queen Mary Hospital, was granted an extra month's vacation this year, as she wishes to return to England to see her father, who is in poor health.

Miss Price's report of the Queen Mary hospital revealed that during the month of April there were five cases admitted, four suffering from scarlet fever and one from erysipelas. During the month one scarlet fever case died, and the erysipelas case.

Dr. Young reported the following diseases in the city: three scarlet fever, one of which is being treated at home and the other two in the hospital; two of mumps, and four of chicken pox.

The expenses for the Queen Mary hospital for the month of April amounted to $530.33, and since January 1, $2,417.91. The total receipts for the same period were $239.50.

Sanitary Inspector Stapleton was ordered to investigate the complaints of a resident about alleged unsanitary conditions at a Westcott street house.

A. J. Reynolds occupied the chair in absence of the chairman, Ald. C. H. Ackerman.

LONDON, May 15. — Oftimes a tearful bride or a nervous bridegroom has waited alone and in vain at the altar. But it was the clergyman who did the waiting at Cronyn Memorial Church, where Albert H. Marr, an advertising solicitor, was to have been married to a London girl.

In Police Court yesterday, Marr was remanded until Thursday on two charges of making false statements in connection with the intended ceremony. Marr, it is alleged, was already married, and neither he nor his bride-to-have-been showed up at the altar because of the last-minute intervention of the girl's brother-in-law. Canon Lowe waited at the altar for half an hour before he learned that the marriage was not to take place.

Talk on Africa Given by Rev. H. B. Herrington at Carmel.

WARSAW, May 15.—Mrs. David Miller was elected president of the Women's Institute of Warsaw at the annual meeting held on Thursday afternoon. The past president, Mrs. George Weller, was unanimously voted for re-election but refused to hold office for another year. Her refusal was considered a great loss as she has done a great amount of Institute work in different places, and has held many offices outside the branches in which she has been working.

The election of officers resulted in the following: President, Mrs. David Miller; 1st vice-president, Mrs. Thomas Crowe; 2nd vice-president, Mrs. George Weller; secretary-treasurer, Mrs. Theodore Douglas; organist, Mrs. George Taylor; librarian, Miss Valetta Drain; branch directors, Mesdames William Forsythe, James Dewart, Laurence McCracken, and Miss Valetta Drain; delegates to the district annual, Mrs. Foster, Mrs. Weller, Mrs. Henry Clements, and W. S. Anderson; district director, Mrs. Weller; auditors, Mesdames John Andrew Crowe and T. H. Crowe.

The reports of the work of the past year was read: The school fair had been aided; flowers had been placed on the monument plot; a basketry class was held; assistance, where needed, had been given several times; Institute members asked by interested people and set by the Institute, had visited and aided a family where there were six children; garments were made and given and reports from the teacher were received monthly; other instances of timely aid were noted. Along with other branches throughout the province this branch sent a donation to Tobermory hospital, and assisted in making up the amount required, above what the nursing class had already donated, to provide for the Indian girl in a non-denominational hospital.

Some matters relating to the giving of meals on July 12 were discussed. The executive is a committee to arrange for the dinner to be given on June 6, when the District Annual meeting will be held in Warsaw. Mrs. Todd of Orillia is expected to be present at the afternoon session. Mrs. Yates will be the speaker at the summer series meetings held on June 12.

Refreshments were served at the close of the meeting.

ORATORY CONTEST HELD AT MILLBROOK

Semi-Finals of Junior Farmers' Association Inter-County Debates.

MILLBROOK, May 15—A gathering of peculiar interest was held in the town hall on Friday evening when the semi-finals in the series of inter-county debates, under the auspices of the Junior Farmers' Association took place.

J. Y. Kellough, agricultural representative for Durham county, was chairman, and explained that eight counties had been taking part in the debates, Victoria defeating Peterborough, and Durham defeating Ontario county; the other counties participating were Hastings, Northumberland, Prince Edward Island, Lennox and Addington.

Victoria and Durham counties were the contestants on Friday evening, the former being represented by Mr. Gerald and Miss Florence Burtotn, of Cambray, while Mr. Archie and Miss Edyth Deyell, of South Monaghan, entered the lists for the home county.

The visiting team was given the privilege of choosing the subject for debate: Resolved that installment buying is damaging to the individual and to the prosperity of the country at large," and the home team was allowed to choose which side they would take; in this case, the Durham debaters ranged themselves on the affirmative, Archie Deyell being the first speaker.

The arguments on both sides were presented with a degree of earnestness that showed thorough preparation, and apparently a wide range of reading for the material secured. The judges, R. F. Downey, Public school

MILLBROOK, May 15. — A joint meeting of the Tuxis Square and the Wide-Awakes C.G.I.T. group was held in the church on Thursday evening, with forty or more present, and the vice-praetor of the Tuxis group, Kenneth Skitch, presiding.

The chief feature of the gathering was the inter-square debate on the subject, Resolved that country life offers more advantages than city life," the affirmative being ably upheld by Misses Jean Burnham, Flossie McMahon, Jean Stinson, and Wilma Fallis; supporting the negative were: Reg. Willis, Lawrence Rowland, Robert Larmer and Kenneth Fallis.

Each side had evidently prepared carefully its material and presented its arguments with due emphasis, the judges, who were Mrs. (Dr.) Rae, W. F. Fallis and the Rev. F. H. Howard, finally giving their decision in favor of the negative, by five points.

The mentor of the group, H. J. Anderson, took charge of the discussion, during the devotional period on "Recreation and Amusement," one definite topic under this heading coming in for particular attention. Mr. Anderson guided the discussion very ably, wisely keeping the participants within certain limitations that brought out the opinions held by the young folk, and led to a helpful view point and decision.

The scriptural reading from Ecclesiastes, 3, was taken by Elsie Spence, president of the Wide-awakes group, and the secretaries of the two organizations, Wilma Fallis and Aubrey Todd, looked after the minutes and roll call.

The Tuxis Square has entered a team in the local sofeball league and will have their first game on Tuesday, May 22.

A pleasant social hour, with the

Campbellford

CAMPBELLFORD, May 15.— The Young People of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church motored to Warkworth last night, where they were entertained by the Young People of the Presbyterian Church there.

Saturday night saw the close of the Legion Gala Week and the Legion coffers are much fuller than they were eight days ago. The cold evenings did much to keep down the revenue of the midway, but the Legion percentage is in the neighborhood of two hundred dollars. This week the Joyland Shows are playing in Belleville.

"Fence tickets" will be more difficult to obtain this season when the Fall Fair comes around. The Agricultural Society is erecting a new fence in place of the old one that has deteriorated to a more or less dilapidated condition. To date the posts along the front of the grounds are all in and some of the fence material erected. The property committee is of the opinion that it would be wise to call an old-fashioned bee and finish the work immediately.

BAND CONCERT AT CAMPBELLFORD

Pleasing Program Given by Northumberland Regimental Band—Delights Audience.

CAMPBELLFORD, May 15.—After having presented what the audience claimed was the best band concert of the season on Sunday night, the funds of the Northumberland Regimental Band are increased by about thirty dollars. These moneys are to be used for charitable purposes. At various times during the past season, the band has been called on to assist at Sunday night concerts, and has responded readily. These have been in support of various worthy causes. But not till Sunday night did the band make an attempt on its own behalf.

Councillor J. R. Wilkinson, ex-bandsman and chairman of the Council Band Committee, was chairman for the evening. During the brief introductory remarks, Mr. Wilkinson said that he was proud to act in the capacity of chairman since he had been associated with the band for a great many years, and it is still his aim to uphold the band and do all in his power to assist them. In his opinion, a town without a band to supply music on the street when the occasion arose was practically dead. The Campbellford Band had held the highest regard in military circles for many years, he said. Even thirty-five years ago, when he himself was a bandsman, it had been the duty of the Northumberland, then the 40th, Regimental Band to play for officers' mess and all the various duties which demanded that a band make a good showing. This was considered a great honor. He thought he could speak for some time on the merits of the band, but he would be like the bandsmen from Birmingham who signed the six B's after his name when registering as a contestant in a band contest. This string of letters was entirely new to those in charge of the register, so the bandsman offered to explain that he was the Best Blooming Blower in the Birmingham Brass Band.

The program throughout was appreciated by the audience, who applauded each nuumber vigorously. There was a well-filled house, and the admission fee was in the form of a silver collection taken during the intermission. The program follows:

March, "10th Regiment"—The Band.
Overture—"Sans Souci" .. The Band
Vocal solo—"Resignation" (Caro Roma) .. Miss Margaret Dickson
Overture—"Harmony Queen" — The Band.
Violin solo — "Liesbfreud" (Kreisler) ..... R. Cecil Searles
"Adoration"—encore.
Selection—"Echoes from the Opera" The Band.
Vocal solo—"Forgotten" (Eugene Cowles ..... George Lucy
March—"College Pride" .. The Band
Overture—"Sunny Land" .. The Band
Vocal solo—"Bedouin Love Song" .. Herbert Leonard.
Selection—"Sweet Brier" . The Band
Hymn—"Abide With Me."
"God Save the King."

The accompaniments for the evening were played by Miss Irene Stephens, Miss Cherry Turner, and Mr. William Pearson. The concert was under the direction of Bandmaster William Pearson, A.L.C.M. (England).

FINE AMATEUR PLAY TWICE PRESENTED

MARMORA, May 12.—Nearing the end of a successful tour, the Dramatic Club of Christ Church, Belleville A.Y.P.A., appeared at the Town Hall on Thursday and presented that exhilarating farcical comedy "Are You a Mason?" before a very large audience which was kept convulsed with laughter throughout the three acts. The cast proved to be one of the best balanced of the many amateur shows which have appeared locally and while each character was well impersonated, Franklin Lang in his dual role of George Fisher and Angeline scored the heaviest, chiefly through his feminine impersonation. Mrs. Mahon at the piano, Franklin Lang with the banjo and Ralph Elliott with the violin, made up an orchestra whose play greatly enlivened the performance.

The manager, Mr. G. Watkin and the directors, Mr. Clarke, and Mrs. Backus, are to be congratulated on the results accomplished by the club.

The cast was as follows: George Fisher, Franklin Lang; Frank Perry, Edgar Bateman; Amos Bloodgood, L. T. Legott; John Halton, Bert Wells; Hamilton Travers, Keith Gibson; Ernest Morrison, F. W. Sherbert; policeman, Sergt. Harman; Mrs. Carolina Bloodgood, Mrs. L. T. Legott; Eva, Miss Edith Bone; Annie, Miss Lela Morton; Lulu, Miss Margaret Simmons; Mrs. Halton, Miss Minnie Diamond; Lottie, Miss Dorothy Gibson; Panchon Armitage, Mrs. E. Lang.

After the performance, members of the cast were entertained at a sumptuous lunch at the rectory by the members of St. Paul's A.Y.P.A.

ENJOYED AT MADOC.

MADOC, May 12.—The Dramatic Club of Christ Church A.Y.P.A., Belleville, presented the play, "Are You a Mason?" in the Madoc Empire Theatre, on Monday night and played to a full house. Madoc people were treated to a fine bit of amateur acting and undoubtedly the ladies of the audience received some valuable information as to the cause of so many lodge meetings which keep the men folk out all night.

The play was comedy from start to finish and each role was carried out with such energy and perfection that the audience did not know a dull moment.

It would be hard to distinguish among the players to find the star of the performers. Franklin Lang, in the dual role of George Fisher (Annie Bloodgood's fiance) and Panchon, (Mr. Bloodgood's daughter by a former marriage) was decidedly good. Mrs. L. F. Legott, as Mrs. Bloodgood, the uncompromising mother-in-law; Edgar Bateman as Frank Perry, the would-be Mason, and L. T. Legott as Angus Bloodgood, playing the leading parts showed exceptional ability and the effects of experienced training. The A.Y.P.A. of St. John's church, Madoc, are to be congratulated on securing this high class entertainment which has proved a success from every point of view.

W.M.S. OBSERVES 10TH ANNIVERSARY

St. James' Branch Observes Occasion With Special Service.

The tenth anniversary of St. James United church auxiliary of the W.M.S. was celebrated on Sunday at their meeting held in the church parlors.

Invitations had been sent to all the ladies of the congregation, who responded with a large attendance.

The president, Mrs. E. L. Woodley, presided, and the meeting was under the direction of Group 4, Mrs. W. Rose, leader. The Scripture reading was given by Mrs. Bonney and was in keeping with the spirit of the meeting, as were, also, the hymns which were sung. A pleasing feature of the anniversary was the presence of Mrs. J. K. Moore, who organized the Society ten years ago, and the following charter members: Mrs. J. Plunkett, Mrs. H. A. Bonney, Mrs. C. H. Young, Mrs. J. O. Fife and Mrs. E. J. Wagar.

Mrs. Moore gave a short address on the organization and growth of the Auxiliary, which she said she had watched throughout the years with great interest.

A resume of the history of the doings of the Society, its discouragements and encouragements, its officers and the steady advance in membership was ably told by Mrs. J. G. Plunkett, the first president of the Society.

Mrs. C. H. Edwards, in a very fine address, told what constitutes a successful W.M.S. Society, patience, love, forbearance, loyalty and faithfulness being the chief characteristics.

The beautiful duet sung by Mrs. McLaren and Miss May Ritchie, was greatly enjoyed. Mrs. Doig also delighted the meeting with her sweetly sung solo. Miss Aileen Rose was the accompanist.

Delicious refreshments were served by Mrs. Rose and her assistants, and a social hour spent in getting acquainted.

Mrs. Moore closed this very happy milestone in the history of St. James Auxiliary with prayer.

BUCHAREST, May 15 (Canadian Press).—Fires which have taken a toll of seven lives in the oil fields continue to burn.

THE CHURCHES

GEORGE STREET UNITED

The Mothers' Day service at George street United church on Sunday morning was of a very bright and inspiring character. The members of the congregation gave contributions of flowers at the entrance of the church. These were exceedingly beautiful, filling four huge vases and were carried up the aisle by four pretty little maids: Shirley Richardson, Elsie Saunders, Betty Middleton and Dorothy Boyle. After the singing of the opening hymn and placed on pedestals on either side of the pulpit platform. They made a very attractive setting with a background of tall palms.

These flowers were afterward sent out to the sick and shut in mothers of the congregation.

A beautiful baptismal service followed at which a number of children were baptized.

A reception service of new members was held at which a large number of young people from the Sunday school and older ones by letter or on profession of faith were received into church membership. G. Carruthers on behalf of the Board of Management of the church assisted the Rev. J. E. Todd in welcoming these new members into the fellowship of the church.

Rev. J. E. Todd had charged of the service and referred to Mother's Day as one of the outstanding days of the year, which as a church we wish to celebrate. His subject was "Our Mothers" and he chose for his text from St. Luke 2, Chapter 42, 52nd verse: "Jesus increased in wisdom and stature and in favor with God and man."

"Life is a matter of emphasis. Some people place great emphasis on one thing, others on something else. Their lives tend in that direction. Ones ambition and determination may be to have an education, another to gain wealth. The emphasis set on these things sets them off in different directions but each in his own place fulfilling his purpose.

"It is a significant thing that all over this American continent we have Mother's Day. There are so many countries where they never think of celebrating it. Motherhood is an accepted fact but they do not emphasize it. In Korea they are not even proud of mothers but manhood is flaunted more or less. It is a glorious thought that here we have a day we celebrate as Mother's Day.

"At the general conference each year the great majority of young ministers, giving an account of how the were called to the work, emphasize the influence of home and especially of mother, on their lives. I also assume that other young people, who go out into the various walks of life would testify in the same way.

"Home life is the greatest factor in solidifying and stabilizing a nation. There is a lot of talk about evil times of the present. It is simply a new problem and we need not think the sky has fallen down or the bottom has fallen out of everything. We must acknowledge that home life is vastly different from what it was fifty or sixty years ago. Grandmother then felt her position, wore a cap, and occupied a rocking chair at the hearth. Now grandmothers have wonderful ability to do things both in public and private life: I consider this a great improvement. Let us consider the matter seriously in regard to the matter of family worship. Are there as many families who hold family worship and gather around the table for Bible reading and prayer? If not why are you depriving your family of its proper rights? If you realize this go home to-day and etsablish the family altar.

"Another thing we have lost is the old home meeting place of the family in the evenings. If the boys and girls are home the mother and father are not. This is a distinct loss but I believe we have gained in another respect. Father and mothers are better companions, chums and pals of their children. There is closer sympathy and better understanding between them.

"It is a significant fact that Christ during the formative period of his life, was under the control of that remarkable woman Mary, his mother, and that he honored her. Men and women, we do well to honor our mothers. God bless the mothers. Mary said or rather sang these words: 'My soul doth magnify the Lord.' The spirit that prompted her to sing these words entered into the life of the boy Jesus. Have that spirit and go out in life and make "Harmony" not "Discord.' This world needs harmony and I challenge you men and women not to ignore the influence of happy loving homes where harmony abounds."

The Sunday school held an open session at 3 p.m. when a very fine Mother's Day program was followed. It included responsive services. A story "About Angels", by Miss Irene Cox; vocal duet, Olive Rowe and Elva Tretheway; pageant, "A Gift for Mother" by members of the Intermediate Club, directed by Miss Eva Outram. In the first scene two children were planning what they would give to mother when the spirit of rememberance came in and told them whatever was given in the right spirit was acceptable.

The second scene showed a boy in Japan trying to think what he could send to his mother that would please her most. He decided to write a poem expressing his deepest thoughts. In the third scene the mother was portrayed and her joy and happiness when she received the poem. The pageant concluded by all singing the poem and a prayer by the spirit of memory.

THE SALVATION ARMY.

Mother's Day services most naturally were given to mother and her memory at the Temple, and during the course of the evening service a mothers' choir sang "There is a green hill far away," Mrs. Mendel Braund sang "And I shall see Him face to face," and a selection, "Mother's Prayer," which incorporates such old favorites as "My name in Mother's Prayer," "Where is my wandering boy to-night," and "Just before the battle, Mother," was rendered by the band, and there was hearty congregational singing of old hymns, all of which were composed by mothers.

Reading the 31st chapter of Proverbs as his lesson, Ensign Green said: "A wonderful institution was this setting aside of a Sabbath day in memory of mother, more especially in these days when there seems such a tendency—and especially among the young people—of forgetting mother. I think that many to-day will have seen themselves just as they are and will have more fully realized the influence of mother. Business men have to-day ceased in their labor to think of mother—possibly the first thought really given her since last Mother's Day. Many have only been able to think of her as she was for she is to-night in the glory land—and in thinking have been drawn heavenward.

"Some time ago I visited a mother who had been and was still very ill, and I had noticed a cent 'all-day sucker' on the table by the bed, and as a means of introducing conversation with a little girl, the woman's daughter, who was sitting quiet by the bed, I suggested that the sucker was hers, but she said, 'No, that's mother's!' and I was told that the little girl had given it to mother for Mother's Day—it was not the value of the gift, but the thought impelling the gift that made that mother's heart glad.

"This day is teaching our children and young people by these gifts and tokens to show to mother their love. I was in the Children's Hospital in Toronto visiting a child who knew me well, but when I reached her bedside she said, 'I want my mother,' a cry that was quickly taken up by the other children in the ward, until away in one corner a little chap bravely cried, 'I want my daddy.' But to spiritualize the story, there are many to-day in the world who are sick of soul—then dire need is a comforter. You know the strength and comfort imparted by mother when she has stood by you in your sickness and troubles, the comfort of friends when you have been in difficulty. There is a friend Who is greater in His love than mother, Jesus Christ. There are many in the world who need this Saviour—many in our city who have not yet accepted His love and friendship.

"You know the story of the boy who had swam ashore following the upsetting of a canoe, when asked by his brother how he had managed to swim so far, said, 'It was the thought of you mother.' Many are to-day being heedlessly tossed on the sea of life and are far away from land—but if you will make an effort yourself and look to Jesus Christ, He will lead you to safety.

"To the mothers here to-night maybe you have a wandering boy or girl and you question your many tears and prayers for they continue in the paths of evil. Do not give up your prayers. God will answer them. Does not the Bible say 'that bread cast upon the waters shall return after many days?' Be of good cheer. If your child has been cradled in Christianity he will return and gladden your heart.

"It seems to me that stability is a vital requirement of this age. We of the Christian Church and of the Salvation Army who are parents must set the standard for our children or we cannot expect them to live up to a standard we do not live to ourselves. To ensure these high standards, we need more praying, mothers and fathers, more family altars, more examples to our children. We seem to be so easily affected by the little things of life—we stumble over them so quickly, but to-night I am appealing to you mothers and fathers here to stand fast midst all the cares and worries of life, and ever put a high standard before the children.

"There are many degrees of love that we can think of—maternal love, that wonderful love that mothers have; paternal love, father's affection. Unfortunately some mothers and fathers seem most anxious to get the children out of the way so that they can make for the dance hall or the show. Should there be any like that, remember God's measures are severe sometime in bringing you to see your folly. Conjugal love, that of husband and wife, and there is room for a lot more of this kind of love in the world. Love of home, love of country, these all make up the fabric of life, and I urge you mothers and fathers that you live such lives that will enable your children to 'rise up and call you blessed' as we read in the lesson this evening."

IMPORTS NOT DESIRED.

The protest launched by Sir Henry Drayton, chairman of the Ontario Liquor Control Board, and by Hon. W. J. Major, K.C., Attorney-General for Manitoba, against the action of the Dominion Senate in amending the bill prohibiting the inter-provincial importation of liquor, would seem to be justified.

The effect of the amendment proposed by the Senate would allow importations in quantities up to a half-gallon.

The provincial authorities are unanimous in predicting that such a concession would seriously interfere with the operation of the Government control system and would be injurious to law enforcement.

There is no demand from the Provinces anywhere for a legalization of inter-provincial movement of liquor, and in view of the very obvious difficulties that would be created were this amendment to become law, this proposed lifting of the ban on liquor imports might well be abandoned.

Under the most favorable conditions the enforcement of liquor legislation is a most difficult matter, and anything that serves to embarrass the authorities entrusted with such enforcement should be frowned upon instead of being encouraged.

THE GROUNDS QUESTION.

In pointing out the danger that might develop from a non-use of James Stevenson Park by local ball clubs The Examiner is not attempting to dictate to such organizations where they should play their games.

The point is simply this, that The Examiner has been fighting for years to preserve James Stevenson Park as an athletic grounds for Peterborough, believing that its existence as such to be absolutely necessary to the welfare of the city's sporting organizations.

If the latter do not endorse that opinion, but, on the contrary, follow a policy that would justify the impression that the park across the river is not needed, The Examiner's fight may be a losing one, and some future City Council may decide that it is foolish to maintain an athletic field that nobody wants to use.

And that will be a sad day for sport in Peterborough, leaving us without an enclosed athletic grounds within the city limits.

ILLEGAL AND BAD BUSINESS, TOO.

The appeal of the Peterborough Fish and Game Association to local citizens to refrain from purchasing game fish caught out of season should be met by the co-operation of the public.

If there were no market for illegally caught fish there would not be enough illegal fishing done to materially effect the supply of game fish.

It is the fact that such fish can be sold at good prices that leads to law-breaking on a scale that seriously threatens our resources of game fish, already depleted to a very serious extent.

Don't encourage this illegal traffic by buying bass or maskinonge.

In the first place, you are breaking the law.

In the second place, it is decidedly poor business.

Once our supply of game fish is completely exhausted we will find difficulty in keeping the stream of tourist traffic into this section of Ontario at the present level, and the revenue from this source will speedily fall off.

One game fish may mean many dollars as an attraction for tourists; it is only a meal when it is bought from poachers.

GOES INTO FORCE TO-DAY.

The Security Frauds Prevention Act, which was passed at the last session of the Ontario Legislature, came into force to-day.

This legislation, which, it is hoped, will check the operations in this Province of high-pressure salesmen of worthless securities and stocks, makes it necessary, generally speaking, for all who wish to continue trading in securities in Ontario to register, a time limit of a month being allowed for this purpose.

Once more the Government is depending upon the advertising columns of the newspapers to acquaint all those who may be affected by the Act of what is required of them, it being the desire of the Attorney-General that all the information of value to the public should be set forth in detail.

Hon. Mr. Price has issued a statement in which he explains the objects aimed at in the Act, declaring that its administration "will be carried out, keeping in mind not only the protection of the man who buys but the protection of the man who is in business and sells."

"It does not attempt to regulate the security, but it does attempt to regulate the broker or the salesman, no matter what type of security he is selling."

There seems little doubt that this legislation will make it troublesome for salesmen of doubtful propositions to do business in Ontario.

As the Attorney-General points out, "the average man in this Province wants a run for his money."

He has not always had that in the past, and if the new Act encourages legitimate development and shuts out the dubious or fraudulent promotion schemes that have been all too common here, it will be received with acclaim by the people of Ontario.

THIS IS OUR POLICY, TOO.

(From The Woodstock Sentinel-Review.)

The Sentinel-Review will henceforth adhere strictly to the policy of publishing the names and addresses of all persons convicted of driving a car while intoxicated. It will make no difference who the offender is, rich or poor, high or low, influential or unknown. The Sentinel-Review makes this statement in the interest of those compelled to use the highways, and we hope the promise of publicity for all such offenders will serve as a warning, and will act as an effective deterrent to all those who may be tempted to offend.

RESPONSIBILITY FOR CROSSING ACCIDENTS

There is warning for motorists in a judgment which has just been handed down at Goderich following an action entered by the owner of a motor car against the Canadian National Railways and a counter-action entered by the railway company against the motorist.

In the month of October last, a car driven by a certain Boyce, ran into a Canadian National Railways' train at it was proceeding over a crossing on the Huron road near Goderich, the car being seriously damaged and its occupants having a providential escape from either injury or death.

Boyce thereupon brought suit against the railway company for damages and the railway company countered by claiming similar damages from Boyce. The case came to trial a short time ago and, after the hearing of evidence, Boce found it necessary to settle with the railway company, judgment being given accordingly. His Honor Judge Lewis expressed a desire that the circumstances should be made public in order that motorists who approach railway crossings in a careless manner should be prepared to suffer the consequences—even if they should escape with their lives.

Not long ago the management of the Canadian National Railways intimated that they had become tired of paying damages to motorists who claimed them as a result of collisions at level crossings, when as a matter of fact it was the motor that had run into the train rather than the train that had run into the motor. The result of the hearing at Goderich thus has an important bearing upon the entire question of level crossing accidents, which have become so numerous throughout the country.

The railway company is rarely the guilty party in these crossing accidents. Its employees are instructed to sound the proper warning signals upon approaching such danger spots and there is no level crossing in the whole country at which suitable signs are not erected. Yet both of these safeguards continue to be ignored by many member of the motoring public and if they find their cars wrecked and themselves injured as the result of having run into trains, as not infrequently happens they may find that the courts will find them, rather than the railway company, guilty of negligence and carelessness and fix the penalty accordingly.—Brockville Recorder and Times.

AIDING TECHNICAL EDUCATION.

Premier Ferguson's plea for a continuation of Federal aid to technical education, made in an address last evening, quite naturally expressed disappointment at the prospect of having this help cut off with the expiration of the present Act. Since 1919 the Dominion Government has been making a yearly contribution of $1,000,000 for vocational and technical training under an arrangement with the Provinces, which, in turn, have encouraged municipalities to establish the necessary facilities for carrying on the work. As a result debentures have been issued in Ontario for school buildings calling for the payment of some $6,000,000 over a twenty-two-year period. Extensions now under consideration require $4,000,000 more, making $10,000,000 in commitments. According to the Premier, who is also Minister of Education, the municipalities are spending $3,500,000 a year on this branch of education. Last year Ontario's contribution toward this was $915,048, of which $347,636 was received from the Dominion under the provisions of the Technical Education Act. When a deputation recently called upon the Federal Government asking that this assistance be continued another ten years, Premier King pointed out that education was a matter solely within the jurisdiction of the Provinces, and that the obligations of the Dominion were too heavy to permit the continuance of this grant. Thus Ontario stands to lose financial help to the extent of about one-tenth of what the municipalities are paying out each year.

There can be no question as to the importance of technical education, but to what extent its cost should constitute a tax on the population as a whole is a point to be considered. It serves urban rather than rural industry, and is a partial substitute for the apprenticeship system. Industrial Provinces benefit from it more than agricultural Provinces, and during the ten years of its development it has taken hold more readily in the larger centres of population. All this is logical, and does not in any way detract from its value. The 35,000 day students enrolled last year were able to go forth and earn more substantial wages and make themselves more useful to the community. Counting the night pupils, nearly 100,000 took advantage of the facilities afforded them. The personal advantages of the training are great, and indeed to such an extent that it is a question whether the pupils themselves should not bear part of the expense, and thus help to relieve municipal and provincial treasuries.

The obligation on the community for the support of general and cultural education is somewhat different from that for special training which leads directly to remunerative personal employment. At the same time it would be unfortunate if any curtailment in technical and vocational education was necessary for the matter of a few dollars per pupil per year. The Dominion Government's aid amounts to a little more than $10 per students, but, as the Globe has previously explained, this was granted at a time of urgency to enable this departure in education to get established. It has fulfilled its purpose. The arrangement made was for a ten-year period, and the Dominion is now justified in leaving the field where it properly belongs, to the Provinces. There should be some way of finding a substitute for the subsidy.—The Globe.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

What Mussolini said about the sovereignty of the people applies to Chicago at all events.

Two automobiles engaged in a race on the highway crashed into a passenger train near Erie, Pa., and eight people were killed. That was an extreme case of carelessness, but many other drivers are almost as reckless.

An aeroplane is to be used in battling against mosquitoes near Ottawa, and some pert young "skeeter" will probably want to know why the machine doesn't pick on something more near its own size.

TORONTO, May 15.—With a moderately heavy run of over 4,600 cattle, there was the usual slow opening, buyers taking their time to "look them over." Choice handyweight butcher steers and heifers were holding steady and unchanged. All the small meats steady.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE.

MONTREAL, Que., May 16. — (Canadian Press.)—The demand from foregn buyers for Canadan grain was of a limited character here yesterday and business generally was dull.

Owing to a further sharp decline in oat futures at Winnipeg a weaker feeling prevailed in the local market for cash oats and prices were reduced another two cents per bushel. The demand was slow

An easier feeling developed in the market for spring wheat flour and prices were reduced twenty cents per barrel. This was attributed to the further weakness in the Winnipeg cash wheat situation. The local and foreign inquiry continued dull.

There was no change in prices for winter wheat flour, but the undertone to the market was easy in sympathy with the above. The trade was dull.

A feature of the millfeed trade was the weaker feeling that developed and prices were reduced $1 per ton which is the first fancy that has been for some weeks past. A fair trade was done for the season of the year. The demand for standard grades of rolled oats was quiet and prices unchanged.

There was no further change in the condition of the local egg market, but the undertone was very firm with a steady demand from packers and dealers for supplies for storing purposes, and sales of car lots of Ontario extras were made at 34c. per dozen, and firsts at 32c. per doz, f.o.b. shipping points, and a sale of a car lot of April extras on spot was made at 35c. per dozen. A fair trade was done in a jobbing way and the market on the whole was fairly active. The receipts were 2,498 cases.

A feature of the potato trade was the weaker feeling that developed and prices generally scored another decline of 5c. per bag, which was attributed to the liberal supplies coming forward for the period of the year and the fact that the demand was only for odd cars to meet actual wants. Sales of Quebec varieties were made at 90c. to 95c. per bag of 90 lbs. in bulk, New Brunswick North Shore Green Mountains at $1 to $1.05 per bag of 90 lbs. in bulk, and Prince Edward Island White potatoes at $1.05 to $1.10 per bag of 90 lbs. bagged, ex-track.

The trade in imported beans was quiet, but as the offerings were not large the tone of the marked remained firm. Car lots of choice white hand-picked were quoted at $4.20 per bushel, ex-track, and smaller quantities at $4.40 per bushel, ex-store.

A stronger feeling prevailed in the local butter situation and prices scored a further advance of ½c. per lb. which was attributed to the increased demand from local buyers for fresh made goods and the small supplies available on spot.

The receipts were 336 packages.

In sympathy with the prices paid for cheese at the country boards at the close of last week a stronger feeling prevailed in the local market to-day and an advance of ¼c. per lb. was announced. There was some demand from English importers and some business was done in western at 30c. The receipts were 974 boxes.

GOD'S MINUTE

Thou Lord hast not forsaken them that seek Thee.—Ps. 9:10.

O God, Our heavenly Father, we thank Thee for all the gracious gifts Thy love bestows. In whatsoever ill we suffer, teach us submission to Thy holy will. Forgive us our trangressions for His sake, Who is the propitiation for our sins. With hearts softened by Thy boundless mercy, may we forgive all who have offended against us.

For every one whom we should remember before Thy Throne of Grace, we beg the special blessings needed. Advance the interests of Thy Kingdom throughout the world. By Thy Holy Spirit prompt and enable us to be workers together with Thee for the salvation of all men. Make those in authority over use to be capable and honest; and may we honor them as ruling by Thy ordinance. Pity all who are in adversity. May Christ so dwell in our hearts that we shall seek to minister, rather than to be ministered unto.

For our tasks make us sufficient, and for our burdens, strong; and, when Thou art ready for us, call us home O Father, to the joy of Thy eternal presence.

All thes things we ask in the Name of Jesus Christ, our Lord and Saviour. Amen.

Bishop Lewis W. Burton, D.D., Lexington, Kentucky.

A Thought

"A GOOD NAME IS GREATER THAN RICHES"

(By Velma Runnels, Campbellford, Ont.)

I consider that the four best possessions of life are: Youth, Health, a Good Name, and Freedom. We are not conscious of these four best possessions of life until we loose them. In the same way many a person fails to appreciate their good name until they have destroyed it.

What do riches amount to if your name is slandered by the ever-ready tongues of the people? Men, you can jingle all the money you like, but if your name has fallen, then you are dying a fighting, unsympathetic death. A person who has a bad name either stands alone or else with a crowd of people who possess decaying characters.

Man was made to work himself up from ignorance to knowledge and freedom. If man should loose his name just as he is about to secure his freedom and knowledge, then I am quite sure that the mighty dollar won't life him to the top of the ladder.

To avoid evil, demands power. A person must collect his strength to save him name. Sometimes, his manhood energies become feeble, but if he is doing his best, then he is bound to win. Money isn't going to give you the strength for your honored name. Only the power of a true Christian character will gild your name in gold.

A man's treasured name will guide the other fellow in your town or city. It will fly before you and bring you friends; friends who will give you joy and that boundless peace.

True life requires a good, solid foundation. What is better than to build your future on a good name? Each one of us yearn to reach the top of the hill called Fame. We can reach the top if we have the great power behind us. The powerful force back of us will push us up even when our pocketbooks are empty. That mighty, limitless force is just your good name. So carry on, and don't let your honored name die and old religion perish.

ST. PAUL'S—MARMORA

A well outlined tribute to Mother, based on 2 Timothy, 1:5, "Thy Mother Eunice" was paid by the Rector, the Rev. A. B. Caldwell at St. Paul's on Sunday morning. In introducing the subject, the preacher mentioned that Paul's reference to Eunice was incidental and that the off-handed, unpremeditated praise given by St. Paul was of more value than a eulogy prepared beforehand. Timothy's mother was distinctively Christian.

The main headings of the discourse were: First, the blessed heritage of a good mother. Many a mother has not much of earthly goods to leave her children, but every good mother may leave a spiritual heritage. Second, the responsibilities of a mother's influence. A mother's responsibility will never be properly fulfilled apart from religion which comes as a perfecting touch. Third, the appreciation of a good mother. In the possession of a good mother, one does not have to look far for an angel or a ministering spirit sent forth from God.

At St. Paul's and Holy Trinity Sunday School preceding the services, the Mother's day service was followed with a few modifications. The Rector addressed both schools on "Honor Thy father and thy mother."

MARMORA UNITED SUNDAY SCHOOL

The Mother's Day service as distributed by the Ontario Religious Education Council was closely followed at the afternoon session of the Marmora United Church Sunday school. The story "About Angels" was told by Miss Jennie Connor and Alice Henry recited the poem "As they, so I."

The Rev. C. J. Beckley gave an illustrated address on the worth of mother.

For the evening service, the pulpit at this church was prettily decorated with roses, geranium and foliage plants. The choir sang very creditably the anthem "I heard the voice of Jesus say." The Rector, the Rev. C. J. Beckley chose as his text "Honor thy father and thy mother." This commandment, he said, had been rightly placed at the commencement of man's duty to man. He would speak not so much on the honoring of mother as on the importance of our homes and the contribution which they make to the life of our people. A good home carries with it an enrolling and refraining influence. So in the main, man's remembrance of home and early years spent there, is a happy one. Mr. Beckley asked to be pardoned in the retracing of what made a home, and referred to the Grecian and Bolshevik ideas of substituting barracks for homes. No orphan home, however well maintained, he declared, could in the fullest sense take the place on an actual home. Elaboration of the thoughts of parental self sacrifice and of the value of home discipline concluded a very thoughtful discourse. After the offertory, Mrs. E. C. Prentice sang very sweetly, "That Wonderful Mother of Mine."

TWO MEN MISSING WHEN SHIP DOCKS

Hamilton and Vancouver Passengers Disappear From Melita.

MONTREAL, May 15. —(Canadian Press.)—William McKenzie, of Hamilton, Ont., and Rev. W. A. Wilson, of Vancouver, B.C., both of whom were supposed to be passengers on the Canadian Pacific setamship Melita, which sailed from Montreal to Glasgow, where it arrived May 9, are missing. So far as interested parties have been able to ascertain, neither of the men disembarked at Glasgow.

Officials of the Canadan Pacific Steamships announced yesterday that McKenzie's relatives in Hamilton had been notified of his disappearance, and that the missing man's baggage was being forwarded to his home. They would not comment further, nor would they say anything concerning Rev. Mr. Wilson.

They stated that they have not been asked to make an official inquiry and no word has come from their overseas office concerning either of the men. In connection with the affair, an official cited several instancves where people, desiring to get free from their usual business cares, have turned in their tickets just before the boat sailed and walked off the ship.

Not Known In Montreal.

VANCOUVER, B.C., May 15.—Rev. W. A. Wilson, Vancouver, reported from Montreal as missing from the steamship Melita, is not known here. He is not listed in any directory and is not known by clergy.

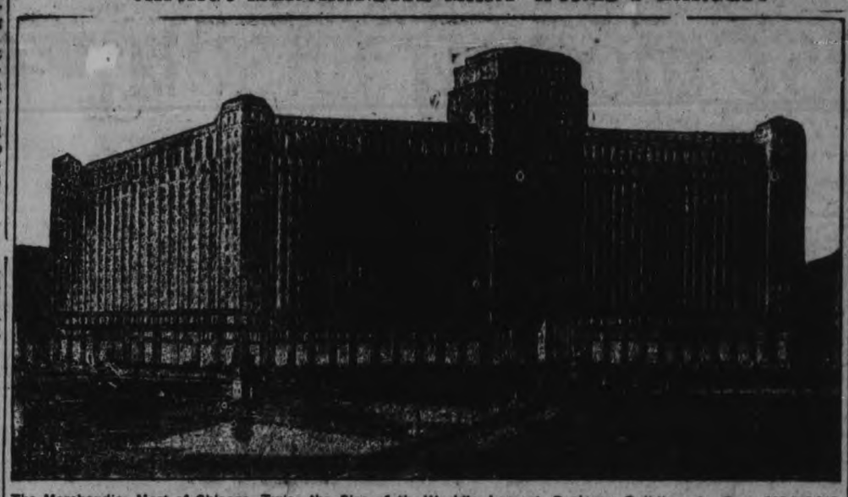
CHICAGO MERCHANDISE MART WORLD'S LARGEST



The Merchandise Mart of Chicago, Twice the Size of the World's Largest Business Building, to Cost $30,000,000.

Chicago, Ill.: May 15 (Special).—Chicago is to have a gigantic Merchandise Mart housed in its own building, which will be twice the size of the largest business building in the world. This mammoth structure, two city blocks in length, 18 to 23 stories high, is planned for the service and convenience of merchandise buyers of the world. It will cost $30,000,000. Construction will begin immediately.

Within the walls of this huge edifice the retail merchants of the United States, Canada, and foreign countries will be able to see, under one roof, hundreds of lines of the world's best merchandise.

The project will be the largest single development of "air rights"—the privilege of building over railroad tracks. The property of the new building, except for caissons, begins 23 feet above "datum."

This great Mart, which will house sales quarters and merchandise displays of several hundred of the country's foremost manufacturers, wholesalers and importers, will be located in the rapidly developing new river district, and will occupy a distinctly conspicuous position just across the river from Wacker Drive at Wells Street, where the southern facade of the structure will be visible for blocks. The site was formerly that of the Chicago and Northwestern Railway Company's passenger station. The building will extend 724 feet on Kinzie Street, 577 feet on the river front an 324 feet on Wells Street, with a diagonal frontage facing Orleans and Franklin Streets. It will be set back from the river about 80 feet to accommodate a broad upper level drive extending from Wells to Franklin. The main entrance of the building will face the river and the drive.

The Merchandise Mart will have a total floor space of about 4,000,000 square feet with slightly less than 2,000,000 square feet, which is the floor area of the Furniture Mart, the next largest building. Each of the eighteen main floors will have an area of more than 200,000 square feet.

The manufacturers' exhibits will include textiles, ready-to-wear, toys, laces, gloves, corsets, millinery, silverware, glass, rugs, knit goods, hosiery, shoes, men's wear, fancy goods, sport goods, art and antiques, jewelry, trunks, toilet articles, house furnishings, office equipment and scores of other merchandise displays. Among the largest tenants will be the wholesale and manufacturing sales departments of Marshall Field & Company.

On all floors of the Mart will be great corridors, with all the appearance of boulevards, more than 650 feet in length, on either side of which will be the shops displaying their varied lines —veritable "business streets." These great corridors will be impressively treated architecturally and with the large space available it will be possible to house the selling activities and warehousing of many allied concerns on one floor, thus attaining the advantages of concentrated groupings.

Probably no building in the world will have such facilities for receiving and shipping merchandise as the new Merchandise Mart. The entire ground level below the street floor will be a modern freight station. Private tracks for incoming carload freight will extend under the center of the building. The Chicago and Northwestern Railway will operate an inbound freight station for less than carload lots, as well as an outbound station, which will connect with all other roads through its new Proviso yards. The merchandise as it comes into this big freight station will be loaded into high-speed conveyors and transported immediately to the exact floor and aisle of the merchant for whom it is intended.

Connection will be made with the Illinois Tunnel Company's system of freight transportation, which has more than sixty miles of tracks beneath the streets and buildings of the city, reaching all other railroad terminals. A river dock for vessels will connect with the south freight elevators of the building.

One of the interesting features planned for the Mart will be a Merchants' Club in the tower of the building, with lounging rooms, reading and smoking rooms, where the retailer may relax and meet his friends. The Mart will provide the retailer with everything but a place to sleep. He can go direct from the train to the Mart with his baggage. Here his hotel reservations will be taken care of, his baggage transported to his hotel and placed in his room. Restaurants, lunch rooms and grills in the Mart will further economize his time. He will have the facilities of a barber shop, and a branch post office, telegraph office and public stenographers will afford him the opportunity to handle his correspondence without leaving the building. One of the biggest telephone exchanges in the world will be installed in the Mart.

Many other unique features are being considered for the Mart, including an Assembly Hall, where trade meetings, business conferences and fashion shows may be held from time to time. As the plans are worked out, many other novel features may be decided upon.

MUSIC EVERYWHERE

By Arthur Mason.

In a crowded concert-hall an orchestra is playing. Music of noble appeal holds every listener, music that expresses the thoughts, the dreams, the sorrows, and the joys of a great mind. They who listen to it dream their own dreams, and see their own visions, by the light of its illuminating power.

A pianist sits at his piano. He is playing the music of Bach, Mozart, Chopin, Schumann, music which is for the most part of a melodious beauty. The group of listeners who sit silent about the room have heard it all before, and many a time. It is never less than beautiful to them, and they know well its power to melt, and move, and charm.

A string quartet is playing chamber music, a music of delicacy and grace. It holds irresistibly the allegiance of those who love it. It is of a richness of variety scarcely to be imagined as possible to the four small instruments that give it utterance, and yet, by virtue of that apparently inadequate medium, masters of music have built up structures of exquisite and of noble beauty for the delight of innumerable music-lovers.

A famous violinist is playing to a great throng of people. Many of them are there by reason of the twofold appeal of the music he plays, and his interpretation of it. Many are there solely for the sake of what the composer's genius has wrought. More are there, probably, for the pleasure they take in the violin-playing of a master of the instrument. But, as with listeners to music of all kinds, the original preference of each merges into the preferences of others. The appeal of the music alone weakens in those who felt it, and their admiration is aroused for the technical skill, the insight the artistic beauty, of the performance. And the admiration of others for the performance alone, strengthens into pleasure in the emotional power, the intellectual content, the more and more clearly perceived creative splendor, breaking from the music itself.

There is a mid-day organ recital in a city church. Numbers of people, mostly young music-lovers, gladly give their leisure hour to this opportunity of hearing music. They listen with obvious pleasure to music that is compelled to a dignity befitting its surroundings, and may easily become severe, and they so listen because there is that in organ-tone which sends its hearers voyaging upon seas of invigorating thoughts and dreams.

In the opera-houses of Europe tens of thousands of people sit night by night to listen either to the beauty of sung music, or to the beauty added to it by the opera orchestras interpreting the spectacles of the stage, or the action of the drama, of which the music of opera is an integral part. In the public parks of the world hosts of listeners gather to hear the inspiriting ring of band instruments and the variety of music possible to them. Concerts everywhere and of every class and kind draw their manifold audiences. The light music of musical plays is a perpetual attraction for unnumbered hosts of music-lovers, and the music of the dance, one of the oldest forms of music, after centuries of alluring power upon the human race is a more compelling allurement today than ever it was, and has a greater following than it has ever known.

Up and down the world are millions of students of music who work at the art for the sake of their love of it. In the school-rooms of every nation sit classes of children singing or learning to listen to music. In multitudes of homes the piano and the player-piano, wireless, and the gramophone, make a home-music which more than ever it was is a universal, an unfailing, and an easily obtained music of recreation. And in the cities and towns of the world is the thousand-fold music of the streets, a music owning the allegiance of myriads of lovers of music who love it without knowing in the least what it is.

Is there any other art, or pursuit of any kind, that has so wide a range, or commands so vast a following? And there is a good reason for this all-encompassing sweep of music's influence. It is the art which, above all others, is at once so delightful, and possesses such varied appeal, as to be capable of drawing to itself the hearts and minds of universal humanity.

Catchacoma News

The Kawartha Tourist Co. has now got the Westlake Inn and the adjoining camping grounds, also with them beautiful sand bathing beach and boathouse almost ready for visitors; though the regular influx of tourists has not, of course, yet begun.

Invalids are learning the immense value of these highlands during both summer and winter as recruiting grounds for health. Up from the water the flies and mosquitoes are not bad in their favourite month of June, while the Inn itself is well provided with screens. The company looks for many visits from people looking for a few days healthy outing early in the summer.

The Rushworth building on Gull Lake is to have a very large living-room with an immense old-fashioned fireplace which the members of the Club and their friends will no doubt fully enjoy.

The roads were never better, in fact never as good and will remain so until the rains of November come again. Heavy trucks cut into them some weeks ago, but the ruts were filled up while the greater part of the Buckhorn road will stand up at any time against the heaviest transport service, being based on flat rock.

Mr. and Mrs. F. Barrett of Peterborough were up at their cottage on Sunday with their two visitors from London.

Mr. Hugh Cochrane, proprietor of "The Catchacoma Hotel" is getting his ranch in order and has sent up a large herd of yearlings.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Dulmadge paid a visit to their handsome cottage on Sunday.

The trip from Buckhorn to Catchacoma takes about 45 minutes by motor at the present time and is now being taken by many "highlanders" as the regular Peterborough visitors are called.

The Cleveland party will be on hand early this year.

Mr. Cole was up at his cottage for the week end having his garden made ready for planting.

All vegetables grow to perfection up here except sweet corn, which as in the highlands of Scotland, finds the summer nights too cool, it is said.

Mountain trout fishing is good.

The Windovers report a big crowd for the coming summer.

Mr. Pluard's handsome residence near Bald Lake is being made ready.

Catchacoma is now prepared to do its full share in providing for tourists who have complained in the past that the Kawartha District invited tourists and then could not provide for them. It is in touch with the Tourists' Information offices, Charlotte Street, in Peterborough where tourists can find out what accommodation is vacant for them at any time.

Hon. David Tennant, nephew of the Countess of Oxford and Asquith (better known as Margot Tennant Asquith) and Mrs. Tennant, who have startled London, England, society by inviting 200 of the younger set to a midnight pyjama-bottle party to which the guests are required to come dressed in pyjamas and each carrying a bottle of liquor.

IN PETERBOROUGH CHURCHES

ST. PETER'S CATHEDRAL

Last evenng at the Men's Mission being conducted at St. Peter's Cathedral, Rev. Father Keogh spoke to a crowded church on "Mortal Sin." The speaker defined sin as a deliberate transgression against God's holy law and declared that "moral sin was a violation of any of God's holy commandments, a violation that we commit with our eyes wide open." He then discussed the commandments in particular, and spoke of the various way men and women flaunt God's wishes in one regard. The angels in heaven before the creation of man insulted God. Adam and Eve refused to obey and Christian men and women to-day persist in refusing to pay God homage and respect. "Creatures of God depending upon Him for their very existence, insult an Almighty God daily," he declared.

The Prophet Daniel

"The degradation and sin of the Babylonian people is a well-known fact of history, both sacred and profane. This people had fallen so low that idolatry had become their form of worship. Upon a certain occasion they were gathered together in one of their magnificent temples to worship a false God. Here they were offering homage and burning incense to a monstrous beast which they regarded as their God. The prophet Daniel was living at the time and when he heard of this disgraceful profanation, he was fired with indignation and inflamed with a holy and a just wrath. Straightway he went to this temple and, strong with the strength of God Himself, he made his way through the multitude still standing before the altar at the feet of this monster. While the people looked on, he drew out a great sword, raised it aloft, brought it down with terrible force and with one blow he demolished the monstrous god. As the statue lay at his feet, broken into a thousand pieces, he turned to the Babylonians and addressed them thus: 'People of Babylon, shame be upon your face that you should adore such a monster and offer incense to a beast?'

Mortal Sin a Monster

"As Daniel of old, I stand before you to-night and in the name of Jesus Christ I raise my voice against another monster—a monster ten thousand times more hideous than that which the prophet Daniel destroyed. A monster which perhaps some of you, perhaps many of you have adored, a monster to which you have offered precious sacrifices, the sacrifice of your time, the sacrifice of your soul, the sacrifice of your innocence. That monster is mortal sin in our lives. Like Daniel, I raise my voice against this awful monster of mortal sin, hoping it may fall dead at your feet, never again to raise its diabolical head to receive your shameful worship.

Father Keogh declared that mortal sin is an act of rebellion and treachery against Almighty God. In a fine flight of eloquence, he made a final appeal to his audience in these forcible words:

"Catholic people, we might in some measure understand the conduct of the sinner if he could sin and God not know it. But, no! Mortal sin is not merely rebellion; it is an open rebellion. Man cannot hide himself from the face of God. He can not screen from God's presence in the act of his sins. Sin where you will, in the darkness of the night, in the privacy of your own home, seek a place on earth that man has never known, sin there, and still you sin in the presence of your God. He sees you, He watches you, moment after moment, awake or asleep, as though you were the only creature in existence on earth. While He looks on, you force Him to be the witness of your sin. Rebellion against God is not merely rebellion; it is defiance and contempt of the very One to whom you owe everything

"Catholic man, before the God who knows the secrets of your heart, I ask you, does your soul bear upon it the stain of mortal sin? And will you again rise up against your God in open rebellion? Will you dare continue to measure your frail strength against the infinite strength of the Almighty? Will you continue to despise His presence and mock His holiness? Will you still go on in sin, until that last unpardonable sin is finally committed and fill the cup of your iniquity and damn your immortal soul to hell? My dear Catholic man, listen to-night to the voice of your God. If you have learned the malice of mortal sin, hear Jesus Christ who cries out to you: 'Turn ye, turn ye to God! Oh! Why will ye die? O House of Israel'."

Firmness At Liverpool Causes Gains In Wheat

CHICAGO, May 15. — (Canadian Press).—Influenced by the unexpected firmness of Liverpool quotations, wheat scored a general advance here to-day after an irregular start. Reports at hand said cold weather continues in Europe and that the smallness of world shipments is tending toward a better demand from millers. Opening at ¾ cent decline to ½ cent advance, Chicago wheat soon rose all around. Corn and oats were weak, with corn starting 1-8 cent to 1¼ cent off, and subsequently holding near to the initial figures.

Opening prices were: Wheat, May 149 1-8, July 149¾; corn, May 100 1-8, July 103½; oats, May 62 3-8, July 57¼.

Downward Trend Shown On Toronto Exchange

TORONTO, May 15. — (Canadian Press.)—Price changes were mixed on the morning session of the Toronto exchange to-day, with prices mostly downward. Many can Make but few can Invest money wisely

A Truth That Should Be Emphasized by Accredited Financial Guides

NOWADAYS great emphasis is being placed on Economy. The people are urged to Save—save for the "rainy day," save for old age.

This is good advice.

But what counts, in personal or general prosperity, is the WISE INVESTMENT of the money saved.

Too often the precious savings of years are lost in a few minutes. The beguiling story of unscrupulous salesmen, the signing of a cheque—and your hard-earned savings are only a memory, and a bitter memory at that.

IT is to the advantage of reputable financial houses and institutions to instruct the people in principles of sound investment and to advertise regularly their offerings of high-grade securities.

The public wants to know, as it never did before, how to invest money where it will be safe, and what bonds and stocks are available for the purpose.

And this information can be given most effectively through the advertising columns of THE DAILY NEWSPAPERS OF CANADA.

THE daily Newspapers reach all the people and in an intimate way. Ninety-seven of them, with a combined circulation of over 1,900,000 copies a day—more than one for every literate family in the Dominion—afford the quickest, easiest and cheapest means for reaching every man and woman in the whole country.

The Savings Banks contain over $2,000,000,000—almost the total amount of our national debt—which is available for investment in high-grade securities and which is in danger of being dissipated if it is not. The Great War taught all classes of people the meaning and value of Government Bonds. Their interest in sound investments is easily aroused.

THE advertising of service available through banks and the best financial houses is in the public interest. Those who recognize this fact, and use the power and influence which the Daily Newspapers offer, will find that substantial profits follow close upon the heels of a wide and dignified publicity.

JAPAN EXPLAINS ACTION IN CHINA

League Officials See In Communication Recognition of League's Rights.

TWO DOCUMENTS SENT.

GENEVA, May 15. — Canadian Press. — Japan has officially sent to the League of Nations two documents outlining why the Japanese troops were sent to Shantung, China.

The importance of the communication is felt here to lie in the fact that Japan has now officially recognized that the League is entitled to receive explanations in the matter.

Government Asks Support For Act

The following statement on The Security Frauds Prevention Act is issued by the Hon. W. H. Price, Attorney General:—

The Government are anxious in bringing into force The Security Frauds Prevention Act, 1928, to do everything possible to protect the average citizen when he proceeds to buy securities, whether stock or bonds or other evidence of participation.

Protection of Public.

In many of the American states and the western provinces, there has been an attempt made to pass on all securities that are sold. This form of legislation has been commonly called "blue sky."

Regulating Salesmen, but not Blue Sky.

The legislation which is now being brought into force in Ontario is not "blue sky" legislation. It does not attempt to regulate the security, but it does attempt to regulate the broker or the salesman, no matter what type of security he is selling.

Misrepresentations of fact can be made by the salesman, even if he is selling a good stock. It is probable that most of the misrepresentations however, are made when the salesman is trying to dispose of a poor stock or bond.

Registration of Brokers.

In order, therefore, to be in a position to regulate the broker or the salesman who does business in Ontario, the new legislation provides for registration with the Registrar, Lieut.-Col. W. W. Denison, at the Parliament Buildings. This will provide the Department with all the necessary data and enable them to keep in touch with the business interests of the province, should complaints from time to time be made concerning flotations and sales of stock.

Protection of Business.

In connection with the registration of brokers and salesmen, it must be remembered that the sound business interests of the country are entitled to protection:

The administration of this Act will be carried out, keeping in mind not only the protection of the man who buys, but the protection of the man who is in business and who sells. The Government is anxious to enable business men engaged in the flotation of stocks and in the organization of companies to carry on in a way that will make their enterprises successful. There will, therefore, be two things uppermost in our minds, viz.: (a) the protection of the buyer and (b) the protection of the seller.

Fraudulent Salesmen.

If these two things are kept in mind, then ninety-nine per cent. of our population should be interested in making this province an unsafe place for those who are advancing poor business projects or who are trying to misrepresent their project and defraud the public. In other words, this legislation is aimed at the fraudulent promoter and the fly-by-night salesman.

Good Promotions.

All good development promotions, whether general business or mining, can stand publicity. In other words, the public are entitled to accurate information. It is not in the interests of the development of Ontario to have information withheld when the public are invited to put up their money. The average man in this province wants a run for his money. He does not always expect to be successful. If his money is well spent, and if it actually goes into the project, then, even if there is a loss, he will have no complaint, but he does not like to find out that it has mostly gone for promotion. This Act is intended to encourage legitimate development, and we believe it will have a tremendously beneficial effect in the development of Northern Ontario.

Filing Necessary Information.

With the firm belief that any good project can stand publicity and that any promoter should be pleased to file accurate information with the Department, the law now provides that all companies, no matter where incorporated, must file information. These forms really take the place of the old prospectus clauses in the Companies Act.

Co-operation of Registrar.

It is the intention of the Registrar of Joint Stock Companies to co-operate in every way with those who are anxious to put forward their projects in a way that will give the public information and increase the probability of success.

Mining Companies.

In dealing with mining companies, those administering the Act will have the active co-operation of the Hon. Chas. McCrea, Minister of Mines. They will be able to rely on information that the Mines Department has about the various mining areas and properties in Northern Ontario. This will make it advisable for promoters to give accurate data about their mining prospects, as we can very readily have this data checked up if false representations are made.

Foreign Money.

The fact that Ontario is trying to protect its own people will make foreigners who have money to invest in Canadian development feel that they have some protection when they come here. They will be encouraged to invest their money in Ontario securities and will be more disposed to put their money into development. We are anxious to reassure them that, if they want to develop mines or timber or any of our latent resources, they will have the co-operation of the Government and we will try and protect them by seeing as far as possible that the money actually goes for development.

Support of the Business Interests of Ontario.

When the Government made up its mind to bring in this legislation, consultations were held with representatives of the Toronto Stock Exchange, the Standard Mining Exchange, the Investment Bankers and Brokers, the Board of Trade, the Canadian Manufacturers Association, the bankers, the insurance companies, business men generally, etc., etc., with the idea of getting their reaction on whether it would affect general business if legislation of this kind were enacted. They were unanimous in their assurance to the Government that it would help business generally, that it would stabilize promotions and add to the development of the north country. They pointed out that Ontario is now a wealthy community and that people will invest their money if they feel that it is going into good hands and that companies are properly financed and regulated.

Administrative Regulations.

Therefore, in carrying out the new legislation providing for registration of brokers and salesmen and filing the necessary information under The Companies' information Act, this Department has had the co-operation of all these business interests.

Stock Exchanges.

We were pleased to have the co-operation of the exchanges in Ontario.

When brokerage firms have a seat on one of the exchanges worth around $100,000, they are not anxious to do anything to jeopardize that asset. They are likely to try and do business on a basis that will appeal to the public. If the public feel that there is a check on brokers and salesmen and that all brokers, good and bad, must be prepared to give accurate information to the public when they sell a stock, then the public will be better assured that they are being treated fairly. This in the end must redound to the credit of our stock exchanges. It will succeed in eliminating those who are not prepared to deal fairly with the public and who prey on the cupidity of people who want to get rich quick or who take away money from widows and orphans.

The Press.

The government legislation has had the very widest support of the press in Ontario. In fact, they have been almost unanimous in approving what has been done. That is a most important factor in bringing this legislation into effect.

If the business interests of the country and the press are unanimous, then along with a fair administration o the Act we should be able to deal with the people who set out deliberately to defraud the public, probably less than one per cent.

Advertisements.

In order to make sure that the public understand what this legislation means and what brokers have to do, it is proposed to insert two advertisements in the daily press of the Province, giving out such detailed information as may be necessary to facilitate the working out of the administrative policy.

Request for Co-operation.

We ask the business interests of the country and the public generally to exercise patience, as the Act is being brought into force.

It takes some little time to develop a proper personnel and to get every thing to full capacity. This can be better done if there is general co-operation.

NATIONALISTS WIN

The southern or Nationalist forces in China have resumed the civil war there by scoring a great victory over the Manchurians and their Shangtung allies. Shanghai claims that thirty-two thousand prisoners and 6,000 machine guns were captured, which may be in addition to the 40,000 prisoners claimed to have been taken by Feng, the Christian general. The latter is moving northeastward down the Yellow River, while the forces of Chiang Kai Shek are driving north or northwestward. The United Church of Canada has many mission centres in Honan, south of the Yellow River, where the fighting has been most severe, but the Canadian workers had previously been evacuated. These missions were formerly carried on by the Presbyterian Church. The arrows on the map indicate the direction of the southerners' advance, and the heavy black lines suggest the battlefronts. Japanese troops are being rushed to Tsinan from Tientsin for the protection of Japanese subjects.

Newspaper Advertising

Is Playing a Big Part in Keeping Bicycle Sales on the "Up Grade."

The bicycle business in Canada is a growing, husky industry.

Last year the Canada Cycle & Motor Company manufactured and marketed more bicycles in Canada than during the past twenty-five years. Despite the competition of motor cycles, motor cars, golf and other sports, pastimes and conveniences, the bicycle more than holds its own in this country.

One of the chief factors in the success of this company is its steady adherence to a policy of newspaper advertising, according to Mr. Gibson, General Manager. The company has always been a consistent and aggressive advertiser. This paper has been selected to carry C.C.M. Bicycle advertising for many years. We have it for 1928. Below is a letter from the General Manager of the Canada Cycle & Motor Company, and one from the advertising agency which places this business with us. These letters speak for themselves and the moral is plain.

LAYMEN'S WORK WELL SET OUT

J. J. Turner Addresses Men's Club of Christ Church, Campbellford.

EVERYONE CAN HELP.

CAMPBELLFORD, May 15.—After the regular business of the weekly meeting of Christ Church Men's Club had been disposed of, J. J. Turner and party from Peterborough delivered very interesting and instructive addresses on the work of the Anglican Laymen's Association last night. At the close of the evening, which consisted of addresses by the visitors from Peterborough and from Rev. N. Clarke Wallace, lunch was served, and the evening's entertainment continued along the lines of indoor recreation till midnight, when the rules of the club say that the meetings must break up.

S. H. Neale, as chairman, introduced Mr. Turner as an ardent member of St. Luke's Anglican Church, Peterborough, and a man who is vitally interested in the work of the men's organizations within the church.

Mr. Turner began his address by saying that he brought the greetings of congregations of St. John's, All Saints', St. Luke's, and St. George's Anglican Churches. He was a member of the Laymen's Association of the Anglican Church, and declared that the Association really had its origin in the city of Peterborough. This was in connection with the affairs of the church at Apsley. This building was in a deplorable condition a few years ago, and when the present clergyman had come to take charge of the parish, he found it necessary to do a great deal of work which was not usually considered the duty of a clergyman. The church was very dilapidated and looked as if nobody cared, said Mr. Turner, and the state of affairs was brought to the attention of several churchmen of Peterborough. They inspected the building and make an estimate of the cost of certain very necessary repairs. The cost was to be $300.00, and this was all to be spent on the interior of the building, and mostly on the chancel.

It was not a difficult matter to raise the money, he said, since the Women's Auxiliary granted them one hundred dollars, provided they could raise the other two hundred. This amount was readily subscribed by three of the sister churches, and the work proceeded. When it was completed, the cost was exactly $310.00. The Apsley Church is now a very nice church, he said, and certainly looked as though somebody cared. In raising the amount, none of the churches had asked for any large sums from any individual. Not more than five dollars was accepted from anyone. This was the beginning of the Laymen's Association.

At the last meeting of the Deanery, a deputation from the Association had waited on the clergy and volunteered their services to the church. It was their thought that they might assist by taking charge of an occasional service and by assisting in the distribution of literature to the more remote parts. Their efforts in the latter respect had met with considerable success.

"What is there to do in the church?" he asked. "The first thing is to uphold the man who serves the church, the rector. He is but human and can usuall stand a little encouragement." By this method the congregation would find that they had a much better rector than they thought, he said. Another duty was to attend church at least once each Sunday and preferably twice, since Sunday was the day which had been set aside as God's day. Occasionally it was a good plan to attend church in a body and thus give the clergyman the moral support of a large congregation. It was very difficult to preach to those who were only present in spirit, he thought, since it was sometimes difficult to tell which spirit was sitting in which pew.

Another duty which the association could easily adopt was to put on entertainments for church purposes at various places. Every man can do something to help. If a man were a taxi-driver he could be relied upon to drive a load out to the place where the concert was to be held. The association needed whatever any man could do. The different talent was necessary in order to arrive at the best conclusion.

This, he stated, was the work of the Laymen's Association. It is not a money making organization. Its sole business is to work. The members in order to achieve success must believe in what they are doing. They must support their own church first, then give assistance to others in the district. He expressed the wish that the greetings he had brought from Peterborough, and the message he had brought, would prove that the Peterborough Association was in earnest in its effort. He was very glad of the opportunity to speak to the men of Campbellford and was pleased to know that the club here was on such a sound footing. The church was practically the first place a man comes to when he is born, and the last place he is in before he is buried, therefore, he thought, that he ought to get acquainted with the church. "We claim adherence to the church," he stated, "therefore it was only right that the church claim allegiance from us." He hoped the men would stand behind the rector, who is trying to do so much for the church.

Mr. S. H. Neale, chairman, expressed his appreciation on behalf of the club for the very helpful remarks of Mr. Turner. He was very sorry that the rector of St. Luke's had not been able to visit the club.

In reply to Mr. Turner, the Rev. N. Clarke Wallace said that the men and the women of the congregation as well, had backed him up to a very remarkble degree. Recently he had asked for the amount of $200 for certain church work. The amount had been over-subscribed by almost 50 per cent, $286.10, he said.

Charles Lacheur, Charles Chevrill, and W. F. Turner, who accompanied Mr. Turner from Peterborough spoke briefly to the club, bringing greeting from their churches in the city and extending a cordial invitation to any of the people from Campbellford and introduce themselves and from this town in order to assure themselves the warmest of welcomes

After lunch had been served, Mr Turner and his party returned to Peterborough by motor, expressing what they left, much pleasure and benefit derived from the evening.

STRONG TEAMS BEING FORMED

Hydro Decides To Change Name To Escape Limitation On Players.

PLAYER LIMIT 20.

CAMPBELLFORD, May 15.—Representatives of five teams desirous of entering the local softball league for this season met in the office of A. L. Riendeau, Front Street, yesterday afternoon for the purpose of submitting their lists of players and transacting such business as had come up since the last meeting. This season there will be no Hydro team. Instead, these players will be known as the Electrical Workers. This will allow them to draw players from the municipal power plant.

After reading the minutes, the secretary reported that he had heard nothing in reply to his letter to Toronto regarding the rule books for 1928. The Rev. C. D. Daniels reported that he had spoken to J. C. Birmingham, chairman of the School Board grounds committee, and had received permission to use the High School grounds as a playing field. In order to obtain permission to sand a certain portion of the grounds, it will be necessary for a deputation to wait on the School Board at its next meeting.

Harold Dunk, secretary, reported that the Mill and St. Andrew's had already paid their admission fees and were ready to enter teams. Harry Tinney said that the team he represented would no longer be known as the Hydro, but as the Electrical Workers, and this was agreeable to the executive, since it was apparent that the Hydro could not raise a very strong team this year, and it is the desire of the executive to have all the teams as evenly matched as possible.

The rules for this year will be practically the same as last year. The list of players eligible for any team will not include more than twenty names, and the seven-day residence rule will be adhered to. Llewellyn Reynolds was appointed official score keeper and will be responsible for turning in the official score for publication immediately after each game.

When the five lists had been submitted and considered, it was found that the names of five players appeared on two or more lists and the representative of each of the teams involved claimed that these players had voluntarily promised to play for each team. In order to make certain for which team these players wish to play for, the secretary was instructed to ask these men to give such notice in writing not later than five o'clock on Wednesday afternoon. This notice shall be considered as the final decision.

At the next meeting which has been called for Wednesday afternoon at 5 o'clock in A. L. Riendeau's office, the playing schedule will be drawn up and presented for acceptance. It is understood that the first game will be played Monday, May 21st.

service of refreshments, brought the gathering, the initial one of its kind, to a close. The girls will probably challenge the boys to a return debate as soon as a suitable date can be arranged for another joint meeting.

Miss Eveleana Todd Honored.

An interesting event took place in Principal B. B. Dawson's room of the Public school on Friday afternoon when Eveleana Todd, one of the pupils, was remembered by her teacher and school mates with a dainty clock for her dressing table, the accompanying address being signed by B. B. Dawson, teacher, Dorothy McDowell, Katherine Donnelly and Mary Burnham.

The departure of Mr Todd and his family for their new home in Peterborough, took place last week. Eveleana is the eldest daughter and hence the gift from her school mates with whom she has been a favorite.

WILL ATTEMPT WESTWARD HOP OVER ATLANTIC

Small Army of European Airmen Preparing For Famous Flight.

AWAIT WARMER WEATHER.

Fliers From Nearly Every Continental National Will Try Flight.

LONDON, May 15 (Associated Press). — As the warm winds from the south melt the icebergs off the Banks of Newfoundland, and dissipate the fogs off Labrador, a small army of airmen in Europe is preparing to make the famous air hop from the Old World to the New in the new impetus given aviation by the Nobile polar flight.

If all the plans now announced bear fruit this spring and summer, the upper regions between London, Paris, and Berlin and New York will be so clogged with airplanes, flying boats, and dirigibles, and almost any kind of whatnot with a propellor, that the seagulls will hardly stand a chance.

Undeterred by the heavy toll of death taken last year and already this year by the attempt to fly from the east to the west, at least a score of airplanes are being constructed, finished, or tuned up for the long jump. Looming up in the background are a quartette of giant fellows, the airships.

Almost every nation of Europe seems to have been bitten by the trans-Atlantic flying bug. Not only the larger nations like Britain, Germany, France, and Italy, but the smaller nations like Sweden and Holland as well, are entering on the great aerial sweepstakes.

Single Flight.

Nor are some of the airmen content with a single flight. A few, like Captain R. H. McIntosh, who attempted a flight last summer, expect to fly over and back. McIntosh, with a flying boat, says he will make a double and triple crossing of both the North and South Atlantic.

The plans range from modest two-seaters like that of Mr. J. S. Charlton, of England, and his wife, Lady June Charlton, to the 135-passenger airplane planned by Professor E. Rumpler, of Germany. F. P. Young, an English pilot, is building a plane capable of carrying twenty passengers. He has adopted the unique experiment of advertising for passengers, saying he will fly July 1 from London to New York.

Germany Taking Part.

Stimulated by the comparative success of the "Bremen," which practically crossed the Atlantic east to west, German airmen are redoubling their efforts. Three companies, the Junkers, the Heinkel and Rohrbach firms are rushing their entries to completion.

The dirigibles in course of construction are attracting possibly more attention than the heavier-than-air craft. The R-100 is rapidly nearing completion at Howden, Yorkshire England. It will carry 100 passengers, a crew of 40, ten tons of mail, and make the journey from England to America in 48 hours. The flight will take place late in the summer. In England, moreover, a sister ship, the R-101, is proceeding more slowly. A semi-rigid airship, the RSR-1, about one-fifth the size of the R-100, is planned by the British Airships, Ltd., for a trans-Atlantic flight. In Germany, a Zeppelin is being built, competing in point of constructional speed with the R-100.

MADOC BUILDS NEW FIRE HALL

Chairman of Finance—William E. Connor.

Clerk—A. S. Cochran.

Treasurer—William McBern.

At its March meeting, the Village Council passed upon the matter of installing in the fire hall basement a modern centrifugal pump, to be powered by a 40-h.p. motor and capable of pumping five hundred imperial gallons a minute at a pressure of 115 pounds. The fifteen hundred feet of hose, attached to this pump, will reach to any part of the business section, though water mains may be installed at a later date. Installation of the pump will entail expenditure of approximately $900.

There is an interesting fact in connection with the new fire hall. The rent previously paid for storage for fire equipment, plus the rent now derived from the upper story, plus savings in other sources through the building of the hall, will more than meet the debentures.

ORATORY CONTEST HELD AT MILLBROOK

inspector for Victoria County; W. A. Reynolds, of Port Hope, and A. J. Pallis, former M.P.P., of Millbrook, made their personal decision without any interchange of ideas, the result showing two voting for the affirmative and one for the negative.

The final debate in the series will be between Durham and Prince Edward counties, the date to be announced later. All the contestants on Friday evening were warmly congratulated upon the excellent manner in which they had presented their material, and upheld the honor of their respective counties; the educational value of the series of debates is beyond question, and this point was mentioned particularly by Mr. Burton, who was the first to be upon his feet congratulating Mr. and Miss Devell upon their success when the judges' decision had been announced by the chairman.

The annual field day, under the auspices of the Junior Farmers of this section of the province, will be held at Presqu'ile on July 6, when softball tournament, field and track events, with horseshoe pitching (for the older folk if they prefer), will be the attractions offered. Mr. Kellough stated that fully 1,000 people are expected for the day, and urged being among the pioneers as the privilege of all present on the date mentioned.

The Misses Marcella and Marguerite Lang opened the program on Friday evening with a piano duet which was warmly encored; others contributing to the entertainment were Mrs. G. W. Sayles, who sang, "Among My Souvenirs," with "The Little Brown Owl" as encore, and Miss Dorothy Crossley whose reading, "Mr. Pickwick's Romantic Adventure" was well received.

Mr. M. H. Winter, agricultural representative for Victoria county, made a brief address, emphasizing the growing interest in the work among the farm young people, the value of the inter-county debates, which have promoted interest and good fellowship, the commendable activities in the way of public speaking contests, sports' days, etc., which are a feature of the junior farmers' organizations throughout not only the local territory, but the entire province as well.

Miss Ella Elson was the accompanist of the evening.

Does Your Mortgage read like this?

"——and if the giver of this mortgage dies before the payment is completed no further payments need be made and the home will become the property of his widow so that his family will be sheltered as secure if he had lived——"

Of course it doesn't. But wouldn't you be willing to pay say 2% more interest per annum to ensure such a result?

An Imperial Mortgage Protection Policy will provide funds to take care of your mortgage if you should die. But, should you live—as you expect to—it will give you a substantial sum of cash for your own use, and if you become permanently disabled, it will provide you with a monthly pension. Why not have this worth-while protection now?

Particulars of the Imperial Mortgage Protection Policy sent gladly on request.

Meanwhile Lieut. Quesada was in a similar plight. He also lost his anchor, but the machine at once brought up on the mud shallows and in an hour was high and dry. The crew alighted and cleared the mud from under the ship, lowered the wheels, which transformed the machine into a land plane, and at 5.30 took off safely from the hard sand left by the outgoing tide. They made a quick run to Pictou and the machine was moored for the night in a safe position between two piers. The town of Pictou, which had expected the plane the past two days, gave the fliers a rousing welcome with steamboat whistles, bells and cheers.

Others Safe

Gen. Fechet was overjoyed when he heard, on reaching shore, that Captain Eaker had made a safe landing at Tatamagouche, as he had felt great anxiety, on alighting on Pictou harbor and seeing no sign of the other plane.

The Canadian Press advised him that Capt. Eaker was safe and also that Capt. Eaker had been advised of the safety of Gen. Fechet and Quesada, by long distance telephone, immediately the latter was seen to alight on the harbor.

Capt. Eaker landed on a small field at Middleton, about three miles from Tatamaguoche and he told the Canadian Press last night that he felt confident he would be able to make a take-off, "but not before the weather improves," he said, "for I'm tired of milling around in this kind of weather." Arrangements were being made last night to refuel both planes, but Gen. Fechet said he did not expect to get away on the next leg of the flight before this afternoon as the weather conditions were not promising. From Pictou to St. George is about 280 miles.

Mr. Pue had been in poor health for some three years after a slight stroke and had been failing in strength all winter.

The funeral services took place on Tuesday, May 8, with a short service at the home and a full service in the church near by. His minister, the Rev. H. W. Foley who has been a friend of the family for over thirty years conducted the services. The church was crowded with relatives sympathetic friends, and former neighbors from Bensfort, Port Hope, Peterborough, Keene and Toronto, showing the great esteem in which he was held by all who knew him. Mr. Pue was born in South Monaghan and married Miss Howson with whom he celebrated the 50th anniversay of their marriage last Christmas. There survive him, Mrs. Pue and two children, J. O. Pue and Mrs. W. Arthur Wood, both of Fraserville. The floral tributes were very beautiful and the details of the burial services were in charge of the Canadian Order of Foresters of which Mr. Pue was a member of long standing.

The deceased had been a member of the Presbyterian church at Centreville from a youth and had transferred his membership a few years ago to Fraserville. CHAPTER VIII

Still no word was spoken by the silent hearers.

Dixon, his eyes glued to the faces of the pair who listened, and Tuttle, who was standing by, watching also, said afterward that both Mr. Neville and Mrs. Valdon seemed amazed and astounded beyond all power of speech.

"Naturally, I did not know of this when I looked at the dead man down on the beach," the doctor went on, with an apologetic note in his voice, "because the man's form was covered with a blanket, and I saw only his head and shoulders. But on examination just now, I find that he was stabbed with a long, sharp knife or dagger, and that the blade pierced the abdominal aorta causing instant death."

"Why was this not discovered until your return?" asked Neville, his silence suddenly broken. "Has the blanket not been moved?"

"Probably not," said Doctor Manning, "and, too, it would have been possible for it to have been moved and yet the fact of the stab would not have been discovered."

"Why not?"

"Because, you see, the stroke was delivered swiftly and straight—from all appearances. Then, it seems, the instrument of death was immediately withdrawn, and as a result the water of the ocean washed away all stain of blood from the garment Mr. Folsom wore, and anyway, there was very little blood outside.

"The hemorrhage was entirely internal, and though death was instantaneous there was no evidence of it on the body save for a small clean incision, that in the absence of any blood stains was almost indiscernible even to my practiced eye."

"How extraordinary!" exclaimed Neville.

"That is the word, sir," declared the doctor. "Extraordinary, indeed! Not the fact of the inconspicuous wound. That is accounted for by the water of the ocean, which precluded any crimson stain. But the extraordinary thing is the possibility of an assailant finding opportunity and time to drive that blow unseen and unnoticed by the scores of people crowding about him!"

"An assailant!" cried Roger Neville. "You mean he was murdered?"

"Of course, my dear sir. I thought you realized that. It would be a sheer impossibility for a man to kill himself in that manner. So as there is no doubt as to the fatal wound, what other theory can you suggest?"

"An—an accident?" stammered Neville, floundering in his speech.

"Scarcely imaginable," the doctor shook his head. "Ocean bathers do not go in for a dip carrying sharp pointed instruments which accidentally kill their neighbors. No, there is no room for doubt. Mr. Folsom was stabbed by some one who went into the ocean armed with the knife and who had premeditated the murder."

"It is too incredible!" Neville sighed deeply. "What can we do?"

"It isn't what can we do, but what must we do? The inevitable procedure is to communicate with the police at once. But Mr. Pelham requested me to tell you about it first, as the nearest friend of the victim present."

"Yes," Neville spoke heavily, and as one agreeing under protest. "I know enough of these things to realize that it must be so. Go ahead, then; so far as I have any reason to sanction your procedure, I do so. But I claim no real responsibility in Mr. Folsom's affairs. I am only doing what I can, in the interests of friendship, and also to be able to report to Miss Folsom, when she arrives, what has been done in the matter."

"Yes," said Dixon, nodding his head. "That is all we want of you, Mr. Neville. And Mrs. Valdon, also a friend of Mr. Folsom's sister, will tell her that we—the management—have done all we can to obey the law, and also keep the matter as—er—private as possible."

Carmelita Valdon smiled a little.

"Personally, I should thank you, Mr. Dixon," she said, "for keeping things quiet. But I may as well tell you that Miss Folsom is not like that. She is—how shall I put it?—rather given to publicity, rather fond of—er—notoriety. I do not mean that she would make capital of her brother's death to bring herself into the limelight, but she is not at all averse to prominence in print."

"You amaze me, Mrs. Valdon," Dixon said. "I had pictured the sister as a shrinking, retiring sort—"

Dixon hadn't pictured the lady at all, but he was cleverly getting all the sidelights he could on this darkly mysterious affair.

"Oh, no," Carmelita exclaimed. "Anastasia Folsom is one of the most decided characters I have ever known. She is fearless and outspoken to a degree. And you can count on her for help, if needed, in solving the mystery of her brother's death. I suppose it is a mystery?"

"The most mysterious case I have ever heard of," Dixon assured her. "Too big for me to tackle, but it may be the police will make short work of it."

"How can they?" asked Neville. "Granted that Folsom was stabbed in the ocean, that gives about a thousand possible suspects to choose from!"

"Oh, come now, Mr. Neville, we can't consider those who were too far away from him. But even taking the nearby ones, there may well be a hundred or more who can be said to have had opportunity."

"Surely. Then, you have to look for motive. Now, there's the trouble. The man who had motive is an unknown quantity and will, of course, remain so. I don't see where your police are going to make a start."

"I confess I don't see clearly myself," Dixon agreed. "But that's up to them. Now, Mr. Neville, since things are as they are, the matter passes out of your hands—at least to this extent. I'll ask you to hand over to me the key of Mr. Folsom's rooms. I shall give it to the police and, of course, no one will be allowed access to the suite."

"What about Ross, the valet?"

"I've sent for him, and shall, of course, take the key he has also. The passkeys of the service will be attended to."

The hotel detective dismissed them just as Ross appeared, led by the redoubtable Tubby.

The valet, his face drawn with emotion, but otherwise calm, came into the room, and Dixon closed the door.

"You have heard," Dixon said, watching him closely, "that your master did not die of any natural cause?"

"Not quite that, sir, but the bellboy was so excited and queer, that I quizzed him a bit on the way down here, and I couldn't help thinking there was something to be told more than I had already heard. Then I learned that the doctor was here, and I was sure that there was more to be told than had yet been made known."

Dixon looked at him curiously.

"You're a strange man, Ross. Where were you educated?"

"At public schools, sir. I've no store of book learning, but I've knocked around a bit with Mr. Folsom, and I've picked up some wisdom here and there."

"Knocked round with him—where?"

"Travelling about. For three years I've been with him out of America. In England, mostly, but sometimes on trips to Egypt and the Orient, sir."

"I see. You're a traveled man, then."

"As Mr. Folsom's servant, sir. But he was a kind master, and he gave me many advantages. Will you tell me what killed him, sir?"

"Yes, it's your due. Mr. Folsom was murdered."

"What!" Ross was startled out of his conventional manner as well as out of his usual calm.

"Yes. He was stabbed while in bathing."

"Stabbed? I don't understand."

Doctor Manning then took up the tale and told the astounded looking valet what had happened to Garret Folsom.

"But—but who could have done it, sir?" the man asked, as the tale came to its close. "Almost nobody down here knew Mr. Folsom at all, and those who did were his friends."

"Was Roger Neville his friend?"

Though said in a quiet voice, the query was flung out suddenly, and purposely, with an intent to take Ross off his guard.

(To be continued.)

Is Neville implicated in the murder of Folsom? Watch for new developments in the next chapter.

Chicago grain cennga$donwa

CHICAGO, May 15. — Canadian Press. — Heavy selling of corn and oats became an outstanding feature in grain yesterday toward the last, and brought about some sharp breaks in price. Unexpected slimness of a reduction yesterday in the corn visitble supply total gave special impetus to the selling. Wheat averaged lower, largely owing to rains actual and prospective

Closing quotations on corn were unsettled, 2 3-8c to 2 7-8c off, oats 15-8 to 3¼c down; wheat at the same as Saturday's finish to 1 5-8c decline, and provisions unchanged to a setback of 17c.

Surprise was general that the corn visible supply yesterday showed a decrease of only 188,000 bushels. This left the total stock of corn in sight 31,127,000, just 2,230,000 bushels within equalling the aggregate a year ago. Under such circumstances, holders of future deliveries of corn displayed eagerness to let go of ownership, and the market at times was about bare of orders to buy. Even before announcement of the visible supply figures, too, the corn market developed a general downward trend, weather conditions being highly favorable for planting

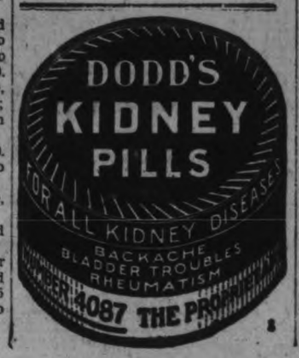
According to some trade authorities however, the breaks yesterday for corn and oats were mainly a reflection of wheat weakness in which heretofore of late corn and oats had not fully shared. On the other hand wheat yesterday finished with a fair rally, whereas liquidating sales were the rule both in corn and oats.

Eastern cash demand for corn yesterday was only fair, and the cash corn trading basis was one cent lower for poor grades, although one cent higher for choice.

Wheat declines yesterday were due not only to rains both in the spring and winter belts, but also to liberal deliveries of wheat on Chicago May contracts. Decreasing stocks of wheat at Liverpool and on ocean passage tended however, to rally the market at times.

Provisions worked lower with corn, cotton and hogs.

Some women walk to reduce; some husbands are reduced to walking.



If you're not feeling just right get a bag of MINT NIPS, everything will be lovely then. 1d-115-1637

The Grand piano used was supplied by Heintzman and Company.

The program:

God Save the King.

1—(a) Fantasia in C Minor, Bach; (b) Minuet in E Flat, Beethoven; (c) Sonata in C Sharp Minor, Beethoven.

More commonly known as the Moonlight Sonata. There are three movements: The first, with its melody notes, sustained throughout, suggests the peaceful charm of moonlight. The second, a short allegretto, takes the place of the usual minuet form of the Beethoven Sonata. It might represent the dance of the peasants, heard in the distance. The final movement is carried through with much energy and closes with an outburst of uncontrolled passion.

Mary Harstone.

2—(a) Le Mariage des Roses, Caesar Francke; (b) D'Une Prison, Reynoldo Hahn; (3) Winds in the Trees, Goring-Thomas; (d) Elf and Fairy, Densmore.

Daisy Davidson.

3—Papillons, Schumann.

The setting for this composition is a carnival. The several pieces contained therein represent, in part, the different characters in attendance. In the final one pictures the grotesque figures in the grand march, when, suddenly, the village clock chimes six, the merrymakers disappear, the carnival is over and all is silent.

Mary Harstone.

4—(a) If There Were Dreams to Sell, John Ireland; (b) Shadow March, Del Riego, (from "A Child's Garden of Verses," by R. L. Stevenson); (c) Tiptoe, Carew; (d) Spring's Awakening, Sanderson.

Daisy Davidson.

5—(a) Valse Oubliee, Liszt; (b) Music Box, Liadow.

The name suggests the tinkling notes of an old-fashioned music-box. It carries on for a time, but gradually becomes slower and finally runs down altogether.

(c) American Polonaise, Carpenter; (d) The Maiden's Wish, Chopin; Minuet from King Henry VIII Suite as encore; (e) Fantasie Impromptu Chopin.

Mary Harstone.

COURTNEY READY TO CROSS OCEAN

U. S. Naval Divisions Asked to Provide Weather Reports Frequently.

WASHINGTON, May 15.—Canadian Press. — Indicating that Captain Frank T. Courtney, the British flier, is on the verge of taking off from England, via the Azores, and Halifax, for America, the Navy Department has sent out a message to all six naval district requesting frequent weather reports and forecasts during the flight.

The message says the crew will be three, using a flying boat which will be equipped with radio.

RECITAL PLEASES LARGE AUDIENCE

Miss Mary Harstone is Assisted By Miss Daisy Davidson.

An encouragingly large and quite appreciative audience gathered in the Conservatory of Music Hall last evening for the piano recital of Miss Mary Harston of the Pearl Burford Curtis studio, Toronto. The program, an ambitious one, as a glance over it will reveal, was equally as well balanced and carried through so that the evening was quite pleasing Miss Harston proved a pianist of no little ability, while assisting her was Miss Daisy Davidson, soprano from the studio of Dorothy Allan Park. Miss Davidson, whose part in the program was not a minor one by any means, shared equally with Miss Harston in the appreciation of the audience. Her singing was enriched by the work of her accompanist, Mary Agnes Logan.

HOROSCOPE

The Stars Incline, But Do Not Compel

(Copyright, 1928, McClure Syndicate)

FOR WEDNESDAY, MAY 16, 1928.

This is a day of many conflicting planetary influences, according to astrology, which finds the sway disturbing to dwellers on the planet Earth.

The early morning is fairly good for financial transactions and especially lucky for those who pay their debts.

Newspapers should benefit, for there is a prognostication of exciting events that stir public interest.

This should be a fortunate rule for all who advertise and usually beneficial for personal publicity.

Independence should be the keynote while this rule prevails, for it will avail little to seek financial or other aid.

This is not a favorable day for beginning journeys, especially ocean voyages for disappointments are presaged.

Travelers who plan journeys to the Orient should take a second thought for the stars indicate much turmoil.

China is subject to continued revolutions and the country is menaced by the most serious conditions.

There is a sign supposed to stir the minds of the people and to cause careful consideration of political and governmental matters.

The planetary government is most promising for educators and for students. This year's college graduates are subject to a wonderful direction of the stars, astrologers announce.

In the Balkans and in China it is foretold that great military dictators will arise.

Persons whose birthdate it is may expect a year of surprising and fortunate events in their lives.

Children born on this day probably will be original and talented but much misunderstood. They should be wisely trained and carefully educated.

NERVOUS EXHAUSTION.

A Trouble Which Leaves People Depressed and Unhappy.

Nervous exhaustion is often the cause of great unhappiness, because the sufferer and his friends do not recognize it is an ailment. To them, and even to himself, he seems to be merely crotchy and irritable.

The peevishness for which women and girls are often blamed is not their fault—it is their misfortune. Their nerves are "all on edge." The least shock, a sudden noise, or even being spoken to unawares causes real suffering, and no one ought to be surprised if hasty words are the result. But this does not mean bad temper; it means starved, exhausted nerves.

Headaches, low spirits, poor appetite, weariness, and lack of energy follow nerve exhausion, and relief is easy to obtain. What the starved nerves need is richer, better blood and this can be obtained through a fair us of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. By their blood enriching qualities these pills do wonders; nervous men and women become calm, steady and energetic under their influence. New blood is what does the work. To obtain it give Dr. Williams' Pink Pills a fair trial.

You can get these pills through any dealer in medicine, or by mail at 50 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

LEAGUE SERVICE

Interesting Program Given at Meeting Held at Petherick's Corners.

PETHERICK'S CORNERS, May 15.—In spite of an epidemic of sickness almost half of the families in the community, twenty-nine were in attendance at the League on Thursday evening and enjoyed the program provided by Earl Fairman, missionary convenor. Fred Fry, as leader, after the business session, announced the following program: Scriptural reading, Acts IX, 1-20. Mrs. Lorne Barnum; devotional talk by the Rev. C. Daniel on the conversion of Paul after he had seen Jesus on the road to Damascus; a reading by Don Barnum, which applied to Mother's Day; a missionary geography sketch of Africa conducted by Earl Fairman, with the regular missionary topic read by Gladys Simpson. This entitled "The Blacksmith's Hammer", gave an interesting account of a young African Chief, a blacksmith by trade, who became a convert to Christianity and though suffering much persecution by being illegally jailed, was able through perserverance and faith to win the whole of his people, to the knowledge of Christ. This topic carried the most powerful appeal to any given yet.

The closing number was a unique contest prepared by Earl Fairman, the answers to the questions given being the surnames of members of the Zion League. This contest required considerable knowledge of past history as well as a great deal of common sense and provided fun for everyone.

The Chevrolet group won with the Stars and Whippets tieing for second place. The group contest race is becoming very exciting and at the rate the last place Fords are travelling they will soon be overtaking the leaders.

Why We Do What We Do.

WHY WE HOARD

By Mehran K. Thomson, Ph.D.

(Author, The Springs of Human Action)

Pride of ownership is a very real incentive in life. What is free to all is enjoyed by none. We crave to secure some special privilege, some recognition. It adds to a man's self-respect if he can own things.

Wealth, beyond one's needs, serves the purpose of satisfying the hoarding instinct. The extreme illustration is that of the miser who hoards his money and gets pleasure and satisfaction not from spending it but in playing with it, assuring himself that it really belongs to him. He derives pleasure from seeing it grow. Money is not the only thing that is hoarded. We hoard a great many things, furniture, books, stamps, coins, old rags. Almost everything is hoarded by somebody.

Some of the animals are also hoarders and misers. The squirrels gather nuts and bury them in the ground. They hide them away from other squirrels against the day of need. The common dog also has the habit of hoarding bones. After he has eaten all he can, he buries the rest. The bee is a busy hoarder.

The bees store more honey than they can use in a season. The human animal will store away more wealth than he can possibly use. Here is a case of a precaution in nature for the preservation of the species that has gone beyond the point of necessity. It may be that only those who were expert hoarders survived. The present generations are descendents of those who had this instinct to an abnormal degree.

We hoard because we are born with a hoarding instinct that is widespread in the animal kingdom. The instinct itself doubtless developed as a means of protecting life and in aiding the individual in his struggle for survival and supremacy.

DRESS

A stiff satin ribbon bow provides the unusual shoulder decoration shown above. Below at the left is shown a bow made of narrow strips of material held with a rhinestone and emerald pin, with strands of rhinestone and emerald falling over the arm. At the right is shown detail of new evening frock with strap of artificial flowers over one shoulder and a velvet ribbon bow on the other.

Shoulder flowers last autumn—hardly an evening gown would be found without some sort of posy or other somewhere in the region of right or left shoulder. Then came brooches and all sorts of jeweled ornaments, conveniently used as substitutes for the gay flowers which had lost their crispness and freshness after a few wearings. And now come bows—bows of ribbon or bows made from the material of the gown. Of course, shoulder flowers still appear and so do the jeweled ornaments, but bows are new and still carry with them the air of distinction.

One of the most charming of shoulder bows may be made of stiff satin or taffeta ribbon and placed like a butterfly on one shoulder. Then there are flat bows of velvet ribbon that droop down over the shoulder strap—large flat bows, small flat bows, large puffy bows and small puffy bows.

Sometimes the shoulder straps are cut with long ends that are then tied at the top of the shoulders. A new evening frock from Lelong has a bow with one loop and two longish ends—placed not on the shoulder but under the left arm, an arrangement that one could hardly find comfortable.

Meantime for wear on the lapel of the coat or jacket artificial flowers remain as popular as ever. Among the flowers that enjoy favor at present are these: clematis, rose, chrysanthemum, hyacinth, carnation, primrose and violets.

One sees many of the small bouquets containing a number of flowers. One that was recently sent to me from Paris contained forgetme-nots, primroses, small roses and daisies with two or three leaves of green foliage.

SAMPSON AND SILICON

A full head of strong hair has always been considered a mark of virility. Many methods have been tried by thin haired people in an effort to grow luxuriant hair, but tonics and massage will fail to bring about the desired result if the hair roots are not fed their life giving minerals in the form of silicon and calcium.

Bobbing the hair has been found to be unsuccessful in most cases, for the barber's shears cannot by any magic restore the silicon to an impoverished blood stream. For a short time after the hair is cut there may be a slight stimulation of growth, but always at the expense of other tissues in the body, of which the silicon has been borrowed to feed the shortened hair. Thus, the rest of the bodily structures may be actually weakened to some extent, although this reason is not sufficient to account for Sampson's weakness when he lost his luxuriant tresses. Having strayed far from his native land and the coarse food he had been accustomed to from early youth, he suffered from a muscular breakdown due to a lack of the organic minerals in the dainty food given him by his enchantress. But as soon as he was put to work he was no doubt given the unrefined fare of the other slaves, and soon regained his normal strength.

If Sampson's captors had understood the part silicon played in his regeneration, they could have kept him as weak as our bakers are unknowingly keeping most people today with the sale of so many denatured white flour products.

Why do you suppose we do not find a single bald head among primitive people? The answer is plain. It is simply because they use vegetables and grains in their natural state, and are not civilized or commercially interested in changing nature's foods into queer dishes.

Every bald man you see is starving for silicon and other organic salts. This is not only because they are lacking in his diet but also because of the fact that the blood, suffering from a deficiency of alkaline properties, seizes upon the bones, hair, and all of the strong tissues of the body, and the result is a generally lowered resistance to disease.

The bald man is never a healthy man and can never become strong with abundant vitality unless the vital salts such as silicon are supplied to his system through the use of such foods as the whole grains, milk, eggs, and the succulent greens which are all so rich in the bone-building and hair-building elements. If the hair roots have been entirely starved to death, there is no treatment or diet which can restore life to them, but the rest of the body will quickly respond as the hungry blood seizes upon these life-giving minerals.

Questions and Answers.

Question: L. H. G. writes: "I have tuberculosis in an advanced stage but am 30 pounds overweight. I eat lightly. Do you think a fast would help me?"

Answer: As your assimilation is so good, you can no doubt be entirely cured through the proper dietary regime. Take a fruit fast until your weight is reduced to the normal, and then live on a diet free from starches and sugars. Others who read this will see that those who are overweight can develop tuberculosis. In this disease, it is not so much a question of lack of weight as of enervation and a tendency to catarrhal mucus.

Question: Mrs. R. C. B. asks: "Would the advertised remedy —— be good for diabetes?"

Answer: I do not advise "remedies" either through this column or in my private practice. Proper food is the only remedy you need to bring about a cure of diabetes. If you will send me your name and address I will be glad to forward general instructions for the cure of diabetes.

Question: H. L. J. writes: "About four times a year I have spells when I "see things" in front of my eye. They look like little electric sparks. At these times I also have indigestion. Could this be the cause?"

Answer: You have answered your own question, as the disturbances coming from indigestion are no doubt responsible for the biliousness you have at these times.

LYRICS OF LIFE

THE UNLIGHTED LAMP

He said youth didn't bother him,
He left it up to Jack and Jim
Just what they ought to do.
"Let their own conscience be their guide,"
He said, and so he stepped aside
And let them blunder through
A world they hardly knew.

And so the man who keeps the light
Might look across the sea tonight
And say to men a-sea:
"I know the breakers and the bar,
But I'll not tell you where they are,
Nor where the shallows be—
You'll get no help from me."

And yet if some good ship goes down
I think the people of the town
Will say to such a man:
"The sailor's death is on your soul—
You did not light the rocky shoal,
The sea you did not scan,
Nor do the best you can."

And you who leave it up to youth
To find the false, to learn the truth,
Your lamp unlighted, too,
When some dear boy goes down in sin,
Who with your help success could win,
What will men say of you,
Who might have brought him through

WINS GAME FOR LEAFS

Triple by Alexander Breaks Up Pitchers' Duel With Keystones.

FEW HITS ALLOWED

Maple Leaf Stadium, May 15. — "Rip" Collins ran his string of victories to five straight when he turned in his second 1 to 0 win of the season yesterday, at the expense of the Reading Club. It was a pitchers' tussle of the old fashioned variety, and Nick Harrison of the Aces had as much of the battle as the Detroit veteran until the ninth when Alexander tripled to the right field fence, scoring Sheedy, who was on first due to a fielder's choice following Sexton's single. The hits were few and far between, both pitchers being strong in the pinches. Sexton's catch of a long fly which crucified him against the fence, and the fine all-round work of Cote and Burke featured apart from the pitching.

There will be no game to-day but two games will be played on Wednesday with a single on Thursday.

Bears win 6-2.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., May 15.— Canadian Press. — Walter Johnson, Newark manager, donned a uniform yesterday, and for the first time this season saw his team win a game, the Bears defeating Rochester 6 to 2. The "big train" spent the afternoon on the coaching lines. The veteran Al. Mamaux hurled good ball for the Bears allowing the Redwings only eight scattered hits.

BUFFALO, May 15. Canadian Press. — Mauling two Jersey City hurlers for 15 lusty hits the Buffalo Bisons had no difficulty capturing the opening game of the series yesterday by a score of 6 to 4.

Art Pond, who drove in three runs with three singles, and Gus Felix, who rapped a homer and double feature in the attack which drove Sheffner from the hill and continued against Hines. Jack Hollingsworth, hurling for the Bisons, had only one bad inning, the second, when Sheffner cleared the bases with a long double.

Defeat Orioles 7-6.

MONTREAL, Que., May 15. — Canadian Press. — The Royals took an 11-inning contest from the Orioles here yesterday afternoon, the first game of the series, by the score of 7-6. The game was bitterly fought, Manager George Stallings and Manager Jack Dunn firing pinch hitters and relief pitchers at each other in the later innings in a battle of master minds that had the fans dizzy.

The Royals looked to have the game stowed away when they pushed across two runs in the eighth to put them one up but Brower crossed everybody, including the two master minds, and tied up the score with a homer.

A single by Rarbit Whitman in the 11th scoring Fabre, who had walked, broke the deadlock. Whitman replaced Haines in left field in the 7th, after Hinkey had been ordered to the showers for calling Umpire Gaston names. Fruster worked the old hidden ball trick on Onslow in the 9th to take them off second base.

Spirited Batting In Cricket Matches

LONDON, England, May 14. — Canadian Press Cable. — Saturday's play in first class cricket matches in England provided the spectators with plenty of spirited batting. No fewer than six three figures innings were compiled in the nine matches. Batsmen who scored centuries were:

Kennedy 121; Head 157, playing for Hampshire against Middlesex.

Sutcliffe 128, and Holmes 136, for Yorkshire against Essex.

Hallows Lancashire, 123, against Warwickshire.

Dipper, Gloucester, 119, against Sussex.

Two good performances by bowlers, were Jupp's eight wickets for 29 runs for Northamptonshire against Worcester and Hollindale's five wickets for 25 runs for Sussex against Gloucestershire.

BIG SIX.

(By The Associated Press)

Action in the Big Six yesterday revolved about Ty Cobb and Frankie Frisch, who started up from the second division with a splurge of hits. Ty got three as the Athletics nosed past the Indians for a six to three victory, while the Fordham flash collected two. The relative standing of members of the Big Six was unchanged by the day's proceedings.

Babe Ruth remained a fraction of a point ahead of Rogers Hornsby for second place to Paul Waner. Ruth and Hornsby each turned in the rather unusual card of two times at bat, two runs and one hit.

The standing to date:

SKIPS NAMED BY BOWLERS

Tweed Club President Offers Shield For Competition Among Rinks.

TWEED, May 14.—The bowling club held a meeting on Friday evening in the council chambers for the purpose of appointing skips for the season in the local rink competitions of the Tweed bowling club. The following were appointed:

S. B. McGee, E. Myles, D. H. Morrison, C. H. Kerr, F. Hindle, William Beatty, D. P. T. Bowlby, J. F. Houston.

James Ryan, president of the club, offered to donate a shield as a prize for these competitions, the shield to be played for annually.

A good season of bowling is looked forward to and enthusiasm is high.

VIEWS ON SPORT

A relay race is to be held on Thursday and Friday evenings. Three four-men teams will compete in the two-mile event.

Ernie Wolfe has certainly rounded together a snappy bantam outfit, which play under the name of Riley & Hickey. Grafton's team, managed by Frank DeForge, and Riley & Hickey's crew, held a joint practice at the Park Street grounds last night. Wolfe's aggregation turned out in full force, while the Grafton boys were not so strongly represented. However, they have the makings of a good team, and promise to provide plenty of thrills this season. Price, Kay, B. Bailey, Asquith, and D. Davern will show keen competition for the infield berths of the Riley & Hickey team, while Levine, McBain, Reynolds, and McCauliffe are trying for the garden positions. Jones, Duffus, Hetherington, and Gatfield are slated for the heaving responsibilities, with either Cadd or Scollard behind the bat. Certificates have been given out, and some of the boys are already signed up.

* * * * * *

The Canadian General runners have secured training facilities at the local "Y," and are now meeting on Tuesday and Thursday evenings to round the boys into shape for the season. A two-mile relay race is being run on Thursday and Friday evenings in connection with the Boys' Circus. The Monarch Club of Lindsay are sending a team to compete on both nights, and Thursday evening's team will consist of Forbert, Brandon, Strickland, and Gamble. Tom Stinson, who featured prominently in organizing the Lindsay runners' club, expects to be here to compete on Friday. The Canadian General and the Y.M.C.A. are also entering teams, and these events, which will make the beginning of the running season, promise to be keenly contested. Several local runners are training for the meet on May 24.

* * * * * *

The City League will get away to a good start on May 24. All the teams are practising real earnestly, and with four snappy outfits in each series, strong opposition can be expected. The Royals had a workout on Saturday afternoon and another last night. McFadden means to send the best team he ever coached into the league this season. Meanwhile, Jack Deannard is coaching a smart aggregation, and with Johnny Burke's outfit and the C.P.C. crew, there promises to be keen rivalry among the juniors. Murray Hartley will probably capture the shortstop berth on the Royals, while Weir and Cuthbertson have so far failed to land a position.

Sammy Mandell Trained To The Pink For Title Bout With Jimmy McLarnin

NEW YORK, May 15 (A.P.).—Trained to the minute, Sammy Mandell, the "Rockford Sheik" put on the gloves for the last time yesterday before he enters the ring at the Polo Grounds on Thursday to defend his lightweight title against the dynamite concealed in the fists of Jimmy McLarnin, Vancouver slugger.

Speed and more speed was the dominant characteristic of the champion's long workout yesterday. Mandell apparently will base his entire plan of battle on his boxing skill and speedy footwork.

McLarnin has been going through his training paces at Pompton Lakes, N.J., the campaign that carried him through the chief contenders to a "shot" for the title left him with little to do but polish up the rough spots. The challenger is confident that fast as Mandell is, he will not succeed in keeping his chin guarded from McLarnin's deadly right for all of the fifteen scheduled rounds.

Advance sales of tickets indicated last night that 60,000 persons, at least, would be on hand when champion and challenger climb into the ring for the first lightweight championship battle here in five years.

LOW SCORING CRICKET GAME

C. Thorpe Scores 39 of Peterborough Club's 47—Grove Total is 33.

BOWLING EXCELS.

The Peterborough C.C. defeated the Grove School at the Oval on Saturday afternoon in an enjoyable game by 14 runs. The school captain won the toss and put the Peterborough team in to bat. On a bowler's wicket the Lakefield bowlers played havoc with the Peterborough batsmen and had it not been for Thorpe, who scored 39 runs by forceful batting, the score would have been disastrous. No less than six batsmen were dismissed without scoring. Peck and Dawson bowled brilliantly, the former taking three wickets for eleven runs and the latter three for fifteen.

The School lost their first wicket without a run being scored. When the fifth wicket fell, the score stood at 25, and it looked as if the finish was going to be exciting, but F. Dyer bowled with deadly effect and captured the last five wickets for an addition of only eight runs, taking six wickets in all for four runs and hitting the stumps five times. Elliot took three wickets for eighteen runs. Tea was served in the Peterborough team's club room during the interval, C. Coleman looking after the catering in his usual efficient manner.

Special practices will be held every evening this week in preparation for the game with St. Edmunds of Toronto on May 24. All members and prospective members are urged to turn out.

RUTH MAKES NINTH HOMER

Yanks Take Third Successive Game From Tigers 7 to 5.

BOSTON TAKES THIRD

NEW YORK, May 15 (Canadian Press). — Babe Ruth's ninth home run of the season was a purely decorative adjunct as the Yankees trimmed the Tigers for the third consecutive afternoon. The score was 7to 5. Ruth's homer represented the seventh run.

Sullivan was knocked out in the first inning after he walked three men and permitted Meusel to double and Lazzeri to triple.

George Pipgras won his sixth straight game of the season. He was wild and hit hard, but fast fielding saved him.

Boston scored its third straight victory at home yesterday by setting back St. Louis 3 to 2. Morris held the visitors to five hits to chalk up his third consecutive pitching victory. Singles by Myer, Tedt, and Ken Williams and a long sacrifice fly by Regan gave the Red Sox two runs in the second inning.

Gaston had the edge over Blankenship and Connally in a pitching duel and the Senators took the third game of the series at the capital four to two. Tate knocked in two of the Senators' runs and pushed another across when he drew a pass with the bases loaded.

The Athletics beat Cleveland in ten innings at Philadelphia when Jimmy Fox, batting for Cochrane, hit a home run with two on base. Lefty Greve won his fifth straight game. He was rapped for five hits in the eighth and that scored three runs. Eleven of the Indians succumbed to Grove's speed on strikes. Hale hit a home run in the third inning with the bags empty.

CARDS RALLY TO DEFEAT BRAVES

Score in Last Moments of Game to Win 4 to 3 Victory.

REDS WIN 8-4

NEW YORK, May 15 (Canadian Press). — A ninth inning rally, which climaxed a four-run parade of scoring in the last three innings, brought the Cardinals out of the hole yesterday to beat the Boston Braves at St. Louis, 4 to 3.

Douthit crashed out a homer in the seventh to open the Card scoring. In the eighth, Hafey was scored on Wilson's single after doubling. Douthit and Martin scored in the ninth with the wrong run driven in by Hafey's fourth hit of the game. Moore of the Braves also got a homer.

Timely hitting in three innings gave the Reds an 8 to 4 victory over Philadelphia at Cincinnati, while Luque held the visitors at bay after they had clouted him for four runs in the opening inning.

The Brooklyn Robins made it two straight over the Pirates at Pittsburg by winning 7 to 6 in a game which lasted more than two and one-half hours. Thirty-five players were used. Pittsburgh had the tying and winning run on base in the ninth, but Dazzy Vance, called into the box in the eighth, struck out Wright and Grantham, ending the game. Both batters watched the third strike.

Earl Webb, with a triple and a double which drove in four runs, led the Cubs to an 8 to 2 victory over the Giants in the third game of the Chicago series. Chicago made it nine straight victories.

While his mates were hitting Fitzsimmons and Walker hard, Charlie Root was pitching magnificent ball. He fanned six and gave six hits to register his fourth straight victory.

NOTICEABLE UPSETS IN BRITISH OPEN

Mrs. Guedalla Defeated by Miss Doric Fowler in Opening Round.

HUNSTANTON, Eng., May 15.—(Canadian Press Cable.)—Apart from the defeat of the titleholder, Mlle. De La Chaume by Miss Glenna Collett, United States' star, three up and one to play, which was hardly a surprise, there were several noticeable upsets in the first round of the British women's open golf championship which commenced here yesterday.

The defeat of Mrs. Guedalla, English native champion by the powerful hitter, Miss Doris Fowler, was probably one of the most outstanding features of the early rounds. The match was won and lost at the nineteenth hole, where Miss Fowler drove a magnificent second shot to the side of the hole and secured a birdie three and the game when her short putt dropped into the cup.

Another unexpected defeat was suffered by Miss Maude Hunnewell, who was eliminated by Mrs Johnston of Weybridge, two up and one to play.

Mrs. Dorothy Campbell Hurd of Philadelphia, graduated from the first round by winning her match from Miss K. Cochrane of Bowden two up and one to play. Mrs. Hurd, formerly Dorothy Campbell, is well known to Canadians, having won the Canadian women's open championship in 1910-11-12. She has also won the British open and the United States' championship.

In defeating the Australian competitor, Miss Lascelles by by 6 up and five to play in the second round, Molly Gourlay, English champion of 1926 holed a tee shot on the seventh. The distance is 134 yards and is believed to be the first time that this feat has been accomplished in the women's open championship.

The Scottish champion, Miss Betty Inglis, failed in the first round before Mrs. Alex. Gold of Denham, 6 up and 5 to play, while the present Irish champion, Mrs. Dwyer of Cork, was beaten by Mrs. Jones of Sheffield, 5 and 4. Msis Janet Jackson, of Island Malahide, who has held the Irish title on many previous occasions was outsted from the second round by Miss Dix Perkin, of Hanger Hill, 4 and 2.

Miss Brown of Formby, was forced to play twenty holes before she was successful in eliminating the former Scottish titleholder, Mrs. Percy of Avonmouth.

Following the defeat of Mlle. De La Chaume, who is also the French champion in addition to the British titleholder, Madame Marquison was beaten in the second round by Mrs. Gautley so that the only surviving French woman is Mlle. Le Blan, although Miss Diana Esmond, an English woman, represents Chantilly, France.

Miss Lydia Rainke is the only German competitor entered. She scored the biggest win of the first round in defeating Miss Megson of Worsley, 8 and . Miss Reinke however, was eliminated in the second round by Miss Cook of Bedfordshire, 5 and 3.

ILLUMINATED MAP OF WATERWAY MADE

After Exhibition Here Will Be Shown at Cleveland Outdoor Show.

A beautiful hand-colored illuminated map of the Trent Waterway, patterned after the cover design of the latest Trent Waterway booklet is on display to-night in the central window of the Canadian Department Stores, Limited.

The map, which is 55 inches wide by 37½ inches deep, is on oil-treated linen, stretched to a mahogany frame and attached to a mahogany finished metal case of equal dimensions. The whole illumination consists of six 25-watt inside frosted electric globes. The territory covered by the map is from Georgian Bay, through Central Ontario, to Lake Ontario.

"This particular piece of publicity matter, from the art department of the firm of Harris & Boddy, is the most attractive and I believe will prove the most effective which the Chamber of Commerce and Trent Waterway Association have produced to date," was the comment of Frank G. Sinston, secretary of both these organizations, this morning.

The map, with the twenty transparencies, which have been on display in the Canadian Department Stores' windows all week, will be introduced at the Trent Waterway—Chamber of Commerce exhibit at Ohio's Second Annual Sportsmen's and Outdoor Show in Cleveland, Ohio, May 17th to 23rd. Later, the map and transparencies will be distributed in various United States cities, to serve as "silent salesman," all summer, selling Kawartha Lakes and Trent Waterway to the tourist-inclined public.

Through the courtesy of the Canadian Department Stores, the two bodies are enabled to display this map in their central window to-night. It is worth seeing and is displayed in order that the people of Peterborough may see what is being done to increase the influx of tourists and the interest in this part of the province, industrially, as no one with imagination can think of a waterway without linking up power development.

During the coming season three teams of the Flying Golfers' Club will endeavor to play in England, France and Belgium on the same day.

THEATRES

AT THE REGENT.

NOW PLAYING.

William Boyd's new star picture of U. S. Cadet life, "Dress Parade," which was filmed at the West Point Military Academy, under the direction of Donald Crisp, brings to the screen a true interpretation of the spirit of West Point.

All of the scenes were filmed on the exact locations outlined in the story. Many of the historical points on the reservation were used in the filming of this splendid Pathe-DeMille Special.

The room in the barracks that William Boyd used in the picture was the same room used by General Pershing when he was a Cadet at the Academy. The regular "Saturday Night Cadet Hop" was photographed in Cullum Hall.

The fight sequences between William Boyd, star and Hugh Allan, was filmed on Fort Putnam, the highest point on the reservation and where all differences among the Cadets are settled.

One of the most important and interesting scenes of the film was taken within the walls of the Cadet Chapel. This was the first time that a movie camera had ever invaded the sacred walls and perhaps will be the last. Other scenes were taken on the parade grounds; in Mess Hall; in the various Cadet Barracks and Administration buildings at the Academy.

Donald Crisp, the Director, was well fitted for the position as Director because of his many years of military training.

Mr. Crisp, upon his arrival at West Point, called the members of his Company together and impressed upon them the necessity of each players to get into the real spirit of West Point, and each did. The story was written by Major Alexander Chilton, Major Robert Glassburn and Herbert David Walter and was adapted to the screen by Douglas Z. Doty and sars William Boyd.

Bessie Love, Hugh Allan, Louis Natheaux, also play important parts in this production.

AT THE GRAND.

THE DUMBELLS

"Bubbling Over", the latest Dumbels' Revue, will be the attraction at the Grand theatre for three performances, May 18-19.

The same splendid cast of ringers, actors and dancers who made "Oo, La, La!" such an outstanding success earlier in the season, have been retained for this ninth annual springtime offering.

That announcement alone is enough to insure crowded houses here, however, we have the added assurance from Vancouver and the west-coast cities that the "Bubbling Over" show is fairly overflowing with good things in the way of entertainment.

The comedy sketches come in for plenty of praise, and the individual song numbers are heartily approved, while a miniature musical comedy called "Anything to Make You Happy", seems to be making everyone happy.

"Bubbling Over" is described as being as new as the sunrise and just as bright and glorious.

Like every new show in the series of Dumbells' Revues, it must be seen to be appreciated.

AT THE CAPITOL.

"SILK LEGS."

There was a time, not so very long ago either, when a title like the above would awaken a great deal of consternation in moralizing breasts. It would have been greeted as another evidence of demoralization in the drama. But times have changed. Now it has no special significance whatever. It even seems a little bit inane, and the pictures that accompany it are not looked upon as extreme in any way.

"Silk Legs" isn't an extreme picture. It's a comedy drama that centres about a strict business rivalry between men and women engaged in salesmanship. Madge Bellamy, the charming little star, is Ruth Stevens, representative for the Blue Ribbon Hosiery firm, and Phil Parker is her competitor, selling the Gold Bond Hosiery line.

He is a stocking salesman and silk stocking follower, and his motto with regard to women is: "Flatter 'em, feed 'em, fondle 'em, and forget 'em." It works beautifully until he meets Ruth.

Ezra Fulton, of the Fulton Mail Order Company, is the gentleman who complicates matters by appearing to take a violent fancy to Ruth. Miss McGuire, the buyer for the Fulton firm, is captivated by Phil's blandishments, however, and won't even look at Ruth's stock, so the girl decides to play Phil's game with the men and proceeds to flatter Mr. Fulton by terming him a merchant prince. Later, when Phil stages a show of hosiery on living models, Mr. Fulton Chooses Ruth, wearing her firm's type of hosiery. She tries to get an order from him, but he demands that she allow him to take her to dinner first. Finally, much against Phil's wishes, who has fallen in love with her, she consents and he takes her to his home. She thinks she has fallen into a terrible trap, until Mrs. Fulton appears and explains matters. The ending is just as vivacious as the rest of the picture, which is brimming over with quick-fire comedy acting.

The comedy is a funny affair, labelled "Chicken Feathers."

MRS. F. L. ROBINSON WINS I.O.D.E. DRAW

Mrs. S. P. McFadden and Mrs. C. V. Elliott Other Lucky Ladies.

The draw for the fur scarf, silk parasol and hand bag, offered by the March-April group of the Peter Robinson Chapter, I.O.D.E., took place last night at the Capitol Theatre, when Mayor Denne drew the lucky tickets from a sealed box brought in by little Betty Hughes.

The fur scarf was won by Mrs. F. L. Robinson, Homewood Avenue, with ticket No. 576. Mrs. S. P. McFadden, Pearl Avenue, won the silk parasol, with ticket No. 35, and the third prize, a leather hand bag, was won by Mrs. C. V. Elliott, Charlotte Street, with ticket No. 530.

Captain Malcolm Campbell, the famous racing motorist, says he intends to make an attempt in England soon to break his own speed record.

Don't Be a Jay Rider

10 Commandments for Cyclists

1 Keep to the right and near the curb.
2 Meeting traffic pass on right, overtaking traffic pass on left.
3 Turn right close to curb. Turn left around centre of intersections.
4 Raise one arm when stopping, and slowing up and to indicate direction when turning.
5 Ride straight. Don't wobble.
6 Watch for STOP signs and traffic officers' signals.
7 Give traffic coming from right the right of way at intersections.
8 Do not hang on to moving vehicles.
9 Don't "cut in" in front of a moving car.
10 Keep your feet on the pedals—your hands on the handlebars.

"THE BICYCLE is one of the safest vehicles of locomotion," says Mr. J. F. H. Wyse, General Manager of the Ontario Safety League.

Let's make it safer.

Last year out of over five thousand traffic accidents, in Ontario, involving automobiles, trucks, busses, bicycles and pedestrians, there were only five fatally serious bicycle accidents involving children under 16.

But even these may be lessened. They can be reduced to zero. Let motorists show every care for cyclists. Let bicycle riders this year ride still more carefully. Obey the traffic rules and signals. Safety First! Watch out for the traffic. Take no chances. Don't be a jay rider.

Ride a Bicycle You Can Depend On

The C.C.M. Bicycle is a strong, sturdy, reliable piece of conscientious workmanship in its every part. You can depend on the Hercules Coaster Brake in any traffic emergency. Cold drawn seamless steel tubing, reinforced joints, give you a frame of great strength.

There's quality in every one of a C.C.M.'s 1761 parts. And skilled workmanship in their making. Many of these parts are machined to closer limits than the time fuses on shells during the war. You can pin your faith to a C.C.M.

Uncle Wiggily

To-day's Bedtime Story

By HOWARD R. GARIS

UNCLE WIGGILY'S SATURDAY SCHOOL.

(Copyright, 1928, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

Uncle Wiggily, the Lady Mouse Teacher from the Hollow Stump School and all the boy and girl animal pupils gathered about the big red periwinkle on the bank of the babbling brook.

"Well, can you guess the answers to my puzzle pictures?" asked the periwinkle, slowly opening and closing his shells. "I hope thinking about it will stop the pain in your paw," said the creature most politely to Miss Mouse.

For it was in trying to pick up the red periwinkle shell that the teacher had been nipped on her paw. Though the periwinkle didn't intend to do it and begged her pardon at once. And it was Baby Bunty's idea to have the periwinkle draw the puzzle which was in last night's story.

"Let me guess this one," begged Uncle Wiggily. "I'm always drawing puzzles for others to answer, so let me have a go at this."

"Can you guess the names of the men under the hats behind the bushes?" asked the Lady Mouse.

"Yes," answered the rabbit, "I can. One is a Mexican man, one is a sailor, another is a soldier and the fourth—now let me see——"

"The fourth is a Scotchman!" barked Jackie Bow Wow.

"That's right!" said the periwinkle. Then a wave from the brook washed over the wet sand in which the puzzle picture had been drawn and it faded away. But by this time the pain in the paw of Miss Mouse was all better. So, after she had watched her pupils gather many empty periwinkle shells, they all went back in the Hollow Stump School.

"I wish Uncle Wiggily would come every day," whispered Bully No-Tail, the frog boy, to Jollie Longtail the mouse.

"So do I," mewed Tommie Kat.

Now the next day was Saturday when there isn't any school, as you all know. All the boy and girl animals were out playing such games as Scophotch—Oh, I mean Hopscotch—and tag and rops and cobbers—dear me, what's the matter, I wonder? I mean cops and robbers.

All of a sudden, Johnnie Bushytail, the squirrel boy looked up from where he was playing marbles and said to his brother Billie:

"Look! There goes Uncle Wiggily and Miss Mouse!"

"And they're going to school!" chattered Billie.

"They can't be! School on Saturday? No!" said Sammie Littletail.

"But they are!" went on Billie. "Say!" he cried, "maybe we've made a mistake and it isn't Saturday after all. Maybe it's Monday or Tuesday and we ought to go to school!"

"It can't be! I know this is Saturday!" insisted Johnnie.

But, surely enough, Uncle Wiggily and Miss Mouse were going to the Hollow Stump School, which the playing boy and girl animals found out by following them. Miss Mouse unlocked the door and she and Uncle Wiggily went inside.

"What does it mean?" asked Kittie Kat. "It's so queer—Saturday school!"

Sammie looked in the window and exclaimed:

"Why, there's an old Tramp Dog in the school, writing something on the blackboard!" And the others saw the same thing. They also saw Uncle Wiggily and Miss Mouse talking to the Tramp Dog. Then the rabbit gentleman came out of the Saturday School and said to the animal boys and girls with a smile:

"It's all right, my dears. This old Tramp Dog wandered along and, seeing the school, like one where he used to go when he was young, he opened a window, jumped in and made a puzzle drawing on the board. He said he wanted to see if he could do a puzzle such as I sometimes make. Come in and look at it."

On the blackboard, with white chalk, the Tramp Dog had written some funny, mixed up words, with jumbled letters.

"See if you can make a sentence of them," barked the Tramp Dog.

PUP LOSES BOUT WITH MOTOR CAR

Emerges Badly Cut But Otherwise Undamaged—Great Uproar Caused.

A little Boston bull puppy left home last evening, bent on enjoying the mild night air, and returned some time later, a sadder and wiser dog. He disputed the right-of-way with a large and powerful motor car, and came off a bad second. But he was a game little dog and didn't say much about it, after a period of shrill protest that set all the dogs in the neighborhood, most of them tied up safely, howling in vain sympathy.

He was evidently making his way across the street, somewhere near the intersection of Hunter Street with Park, when he missed a roadster and got caught by a touring car. Both drivers stopped immediately, expecting to find a dead animal, after the shrill clamor that had rent the air. A nearby police dog, safe in its kennel, howled vigorously at the sound, and a Russian wolfhound, secure within doors, tried vainly to get out, whimpering in sympathy with the victim.

The small animal emerged from beneath the second car, and after much feeling had been done of its little legs, which were unhurt, sat down to ask mutely for some assistance in the matter of a badly cut head and face. A well-meaning neighbor escorted it to a place of safety on the curb, and it sat down carefully, to wait while various telephone calls were made to dog-owners of the district. After several anxious voices had said, "Wait till I see if my dog is in," and had come back later to proclaim relievedly that it wasn't the dog of that house, at any rate, the sympathizers tried to get it to come along and wait for the advent of a friendly policeman who would take it away. At this announcement, the small ears pricked up and, without more ado, it made off briskly, still bleeding profusely, disappearing in the vicinity of Charlotte Street.

If your dog came home last night with evidences of a tragic occurrence about it, that's what happened. It should be trained to have a little more respect for the mighty motor car that stops for no man, let alone a very small Boston bull pup.

4TH BRIGADE HISTORIC UNIT

Artillery Batteries Composing It Sent Many Men Overseas.

HEADQUARTERS HERE.

The 4th Field Brigade headquarters of the Canadian Artillery, which were recently transferred from the lakeshore town to this city, have been stationed in Cobourg for 25 years.

Early this year the Department of National Defence, Ottawa, appointed Colonel D. J. Lawrie of this city, commanding officer of the brigade and only last week the headquarters change from Cobourg to Peterborough was announced.

Following the war the brigade, which consists of the 4th and 14th Batteries, with the 22nd Medium Heavy attached, was under the command of Colonel A. E. Hopper, M.C., who was O.C. until two years ago, when he relinquished the command. During the war the 4th Brigade was divided and combined with many other artillery units overseas.

In the year 1906 Colonel Neil F. MacNachtan, C.V.O., V.D., who was then in charge of the Durham Field Battery, later changed to the 14th Midland Field Battery, took command of the Brigade which at that time was known as the 10th Brigade. Associated with the 14th Battery was the Peterborough battery, then known as the 24th. Both hold wonderful records of achievement.

Immediately prior to the war the 10th Field Artillery Brigade was changed in name and henceforth went under the name of the 4th Field Brigade, Canadian Artillery.

During the war, however, the batteries did not go overseas as a brigade, but were affiliated with other forces and detachment after detachment was recruited in this section of Ontario and sent across from the 4th Brigade. Colonel MacNachtan gave up his command in 1912 and was succeeded in command after the war by Colonel A. Hopper M.C.

OUTLAWING WAR PROPOSAL IS UNANIMOUSLY ACCEPTED BY BRITISH HOUSE OF LORDS

Action Taken On Motion of the Marquis of Reading.

ALL PARTIES AGREE.

Plan Constitutes Most Momentous Step in Pursuit of Peace.

LONDON, May 16. — Prompt and favorable acceptance of the proposal of the United States Secretary of State, Frank B. Kellogg, for outlawing war, was unanimously voted by the House of Lords yesterday.

This action was taken on motion of the Marquis of Reading, who was high commissioner to the United States as ambassador extraordinary and plenipotentiary from January 1918, to May, 1919.

Introducing his motion Lord Reading remarked that the debate in the House of Commons had proved that all parties agreed in welcoming the proposal which constituted the most momentous step in pursuit of world peace ever made. Mr. Kellogg's proposal was so simple, and yet so comprehensive, he said, there was no real objection to immediate acceptance, leaving matters of detail for future negotiations.

Once the proposal was accepted, continued Lord Reading, there would exist amongst the powers most formidable in the world to-day an agreement solemnly entered into, which meant that every dispute, what ever its character, origin, implications or consequence, would be settled in a pacific way. Great Britain had the proud history of having kept her treaties scrupulously, and it might be supposed impossible for her to enter into a treaty of this character while she was a party to the covenant of the League of Nations and the Locarno pact.

Fortunately, Lord Reading said, Mr. Kellogg had formally recognized the difficulty in advance. Lord Cuzzandun, in behalf of the government, Lord Parmoor, Lord Cecil, and other members of the House, endorsed Lord Reading's remarks.

Constitution Uncompleted.

LONDON, May 16. — Canadian Press Cable. — The explanation by Lord Reading that the motion was to enable the House of Lords to express their immediate approval of the proposals as it was understood the government was unable to do so at present owing to the fact that its consultations with the dominions on the question had not been completed, drew from Lord Cecil some important comment.

Sooner or later, he said, the government of Britain would have to consider most carefully what was to be the final shape in which the management of the empire's foreign affairs are to be cast.

"It is quite right," he declared, that we should carry with us the assent of the dominions in everything we do, but it is also quite impossible to admit that our foreign policy should be always invariably help up until the Dominions express their opinion."

MISSION CIRCLE FINISHES STUDY

Final Chapter of Book Taken Up By St. James' Girls.

Miss Ethel Dudgeon was hostess at the St. James' Parsonage last evening to the P.L. Mission Circle, to the number of fifteen girls.

In the absence of the president, Miss Edith Wright, vice president, took charge of the meeting, and a very interesting and instructive program was carried out.

The meeting opened with the W.M.S. watchword, and hymn "There is a Green Hill," after which Miss Wright led in prayer.

Miss Mabel Dulmage gave as the scripture lesson a beautiful rendering of "The Good Samaritan," and Dorothy Dudgeon sang "This Is My Task."

The last chapter of the study book, "New Paths for Old Purposes" was given in a very comprehensive paper by Miss Dudgeon, and it was with regret the study for the year ended.

A vocal duet was much enjoyed sung by Misses Ritchie and Rose.

After the close of the missionary part of the program the hostess arranged her guests at tables and served dainty refreshments, assisted by a committee.

A social hour in which vocal and piano solos were contributed, and a clever contest which afforded much enjoyment, was followed with some interesting games concluding a very pleasant evening.

The June meeting of the X.L. Mission Circle will be in charge of Jessie Martin and Connie Wagar, and will be held at the home of the latter on June 11.

Lady Member Makes Her Maiden Speech

LONDON, May 16 (Canadian Press Cable).—The House of Lords, on the motion of Lord Reading, expressed its approval of the proposals of Frank B. Kellogg, United States Secretary of State, for outlawing war, and urged upon the Government immediate acceptance of the principles contained in the note.

In the House of Commons Mrs. Walter Runciman, recently elected as Liberal representative for the St. Ives division of Cornwall, and the first Liberal woman to sit in the present Parliament, broke her silence in the debate on the estimates for the Ministry of Health. She dealt with slum conditions in a graceful and eloquent maiden speech.

STEEL WORKERS STILL ON STRIKE

No Advances Made By Either Side in Toronto Labor Dispute.

SITUATION GRAVE.

TORONTO, May 16 (Canadian Press).—With no advances made by either side, the structural steel workers' strike continues in full force to-day and the threat of sympathetic action on the part of the allied building trades lends gravity to the situation. Word was received here that the steel workers on the south shore bridge at Montreal had returned to their jobs.

Because it has in hand the largest aggregate of steel contracts in the country, the Dominion Bridge Company is quite frankly being made the chief target of the strike. Union officials express the view that if it sets a lead in settlement the smaller contractors will fall in line.

COMMITTEE CALLS HON. E. J. McMURRAY

Former Solicitor General Must Tell About Immigration Permits.

OTTAWA, May 16 (Canadian Press).—The Hon. E. J. McMurray, former Solicitor General, will be summoned to-day to appear before the parliamentary committee on immigration next week. It is hoped to have Mr. McMurray give his evidence on Tuesday next.

Ald. Coldwell of Regina yesterday declared before the committee that the Hon. Robert Forke, Minister of Immigration, had told him that Mr. McMurray got $100 for immigration permits.

A motion for Mr. McMurray's presence was made immediately after the opening of the committee's session this morning by C. H. Cahan, Conservative, St. Lawrence-St. George. "The evidence brought out yesterday, in my opinion, necessitates the attendance of Mr. McMurray," Mr. Cahan said. "He has been placed in rather an invidious position and he should be given an opportunity to explain his position." No objection to the motion was voiced and the committee adjourned until this afternoon.

CONSTANT CHECK IN BY-ELECTIONS

Receipts To Be Demanded In All Ballot Paper Transactions.

TORONTO, Ont., May 16 (Canadian Press). — The appointment of returning officers in the three constituencies in which by-elections will be held on June 27, was announced to-day by Premier Howard Ferguson. George C. Cage, barrister, of Hamilton, will act in East Hamilton, Sheriff Alexander Morris in North Renfrew, and James H. Brown, of Teeswater, in South Bruce.

The writs have been issued, the election material is ready, and practically all preparations have been made. Receipts for every inch of ballot paper will be demanded at every turn in order that there will be no possibility of a similar situation as that which arose at Ottawa.

PLANE LEAVES PICTOU

PICTOU, N.S., May 16 (Canadian Press).—Two amphibian planes of the United States Army Air Service took off from Pictou at 10.15 o'clock for St. George's, Newfoundland, on the way to fit the trans-Atlantic monoplane Bremen for the trip to the United States.

Minors' Arsenal Seized By Police

NORTH BAY, May 15.—Two young Americans from Wisconsin arrived here yesterday by motor en route to Northern Ontario, where they intend to engage in prospecting. They were well-prepared to protect their treasure when they found it, as their car was a regular arsenal. Altogether they had seven guns of various calibres, as well as a plentiful supply of ammunition. The Provincial Police decided that such equipment was unnecessary and, moreover, contrary to the law regarding the possession of firearms by aliens. As a consequence, the young adventurers will proceed on their way minus the artillery.

APPEALS FILED IN CURRIE CASE

Order Cancelling Operations Sen Out Nov. 10, Preston Claims.

REGAN WITHDRAWS.

TORONTO, May 16 (Canadian Press).—Appeals from the verdict of the special jury at Cobourg Assizes last month awarding Sir Arthur Currie, former Commander of the Canadian Corps in the war, $500 damages in his libel suit against W. T. R. Preston and F. W. Wilson of Port Hope, were filed at noon today. Mr. Preston and Mr. Wilson were not accompanied by counsel as they visited Osgoode Hall.

One of the chief grounds of Mr. Preston's appeal is the statement that new evidence has been discovered. He claims that an order was issued to the respective units of the Canadian Corps about 4.30 p.m., Nov. 10, 1918, that operations would be cancelled and hostilities cease at 11 o'clock on the morning of November 11.

This assertion is not set forth in the appeal filed by Mr. Wilson. The claim of Mr. Preston that Mr. Justice Rose, the trial judge, allowed more than a proper number of witnesses to be heard on behalf of the co-defendant, who is publisher of The Port Hope Guide, is also missing from Mr. Wilson's appeal.

The remaining grounds are substantially the same, charging among other things that Judge misdirected and non-directed the jury; that certain evidence was erroneously excluded, and that the judgment was contrary to the evidence.

Frank Regan, Toronto barrister, who was counsel for Mr. Wilson in the trial at Cobourg, this afternoon definitely confirmed the announcement that he was no longer connected with the case.

STRANGE ANIMALS IN CIRCUS PARADE

Many Wild Beasts To Be On Display To-morrow and Friday.

A blare of trumpets, a crash of brass—"Hold your horses!" — The Circus is coming to town. To-morrow Peterborough will be seething with the spirit of carnival to welcome the big parade that will leave Brock Street Rink at 7.30 p.m.

All kinds of wild animals will be in the parade. Four mighty jumboes, two large and two small; six fierce Arabian steeds—ferocious Bengal tigers—an ostrich that runs faster than a horse—Leo, the lion, the king of beasts who roars from behind steel bars,—giraffes, bears and clowns.

One animal will be in the parade that has never been seen in Peterborough before — the millipede. Twenty-five feet long with a mouth two feet in diameter, this animal has a voracious appetite and devours bones even during the course of the parade. The goofus bird will also be there—the only known bird with four legs.

A feature of the parade will be a wildcat in a cage. This fierce animal was captured in East City just in time to participate in the circus.

The parade will be held on Thursday and Friday nights from the rink on Brock to Aylmer—Aylmer to Charlotte—up George street to the rink.

Prison Sentence Appeals Upheld

MONTREAL, Quebec, May 16. — Canadian Press. — The prison sentences imposed by the court of King's bench on Ameen Lauand, Camil Bazzi and Michael Arie, as the outcome of the Laurier Palace Theatre fire disaster, were yesterday set aside by the court of appeals, five judges. The appeal against the sentence was upheld and the sentence quashed by the unanimous decision of the court.

The sentence imposed in ing's bench followed a charge and trial for manslaughter in connection with the deaths of 78 children in the theatre disaster.

PARK REPAIRS ARE APPROVED

Roof of James Stevenson Park Stand Being Patched—Fence Needs Fixing.

PARK ARCHITECT COMING.

Preliminary steps for the beautification of James Stevenson Park, authorized by the chairman of the Parks Committee, Ald. J. M. Greene, were approved by the committee at a short meeting last night. He has arranged to have Leslie Hancock, nursery owner and landscape architect of Belleville, go over the park on Friday of this week, with a view of suggesting plans, to have some filling drawn to that part of the park immediately north of the grandstand and to have the roof of the stand repaired. The chairman was authorized to look into the matter of repairs to the east fence and to have the line of the park marked.

A suggestion of the chairman that it might be possible to pay for a new fence by having advertising placed on it was frowned on by Mayor Denne, who declared that it is the wish of the council to make the park a place of beauty. He also opposed any great expenditure on the fence until Mr. Hancock's plans have been submitted, particularly as the line of the park is fifteen feet east of the fence and the fence would have to be moved.

The appropriation of $1,000 for music in the parks during the summer will be split again this year, the Rangers Band receiving $700, the Salvation Army Band $200, and the Male Voice Choir $100.

CHILDREN'S AID BUSINESS DONE

Routine Matters Occupy Attention of Board at May Meeting.

REPAIRS REPORTED.

Very little but routine business was transacted at the monthly meeting of the Board of Management of the Children's Aid Society, held yesterday afternoon in the City Council Chamber. The president, Rev. Dr. Blagrave, occupied the chair.

A report of various minor repairs and alterations at the Shelter was given by Alderman Stocker, supervisor of the grounds, and it was decided to paint three of the rooms, the front hall, and the pantry. A new porch has recently been added at the side.

Rev. Dr. Blagrave regretted the absence of a very faithful worker, in the person of Mrs. W. H. Gibbs, who is ill in the hospital, and a motion of regret at her indisposition was passed by the meeting.

The report of the superintendent was given by J. Edgar, showing 7 applications for children during the past month, 1 child brought to the Shelter (not a ward), 4 children (not wards) returned to parents, 1 child made a ward, 8 wards placed out, 3 wards returned to the Shelter, and 14 children in the Shelter during the month.

Donations were acknowledged as follows: St. James' Church, pancake batter, milk, and maple syrup; Downyflake, cakes and sandwiches; Mrs. Macdonald, sandwiches, bacon, weiners, doughnuts, biscuits, cakes, and buns; Sunny Face Junior Red Cross Club of Room 3, Central School, Easter eggs and chocolate roosters, Mrs. Ackerman, socks, etc.; St. Andrew's Church, potatoes; Armories, sandwiches and cakes; Dawson's Bakery, cakes and tarts.

Heard, $17.30; Bell Telephone Company, $3.95; A. McDonald, $5.93; C. W. Wiggins, 60c; H. B. Taylor, $30.50; Ocean Blend Tea Company, $4.50; Peterborough Milk Products, $8.60; R. Denne, $1.90; J. At the last meeting of the Board, Mr. and Mrs. William C. Elliott were appointed as caretaker and matron at the Shelter, at a salary of $800 per annum, additional domestic assistance to be engaged by Mrs. Elliott and paid for by the Board.

RUMANIAN PRINCE LEAVES ENGLAND

DOVER, England, May 16 (Canadian Press). — The errant Prince Carol, unwanted in England, sailed at 2.45 p.m. for the Continent. He was accompanied by Madame Lupescu and three secretaries. Prince Carol arrived at Dover from Godstone at two o'clock, and embarked for Ostend, Belgium, on the Ville de Liege.

Considerable Opposition Develops During Debate On Civil Service Bill

OTTAWA, Ont., May 16 (Canadian Press)—Considerable opposition developed during committee stage in the House yesterday of the government bill to exclude appraisers, investigators and members of the customs preventive service from the jurisdiction of the civil service commission. The bill was reported from committee, but Hon. R. B. Bennett, Opposition leader, intimated that he would have a couple of amendments to submit on third reading.

Both the Prime Minister and Hon. W. D. Euler, Minister of National Revenue, intimated that the bill followed the recommendations of the royal commission which investigated customs administration. Mr. Euler declared that he was as much in favor as ever of the civil service commission, but he did not propose to drive a theory to an absurd conclusion if it were shown to him to be disadvantageous. Nor was there, Mr. Euler proceeded, any intention to discriminate against returned soldiers. He held that the bill was moderate in scope. It did not go nearly as far as the recommendations of the royal commission.

Conservative criticism was that the bill was the thin end of the wedge of patronage. Mr. Bennett took the view that the board of appraisers should set the examinations, the civil service commission conduct examinations, and make appointments. And preference be given to returned soldiers, as was the case under the Civil Service Act.

North Monaghan Collector Returns Roll Showing Good Results.

The North Monaghan Council held its regular meeting in the Court House, Peterborough, on Monday, May 14, with all the members of the council present and Reeve Rye presiding.

N. L. Patterson of Crawford's Grove Power Commission, wrote to the council requesting permission to lay a gas main across Monaghan road from the present main to Douglas avenue, which is within the city limits. This permission was granted.

A resolution was passed that the Court of Revision to be held in the Court House, Peterborough, on Monday, May 28, 1928, at o'clock p.m.

The following bills were passed for payments: W. Dunlop, for road, $10; Sawyer Massey Company, stone crusher repairs, $135.59; Imperial Oil Company, oil for grader, $9.38; J. J. Martin, Minister of Agriculture, soliciting the support and co-operation of the township council for the contract of weeds along public highways. A petition was received from residents of Alexander avenue requesting council to drain and repair said laneway.

Messrs. Peck, Kerr and McElderry wrote the council and enclosed a copy of a letter from Hon. Forbes Godfrey, Minister of Health, re Peterborough's sewage disposal plant.

FOR RECKLESS DRIVING.

Walter Rusaw of the township of Dummer was sentenced to ten days in the common jail by His Honor Judge Huycke yesterday for driving recklessly and causing actual bodily harm on the night of July 31 last.

Crown Attorney G. W. Hatton, K.C., prosecuted, and the Hon. G. N. Gordon, K.C., acted for the defendant.

Late on the night of July 31st the car which Murray Sampson was driving was run into by a car driven by Walter Rusaw about four miles west of Norwood. Sampson, who lives in Percy township near Campbellford, was returning home from Peterborough, where he had been visiting his sister, who was in the hospital. With him were Miss Scott of Campbellford, and his brother and sister. In the car driven by Rusaw were three others.

Sampson testified that he pulled off the road to let the other car go by but Rusaw made no effort to turn aside, and crashed into his car in a head-on collision. Miss Scott was thrown against the windshield and had her forehead cut. She also had one leg injured below the knee. One of the boys in the other car received a cut on the side of the face. The injured were taken to Norwood, where Dr. Sutton gave them medical attention.

GASOLINE AND CIGARETTES ENGAGE COUNCIL'S ATTENTION

Bank Token Found Under Tree In Park

While digging around a tree in the southeast corner of Confederation Square to-day Harry Harbison found an old half-penny token of the Bank of Montreal, dated 1844. The coin was buried about nine inches deep and it was only in the course of digging the roots of the tree out that it was found. On one side of the coin is the picture of the bank standards and the date, 1844. Bank Token and the Latin words Concordia Salus.

Removal of Pumps From the Streets Again Considered By Aldermen.

SURVEY ORDERED.

Lower License For Cigarette Sale Suggested—Memorial Committee Requests Granted.

Two contentious matters came up at a special meeting of the City Council held last night, but a decision was not reached in either case, committees being named to go into the matters and report. These were the questions of gasoline pumps on the curbs and cigarette licenses. A third matter brought up, that of a site and a grant for the war memorial, was quickly settled, the requests of the deputation from the citizens' committee being granted without hesitation.

His Honor Judge Huycke was spokesman of a deputation from the Citizen's Memorial Committee to make two requests which had been tentatively granted some years. There had been he agreed, delays beyond control of the committee, but the memorial will be ready for unveiling this summer.

His first request was that a site be set apart in Confederation Square, suggesting that the Parks Committee meet with the memorial committee to choose the exact location.

His second request was for confirmation of a motion made some years ago that the city make a grant. The sum specified then was $5,000, although some members of the Council had said then they would have voted $10,000.

He asked that the grant be not less than $5,000 and suggested that more would be acceptable, as the total cost is to be somewhat greater than was expected.

Both requests were granted without any debate. Ald. Greene was added to the Memorial Committee to help choose the site, and a by-law for the grant was ordered prepared.

J. A. O'Brien was present on behalf of the owners of gasoline pumps and tanks in the city. He pointed out that each one costs, installed, about $600. The Council has, for many years, considered moving these pumps from city property and has got so far as to charge a fee. He suggested that the pumps might be removed from the curbs in the centre of the city, but that a general removal would cost thousands of dollars. The main objection to the curb tanks, he said, is that they cause congestion, but this does not apply out of the business section. If they should be removed in the business section he suggested that the owners be given six months notice. "I don't believe there should be any on the city streets," declared Ald. Macdonald, while Ald. Greene repeated his words to add that they shouldn't be permitted to stay more than two months unused.

"I don't like seeing these fellows come in and put up service stations while we turn down our own townsmen. These men are here doing business and paying taxes and that's their business," replied Ald. Cotton.

"It's not their business; it's a convenience for their customers," replied the Mayor, quoting garage men who have tanks.

"I move that a small committee make a survey and bring in a recommendation on the whole proposition. I would suggest that we let them remain as they are as long as the same owners have them, but when there is any change they be removed," said Ald. Greene.

"I understood that we were not going to grant any more," declared Ald. Macdonald.

"I am in favor of settling the whole matter tonight," was Ald. Hamilton's stand. "I think they should be kept off our streets."

"They should be kept off the streets in the business section," declared the Mayor.

"In the outlying section they can get land easily for service stations," said Ald. Hamilton.

"When they don't order them off in Toronto why should we?" asked Ald. Huffman.

"Put up the fee to $100 and you'll soon close them off," suggested the Mayor.

"It will right itself in time. It's coming to these service stations where

CITY COUNCIL WILL INTERVIEW HYDRO ELECTRIC COMMISSION ABOUT PURCHASE OF GAS PLANT

Brandon Is Left Estate In England

BRANDON, Man., May 16. — (Canadian Press).—The City of Brandon is the puzzled owner of an estate of six acres of land in the heart of Cardiff City, Wales, and is wondering what to do with it. City Hall officials state that the land was recently presented to Brandon by an anonymous donor, and all efforts to learn the identity of the giver have been fruitless. While the assessment of the land is not known, the property is thought of great value, as local officials have learned that $18,000 was recently offered for one small cottage on the estate.

Aldermen Think It Necessary To Reduce Price of Gas Here.

$360,000 QUOTED.

Lower Figure Necessary, Council Decides, After Wading Through Many Figures.

Peterborough City Council will go to Toronto to interview the Hydro-Electric Power Commission in an endeavor to reach a satisfactory price for the local gas plant. That the price to be paid will have to be less than the $360,000 quoted by the commission if the city is to be able to reduce the price of gas and still make the plant pay was the opinion expressed by various aldermen when the matter was brought up in committee of the whole council last night. The Mayor was instructed to arrange for an appointment with the commission, and all the aldermen who can do so will attend.

A recent appraisal of the local plant, made by an independent firm for the commission, places the depreciated value at $365,659.15, and the replacement value at $616,000. These figures, with a great many others supplied by the commission, have been in possession of the aldermen for several days and have been carefully studied.

"Does anybody know whether this system is up to date?" asked Ald. Hamilton. "Is it the cheapest way of making gas?"

"I don't think we should do anything until we get an independent appraisal," declared Ald. Stocker.

"It would be approximately the same as that one," answered Ald. Hamilton.

"The citizens will expect us to get our own appraisal," added Ald. Greene.

"I think we should first make an appointment with the commission to get the lowest price for all the property," said His Worship.

"It says here there is estimated available for depreciation, interest, etc., $32,000. At the price of $360,000 it will take $18,000 for interest alone," pointed out Ald. Greene.

"If you decided what period the debentures would be issued for you could figure what you would have to pay each year," suggested City Clerk Armstrong. He produced a sheaf of figures, showing the annual cost at different prices, terms, and rates.

There would be some saving in administration expenses, Ald. Hamilton was sure, as the reading of meters and sending of bills could be handled by the Utilities Commission's staff and equipment.

The question of reducing the rates was mentioned, but little discussion was devoted to this matter as it was felt to be one to be settled after the price has been ascertained.

PAVING BEGUN IN WEST END

Warrenite Employees Engaged in Tearing Up McDonnel Street.

THREE MONTHS' WORK.

The Warrenite Bitithulic Paving Company has commenced work on McDonnel Street, which is to be paved from Reid to Park Street. Paving will then be done on Park Street to Elm Street. The contract was let two weeks ago to this company by the City Council. When this section has been paved the company will pave Aylmer Street, from Charlotte to the C.P.R. tracks, which is also included in the contract. Two large steam rollers with scarifiers are busily engaged on McDonnel Street, tearing up the old road bed, and the material is being drawn to nearby streets which need levelling. The company expects to have three months' work in this city this year. For several years the Warrenite people have done the paving in Peterborough.

ST. ANDREW'S W.M.S.

Good Attendance at Regular Meeting — Stewardship Studied.

The monthly meeting of St. Andrew's W.M.S. was held on Tuesday afternoon with a good attendance. The president, Mrs. J. W. Gordon, occupied the chair, and opened the meeting with th doxology. The secretary, Mrs. B. L. Barns, and treasurer, Mrs. W. Zeihr, presented their monthly reports, which were followed by a season of prayer in which many of the members took part. The keynote of the meeting was stewardship, on which two fine papers were read by Mrs. W. J. Nelson and Miss F. Dickson respectively. A splendid address was given by Miss Lancaster, dealing with the third chapter of the study book, "New Paths for Old Purposes," which made a sincere appeal for the spreading of the Gospel. The ladies were delighted to have with them Mrs. G. F. Liddle, who favored them with a vocal solo, "In the Garden." Mrs. A. H. Allen offered the closing prayer.

TWEED CENTRE FOR DISTRICT FIRE RANGERS

H. W. Crosbie Has Charge of Territory Between Renfrew and Bobcaygeon.

WELL PROTECTED.

Primary and Secondary Towers Give Observance of Entire Forest Area.

TWEED, May 16.—The Trent Forest Fire Inspectorate has its headquarters in this village with H. W. Crosbie, District Forester, in charge. The inspectorate stretches from Bobcaygeon in the west to Renfrew in the east. With this great extent of territory and the comparatively limited amount of funds available for forest fire protection a system of towers and telephones has been established throughout the inspectorate. A few years ago there was not a permanent tower in the district. To-day the responsibility for the detection of fires on all of this area is entrusted almost entirely to lookouts.

Under old conditions each employee was given a definite territory to patrol. He spent most of his time in patrolling trails or making an occasional trip to a lookout post. If he discovered a forest fire outside of his area the knowledge was of no value. If he discovered one in his own territory he went to it and tried to put it out. When he could not do this alone it required from one to three days to secure help. All the time he was engaged in supressing the fire his district had no protection.

Under the present conditions a few lookout tower observers stationed on commanding peaks specialize in the work of detecting and locating forest fires. If properly equipped they can determine within a few hundred feet the location and approximate size of the fire up to forty miles or more away depending on the visibility. The facts are immediately reported and in a few minutes the members of the local supression organization are on their way to the fire. As there is no disruption in the detection agency the territory is protected all the time. Old fires are under continuous surveillance and reinforcements are dispatched on the basis of the lookout observers report only.

The Organization.

There are two systems of towers and lookouts in the district. Primary lookouts are on the highest peaks throughout the district commanding a maximum range of territory. They are not responsible for a patrol area and are on duty at all times regard-

MILLBROOK CORPS ATTENDS SERVICE

Continuation and Public School Cadets Parade to Grace Church.

MILLBROOK, May 16.—The local Continuation and Public School Cadet Corps held its annual parade to attend divine worship on Sunday evening, marching to Grace Presbyterian Church, where the centre front pews were reserved for the forty or more members and their officers who turned out for the occasion.

In welcoming the Cadets, the pastor, the Rev. John Riddell, commended the movement, refuting the idea that it leads to war, but rather through thorough training teaches obedience, co-operation, discipline, and proper care of the body and clothing.

In keepinge with the spirit of Mother's Day beautiful blossom, both white and colored, were arranged within the altar railing, and the request to wear a flower in honor of mother was generally observed in the three congregations of the village throughout the day.

The praer of the mother of Jesus from Luke 1: 46-55, was read by the pastor for his New Testament lesson, and his sermon was based upon the story of the Syrophenician woman and her request for healing for her daughter, as told in Mark 7, 24-30; and in Matthew 15: 21-28.

Some of the points strongly impressed were: We must approach God just as we are, with no camouflage of character, if we, like the mother in the story, would receive His full and satisfying answer to our petitions. Again, difficulties in the way did not discourage this mother, who grasped that which was held out to her and lacking nothing in faith received the Master's blessing in the healing of her loved one. The self-sacrifice of a mother, and the nature of a mother's love which is akin to that of God, were also emphasized. "Outside of the influence of God, and our Saviour, Jesus Christ, a mother's influence is the greatest in the whole world to-day."

Referring to the fact that the home is the greatest institution in

ODDFELLOWS HOLD ANNUAL SERVICE

Rev. Dr. Thomson Gives Address at Knox Church, Havelock.

HAVELOCK, May 16. — Rev. Dr. D. A. Thomson, of Hastings, conducted the service in Knox Church on Sunday evening, when the Dorcas Rebekah Lodge, No. 98, and Havelock Lodge, I.O.O.F., No. 286, were in attendance. Choosing as his text I. Samuel, chapter 18, verse 1, Dr. Thomson spoke of the firm and inseparable union that united these two hearts, joined by a chain which had been welded by adversity and bound by the three links—Friendship, Love, and Truth—the emblem of the I.O.O.F. Order. It is very difficult to sever friendship from the other two, and the friendship which existed between David and Jonathan was rooted and grounded in love and sealed with truth itself. The greatest efforts of literature praise friendship, and the greatest liberty, the highest rank and name are not desirable if we have not some one we can call a friend. To be without friends is to make this world a wilderness. The friendship of these two men was true to the core and was without bitterness and regret. It demanded much self-sacrifice on the part of Jonathan, but he was ready to sacrifice his position as heir to the throne, his character, which is higher than position and also his life, and greater love hath no man than this that a man lay down his life for his friend.

In closing, Dr. Thomson said, in part: "We like to keep the pledges we make, and the purpose in joining an order should not be for personal gain, but to benefit one another. All orders are striving to do good in this world. We need all the true friendship and love we can find, and may we think of Him who sticketh closer than a brother—God's unspeakable gift of His Own Son Jesus Christ our Lord."

The church was prettily decorated with flowers for the occasion, and vocal solos were given by Mrs. C. Jamieson and Fred Bennett.

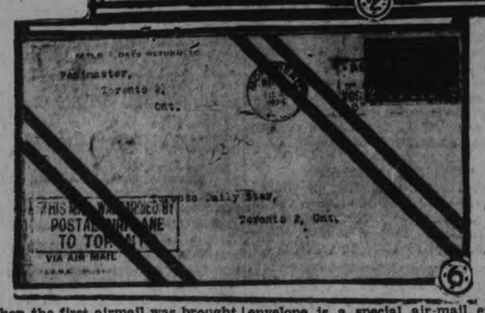
CROWD SEES AIRMAIL ARRIVE



When the first airmail was brought to Toronto a huge crowd was at Leaside airdrome to greet the plane from Montreal. No. 1 picture here shows the postal men transferring the bags of mail from the plane to the waiting trucks. A few minutes after this, post office clerks were busy sorting the mail. No. 2 shows a portion of the huge crowd that milled around the mail plane as it landed. James Telfer (3), Andrew Wright (4) and William Westervelt (5), are the three men who rushed Toronto's first air-mail from the flying field to the post-office. Telfer and Westervelt drove the mail truck and Wright followed behind so that in case of accident to the mail truck the bags would be transferred and carried in the emergency truck. The envelope is a special air-mail envelope prepared for the post-office. The first day demonstrated with emphatic force the saving of time through the speed of the planes as compared with the railway. The mail that was taken off the Empress of Scotland and put on the planes at Rimouski at 8.30 Sunday morning was at Leaside field, Toronto, 660 miles away, in exactly eight hours. The plane that took the first outgoing mail out of Toronto to Montreal on Saturday made the 300 miles in 3 hours and 35 minutes, which is a speed of almost 2 miles to the minute. Both flights were made by Pilot J. H. St. Martin. Railway time from Montreal to Toronto means approximately 9 hours for the mail, and from Rimouski it would be about 24 hours.

Men and women who are constantly annoyed and distressed by Bladder Weakness or Urinary Irritations should take immediate steps to combat their trouble before it reaches a serious stage!

Backaches, Headaches, pains in feet and legs, nervousness, restlessness, frequent but scanty urination with burning and pain, getting-up-nights—these are some of the more troublesome signs of Bladder Weakness or Irritation that should have prompt attention.

CAMPBELL'S INSTAL BUTTER MACHINERY

De Laval Company Has Furnished Complete Plant—Butter Now on Sale.

Among recent additions to Campbell's Dairy here in Peterborough is a complete butter-making plant of the most modern type.

The cream and milk is received on an elevated platform at the new extension on the north side of the dairy. It is weighed in and every can tested, the cans being emptied into the receiving tank from which it flows to the large motor driven pasteurizer on the first floor. After it is pasteurized and cooled, it then enters the new type of sanitary motor driven De Laval churn. These are the most modern and sanitary churns manufactured the barrels being made of imported cypress, both the churning and working of the butter being done by electric power. Following the churning, the butter is packed in large boxes, placed in a refrigerator for chilling, later being cut into standard size pound prints, and wrapped in sterilized wrapping paper for the trade.

It will be real satisfaction to people in Peterborough to know that now Campbell's Dairy Products Butter is quickly available, right here in their own city.

The plant is one of the most modern in Ontario, and visitors are welcome at any time to see the handling of the different products of either milk or cream, and the latter addition of creamery butter.

Every piece of equipment in the plant where it is possible to use power, is power driven by individual electric motors, and all the equipment is the product of Peterborough factories, De Laval, C.G.E., etc.

American pilots are employed exclusively on the new air-mail lines in Mexico.

TOO DRASTIC.

Somebody writing to a Toronto paper suggests that the minimum penalty for spearing fish should be a year in the penitentiary.

The Examiner's views in regard to the conservation of Ontario's game fish have been frequently stated.

We have consistently appealed to the sportsmanship and common sense of the public to avoid doing anything that would injure our resources of bass and maskinonge.

Public opinion must, however, be behind every effort to protect these resources, and we do not believe public opinion would endorse a penitentiary sentence for the illegal taking of game fish, no matter how serious the affect of such practices.

Spearing maskinonge is indefensible, either from a sporting or a business viewpoint, but to make it a penitentiary offence would be a step too drastic for most people to approve.

The severity of such punishment would defeat the object for which it was designed.

HON. MR. DUNNING'S VISIT.

It is to be hoped that the efforts that are being made to have the Hon. Charles Dunning, Minister of Railways and Canals, tour the Trent Waterway this summer will be successful.

From what has been said about the Trent Canal when under discussion in the House it is evident that the majority of the members have no conception of the extent or importance of the waterway, and it would be of much assistance to the campaign for the completion of the Severn section were the Minister to go over the route and see for himself its possibilities.

Plans for a proper reception for the Hon. Mr. Dunning will be generally approved.

It will be his first visit to the communities along the waterway, and regardless of their political affiliations, the citizens of the Trent centres will be glad to welcome a Cabinet Minister whose record both in the Province wherein he first entered politics and in the larger arena at Ottawa has been marked by valuable public service.

Mr. Dunning, we are sure, will be surprised when he views the Trent Waterway from end to end.

AN INHUMAN CONTEST.

So many witticisms are being indulged in at the expense of C. C. Pyle's cross-continent derby that most people have not yet realized that this contest is one of the most inhuman "sporting" events on record.

Marathon racing is regarded by many critics as too punishing upon those who participate—although the record of Clarence Demar would seem to show the reverse—and the marathon distance is only a little over 26 miles.

Every day is a marathon for the runners in the Pyle race.

Every day for over ten weeks, over all kinds of roads and in all kinds of weather, these men have toiled along with their eyes on the pot of gold at the foot of the rainbow.

The distance run each day is regulated, varying from 25 to 60 miles, and the effect upon the contestants can be judged by the fact that only some 50 out of the more than 300 starters are left in the running.

Medical opinion is that the men who finish will have shortened their lives by at least ten years, and photographs of the gaunt plodders will cause such an opinion to be readily believed.

NO COUNSEL FOR PRISONER.

The Toronto Globe calls attention to a case at Bancroft this week where a man was sentenced to seven years in the penitentiary on charges of breaking and entering and theft.

According to press reports, the prisoner was not represented in court by counsel, and the Globe points out that "it has always been recognized by British law that when a person is tried for a serious crime and has no means wherewith to engage counsel for his defense the crown undertakes to provide the accused with a lawyer to plead on his behalf."

While all the circumstances in connection with this case are not known to the Examiner, we feel that there should be some inquiry as to the reason for this departure from the usual custom.

According to the Belleville Ontario, the accused had hid in the woods with his wife and a small babe, subsisting for over a week on what food they could find and spending the nights under trees or in abandoned shacks without fire.

Finally arrested and brought before a magistrate, a conviction was registered against the undefended prisoner and the seven-year sentence followed.

The penalty may have been deserved, but the public will feel better satisfied that justice had been done had the man had the benefit of legal aid during his trial.

HIGHWAY SAFETY IN ONTARIO.

(By Hon. Geo. S. Henry, Minister of Public Works and Highways.)

Motor traffic in Ontario has reached such proportions and is expanding at such a rate that the question of safety on the highways is one that is of paramount importance and one which calls for the active co-operation of all sections of the public.

In 1916, when the Department of Highways assumed the task of automobile registration, there were 51,589 passenger cars in Ontario. In five years that number had increased over 300 per cent. to a total of 181,978 in 1921. Last year passenger cars in Ontario numbered 386,903 and from all indications there will be very substantial increases in 1928.

In addition to this native traffic Ontario, located as it is along the most populous sections of the United States, has to provide for an influx of motoring visitors far in excess of tourists in other Provinces, outnumbering, indeed, on some occasions the native traffic. Last season 415,000 foreign cars entered Ontario for a more or less extended stay, while 2,000,000 crossed the border for periods not exceeding 24 hours.

Along with this tremendous expansion in numbers has gone a corresponding mechanical improvement. Cars are constantly being improved in regard to power and speed, and while it is true that they are easier of operation and their brakes more effective, yet in the hands of incompetent or careless drivers they are far more potential for destruction than in the days when a speed of thirty miles an hour was considered an achievement.

CHINA TO THE LEAGUE.

The League of Nations has an opportunity to establish itself as the guardian of human rights against war. The appeal of the Chinese nationalist government to the council of the league is all that a body constituted for the league's purposes could ask. The Nanking government offers to accept any proper agreement which may result from inquiry or from mediation. The question is whether the league has sufficient moral strength to act. If it has, its decision will be so strong in the court of world opinion that even Japan, far away as it is, will have to accept it.

Asking the league to check Japan in its present apparent decision to take over by force the rule of a part of China is, of course, asking the western nations to forbid an eastern nation to do precisely what they have done so often. A greater difficulty is that reactionary opinion in England and even in France would be only too glad to have Japan go in and establish what they call order in China, whatever the rights of China. It is the old case of the immediate demands of trade being at odds with the demands of justice and of permanent peace.

Japan's case is not so weak, either. The Nationalists undoubtedly have been guilty of excesses. They have done a great deal more than our government has charged aaginst natives in Nicaragua. Japanese civilians have been killed. Demonstrations against Japan have been reported. And Japanese interests in China are very large.

But if Japan goes ahead, the world stands to suffer. True, Japan is far better prepared for war than China. Yet China's millions fortify her for resistance and resentment. Already the proposal of Chang Tso Lin for a truce among the Chinese factions and a united front against Japan shows what may be expected.

Against the case of Japan no European nation can protest with a straight face, and the United States is not much better off. It is so lately that we ourselves have agreed to play fair with China. Not even yet have we kept our promises. The only hope, therefore, must lie not in nations acting as nations, but in an association representing the decent opinion of the world.

If the league has statesmanship capable of rising above the selfish plans of individual nations, it can lay down the law and have its decree respected. That would be a greater gain for world peace than has yet been made, a farther advance for civilization than has ever been registered. Nanking appeals to the league. Can the league's council accept the challenge to act, not as representatives of England and France and Germany, but as representatives of humanity?—Milwaukee Journal.

THE TORONTO "TELY" AND THE BREMEN.

That quaint newspaper, the Toronto Telegram, refers to Major Fitzmaurice as Major Fritzmaurice and says that while war wounds in Toronto remain unhealed the people of that good city should not receive the German-Irish flyers. In so far as this curious mental attitude relates to Fitzmaurice, it is particularly silly. For Fitzmaurice himself not only fought on the British side in the war but, if information published about him be correct, he himself is the bearer of honorable war wounds.

In August, 1915, according to the British papers, Fitzmaurice, who was then but 15 years of age, enlisted and became one of a cadet company of the Leinster Regiment. He was sent to Curragh, was rejected because of his youth, but, managing to get himself accepted at a later date, was trained and sent to France. He was twice wounded; discharged; joined the Royal Air Force upon recovery, and became attached to a flying squadron on the French front. In 1923, back in Ireland, he became commandant of the Free State Air Force.

The Toronto Telegram is under the strange delusion that connection with the Irish Free State means antagonism to Britain. For its own sake it should read some of the pronouncements of King George, of the Prince of Wales and of Mr. Stanley Baldwin. It might, too, look over some of its Belfast and Ulster exchanges; it would learn from them that the North has been just as proud of Fitzmaurice's exploit as the people of the South.

As for Koehl and von Huenefeld, they appear to be two very decent and courageous men, and we venture to think that in no city in the world would they receive a more hearty welcome than in London, England. And, after all, why not? If everybody adopted the attitude of the Telegram the world would never have peace.—Ottawa Journal.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

The radio is thirty-one years old this week, but it has not yet stopped howling.

If any of our readers were thinking of buying the Temiskaming and Northern Ontario Railway, they will be interested in learning that Premier Ferguson says that it is not for sale.

Apparently, says the Toronto Globe, a good many people wakened on Mother's Day to telephone to one whom they should greet regularly without need of a reminder.

As Babe Ruth seems to be harvesting his usual crop of home runs, the present baseball season will have to be regarded as a perfectly normal one.

That photograph suggestion in regard to liquor permits may be developed later on.

CATTLE, GRAIN AND PRODUCE

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

TORONTO, May 16. — Trade at the cattle market this week is decidedly slow. MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE.

MONTREAL, Que., May 16 (Canadian Press). — The demand from exporters for grain here yesterday showed some improvement and sales of Manitoba No. 4 wheat were made at 6¾c per bushel over the Winnipeg May option, c.i.f. Montreal, and No. 2 Canadian Western oats sold at ten cents per bushel over the May option, c.i.f. Montreal, while a cargo of 80,000 bushels of No. 2 feed oats was sold for shipment to Quebec at about 2¾c per bushel over the May option c.i.f. Montreal. The local market for car lots of Canadian Western oats was stronger and prices were marked up one cent per bushel.

The trade in spring and winter wheat grades of flour was of a limited character but prices were firm.

A moderate amount of business was done with local and United States buyers in millfeed and the undertone to the market was steady. Prices for standard grades of rolled oats ruled firm under a quiet demand.

A firm feeling prevailed in the egg situation owing to the fact that the competition for supplies throughout the country for storing purposes continued keen. A very fair amount of business was done in a jobbing way. The receipts were 4,220 cases.

The undertone to the potato market continued easy on account of the liberal supplies available for the season of the year and the absence of any demand from outside sources.

A steady feeling prevailed in the market for imported beans on account of the rather small supplies coming forward. The demand was fair for small lots of choice white hand-picked beans at $4.40 per bus., ex-store, and car lots to arrive were quoted at $4.20 per bushel, ex-track.

There were no further developments in the local butter situation, the undertone being firm at the late advance in prices noted owing to the small receipts of fresh goods and the somewhat limited supplies available on spot. The receipts were 269 packages.

A firm feeling prevailed in the cheese market and prices were unchanged. There was a fair inquiry from English importers for supplies, and sales of Western No. 1 white and colored were made at 90s per cwt., and No. 2 grades at 87s per cwt. The receipts were 2,382 boxes.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, May 16 (Canadian Press). —Unfavorable European crop advices, with indications of better export demand for shipments from North America, led to a decided swing upward in wheat values yesterday. Corn and oats, as well as rye, all went higher with wheat.

Closing quotations on wheat were strong, 2⅝ cents to 3 cents net higher, with corn 1¼ cents to 2¾ cents up, oats varying from ⅛ cent decline to 1⅝ cents advance, and provisions unchanged to a rise of 12 cents.

At first, the wheat market here showed a tendency to waver on account of rains in various parts of domestic wheat territory. However, this factor was largely offset by unlooked-for strength of quotations at Liverpool. Subsequently, European crop news which came through American official channels brought about substantial buying of Chicago future deliveries and the market here developed notable independent strength. Meanwhile, too, unofficial reports said cold weather continues in Europe, and the world's wheat available supply showed 8,921,000 bushels falling off for the week.

Besides, considerable notice was taken of Salina, Kansas, news of green bug molestation.

Friends of higher prices for wheat pointed out likewise that but very little rain had fallen in the Canadian North-West, and that reports from some sections of the American spring wheat belt, South Dakota, in particular, told of thin stand in late fields, the result of poor germination. Moreover, a Chicago expert telegraphing from Watertown, S.D., said there had been heavy permanent loss. Despite deliveries of 645,000 bushels of wheat yesterday on Chicago May contracts, wheat prices here finished near to the day's top level. Export business yesterday in wheat from North America was estimated at 700,000 bushels.

Corn and oats, after showing early weakness, rallied toward the last. In addition to sympathizing with wheat strength, corn was affected by improved demand for new receipts here of which there were only 45 cars. Excellent cash demand for oats was also in evidence.

Provisions were influenced by the fact that recent big buyers of lard were again taking hold.

BRANTFORD, May 15.—An English Gray Dorking hen, owned by G. Double yolk eggs are not uncommon, but a three-yolk egg is believed to set a record at least in this district.

GOD'S MINUTE

Blessed is the man that walketh not in the counsel of the ungodly, nor standeth in the way of sinners, nor sitteth in the seat of the scornful. But his delight is in the law of the Lord; and in his law doth he meditate day and night. And he shall be like a tree planted by the rivers of water, that bringeth forth his fruit in his season; his leaf also shall not wither; and whatsoever he doeth shall prosper.—Ps. 1: 1-3.

Our Father Who art in Heaven and in earth, enter, we pray Thee, and be the centre of our family love and peace. We differ in our wants, our tempers and tastes. Selfishness and egotism spoil our perfect union. Only as Thou dost dwell in us, and we in Thee, can we realize that unity of life and action which makes for true happiness and strength. As we go forth this day to our toil and our pleasures, help us to keep Thee and one another in our minds and hearts. Help each of us to efface our self-centred desires, and to make mutual surrenders for the comfort and good of all our household. Help us to remember that larger unity of Christian life which Thou hast planned in Jesus, our Saviour and Lord. May Thy revelation of Fatherhood fashion our nation and the peoples of other lands into that one family wherein righteousness, peace and joy shall dwell forever. Amen.

CONCERT IN AID OF BAND FUND

Madrigal Singers Will Give Part of Program Next Monday.

BAND TO PLAY.

A concert towards securing funds for the purchase of new band instruments for the Peterborough Rangers' Regimental Band, will be given next Monday evening, 21st, in the Canadian Legion Hall on Murray street. The programme will be given by the "Madrigal Singers" under the direction of Dorothy Allan Park, and the Peterborough Rangers' Band under Lieutenant W. H. Peryer. The Madrigal Singers is an organization of trained voices, and ... favorably known for its excellent and finished singing. The programme will be an entirely new one, with the exception of one or two request numbers, and will consist of part songs, quartettes, duets, solos, readings and band numbers.

The beautiful part songs and madrigals to be sung will be those the Madrigal Singers will sing at the Canadian National Exhibition in Toronto on Music Day. They have been engaged by Captain Atkinson, Director of the Canadian Bureau for the Advancement of Music, the organization which is responsible for all the music on that day.

Major Maurice Park will contribute songs to the program, and one of the members, Mrs. Hazel Davidson McClelland, will give readings, in addition to solos by other well known soloists.

The band at full strength under Conductor Lieut. W. H. Peryer, will contribute several fine numbers, both classical and popular. One of the numbers to be played by the band, entitled "Mon Ami," is composed by Captain O'Neil of Quebec who is coming to Peterborough in October to act as one of the Land and orchestral adjudicators in the Musical Festival now being organized by the Kiwanis Club, in connection with the "Made-in-Canada" Fair.

A delightful and worth while programme is assured, and that combined with the quaint and pretty costumes worn by the singers, the bright uniforms of the bandsmen, a stage which is being very attractively arranged by the Timothy Eaton Store, and a fine piano from Heintzman & Company, will make an unusually varied and interesting evening.

Quebec Man Restored to Health By Taking Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Mr. Joseph Roy Suffered With His Kidneys for More Than a Year

WALKERVILLE, P.Q., May 15.—(Special).—"Having met a friend who had obtained great relief by taking Dodd's Kidney Pills I decided to try them," writes Mr. Joseph Roy, a well-known resident of this place. "I took a few boxes and they have done me much good. I strongly recommend Dodd's Kidney Pills. They have saved my life and restored my former health."

Availing oneself of the best information, the broadest and most practical system of relief in the world to-day, is the one in which the sufferer ascertains for himself the nature of his disease, and then chooses the most certain means of healing; this has been known for the past thirty years as the Dodd's Kidney Pill treatment.

All that is claimed for Dodd's Kidney Pills is that they are a kidney remedy. They have been successfully used as a treatment for Rheumatism, Backache and Urinary troubles for over a third of a century.

Better Weather In West Causes Drop In Wheat

CHICAGO, May 16. — (Canadian Press.)— Better weather conditions over both spring and winter crop belts gave the wheat market an early trend downward to-day. Fairly general rains, likely to prove of considerable benefit, were reported and further showers were looked for. Opening unchanged to ⅛c. lower, wheat later showed a general setback. Corn, oats and provisions were also easier, with corn starting unchanged to ⅜c. off and afterward decining all around.

Opening prices were: Wheat, May 151⅛, July 152¾. Corn, May 102, July 104⅝. Oats, May 63¾, July 57⅝.

ALL SAINTS' WINS IN PLAY CONTEST

Branch Enters Finals of A.Y.P. A. District Dramatic Competition.

With their play, "At Sixes and Sevens," the A.Y.P.A. of All Saints' Church captured the decision of the judges last evening in a dramatic contest staged in St. John's Parish Hall, in which the A.Y.P.A. dramatic sections of St. John's, All Saints' and St. Luke's Churches took part. This is the first portion of the district dramatic contest among A.Y.P.A. clubs. The second section will be staged probably in Omemee, when clubs from Lindsay and Lakefield will take part. The final winner among the five churches will receive this year the silver cup given by Millbrook A.Y.P.A. for annual dramatic competition, and won last season by the A.Y.P.A. of St. Luke's Church.

There was an excellent attendance of about two hundred and fifty people in St. John's Parish Hall last evening for the presentation of the three bright one-act plays, all of which met with much applause and were all put on in the snappiest possible manner. The quality of spontaneous acting which gives the impression of really living the part was possibly most apparent in the play presented by All Saints', which was considered best by the adjudicators, Messrs. M. B. Chenhall, E. V. Morphet and A. Clark. The decision gave All Saints' 73 points out of a possible hundred, St. John's 67, and St. Luke's 65. Judging was made on enunciation, characterization, deportment and memory work, no allowance being made for the type of play presented, the stage setting or stage picture.

Announcements were made by Cecil Hope and the decision of the judges was given by E. V. Morphet, who accorded special mention to Miss Worboy and Mr. Price of All Saints' A.Y.P.A. cast and Miss Winifred Melton of St. John's cast. During intermissions, orchestral selections were much enjoyed.

The several casts follow: "The Red Lamp," presented by the A.Y.P.A. of St. John's church, under direction of W. E. Massey-Cooke, and dealing with the adventures of a household and its members after the advent of a miraculous red lamp brought from Peru; Matilda Derring, the aunt (Miss Florence Hutchinson), Alice Derring, her niece (Miss Margaret Guthrie), Harold Derring, her nephew, (Jack Pritchard), Archie Clark, suitor of Alice (Herbert McFee), Bill Worth, the burglar, (Bert Graham), Annie O'Shane, the maid (Miss Winifred Melton).

"At Sixes and Sevens," presented by the A.Y.P.A. of All Saints' church, under direction of Miss J. Maconomy, and detailing in brisk fashion the episodes attending the arrival of a separated husband and wife at a country house party in Twickenham, England, and their consequent involvment in the matrimonial designs of their hosts; Colonel Scrimmage (James Price), Mrs. Scrimmage (Mrs. Dorothy Worboy), Hector Scrimmage, their son, (Jack Hope), Teddington Locke, friend of Hector (James Morley), Mrs. Delancey, masquerading as a widow, but really Mrs. Teddington Locke (Miss Jessie Maconomy), Jessie Wharton, ward of Colonel Scrimmage (Miss Helen Risko), the maid (Miss Margaret Lacheur).

"The Bachelor's Baby," presented by the A.Y.P.A. of St. Luke's church, under direction of J. H. Primeau, and concerned with the adventures of a hapless bachelor who holds an infant for a German lady at a station and is compelled to take it home later to face in turn a very suspicious landlady, an enquiring fiancee and an unbelieving policeman; Miss Smithers, the landlady (Mrs. William Hepburn), Miss Elizabeth Clarkson, the fiancee, (Miss Florence Adams), Dick Somers, the bachelor (Gordon Maniece), the policeman (Douglas Bethune) and the German mother of the infant (Miss Grace Simpson).

SAYS BIG HOLDINGS PASSING.

Rearing of large families is breaking up the extensive individual land holdings in Chile, according to W. P. Jones of Osorno, who in 1869 bought more than 25,000 acres of land at the equivalent of 20 cents an acre. In a recent statement he declared that marriages in South America, more particularly among the country people, are blessed with large families, and as the sons remain in the district the land is automatically subdivided among them. In proof of his contention, he produced figures showing that in the Province of Osorno there are now 6,661 rural properties valued at $21,000 and under.

SCOTCH MINERS FACE WANT.

Closing of many mines in Scotland, due to the serious condition of the coal trade, is throwing thousands of miners out of work. In the Fife district four companies closed down mines employing 2,000 men, and at a meeting of mine-workers of the district the general secretary reported that destitution was very great. At Coatbridge, several hundred unemployed made a demonstration in front of the city council chambers following refusal of the council to hear a delegation requesting an increase in the unemployment allowance. Invading the chamber they broke up the meeting, and were quieted by the police.

Should the Yankees win the American League pennant this season, Manager Miller Huggins will equal the record of Connie Mack, who is now the only American League manager who has won six pennants.

MOTHERS' CHOIR IN MADOC CHURCH

Mother's Day Fittingly Observed at Both United Church Services.

MADOC, May 16. — Mothers' Day was fittingly celebrated in Trinity Church on Sunday by special music, special sermons and a full mothers' choir both morning and evening. The morning service was well attended both by the regular congregation and by many visitors who were at the old home for Mothers' Day and in memory of mother.

In the choir were Mesdames G. Maybee, S. Ashley, F. Tumelty, Rivers, Sills, B Bailey, Dafoe, Whytock, Parks,. Embury, Shane, Bird, A. Smith, Roberts, White, and Blakeley.

The service was opened by singing 'All People That On Earth Do Dwell," and th'e 92nd Psalm was read responsively. The full choir then sang "The Master is Come and Calleth for Thee," followed by the children's talk, which for this day was an old poem memorized by all the elder people in school days, but no longer in the Readers, "My Mother."

Mother's Day was the subject, and the text chosen was "Honor Thy Mother," from Eph. 6:2: "Honor thy father and thy mother, which is the first commandment with promise."

In dealing with this subject, Rev. Mr. Rivers quoted several lines which many have echoed through the years:

"Backward, turn backward, O
Time, in your flight,
Make me a child again just for to-night;
Kiss from my forehead the furrows of care,
Smooth the few silver threads out of my hair,
Over my slumbers your loving watch keep,
Rock me to sleep, mother, rock me to sleep."

To think of Home is to think of Mother, for Mother is the centre of the Home. To Mother we are indebted for Life, for Home, for Love.

Then, quoting from "If you have a grey-haired Mother, in the old home far away," he went on to suggest many of the lesser courtesies which do so much to cheer the heart of that mother who has meant so much to each of us, and to whom we mean so much.

"Honor Mother, never dishonor her"

Mother's Day should mean a greater attention to the fifth commandment. To Mothers it should suggest that they cherish the heaven-born privileges that are theirs; closing with the prayer of Ella Wheeler Wilcox's prayer, "Lord, give to the mothers of our land, love to do their part."

After the prayer that followed the choir sang: "Lord, Lift Up Mine Eyes That I May See,' and the congregational singing of "Jesus, Saviour, Pilot Me."

Evening Service

The evening service opened with a song serice of familiar hymns: "I Love to Tell the Story," and "Guide Me, O Thou Great Jehovah," being two of those selected. The Mothers' choir again led the service of song, and "All Glory, Laud, and Honor, To Thee, Almighty King," was used at the opening of the regular service followed by the reading of the Ten Commandments from Exodus 20. The anthem was "In the Place Where the Master Needs Me."

The subject for the evening was "God and Mother," and the text, "As one whom his mother comforteth, so will I comfort thee," from Is. 66:13.

The outstanding words in the language, the speaker, the Rev. G. W. Rivers, said, are: God, the Holiest; soul, the deepest; eternity, the longest; time, the swiftest; sin, the darkest; love, the greatest; Home, the sweetest; and Mother, the nearest. A Jewish rabbi is supposed to have said: "God could not be everywhere, so he made mothers."

Speaking of notable mothers, the speaker dwelt on Eve, the mother of the race, naming her children gifts from God; Sarah, with children promised by God; Jocobed, training her son for a few short months, to be the saviour of his race; Mary, the mother of Jesus, the highest type of motherhood; Hannah, consecrating her son from childhood to God's service.

Only in civilized nations is motherhood honored, and the more Christian the nation, the more mothers are honored. Home is the greatest educational institution, and Mother the greatest teacher. George Herbert said, "One good mother is equal to one hundred school masters."

He spoke of Ingersoll, who would never say anything against his mother's teaching, though he often spoke against his father; and of Thomas Carlyle, whose mother at seventy years of age, learned to write in order to correspond with her son. Then, quoting:

"Mother, come back from that echoless shore,
Take me again to your heart
as of yore;
Come from the silence so long and so deep,
Rock me to sleep, Mother,
rock me to sleep."

He continued, "There is only one absolutely unselfish and Godlike love—the love of a mother. The love of a mother is the best guarantee that there is a God.

Many of us have the comfort of God's love in trouble. "As one whom his mother comforteth, so will I comfort you." You have only one Mother; show her honor and love before it is too late.

The choir sang, "Oh, to Be Used of Thee, Lord," and the closing hymn was "Happy the Home." Many hymn was "Happy the Home." Many and evening, wore the typical flowers for Mothers' Day, thus taking their part in the day's honor to Mother.

Miss Evelyn Mitchell, Field Secretary of the W.M.S., will speak at Wednesday evening's service.

Y.P.S. Banquet to Be Held

The Y.P.S. of Trinity Church decided at the Tuesday evening meeting to change the date of the banquet to May 22. On this occasion the winning car will be banqueted by the losers in the big auto race.

The program was short, consisting of a piano solo by Lucy Foster, a reading by Lilian Connor, a duet by Gladys and Vera Parker. The topic was taken by Rev. Mr. Rivers, who spoke of the splendid work of the Summer schools. He urged as many as possible to attend this year. The session at Oak Lake this summer promises to be very enjoyable and profitable.

PLANNED TO CONSERVE SPACE
W. C. Barnes, Architect.

Here is a thoughtfully planned home which, having an overall frontage of only 29 feet 6 inches, could be built on a fairly narrow lot. The predominating feature of its plan of course is the position of the main entrance vestibule as a projection from the main house at the centre of one side. By this means a long narrow hall to the kitchen is avoided, while all the particularly desirable front space is retained for use as rooms.

The living room is entered from the hall through a quite large reception room. It is of ample size, and whether by the abundant light from the large unobstructed bay window, or the cosy glow from the attractively designed fireplace, may always be bright and cheerful.

Provision of three pairs of sliding doors in this front section of the house is a commendable feature which gives the flexibility so desirable in a home this size. To the modern household who enjoy an occasional home dance this arrangement will have a particular appeal. The use of sliding instead of hinged doors is another noteworthy feature, for only by this means could sufficient wall space be retained for the best placing of furniture.

Convenience of communication is also very evident in the rear section of the house. The position of the wash room on this floor near the rear door will be a welcome feature to those accustomed to carrying heavy wash baskets from a basement laundry to the drying yard. Access may be had to a one piece toilet through this room.

Four various size bedrooms, each with a large clothes closet, a three piece bathroom, balcony, and linen closet, comprise the accommodation of the upper floor, which is laid out in a sound logical manner.

The house contains 29,375 cubic feet and constructed in a substantial manner would cost approximately $8,500 exclusive of lot.

Readers desiring further information regarding a house of this design should communicate with Home Building Information Service, 345 Adelaide St. West, Toronto, Ont., who will see that it is supplied. When writing please mention design number 124. Copyright, 1928.

PLAN EACH ROOM FOR ITS SPECIAL NEED.

Practical Hints as to the Layout and Arrangement of Various Rooms.

Living and Dining Rooms: Remember that you are going to spend most of your time in the living room. Make it roomy, light, and so arranged that the largest articles of furniture, such as piano and chesterfield, can be accommodated against unbroken wall space.

In many modern homes the dining and living rooms are combined, facilities for dining consisting in an alcover with built-in table and seats. Usually the accommodation is for four people, but this can easily be augmented by an additional table set near by.

Kitchens: If properly planned the kitchen need not be large; but it should have space for at least the following: Stove, sink with drainboards, table or work-shelf or kitchen cabinet, refrigerator, cupboards. If there is a pantry these arrangements may be changed: Built-in refrigerators that can be replenished from the outside and provided with a drain to the basement are a very great convenience. A flue connection is required by law in many cities, if gas is to be used for cooking.

Bedrooms and Sleeping Porches: If the house is a one-storey structure and the bedrooms on the main floor, make a firm resolve not to have these rooms connect directly either with the living room or with a bath-room. Entrance always should be by way of a hall or passage. Good sized closets with shelves and poles for clothing hangers are now considered essential in modern bedrooms: Cross ventilation is another important matter, and the placing of the furniture should be such as not to interfere with the opening wide of doors and windows. If a sleeping porch is included in your plan, see that the entrance is off a hallway or else one of the bedrooms. Window openings in these porches should be above the level of the beds, so that ventilation without draughts may be obtained.

Where separate dining rooms are planned the tendency is to make the outlet to the living room as large as possible, thus making the living quarters of the house appear inviting and commodious.

HOSPITAL IN ICING.

This hospital is made of cake icing, not stone. It is a model in cake and icing of the new Women's College hospital in Toronto, and is the work of one of the chefs of the King Edward hotel, Louis Ricciardelli, whose talents in the culinary line lie in sculpture with icing. Last Easter Sunday Harry Stanley, a director of the hospital, had tea at the hotel, and was so impressed with the fine work done by Ricciadelli in icing, that he was commissioned to make a model of the new hospital. The model is 4 feet high and 5 feet in length.

The Great Adventure

THIS year, again, five hundred Peterborough youngsters will stride gallantly forth to meet and conquer the threatening ogre of living expenses.

Without experience, with few set preferences in merchandise—and with enthusiasm as their only ally—they will demand from the merchants of Peterborough the inevitable requisites of home-making.

Two hundred and fifty boys will set off for two hundred and fifty jobs with high purpose and renewed determination.

Two hundred and fifty girls, wondering a little, will plan two hundred and fifty homes . . . . and seven hundred and fifty meals a day.

Together, they will excitedly ponder the spending of thousands of dollars.

What kitchen utensils? What furniture? Which curtains? The selection of a rug becomes a problem of infinite dimensions. The buying of a vacuum cleaner is a great adventure! Silverware. Linen. China. Glassware. New food products to meet their divergent tastes . . . . which they stoutly maintain are exactly alike!

Young hopefuls. More alert than any generation the world has ever produced. A generation of readers, trained to recognize advertising as a source of information and a guide to values.

They want two hundred and fifty talking machines . . . . pianos . . . . radios . . . . cars. Some will be able to buy them now. The rest will choose them now.

During this year, the first of wedded life, advertising will give them established preferences in merchandise and in places where they buy it. Familiar store names will spring to their lips . . . . laying the foundation for the buying habits of a lifetime. Next year they will be added to those other thousands who patronize advertising stores as a matter of course.

And The Peterborough Examiner, supreme in its field, is the only medium by which Peterborough merchants can reach these young people just starting The Great Adventure.

Lillie Had Everything - By FANNIE HURST

The Lillie Drake of the old days became a sophisticated, traveled, cynical and even more beautiful Lillie-Drake-of-the-World. And Abbie—more wholesome, more practical, more capable. An Abbie that fitted naturally into the small economies and happy schemings that her family's comfort made necessary.

To Abbie, Lillie's sporadic visits were the most exciting events in life. To be thought of for weeks before they occurred. To be remembered with happiness weeks afterwards.

THROUGHOUT their college years together, Lillie Drake and Abbie Parsons enjoyed one of those intimate and unexplainable friendships that can bind girls. They were different from one another in practically every aspect. In her freshman year, Lillie Drake had sunset-colored hair, a heart-shaped face and a nose with a little upward toss to it. She took on the soubriquet of "college beauty" which was to cling to her throughout the four indisputable years of her undergraduate reign, and beyond them, into that university called Life. She was a human magnet. She attracted the sophomoric males about her even as she attracted the susceptible girls on the campus.

She had a fair amount of brains and she had charm. She also had, what was most unusual in the small, middle West university, an independent fortune of her own. In an environment where no small majority of the boys and girls were obliged to earn their way through college, Lillie, orphaned at seventeen, was in the fortunate position of having to give no thought to money.

Her rooms were by all odds the most pretentious of the dormitory. She had a small roadster which she drove herself. She dressed away and beyond the abilities of any other girl on the campus.

Abbie Parsons had the same homely quality as her name. Her broad, freckled face was so full of humor that you forgot certain maladjustments of features. Her brown hair, which was without lustre, she arranged carelessly. Her eyes had a manner of screwing themselves into tight little sunbursts of wrinkles when she laughed. She earned her way through college by waiting table in the girls' dormitory and assisting the head of the English Department at his heavy task of reading students' themes.

They were an incongruous and at the same time, a delightful pair of friends . . . Lillie Drake and Abbie Parsons.

IT could scarcely be said of Abbie that she was what you might call a "college widow." Men and girls liked her after a hale-fellow-well-met fashion, but the kind of popularity she enjoyed was not to be compared with the brilliant little niche Lillie's beauty and charm had gouged out for her in college circles. Abbie was everybody's "old dear." Lillie was everybody's "darling."

Undoubtedly, the "law of opposites" was at work in moulding the friendship of these two. There was something rather lovely in Abbie's adoration of Lillie's kind of success. She was wistful about it without knowing it; she sat up evenings waiting for Lillie's return from a social function to which she had not been bidden, with the whole-hearted eagerness and lack of envy of a sweet-natured child. She doted on Lillie's popularity without any sense of her own exclusion. She was proud of her. She exhibited her with almost a personal kind of pride.

Lillie, in turn, came to accept this quality in Abbie as naturally as if it belonged to her by right. To Lillie, a world without Abbie's sweetness and light was unthinkable. To Abbie, a world without Lillie's brilliance was equally unthinkable.

The result was that there was never the slightest rivalry between the two girls, except possibly, and for ever so brief a period, in the case of Professor Edwin Stacy, the young English instructor, for whom Abbie read daily themes. It was while calling upon the lovely Lillie, his first visit to her in fact, that Stacy met Abbie. One year later, Stacy and Abbie were married.

IT was a splendidly right kind of marriage. If ever there was a girl qualified to fit gracefully into the world of faculty life, that was Abbie. Reared in the stern school of economy, she was immediately able to provide for her thoughtful and rather austere young husband a comfortable home out of his slender income. The house of the Edwin Stacys immediately became a social and intellectual rendezvous in university life. There were three children in quick succession and if Abbie broadened a bit and at a far too early age developed streaks of gray in her dull brown hair, her drollery and humor developed.

Edwin Stacy, a man of few words, reticence and a rather enigmatic manner, moved through the environment she so capably provided him, with the air of a man to whom life's satisfactions were indubitable. The Stacy household, a bit harum-scarum, utterly lacking in routine, an open house of a glowing if somewhat untidy hearth, radiated happiness to those it sheltered. It must be admitted that Abbie had developed or degenerated into a dowdy faculty-wife. She dressed badly. She looked easily ten years older than her handsome, reserved, scholarly husband. Her children had a way of leaving thumb-marks and streaks and daubs across her face and clothing.

On one memorable occasion of a faculty-concert, Abbie created college hilarity by being mistaken by the soloist of the occasion, for her husbands' mother. That incident went down into the relentless annals of campus history.

It was astonishing the equanimity with which Abbie took this happening.

Late that night, in the privacy of their bedroom, she and Edwin laughed at it. It seemed to make no dent in her complacency, or for that matter, in his.

MEANWHILE, Lillie had gone the way of one who so obviously seemed destined for a wider destiny than any that could possibly have to do with the little university world in which she had been educated.

The Lillie Drake of the old days had become a sophisticated, a travelled, a cynical and an even more beautiful Lillie-Drake-of-the-world.

Occasionally, like a brilliant bird of flight, she swooped down for a day or two in the old college town, bringing more chaos into the Stacy household with her retinue of trunks, maids and dogs.

These sporadic visits of Lillie Drake's were by all odds the most exciting events in Abbie Stacy's life. She anticipated them for weeks before they happened; she lived off them weeks after they took place.

Visits when old friendship was renewed—when Lillie was in their midst like a creature from another planet, so bright, so gay, so utterly entrancing in her charm and loveliness. Yet always an adaptable Lillie, who seemed to settle down to the life of the Stacys as if she knew no other. As if she wanted no other.

Every one of Abbie's little girls had been reared to idolize and idealize this exotic bird of paradise they called Aunt Lillie.

To them she meant the glamor, the romance, the fascination of the world of story. The wide world of beauty and riches and imagination. Like a butterfly, a fairy godmother. They almost looked for a wand, and a Cinderella's coach and a sudden, unexpected disappearance.

To Abbie, their adoration seemed natural enough. It was so like her own feeling for Lillie. A feeling of affection, admiration, wonder, that in one being so much beauty and wealth and happiness could be combined.

Edwin Stacy was indulgent of this fanaticism in Abbie. He humored her. He even endured the unwelcome excitement that Lillie's visits introduced into his home.

On one of her returns from a two years' tour of the world, Lillie Drake swooped down upon the Stacys, as tired, as pale, as generally out of tune with her world as Abbie had ever known her to be.

The fact that Lillie, to whom suitors were a natural part of her retinue, had not marrried, had never before so completely puzzled, grieved and frustrated Abbie. She was so palpably lonely, so palpably a wistful and yearning soul in the midst of her plenty. There were storm and conflict and the wretchedness that is born of loneliness in the heart of Lillie Drake, and Abbie suffered with her the acute pangs of vicarious pain.

It seemed to Abbie, on this occasion of Lillie's visit, that her friend was in the throes of what might develop into a serious mental breakdown. She was nervous, distrait and utterly without enthusiasm.

It was in the midst of one of their interminable confabs together, in the old schoolgirl fashion of winding up side by side on the bed for mutual confidences that Lillie, her nerves worn down to a point where restraint was no longer possible, sobbed out to Abbie the incredible confession of her ills.

LILLIE was in love with Edwin. Always had been. His marriage to Abbie had been the most devastating circumstance in her life. It had swept away her hopes, her dreams, her ambitions. And what was more, it developed in this astonishing admission of the hysterical Lillie, every one of her visits to the Stacys had been in the hope of winning him from Abbie. And Edwin had remained as impassive, as blind and as deaf to her as he had ever been. Edwin had neither eye nor ear for any one but Abbie.

This was Lillie's pitiable story. A girl of beauty, riches, boundless opportunity made miserable, lonely, because her homely, poor little friend had captured the one man in the world she could ever love. For her, life was barren, the world was empty. She could find no happiness. She wandered from place to place, restlessly trying to forget—and then swooped back to the Stacys', her spirit shamed, her resolution gone, in the frantic, futile hope that Edwin would have wakened to a feeling for her comparable to hers for him.

That evening, when Edwin came home from his lecture, he was greeted with the news that Lillie, bag and baggage, had suddenly departed. The three little girls were lonely for her and when Abbie met him at the door, there was a strange pallor to her face.

"Poor girl," said Edwin, when he heard the news. "How restless! Lillie has everything and yet—"

"Yes," said Abbie, as she kissed her husband a little more lingeringly than usual, "Lillie has everything and Lillie has nothing."

MILLBROOK UNITED CHURCH.

MILLBROOK, May 16.— A special Mothers' Day service was observed in the United church on Sunday morning, the Sunday school joining with the regular congregation for worship. The boys and girls of the Sunshine Mission Band, under the leadership of the superintendent, Mrs. G. W. Sayles, and Mrs. M. McDowell, turned out about forty strong and formed the choir for the occasion.

The Rev. Joseph Wilks led in the opening prayer, and the superintendend, W. Fred Fallis, took charge of the order of service and led in the responsive readings.

A junior boy, Jack Stinson, recited "Unchangeable Mothers," and Miss Elsie Spence, one of the teachers, recited "As They, So I," both poems being most appropriate to the theme of the service.

The selections by the junior choir were the opening hymn, "Ever Faithful, Ever Sure," and 'So Will I," together with the prayer hymn after the offering, and the choral benediction.

The pastor, the Rev. F. H. Howard, gave a brief and most impressive address, basing his remarks upon the eighth chapter of I Kings, and pointing out that, as Solomon carried out the plan of his father David for the building and dedication of the temple, so a son or a daughter may be chosen of God to-day to bring to completion the plans that fathers and mothers have in their hearts but which they themselves have lacked opportunity, possibly ability, to fulfill.

"The greatest privilege and honor that comes to parents is to raise children for God—trained and established in Christian character will mean for them a legacy far surpassing money or lands. Of what value would property be if truth and righteousness did not prevail, and our land slumped into paganism? Christian citizenship alone will insure lasting national prosperity."

"What is in your heart is a searching question for parents; love of the world, or live of God? the principle of the kingdom the rule of your actions? If only thy children take heed to their ways'; train them, to drink at the fountain of living waters."

The special offering on Sunday was for the work being done by the Ontario Religious Education Council, and the ushers were six members of the Tuxis Square: R. Larmer, Aubrey Todd, Arnold Fallis, Lawrence Rowland, George Clarke and Kenneth Skitch.

The secretary's report showed 23 teachers and officers persent, a total attendance of 343, and an offering of $15.80.

Evening Service.

In the evening there was a men's choir of about forty voices, largely recruited from the members of Mrs. Rae's Bible class, who sang "My Mother's Old Bible Is True," Weston Fallis taking the verses as a solo, with the full choir in the chorus; "One By One," and "Marching in His Name," G. E. Burnham providing the cornet obligato for this number. Mrs. H. W. Johnston trained the men for the song service.

MOTHER'S DAY AT CAVAN.

CAVAN, May 16.—The Rev. J. H. Sutcliffe of Murray Street Baptist Church, Peterborough, gave the Mother's Day address in Cavan United Church on Sunday afternoon. Cavan Centre and Ebenezer Sunday School pupils were also present for the occasion.

The Rev. Mr. Sutcliffe, took for scriptural reading that part of Paul's writings referring to the influence which a godly mother Eunice had over Timothy's life. His address was much enjoyed and listened to with keen interest.

James Douglas, superintendent of the School presided and "A Story About Angels", was read by Miss Ruth Staples and a recitation given by Miss Pearl Richards.

During the afternoon two beautiful bouquets were presented to the oldest mothers of the congregation, Mrs. David Hunter and Mrs. Robert Sutton. The presentation was made by little Ruth Braithwaite and Bernice Richards. Mrs. Sutton was unable to present, but it was sent to her with her daughter.

Sunday Evening's Service.

A children's service was held in the evening with a Junior choir supplying the music. Two selections being sung by them. The pastor, the Rev. J. O. Totten, based his remarks on "A Postage Stamp" pointing out to the children many similarities between their lives and the work and make-up of an ordinary postage stamp.

GILMOUR MEMORIAL

Mother's Day was fittingly observed in the Sunday School on Sunday morning. The regular Mother's Day program was used.

In the church service, the mothers had charge, while the following was the address given, the text taken from John 19:26: "It seems to me that there is nothing in all this wonderful story more wonderful than this beautiful touch this loving regard on the part of Christ for the future welfare of His mother. Jesus had been hanging on that terrible cross for nearly six hours and He must have been suffering excruciating physical agony, not to speak of His mental anguish; yet His thought at that awful moment is not about Himself but about His mother; so He hands over to the beloved disciple John, who takes her to his own home and cares for her during the rest of her life. Thus the last thoughts of the Lord clustered around her, who had ushered Him into this world and who had nursed him in the years of infancy's helplessness and who had made the first and most lasting impressions on His heart and mind. We have met here to-day to pay a well deserved tribute to our mothers, living and dead. Someone has said "God could not be everywhere so He made mothers." That old truth sets forth a noble interpretation of the place, power, and preciousness of motherhood. S. T. Coleridge, the poet says, "A mother is a mother still—the holiest thing alive." The child's first thought of God are taught by her lips and at her knee. What a wondrous power a mother has to fashion the soul of her child for good, to lead it to the Saviour. We cannot thank God enough for such mothers whose prayers follow us even when we have tripped and fallen and defiled our souls in the miry clay and pit of sin, nevertheless, Mother's Day may be the day of our salvation.

A Godly mother's opportunity: She has the greatest opportunity of any to mould and fashion the character of her child. I believe that God instituted such a long period of helplessness for the human offspring. A little animal can run about and do a great many things for itself almost from the moment of birth, but the little child is able to do little or nothing for many months, and this long period of helpless dependance, this slow process of development is the handwriting of God upon the wall, pointing to the limitless opportunity and the equally limitless responsibility of the mother in the home.

Then the boy scout movement began in the States. A big camp had been arranged which was to include young boys of eight years of age. At seven o'clock on the first evening, one of the little boys came to the chief scout and saluting him said, "Please, sir, my mother said if I came to camp I was to go to bed at seven o'clock." "Very well", replied the chief, "go to bed." "Please sir", continued the boy, "mother said, if I came to camp I must say prayers." "Very well my boy, say your prayers." "Please sir," again spoke the young scout, "I always say my prayers at my mother's knee, can I say them at yours"? The chief was so deeply touched that he took the boy aside into the woods and there they prayed together. From that time the scout movement became a religious one, which it was not at first. Thus this great boys' organization through a mother's influence, has a definitely religious bent which must have enchanced its possibilities for good a thousand fold.

You have heard the old saying, "The hand that rocks the cradle, rules the world." Through her great sons and her noble daughters she runs things in all the higher walks of life. It is the mother that makes the home, be it ever so well furnished and have in it all the costliest aids to comfort and all the latest arts of refinement, if it is without a mother a house is not a home; it lacks that mysterious charm that is essential to real home life. Of course, there are homes where there are actually no mothers, but in those homes there are women presiding who have all the charm and grace of mothers; but who have been denied the inestimable privilege of motherhood.

There is price, privilege and power in purity. There is heaven in it. Blessed are the pure in heart for they shall see God. When we think of the moral purity that the mothers have instilled into the race we see one of her supreme achievements. Good mothers are the best guarantee of national stability because they will turn out in well trained boys and girls, the raw material for the making of good citizens. A great majority of the boys and girls who go astray and drift into crime had no mother's training, and we ought to be more charitable in our judgment of the criminally inclined boy or girl when we learn that in the tender years of their life they lacked this great source of inspiration and help and had no mother.

Mother's Day should be one of the high and holy days of the Christian calendar to all who reverence what is sacred and worthwhile in life. When we forget our duty to motherhood so that the great source of inspiration declines then we may well tremble for our holy faith, for our homes, churches, our Christian civilization itself, yea for everything that is pure and holy, beautiful and enduring and eternally indispensable to life.

less of weather conditions. Then there is the secondary towers established on less prominent peaks which command a shorter range than the primary towers. Generally these are maintained only during periods of high fire hazard and are intended to afford a more intensive control over areas covered to some extent by the primary towers. To increase the efficiency of this type of towers an honorary fire ranger system has been developed. These rangers are placed on duty as smoke chasers to the secondary tower.

A dispatcher is usually located in the Chief Rangers Headquarters whose main function is to record weather data, look after the technical work of the lookouts and plot the location of fires.

The effectiveness of the system not only depends on the lookouts ability to discover fires but also on the provisions for assisting the smoke chasers to find their location.

How the System Works.

An example of a fire and the functions of each member of the organization is as follows. The tower observer at the Faraday tower sights a smoke. After close examination and writing a report as fully as possible he phones the necessary information to the dispatcher at Bancroft. If the observer at Faraday is positive as to the fire location the dispatcher notifies the ranger responsible for the fire, assists him in procuring assistance of outside firefighters near the area, and sends extra equipment from headquarters if necessary. If the Faraday tower has not been certain of the location the dispatcher immediately gets in touch with other towers in whose range the fire is. Usually within a few minutes other towers have located this fire then by the intersection of readings from these towers the fire is located.

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Death strikes GARRETT FOLOM while swimming with a party Ocean Town, N.J. At the HOTEL AJUSACA, where they all had been ests, an inquiry is begun, after a etor, perfunctorily examining him on e beach, pronounces him dead.

Folsom's companions had been ROGR NEVILLE, MRS. HELEN BARNSY and CARMELITA VALDON. is established that Folsom, just fore his death, had been standing xt to NED BARRON, who was one a party including his wife, MADENE; ANGELICA FAIR and her nce, ROBIN SEARS, and his ather, ROYDON SEARS.

It is decided to telegraph Folsom's ter, ANASTASIA, in New York. Then the startling announcement is ade that Folsom had been murdered the ocean—stabbed to death.

ROSS, the dead man's valet, is estioned about Neville, who was lsom's friend.

OW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER IX.

"Why—why, yes, sir—so far as I ow," said Ross.

"None of that, Ross, you know about all there is to know of your late master's friends or enemies. A man of your mental caliber can't be ignorant of the relationships between man and man."

"Then, if this is an examination, sir, I can only say that so far as I have ever seen or noticed, Mr. Neville had only friendly feelings toward Mr. Folsom, personally."

"Why did you add 'personally'? Had they other relationships than personal?"

"They had business connections, sir, that may or may not have been always serene. I know nothing of those, for they were conducted at offices, of course. But of my own knowledge, having seen Mr. Folsom and Mr. Neville together repeatedly, in friendly and, as I put it, personal surroundings, I call them tried and trusted friends. If you're suspecting Mr. Neville of—"

"Hush. Nobody has mentioned the idea of suspicion! Don't overstep your place."

"No, sir," and Ross again put on his look of quiet, respectful servitude.

Dixon said little more to him. He asked for the key of Mr. Folsom's suite, and Ross immediately produced it from his pocket and passed it over.

The detective wanted to quiz him further, for he had a feeling that this man knew his master's secrets, but he felt it was premature for him to hold any sort of an investigation that belonged, by right, to the police.

Just as Dixon was about to dismiss the valet a low knock at the door of Room J heralded the appearance of Inspector Babcock, a lieutenant detective and a medical examiner.

Partly because he greatly wanted to remain, and partly because, in his excitement, Dixon forgot to tell him to go, Ross stayed in the room, and inconspicuously sat in a corner, while the preliminary questions were asked.

The two doctors conferred above the body, while the inspector listened to the story as related by Dixon.

The police detective, Jepson, seeing no chance for hunting down clues in this room, sat silent, listening to the the doctors in turn with the talk between the inspector and Dixon.

"Who is this man?" asked Jepson, as matters proceeded.

"Oh, he's Ross, the valet of the dead man," Dixon said.

"What's he doing here?"

"Nothing. I had been questioning him, and finished just as you people came in."

Ross, not being addressed, said no word, and made no move to go.

"Well," Jepson remarked, "as questions must begin somewhere, I'll start in with Ross. Maybe it's a good plan at that."

He began with the usual request for names and dates and places.

Ross answered intelligently and respectfully, and soon Jepson had a neat list of Garrett Folsom's activities of late and data of his life in a general way.

"Well, that's all I can get from this chap," Jepson said. "Let him go. What are you going to do, my man? You've no master now."

"No, sir. I have no plans, either. I suppose I shall just wait around till Miss Folsom comes, and then I'll do whatever she tells me to do."

"Oh, yes, of course. The sister. Well, stay in the hotel, for we may want to see you now and then."

Ross departed, and Jepson summed him up as, "well trained, but wooden."

Then he listened to the doctors, who had agreed entirely in their diagnosis and decisions

"But it's preposterous, all the same," declared Dr. Potter the medical examiner. "In all my life I've never heard of such a thing! Why, whoever stabbed that man must have stood directly at his side."

"Or in front of him," amended Manning.

The stab stroke entered straight from the front, went clean and swift through the abdominal aorta and, of course, he bled to death internally and immediately. It's too incredible! How could anyone strike so truly and accurately in that tossing water?"

"Looks like the work of some one who knew anatomy?" suggested Manning.

"Not necessarily," said Potter. "Maybe, but it may have been by accident that the blow struck where it did. More likely the assassin aimed at the heart, but struck lower than he aimed. You see the tumbling water would divert any aim."

"He may have aimed several times—I mean aimed futilely, without striking his victim at all, at first."

"Yes, that is possible—probable, even. But in any case, he did hit him finally and with a swift deadly aim that hit true and sure."

"Where's the weapon?" asked Jepson.

"The murderer carried it off with him," Potter said, promptly. "He never let go of it. Stabbed and then drew it out and nobody knew a thing about it."

"Some nerve!" commented Dixon.

"Well, no," Inspector Babcock put in. "If it had been on land, it would have required nerve. But in the water, the weapon hidden, the deed done out of sight, there was little or no danger of being seen or noticed by the busy crowd of bathers."

"That's the secret of it all," Jepson declared. "Whoever the murderer was, he was mighty cute. He knew he had a cinch, if he kept his head and drove his blow straight. But we've got our job to pick him out from a hundred others. It could have been anybody in that part of the ocean, and I confess I don't know which way to look."

"Hold on, Jep," said the inspector. "It must have been somebody near the victim, to start with. He could have hurried away afterward, and mingled with a group on some other rope, or he might have gone right out of the water and started for home. But before the fatal jab that man had to be near the victim and must have been seen by somebody."

"All very well, inspector, but a needle in a haystack is good hunting compared to finding your man out of a bunch of bathers in the Atlantic Ocean!"

"Then begin at the other end. Seek a motive and a possible enemy and all that. But those things will keep and if you're going to get evidence from people who stood near the scene you'd better get it at once. For after twenty-four hours, innocent people will have forgotten the circumstances and guilty people will have cooked up an alibi."

"That's all true, chief," Jepson said, with a long drawn sigh. "We don't have a murder case often down here at Ocean Town, but now that we have, I wish it had happened in the town instead of in the ocean."

"It would have been easier to solve in some ways," Babcock admitted, "but in other ways, I think the scene of the crime will be helpful."

"Wish I could see how."

"Well, for one thing, you know that most of the people who stood near the victim of the attack were guests of this hotel."

"Oh, my land!" groaned Dixon, "then you're going to pull on that string! That's just what Mr. Pelham doesn't want!"

"Sorry," and Babcock almost smiled, "but we can't consider the wishes of a hotel keeper when a murder case is on. Now, Doctor Potter, I suppose you're for getting the body off to the morgue and making arrangements for an autopsy?"

"Yes. It must be done, but it will show no further details that will interest you than you already know. Just go ahead, knowing that the death was caused by a stab wound received while bathing in the ocean and causing instant death by internal hemorrhage. That's all. If anything should appear during the post-mortem to add to that report I'll let you know at once. But I think you want to get busy collecting witnesses and arranging an inquest!—"

"Don't have the inquest here," begged Dixon, knowing how this would distress the manager.

"No," the inspector assured him, "the inquest won't be here, but we may have to call a lot of your guests to testify. There's a long case ahead of us, I'm thinking. That is, unless some stroke of fate or some bit of good luck sends us an unexpected flash of fortune. I mean if somebody confesses, or if somebody else was an eyewitness to the crime."

"There's always a hope of something of that sort," Jepson said. "But it's not very likely. The probabilities are we'll have to dig and scratch for evidence and get very little. And as to clues—well, we can't expect to find those in the Atlantic Ocean!"

"Most unsatisfactory outlook," and Babcock shrugged his big shoulders. "But our duty is plain. Go to it, Jepson. Question every body who knew the dead man, even slightly, and get from them hints of others who knew him and won't tell."

"Yes, sir," Jepson said, obediently, "I'll go to it."

Don't let this Smart Fisherman "Catch" You

HE'S an artful angler, is Mr. "Cheap" Paint. "Low price"—"just as good"—"save you money"—that's the kind of bait he offers you when the question of painting or re-painting your house comes up. But—don't be fooled. Don't bite on that kind of "applesauce."

After all, it's paint you want, not something that looks like paint.

You want coverage and SWP House Paint gives you coverage. A gallon of SWP will put two coats on 425 square feet of good surface. A gallon of the "cheap" paint will put two coats on 300 square feet. SWP costs a bit more by the gallon but it costs a lot less by the job. And it gives you a job to be proud of. For SWP has color beauty. It has durability. It stands the racket of wear and weather as "cheap" paint never can.

SWP House Paint is perfected by the Master Touch — a thing that no cheap paint can ever attempt to give you. This Master Touch is possessed only by the world's great scientists. Burbank had it in the field of horticulture. Edison has it in the electrical world. Marconi, discoverer of wireless, has it. And the scientific men at the head of the Sherwin-Williams laboratories possess it and add it to the tested, proved materials used in the making of SWP.

That's the thing about SWP that can't be duplicated. So when you hear or read that some "low priced" paint is just as good as SWP—don't bite. Put it down as "applesauce" to catch the unwary. Take your paint problem to "Paint Headquarters," the store of your local Sherwin-Williams dealer. He sells SWP and will tell you the quantity you need for the job. He has interesting literature to give you, as well as a free copy of the Sherwin-Williams "Household Guide."

The work of clearing up the debris at the burned house is proceeding; but no definite plans for the future have as yet been decided upon. The fine service rendered by the 'bucket brigade' the night of the fire was particularly appreciated; due to their efforts the barn, which was very close to the house, was saved and this was an important factor in preventing the flames spreading to other buildings and homes in the vicinity. The men also were on the roofs of neighboring houses pouring on pails of water where any danger threatened, and putting out incipient fires from burning pieces carried by the draught.

PAVING PLANT CROSSES RIVER

Excavation and Cement Work Started East of Trent River.

AT CAMPBELLFORD.

CAMPBELLFORD, May 16.—Paving operations on the west side of the river, have for the present, come to a standstill. The excavator and other machinery is being moved to the east side and operations are being commenced at the corner of Booth and Second streets. The work will proceed north along Booth street to the corner of Bridge and thence along Bridge to Front street. Water and sewer connections along these streets are being put in the proper order as required by law, and the main streets on this side of the river look not unlike a battle ground without the usual orderly lay out that was the custom ten years ago. One local wit has advanced the opinion that perhaps a Scotsman has lost some money and is digging for it. The trenches which have been dug to the water connections were filled in yesterday. Water and tampers are being employed in order to take all reasonable precautions against the ground settling under the pavement.

On the west side of the river the concrete base has been laid along Grand Road from the corner of Victoria street to the corner of Tice. Work north of Tice street is being temporarily suspended in order not to tie up traffic.

Personals.

The Girl Guide tea held in the Sunday school rooms of St. John's United Church under the auspices of the first Campbellford company of Guides and Trail Rangers, was singularly successful both socially and financially. After all the guests had been served the cakes which were left were offered for sale and brought high prices. Home made candy was also for sale.

Mr. Ward Baker, Queen's University, is at home after having completed his year as a medical student there.

Mr. Thomas Dunk, Crow Bay, who was rushed to the Nicholls' Hospital, Peterborough on Sunday for an operation, is making good progress towards health. His condition is no longer considered critical by the physicians in attendance.

Miss Thomas of the Helena Costume Company, was at the Shannon Millinery yesterday afternoon and evening.

MILLBROOK CORPS ATTENDS SERVICE

the social and economic world, and anything that tends to disintegrate the home is a far more serious evil than war, or any external thing that can happen, the speaker went on to mention with disapproval the laws being enacted tended to make divorce easier to secure—"the ultimate result may be to encourage the evils both of polygamy and polyandry in our country."

"As civilization continues to climb, the more intricate does the social fabric of life become, and the more easily and subtly do evils creep in and secure a foothold. The end of the road may be that moral standards are overthrown, and evil customs gain the right of way without popular disapproval."

"Jesus brought the love of God to the world in actual expression, and God honored and loved in the family circle will save the nation from the evils that threaten socially, economically and politically."

The choir, under the leadership of Charles Thorndyke, sang "Jesus Like a Shepherd Lead Us." Miss Myrtle Russell presiding at the organ.

The Cadets were under the command of their instructing officer, Captain B. B. Dawson, and the officers of the Corps: Captain Aubrey Todd; Lieutenants Eddie Nattress and Gordon Armstrong, and Sergeants Kenneth Skitch and Nelson Davis.

There was a large congregation, and the service was marked by an impressive spiritual atmosphere throughout.

Woman's Wisdom

Stuart Brown

Kingston, Ont.—"Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is such a great help to nature in motherhood, I marvel that every prospective mother does not take it. I had two children before I knew that there was such a tonic. My former experiences caused me dread. By chance I read that Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription quieted the nerves and strengthened the body of the expectant mother and I proved that statement to be true, also I had comparatively no suffering and did not lose any of my strength or vitality. you can get oil and water as well," stated Ald. Phelan.

An amendment by Ald. Phelan to grant permission to T. H. Ashby and E. Hurtubise to put in double pumps where they now have single ones was defeated, while Ald. Greene's motion for a committee was carried.

The Mayor and Aldermen Hamilton and Lowe will survey the situation and report at the June meeting.

Ald. Lowe introduced the matter of cigarette licenses. There are many people, he said, selling cigarettes without licenses, and he considered that the fee of $20 is too high. He suggested $10 as the fee and the matter was referred to the Finance Committee for discussion.

"Why should we charge a license fee for cigarettes?" asked Ald. Huffman. "It's a regular business, the same as selling silk hosiery for the ladies."

City Engineer Parsons advised that a contract be awarded for the painting necessary in connection with the traffic by-law. He explained that the contractor would charge two cents a dot and the city workmen, not being skilled painters, could not do the work for any less.

Ald. Stocker reported that the committee named had bought a power grader from the Dominion Road Machinery Company and on his motion payment of some $3,300 was authorized.

The Hydro-Electric Power Commission will be asked to remove the street railway poles or give permission to the City to remove them.

LYRICS OF LIFE

SMILE NOT AT CREEDS.

Death is a thing that youth has little met.
A friend or two
Has passed beyond the mystery, and yet
You have the new.
And life is very lovely in the spring.
A bud may fall,
But there are other buds on everything,
Enough for all.

I would not have you sorrow, youth, too soon.
Yes, I am glad
That life is at the morning, at the noon,
The mountain clad
In vernal green. But, youth, I ask you this:
Smile not at years.
And when some comrade of the past we miss,
Respect our tears.

Though death has never touched you with his hand,
Smile not at creeds;
For youth in time the heart will understand,
And know its needs.
Smile not at dreams of heaven when you find
New friends so fond;
For those who leave their heavens all behind
Need heavens beyond.

DIET AND DRAINAGE

The British medical fraternity and, in fact, surgeons all over the world, have been subjected to a series of shocks during the past few years because of the statements given to the press by Sir Arbuthnot Lane, the famous English surgeon. Doctor Lane is known as one of the world's foremost surgeons, having been physician to the King of England and the royal family for many years.

In his work as a surgeon he originated a number of operations for which other surgeons have honored him by naming such surgical procedure after him. For example, the "Lane's Link Operation" is a well known operation for removing a condition known as "Lane's Kink." This is a peculiar kind of kink which Dr. Lane attempted to cure through removing a section of the intestine.

Doctor Lane must be credited also with starting the recommendation of the use of Russian mineral oil to overcome constipation. It is less than twenty years since Doctor Lane suggested the use of mineral oils, and today these oils for lubricating the intestines are refined and sold by the hundreds of millions of gallons yearly.

After nearly a half century of surgical practise, Doctor Lane has summed up his conclusions in an apt phrase when he says that "health is simply a matter of diet and drainage." This is the same viewpoint held by hundreds of health writers throughout the world. Some name autointoxication as the cause of all disease, others use the words "toxicosis," "autotoxemia," "self poisoning," "intestinal poisoning," and similar words and phrases which mean practically the same thing.

The homely truths which I give you daily in this column may practically be all grouped under the titles of "assimilation" and "elimination." If you have been benefited through following my advice, it is because you have learned better rules about the assimilation of foods and the elimination of waste products.

The hundreds of thousands of letters of appreciation which I receive prove to me that practically every disease can be prevented and even cured by the one who learns how to properly balance assimilation and elimination. This is getting back to certain fundamental truths as every physician must realize, even though there seem to be so many practitioners of the healing arts who are looking for obscure causes of disease and missing the common ones.

Readers are always more interested in the cure of disease than they are in preventing it, and seldom become interested in health until they have lost it.

Perhaps my readers would be interested in a series of articles explaining how disease already acquired may be cured through increasing the different eliminative processes which the body must use. The principal channels of elimination are through the lungs, the skin, kidneys and intestines.

Questions and Answers.

Question: O. L. B. writes: "My mother had her gall bladder removed two years ago. Now she has a rash all over her body, and her doctor tells her it is because she has no gall bladder. What can she do? Would an orange juice fast do her any good? I have tried the orange juice fast myself for eight days and feel like a different person."

Answer: There is probably no connection between the removal of your mother's gall bladder and the rash she is now bothered with. The gall bladder, if infected or diseased, may become a regular cesspool of poison. After such a gall bladder is removed, patient should feel better for a year or two, but if the same habits continue which produced the gall bladder trouble in the first place, other symptoms and disorders must inevitably result. The orange juice fast would certainly be a good treatment for her to take to cleanse the liver and remove excess toxins. Tell your mother to be especially careful afterwards to use good food combinations.

Question: Norma F. writes: "I wish you would tell me something about cucumbers. I am very fond of them, but even while eating them I have a secret fear that they are a kind of poison or something."

Answer: Cucumbers are not only harmless, but a really valuable salad vegetable when used in proper combination with other foods. The bad reputation of this vegetable is due to the fact that whenever it is eaten with an improperly balanced meal and there is trouble, the cucumber is immediately blamed, when the vinegar and onions with which it was "prepared" are the offenders. Use cucumbers quartered or sliced, without adding salt or oil, and you will quickly decide there is nothing "poison" about the cucumber.

DRESS
By MARY MARSHALL

Here is the new evening silhouette that fashionable women are producing through the combination of new short evening wraps drawn closely from hips to knees with flaring frocks of lace or chiffon.

In a time of fashion transition like the present it is hard to say just what really is the fashionable silhouette—shadows cast by fashion's followers being so varied and so variable.

One thing, however, can be said about the new contours without, I think, fear of contradiction—and that is that everything must be very tight, very snug from a line just below the normal waistline to a line somewhat above the knees and it is not at all necessary to have this line entirely flat at the back either. Below the knees there is a generally flaring motion, a sort of fluttering flare, if you know what I mean.

If this silhouette really does come and if it is followed not only for evening clothes and light afternoon frocks but for day-time frocks as well, we may expect it to have some definite effect on the mode in walking. Somehow or other the outline between hips and knees must be kept as closely confined as possible. One must walk as best one can under the circumstances. A slithering sort of Egyptian gait, if you can imagine it being attempted on high heels.

The odd thing about high heels at present is that while in some quarters the fashion for them seems to be on the increase, among certain sets of well-dressed women there has come about a decided revival of the dance shoe with a decidedly lower heel. Doubtless only a passing fad, but many a real fashion is bred of nothing more than a fad.

HOROSCOPE

The Stars Incline, But Do Not Compel

For Thursday, May 17, 1928.

Good luck attends this day, according to astrology which finds the dominant planetary aspects distinctly benefic.

The rule is exceedingly promising to business and presages tremendous activity throughout the summer.

The seers point out that there is a great demand for trained workers everywhere, but little chance for those who have not obtained expertness in special vocations.

It is foretold that children will be guided from the cradle to maturity with the main object of fitting them for their own best expression of talent.

The seers declare that in the future mentally deficient persons will be eliminated through marriage safeguards and scientific care of the young. Drastic measures are foreshadowed.

This should be a fortunate day for those who seek employment and the chances should be good for obtaining just the right places.

The stars seem to shine on the successful with unusual brilliance to-day, seeming to aid those who occupy assured positions.

The rule is conducive to too much confidence, however, and is read as presaging disappointment to political aspirants.

Oil again is subject to the most propitious sway that seems to indicate greatly increased demands for it.

This is a lucky day for beginning ocean voyages and it seems that there will be an immense amount of summer travel.

Astrologers see what is called the "yeast of expansion" active in many countries and they prophesy troubled times.

Through a new company that will operate by extending radio connections over the whole world America is to gain great in power.

Persons whose birthdate it is have the augury of a year of great prosperity.

Children born on this day may be expected to rise in any profession or business they follow. Many subjects of this sign gain fame.

Why We Do What We Do.

WHY EATING TOGETHER CREATES GOOD FELLOWSHIP.

Lunches, dinners, banquets are the order of the day. If you want to put over any sort of business, political, religious or community affair the thing to do is to get up a big dinner. Eating together breaks down the barriers of prejudice and unites people for common enterprises. It creates sympathy, mutual understanding and good will.

Statesmen and diplomats make use of the dinner as a means of smoothing out difficult and embarrassing situations. Such organizations as the Rotary and Kiwanis Clubs and Chambers of Commerce and many others never meet except to eat. Al the business is transacted during the meal hour.

There are other reasons besides convenience which make it easier to get people out to a dinner or banquet than to a lecture or meeting. Business meetings of clubs are dull affairs as compared with their banquets.

Friendship is strengthened by eating together. It puts us all on the same level. We eat the same food served in identical manner and experience a sense of unity and fellowship. Unconsciously we lose our sense of personality. For the time being we share the ideals and emotions of the group.

Eating together is the most effective means of making us group minded because we are participating in the most fundamental of all group activities. The appetite of hunger is the most primitive and the strongest. After satisfying any instinct a feeling of contentment ensues.

Eating together makes for common tradition and common understandings and is the most effective means of breaking down prejudices. It we could only arrange a dinner table large enough to accommodate the whole world we would not need peace conferences and armaments. We can't feel anything but friendly toward those who have placed their feet under the same table laden with food.

ENGLAND GOES TO CHURCH.

Church going is being revived in England, and this year has seen larger congregations than for some time. On special days, such as Easter, there have been greater crowds than could get in, and at times the unusual sight of people waiting in line at St. Paul's Cathedral and Westminster Abbey are seen in London. On a recent Sunday these churches were forced to turn away many people, most of whom found the same condition at a number of other churches. In London suburbs and even in the country a revived interest in church attendance is reported. Scotland reports large congregations in the cities.

BEEN IN BUSINESS TWENTY-ONE YEARS

M. Fine Back To Store Where He Led the Way to Other Merchants Years Ago.

For twenty-one years M. Fine has been one of Peterborough's merchants, growing from a modest beginning on Charlotte Street to be one of the substantial business places on George Street. His first store on George Street was at 309, in the block south of Charlotte Street, on the west side of which he was the pioneer as a purveyor of ladies' and men's wearing apparel. For some years Mr. Fine has been located at 427 George Street, where he added beds, springs, and mattresses to his other lines, devoting the second floor of his store to that purpose. Recently he has returned to his old store at 309 George Street, where he is about settled down to take care of his regular trade, having, however, discarded the bedroom furniture for lack of room. Mr. Fine's old friends will find him at the newly renovated store at 309 George Street, where it will be like old times to many to see him.

She sings now in the kitchen

FOR years the Womanhood of Canada struggled along with a "plaguey" Wood Stove, doing their best to feed hungry mouths. Cooking, then, was a task, and a heavy one, too. Other fuels came, but they only served to lighten her drudgery but a little. Those were the days when she was too tired to hum a lullaby.

But one day she heard of the pleasures of electric cooking. What a time, labor and money saving system it had proven itself to be.

Then she, too, demanded a Moffat—and got one. Now the family listens to her singing in the Kitchen.

Do you sing in your Kitchen? Perhaps you haven't a Moffat—Over 90,000 Women the World over are singing the praises of Moffats Electric Ranges.

This is the pattern diagram that comes each week with the Mary Marshall fashion service.

New Step-In to Fit Any Figure

THE step-in for which a diagram is given today is simple to make. On the other hand, it can be made to fit nicely, so that it adds no unnecessary bulk.

Another good thing about it. It is easy to iron, for it has no unnecessary frills and furbellows. Yet it is dainty and pretty.

All this means that it is just about perfect, doesn't it? Easy to make, easy to wear, easy to wash and iron!

To make one of these step-ins you will need a yard and a half of material—more or less, according to your height—at least thirty inches wide. For a medium-sized figure, say thirty-six, these figures will be about right.

The diagram gives a quarter of the step-in. Fold the material lengthwise, and lay on the pattern you have cut in newspaper or stiff wrapping paper. You will see from the diagram how to cut this pattern. It is ten inches wide from D to E. From E to G measures about twenty-seven inches, and is laid on a fold of the material. From D to B measures about ten inches. From B to A measures three or four inches, according to how much fullness you wish. For a woman with large hips, more fullness should be let in, and this A to B measurement should be larger—even as much as six inches.

From A to K measures about nine inches. From K to H draw a curved line, as indicated. The distance from F to G is about eight inches. F to K measures from thirteen to nineteen inches, according to the amount of fullness you need over the hips.

For a larger bust measurement, make the distance from D to E larger.

Now remember that the pattern is for a quarter of the garment. Either double the material crosswise—at H-G—before folding it lengthwise, or else after cutting the pattern on a lengthwise fold, unpin the pattern, pin it on a continuation of the folded material, and cut the other half—the front section first, the back section next, or vice versa.

If you are using thin material, the easiest way is to cut the whole thing at once. Fold the material crosswise, and then carefully fold it lengthwise. Pin it neatly and securely, and then pin on the pattern and cut with sharp scissors.

PLAY FOR $5,000 STAKE

LEEDS, Eng., May 16. Canadian Press. — W. G. Oke, Great Britain, led the qualifying round of the Yorkshire Evening News thousand guineas professional golf tournament with a score of 69. Three other British players, C. A. Whitcombe, F. A. Gaudin and James Gradbeer, were tied for second place with 70.

The American entries were all some distance behind. Bill Mehlhorn and Larry Nubholtz took 75 each and Jose Jurade, the Argentine, 77.

After the second round to-day the low 32 players will participate in match play for the prize.

The weather was ill adapted for golf, bitterly cold and with a half gale blowing. Again the little Buenos Aires pro. triumphed for a time over the weak, for he was out in 46, but had two sixes coming home.

Nabholtz also had a couple of sixes and Mehlhorn had too many fives.

RUTH MAKES TWO HOMERS

Yankees Take Fourth Straight From Tigers by Score 12 to 8.

WHITE SOX WIN

NEW YORK, May 16 (Canadian Press).—With Babe Ruth leading the charge with his tenth and eleventh home runs of the season, the New York Yankees made it four straight from Detroit here yesterday by a score of 12 to 8.

Ruth's tenth homer was made off Whitehill in the fifth inning and the eleventh off Smith in the sixth. No one was on base either time. Babe also hit a triple.

Ruth's eleventh homer last year was made on May 23. The two yesterday put him three ahead of his 1927 record. On May 15 last year he had hit for the circuit eight times.

With the veteran Jack Quinn pitching his second shutout to win his fourth consecutive game, the Athletics yesterday evened the Philadelphia series with Cleveland by taking the fourth game five to nothing. Quinn held the Indians to six hits. Tris Speaker carried off the offensive honors by hitting three two-baggers.

Boston won its fourth consecutive victory at home when Ruffing set back St. Louis 3 to 1. The game was the third and last of the series with St. Louis. Singles by Hofmann in the seventh and eighth inning, together with errors by Kress and Brannon, gave the Red Sox two runs. Ruffing held the visitors to five hits and the Boston batsmen collected 9 off Ogden.

Washington outhit Chicago yesterday but the White Sox made better use of theirs to win the capital series final 3 to 2.

The teams divided the four-game series.

John Cronick, Saskatoon, laboring with a bad attack of skin splints, finished in 11:29:23. His elapsed time 552:18:23, moved him tenth place in the standings, the place formerly held by Ed. Gardner, Seattle negro, who paced the field for the day in 6:09:30.

LEAFS SIGN UP WALT LEVERENZ

Buffalo Veteran Joins Up With Toronto Entry in International.

BEDORE GETS CHANCE

TORONTO, May 16.— It has just been one game after another for the Leafs since they arrived home and yesterday's layoff came as a welcome relief. With the schedule calling for jumps every Sunday the race has developed into a marathon contest and all things considered the Leafs are lucky to be leading the parade. Some of the players are beginning to feel the effects of the strain and Manager O'Hara plans making more use of his substitutes now that Fred Bedore and Erwin Sexton have shown their worth. There is a possibility that the former will relieve Billy Webb at third for a game or so. This hustling veteran would benefit by a rest of two or three days. In any event the experiment is worth trying. The Leafs' captain hasn't had much luck with his batting and he is worrying a little about this fact. A holiday would undoubtedly do him a world of good. How about a little golf, Bill?

It seems that the Toronto club's quest for a lefthander of experience is likely to be crowned with success. It is understood that the release of Walter S. Leverenz, a veteran of some class, has been purchased from Buffalo and that he will join the Leafs within a few days. Leverenz figured in 23 games with the Herd last season winning 9 and losing 7. He pitched in 13 complete games and finished four others and ranked tenth in the list of pitchers from an earned runs basis with .346. He has plenty of stuff and should be useful against clubs like Jersey City and Baltimore.

First baseman Harry Davis, the smart youngster who was a sensation on the training trip, leaves for Syracuse where he will play with the N. P. league club of the Saline City. He should hold his own in that company.

Clarence Fisher was hardly to be blamed for his defeat at Jersey City on Sunday. It develops that the right-hander was going along swimmingly until he was hit on the wrist with a line drive causing him to lose his effectiveness. There were two out at the time and but for the mishap the Leafs would have checked the Cats' rally and probaby won.

Lose To Bears 5-2.

ROCHESTER, N.Y., May 16.—(Canadian Press.)—Rochester lost its second straight to Newark 5 to 2 here yesterday at Baseball Park.

Brennan, with but two days' rest, worked for the Bears and kept the Rochester hits scattered. Howard, who relieved him, forced the first man to face him to hit into a double play, while another in the tenth also sided his cause. To-day will be "Walter Johnson Day" at the park here.

BUFFALO, N.Y., May 16.—(Canadian Press.) — The Buffalo Bisons buried the Jersey City Black Cats under a landslide of hits to win their second straight triumph from the Gilhooley faction here yesterday. The score was 16 to 2

The Bisons slammed Horne and Starn for 19 hits and Lou Malone of the Herd clouted two home runs.

Fisher and Monahan also hit for the circuit, each driving the ball over the right field fence. Maury Archdeacon whacked three singles and a triple before retiring in the sixth inning.

Even Series.

MONTREAL, Que., May 16.—(Canadian Press.)—Baltimore evened the series with the Royals here yesterday afternoon, rallying with three runs in the ninth to triumph 4 to 2. The game was a battle of left handers between Bolen and Falk, the latter faltering in the ninth with the victory apparently stowed away.

Brower, Oriole right fielder, who sent Monday's game to 11 innings, started the rally with a double. Onslow went out at first and with the tying run on third, Falk elected to walk Maisel to stage a double play on Urbauski, the next man up. Urbauski, however, ruined the strategy by smacking a triple to centre field, scoring Brower and Maisel for the winning runs.

The New York Yankees established a record last year which they will attempt to better this season. In 1927 they were the first club in American League history to complete a season with an average of over 700.

Basketball was invented at International Y.M.C.A. College, Springfield, Mass.; Volley ball was first played there, and forward passing in football was developed there. Truly, some record for one small college to claim.

CUBS TIED FOR LEAD

Pound Out 16 Hits to Take Tenth Straight Victory, 10 to 7.

PHILLIES BREAK STREAK

NEW YORK, May 16. — Canadian Press. — The Cubs pounded out 16 hits off Barnes and Clarkson yesterday to sweep the series with the Giants at Chicago and move into a tie for first place in the National League standing. The score was 10 to 7. It was the Cubs' tenth straight victory.

Percy Lee Jones, the Cubs' starting pitcher, held the Giants to four runs in seven innings before he was taken out for a pinch hitter. Guy Bush finished the game, letting in three runs in the ninth.

Hurst, a Philadelphia recruit, who plays the initial bag, wrought a lot of destruction when he poled a homer into the right field bleachers in the Cincinnati park off Red Lucas, with two on base.

He beat the Reds 5 to 3, brought Philadelphia out of a ten game losing streak, and lost Red Lucas his second defeat of the season

Home runs by Hafey and Harper, the latter with one on, gave the Cardinals a 3 to 1 victory over the Boston Braves at St. Louis. The game was called because of rain after two outs in the first half of the seventh inning in which Boston scored its lone run.

The Dodgers easily defeated the Pirates at Pittsburgh by a score of 10 to 3. Three Pittsburgh pitchers failed to stop the attack of the Brooklyn batters.

Doug McWeeny went the route for Brooklyn holding the Pirates to seven hits, one of them a homer over the left field by Barnhart in the ninth inning.

Miljus started in the box for the home team, but was missing before the second inning. Tauscher and Bartholomew, two recruits, followed, but had no more success.

Eddie Barry, who played first base for the Crescents last year, has signed with the Raybestos. The Brakeliners have also secured the services of Frank Scully, probably for the third base, and Masterson is slated to do the hurling for them. Rogers will probably be on the receiving end. There will be plenty of excitement when the Crescents and Raybestos clash on May 19th in the opening game of the league.

Ken. Baker will probably be behind the bat for the Cognawaga's this season. Mackness, who filled a garden position last year, is out of town, but Manager D. Davis has a flock of players trying for the outfield positions.

It is two season ago since the city boys won the cup; last season the Toronto team took the trophy back to the Davenport establishment.

MAKES TWO HOMERS

NEW YORK, May 16 (Associated Press). — Babe Ruth hit his tenth home run of the season in the fifth inning of the Yankees-Detroit game yesterday. The ball found its customary resting place in the right field bleachers. Ruth was the first batter to come to the plate in the inning. Ruth hit his second homer of the game and his eleventh for the season in the sixth inning with Smith in the box for Detroit. No one was on base. It made the score 9 to 5 in favor of the Yankees.

THEATRES

AT THE CAPITOL.

"THE LEGION OF THE CONDEMNED" WHICH OPENS AT THE CAPITOL TO-MORROW, IS ONE OF THE YEAR'S GREATEST PICTURE, A DRAMA OF THE AIR, EVEN SURPASSING 'WINGS' IN MANY RESPECTS.

It was not so long ago that the first real epic of the War in the air swept across the motion picture horizon, establishing itself as the forerunner of its kind and leaving no doubt in the minds of the general public that here, truly, was a screen story that would live.

Paramount, however, took up its own challenge and produced "The Legion of the Condemned", called the companion picture to "Wings", comes to the Capitol to-morrow for a stay of three days. "The Legion of the Condemned" is more than a companion—it is a pal.

It is a good, sound, interesting story showing in full detail the hazardous yet romantic group of branded men at the front—a group of men who owed debts to society and felt that only death could expiate their sins. Nothing was too dangerous, any mission that was brought on was dispatched with reckless abandon, so that soon they became the talk of the front and of the entire world when feats of valor were discussed.

Into this group is projected young Gary Cooper as the newspaperman who wishes to die because of supposed faithlessness on the part of his sweetheart. The high spot in the story comes when Cooper is forced to carry the sweetheart (Fay Wray) across the German lines as a spy.

Entrusted with the direction of "The Legion of the Condemned" was William Wellman, who handled the megaphone on "Wings" and had a script prepared by John Monk Saunders, the author of the great road-show. Wellman, himself a flier in the Lafayette Squadron during the War, has left nothing undone to portray truthfully the exploits of the birdmen.

In many of the flying sequences the spectator is carried along in the cockpit of the "ship", living really the life of the aviator in battle. And, the men who handled the "planes" were those pilots who had made names for themselves as aces during the World War. Captain S. C. Campbell, of the British; Ted Parsons, of the French, and Lieut. Rudolph Schald, of the German Air Corps, take part in the production.

Fay Wray, as the spy-sweetheart, and Gary Cooper, as the young newspaperman, give performances which are excellent. The are supported by Barry Norton, Lane Chandler, Francis McDonald, Voya George, Freeman Wood, E. H. Calvert and Charlot Bird.

AT THE GRAND.

THE DUMBELLS AT THE GRAND FRIDAY AND SATURDAY, MAY 18-19.

"Bubbling Over" derives its attractive title from the opening prologue, wherein Al. Plunkett presides at the stem end of a mammoth bubble pipe and blows bubbles of mirth, melody and gurgling laughter.

Fred Emmey and Charlie Jeeves provide a humorous interlude "Big Game in Africa". "Red" Newman and "Jock" Holland perform the chores down on the farm, and Jack McClellan brightens a few moments with a burlesque on broadcasting.

Al. Plunkett, Ross Hamilton, Cameron Geddes, Harry Binns and the versatile McClellan have the leading roles in a miniature musical comedy called "Anything to Make You Happy."

Glen Allan and Morley Plunkett present an unusual Spanish dance, and "Red" Newman, Pat. Rafferty and Jock Holland follow on with a sketch. Harry Binns sings "My England", and Fred Emmey and Charlie Jeeves while away a few moments demonstrating how to sell "Lingerie."

The first act closes with a laughable comedy sketch of New York's night life.

Captain Plunkett again acts as host and entertainer in a new musical act and the second half of the performance gets away to a splendid start and then proceeds to gather momentum for a whirl-wind finish.

AT THE REGENT.

OFFERS USEFUL HINT TO THE FASHIONABLE MAN ABOUT TOWN

Johnny Hines who became an authority on "What the Well-Dressed Man Should Wear," through his sartorial experiences during the production of his new First National Picture, "White Pants Willie," coming to the Regent Theatre to-morrow, made a discovery during the filming which it is believed should interest all of the fashionably inclined.

"Make your limousine your dressing room," declares the comedian. "Think of the time you can save by this innovation. You come out of your office, jump into your car, pull the shades down, open a snug little cabinet, containing a complete change of clothing, and there you are. If you have a chauffeur who is an acrobat, or a contortionist, it might be arranged so that he can shave you and guide the car at the same time.

"I would like to claim that this idea is original with me, or with my producer, C. C. Burr, but I don't dare," Johnny smiled. "I think everybody ought to know about it so I am making a present of it to humanity. We all ought to have quick change paraphernalia in our limousine. It certainly is handy. If you don't believe it see 'White Pants Willie'—oh, you really mustn't miss it!—and then you'll get what I mean. Then you can go out and get the limousine. Thank you!"

IN PETERBOROUGH CHURCHES

ST. PETER'S CATHEDRAL.

Last night at St. Peter's Cathedral Father Cloran spoke to the married men on the duties of their state in life, while at the Lyceum Father O'Hara spoke to the single men. Father O'Hara in speaking to the latter, spoke of the duties of the Christian young man ,his duty to God, to his superiors and to himself. He outlined the life of the young man as demanded by Almighty God and referred to the many evils and temptations with which he was surrounded from within and from without, and pointed out the remedies and the bulwarks of protection which were afforded them by the sacraments of Holy Mother church, and the grace of God.

Loyalty To Parents.

"Be loyal to your parents and superiors. God in his fourth commandment cries out to us, "Honor thy father and thy mother," and has promised a long and happy life even in this world to loving and dutiful children. Honor your parents, that is speak well of them, don't be ashamed of them. You will never know all they have done for you. You will never understand their devotedness, their self sacrifice, their suffering on your account. While under your parents' roof, feel a financial obligation of supporting the home, not only by paying a small board bill, but by sharing the burden of the upkeep and expenses of the home. Many young men shirk this obligation, not deliberately, but through a thoughtlessness which is very heartless.

"How many children, once they go to work, spend one evening at home with their parents and engaging in conversation with them?

Temperance.

"Be sober. Intemperance is the curse of many a life. I appeal to your own experience. You may have a brother, a friend or a neighbor who is intemperate. If he is single, there is no prospect for him in life until he breaks the accursed habit. He has a broken hearted mother and a family of brothers and sisters who worry continually about him and who very often are ashamed of him. If that man who is a slave to liquor is married, the plight is still worse. He is injuring his health which should be used in his day's work; he is wasting money which is needed by wife and family.

"The young man may say "Oh, I can control myself, there is no danger to me, I know when to stop. But listen, thousands of men who die in drunkards' graves to-day have said the self-same thing. Even a little excess at different times is enough for the devil's purpose. In time the excess becomes greater, the craving grows upon you and you are not able to resist. Human nature is weak and as Christian young men do not play with danger, do not trifle with any occasion of evil which in time can or may wreck your career. God hates drunkenness. The drunkard brings disgrace upon himself in this life and draws down God's curse on himself in the next .

Heaven Only for the Pure.

Father O'Hara quoted passage after passage from Holy Writ to prove that only the pure of heart will see God and also quoted from Scripture that the impure will suffer eternal torments. "Purity is a beautiful and attractive virtue. Jesus Christ made friends with none other than the pure of heart. His mother was spotless and His disciples were lovers of holy purity. Do not respect and love a companion who is pure in mind, pure in heart, and pure inword . Even the most degraded look to purity and revere it. God hates this vice. His holiness cannot bear the sight of it. Impurity of mind or body cries to God for vengeance. It befogs the mind, hardens the heart and leads to infidelity.

"If you wish to be pure in spite of all the dangers with which the world surrounds you, you must avoid anything that will endanger the virtue of purity. Keep clear of companions whose hearts are so filled with corruption and whose minds are so steeped in rottenness that no decent word ever crosses their lips. Do not patronize any show or movie to which you would not invite your own mother or sister. Never look at, pass around, or keep pictures you would be ashamed to be found with at home. Read good books when you read. Don't spend your time on trashy novels, silly love stories, or magazines which are suggestive.

Weekly Communion.

"It is not sufficient, however, to avoid eternal dangers. You should strengthen yourselves from within. Strengthen yourselves by prayer, by calling upon an all-powerful God for assistance. 'With God's grace I will be pure,' should be the resolution of every Christian young man. Go to the holy communion often. How can you expect to overcome temptation if you only receive our Lord in holy communion a couple of times a year. There is no reason wh every one of you here to-night in this Lyceum should not receive communion once a week. To whom was the decree of frequent communion meant, if not for you? There is no sin or bad habit which can remain in our lives if every Sunday morning finds us not only at mass but also at the communion railing there to feed the poor soul upon the body and blood of Jesus Christ, true God and true man.

Company Keeping

"Company keeping should not be indulged in unless you have some view ahead,—the intention of matrimony. The purpose of company keeping is to give a young man sufficient acquaintance with the girl he intends to make his wife some day. With this purpose in view, company keeping is necessary and lawful. You should meet the young lady in her own home and not be afraid of her parents' presence. If your intentions are honorable and lofty you have nothing to be ashamed of. There should be no secret meetings, no staying up till the early hours of the morning, no lonely walks or automobile drives. If you intend to make that girl your wife, be respectful towards her and honor her virture as you should be respective and honor the virtue of every young woman.

"No man has the right to waste the time of any young girl or spoil her future. If you do not intend to marry a young lady after going with her some time, your courtship should be at an end. If a man has no intention of marrying a young woman but keeps company with her for any length of time, he is unfair to that girl; he is hindering her from her opportunities of finding a partner for life elsewhere. Courtship should not go on for year after year —its purpose is simply to give men and women an opportunity of knowing each other sufficiently well enough for each to decide there is good reason to marry each other and settle down for life together.

Uncle Wiggily

To-Day's Bedtime Story

By HOWARD R. GARIS

(Copyright, 1928, McClure Syndicate.)

UNCLE WIGGILY'S GREEN GRASS.

When Uncle Wiggily, the Old Tramp Dog and Baby Bunty hurried back to the lemonade stand, why, the pitcher of sweet lemonade was gone entirely.

"Oh! Oh!" cried Baby Bunty. "Who took it? Who took my nice pitcher of lemonade that I was going to sell to get money to buy a seven-cent doll at the eight and nine cent store? Who took it?"

Uncle Wiggily looked at the Tramp Dog and the Tramp Dog looked at Uncle Wiggily.

"I didn't take the lemonade!" barked the Dog.

"Nor did I," said Mr. Longears.

Then up spoke Tommie Kat, for he it was who had made the noise which caused the others to run to look, thus leaving the lemonade all by itself so any one could take it. Tommie looked in the soft ground around the stand and said—

"I know who took your lemonade."

"Who?" asked Bunty.

"A little pig," answered Tommie. "I can see his feet marks in the soft ground. But I don't know whether Curly, Floppy or Squeakie Squealer took the lemonade."

"We'll soon find out," said Uncle Wiggily. "Come on!" he called to the Tramp Dog and Bunty. They followed the marks of the runaway little pig's feet until they led to some bushes and trees. And there, hiding in front of a little house, was Floppy.

"Oh, Floppy!" exclaimed Bunty sorrowfully, "did you take my lemonade that I was going to sell to get money to buy a doll? Did you?"

"I—I—now—guess I did!" squealed Floppy, coming out from where he was hidden, like a puzzle. "I spilled some lemonade and I drank the rest. But

"Oh, daddicums, come home quick!"

I'll help you make more, Bunty, and sell it to get money."

"Oh, that will be nice," said Bunty.

So she and the little piggie boy set up another lemonade stand, after Uncle Wiggily had given Bunty money to buy more lemons and then the rabbit gentleman was going to hop along and have an adventure with the Tramp Dog when, all of a sudden, Scramble, one of the little rabbit boys came hopping fast up to his dadicums and said:

"Oh, Daddicums, hurry home, quick!"

"Why, what's the matter?" asked Mr. Longears.

"Oh, Jackie and Peetie Bow Wow are playing tag all over your nice, new green grass and they'll dig it all up!" said Scramble.

"Dear me!" exclaimed Mr. Longears to the Tamap Dog. "This is too bad! For a month I've been trying to make my lawn nice and green, but something always happens to it. If it isn't the dogs playing tag it is my own forty 'leven little rabbits digging holes. I guess I'll never raise any nice, green grass on my lawn!"

"Wait a minute!" barked the Tramp Dog as Uncle Wiggily was hopping away. "I'll go with you and put up some signs on your lawn that will keep puppy dogs and pussy cats off for good."

"Please do," begged the rabbit. So the Tramp Dog made four little signs, painting only one letter on each. They did not say "PLEASE KEEP OFF THE GRASS" as do most signs. No, these signs were rather mysterious.

"What do those signs say?" whispered Jackie as he and Peetie stopped playing tag on the new lawn.

"Ah, that is a puzzle for you to guess!" laughed the Tramp Dog. And the puppies were so surprised that they didn't tear up the grass any more. So now see if you can guess what the signs say.

TORONTO WOMAN IS GRATEFUL

To Gin Pills For Relieving Pain and Listlessness

Household duties were burdensome; pain wracked her body; medical skill accomplished nothing; then—and how often this happens!—a friend advised Gin Pills. This former sufferer writes:

"For about one year I had trouble with my back. I got tired so easily, had a terribly listless feeling at all times. I had medical attention all during this period but couldn't obtain relief.

"After using the first box of Gin Pills I got relief and, after taking three boxes, I feel that I am completely relieved. I always keep Gin Pills in the medicine cabinet."

(Name on request)

Don't suffer needless agony! Don't lay yourself wide open to scourges like Rheumatism, Sciatica, Lumbago and acute Bladder ills, by neglecting your kidneys. Severe backache and dizzy spells are warnings. So are headaches, swollen joints, painful, scanty or too frequent urination. Safeguard yourself. Relieve pain quickly. Take Gin Pills. 50c a box at all druggists. National Drug & Chemical Company of Canada, Limited, Toronto, Canada. 166

Two London technical museum workers are reported to have made remarkable progress toward the perfection of a machine that will locate oil and metals under the soil. The mechanical theory of the machine is to make it so sensitive to the pull of gravity that it will be affected by the structure of the earth beneath it.

OLD STUMPS TAKEN AWAY

Confederation Square Being Improved in Preparation For Flower Planting.

TREE TAKEN DOWN.

Several old stumps and one tree have been removed by workmen of the Peterborough Floral Company, which is decorating and re-planting Confederation Square. For several years these stumps have been eyesores and many people have stumbled over them at night. The southern part will be graded and levelled and then several flower beds will be made. Harry Harbinson and a man who has been out from England only a couple of days, are in charge of the work. The newcomer told The Examiner that his first impressions of Canada were fine and he thought he would like the country. He is an old professional football player and is greatly interested in that line of sport.

IN POLICE COURT

Edward Johnston pleaded guilty to riding a bicycle on a sidewalk and was fined $2.00 without costs. His Worship made it quite plain that under ordinary circumstances the fine would be greatly increased.

Two local men pleaded guilty to causing a disturbance in a public place, and were fined $20.00 and costs.

'Under The Weather'

Do you feel indisposed, sick and all in half of the time? If so you want to get well. You know the value of health when you have lost it. But do you know that Chiropractic spinal manipulation offers an effective and logical means of regaining health?

CHIROPRACTIC

is based on the principle that interference with the normal supply of nerve energy is the primary cause of many ailments. This interruption of nerve currents can occur at the spine where nerve fibres emit between the vertebrae. Derangements of vertebrae or undue contraction of spinal muscles can produce constriction of nerves and hinder the normal transmission of mental impulses to the tissues. Chiropractic spinal manipulation and adjustment has proven very efficient in restoring health and comfort to many sufferers, so if you are not feeling "just right" investigate and see what Chiropractic can do for you.

FISHERMEN SAY THEY SAW SHIP SINK SUDDENLY

Large Vessel Reported To Have Gone Down Off New Waterford.

SEAS RUNNING HIGH.

Heavy Waves and High Cliffs Make Rescue Attempts Impossible.

SYDNEY, N.S., May 17 (Canadian Press).—A possible marine tragedy was feared here today when two fishermen reported that as they were walking along the coast this morning they saw a large unknown steamer, which appeared to be low in the water, disappear about two miles off New Waterford. The men had no glasses and could not get a good view of the vessel. Officials are waiting further information to support or confirm the report.

Seas Very High

HALIFAX, May 17 (Canadian Press).—Word reaching Halifax this afternoon over the long distance telephone from New Waterford said that one end of the steamer reported to have foundered of that place had been seen to rise high in the air before the vessel went down and also stated that the scene of the supposed disaster was half a mile off shore, not two miles. One funnel and two spars were said to have been seen on the ship. Heavy seas prevented any boat from venturing out to the scene. Fifty foot cliffs extend along the shore in the vicinity of New Waterford, making rescue efforts precarious in rough seas.

KILLING OF HORSE IS INVESTIGATED

Campbellford Man Said To Have Hit Animal on Head With Axe.

Inspector Alloway, of the Humane Society, Toronto, and Inspector R. C. Smith, of the Peterborough Society, went to Campbellford this week to investigate a case where it was alleged a citizen of that town hit a horse over the head with an axe and supposing that he had killed it, left it lying. A few whours later the Chief of Police in Campbellford found that the horse was still living and suffering a great deal. He immediately had the horse shot. The Provincial authorities intend to take action against the Campbellford man for cruelty to animals.

Taximen And Carters Asked To Return Tags

During the last few days many carters in the city and taxi drivers have gone out of business, but still retained their tags. The Police Department is having new tags made, and would like to have all the old tags turned in so that the numbers might be checked up in order to have no overlapping in the numbers when the new tags are issued. Any member of the police force will take the old tags.

City Clock Getting First Overhauling

The Peterborough City Clock is undergoing repair this week, when new parts are being put in and the works are being given a general overhauling. This is the first time, according to C. S. McClelland, the caretaker, the clock has been overhauled since it was erected over forty years ago. During the last three years the clock has been giving considerable trouble on account of the parts wearing out, both by exposure and operation. It is expected the repairs will be made by the end of the week and the clock will once again be in working order.

CHIEF GIMBLETT HERE SIX YEARS

Many Changes Have Been Made in That Time—All Motor Equipment.

264 FIRES IN THAT TIME.

Six years ago, at midnight of May 15, Fire Chief George Gimblett, coming from Hamilton, assumed leadership of the city's fire-fighting force, Peterborough now boasts one of the best-equipped and most efficient fire departments to be found in the province. He has surrounded himself with a force of fire fighters, veterans and new men, which reflects credit upon himself and the community. The department has become completely motorized with the addition of a new motor pumper, a new truck for general use, a new ladder truck, and a new chief's car; and the "day-a-week-off" plan has been adopted with no increase in the number of men on the force.

The efficiency of the brigade has been proven time and again, for in the period from January 1 to May 15 of this year alone, there have been 174 alarms, with ten real fires materializing. Over fifty thousand of the total fire loss—$55,937.92—of that period was caused by one fire at which the firemen brought to the department much credit for their work.

There is another interesting item to be found in the chief's records. Since his coming here the brigade has received 2,223 alarms, out of which there were 264 fires.

Chief Gimblett this morning expressed himself as being particularly pleased and grateful for the manner in which the citizens of the city have co-operated with his department in inquiring for permission before lighting rubbish fires. When first announced, the plan was not so generally approved, but of late the wisdom of it has been realized and as a result property in the city has been risked less than in former years.

WEATHER CAUSES DELAY.

Not Known When U. S. Fliers Will Leave For Bremen's Resting Place.

ST. GEORGES, Nfld., May 17. — (Canadian Press.)— With unpleasant weather prevailing here this morning, it was not known when the two United States' army planes would hop off for Long Point, the last leg of the northward flight from Washington to bring to the United States the stranded moonplane Bremen. It is a 225 mile trip.

THE WEATHER

With warmer nights, a little rain, and more promised, vegetation is making more growth. Those of an observant nature will do we to notice the change that takes place from day to day. The s[illegible] is nature's resurrection season, and though it is an annual event it is not the less marvellous to those having eyes [illegible]d use them. Showers are likely, and will do good, for it has been remarked that the grass generally is not up to its usual spring time greenness and luxuriance.—W. P.

HAD NO KNOWLEDGE McMURRAY TRAFFICKED IN SPECIAL PERMITS

Hon. Robert Forke Tells at Parliamentary Immigration Inquiry.

DENIES STATEMENT

Has Had No Dealings With McMurray Directly or Indirectly.

OTTAWA, May 17. — (Canadian Press.) — Emphatic denial of any knowledge that Hon. E. J. McMurray, former Solicitor General, had trafficked in special immigration permits was made at the Parliamentary Immigration inquiry yesterday afternoon by Hon. Robert Forke, Minister of Immigration.

"I can state emphatically that I did not make any of the statements which Mr. Coldwell says I made about Mr. McMurray," Mr. Forke declared, in referring to Tuesday's statement by Ald. M. J. Coldwell, Regina, that Mr. Forke had named Mr. McMurray in this connection. "Mr. McMurray's election was in 1925, two years before I came into the Department," Mr. Forke continued, "and I knew nothing about Mr. McMurray's transactions with the Department if any took place, and since I came into the Department I have had no dealings with Mr. McMurray, directly or indirectly."

Regarding Mr. Coldwell's statement about my telling him I had checked up the records of the department regarding t[illegible] number of permits issued my predecessors, and that I said I wrote my predecessor and that he wrote his predecessor, I want to say very positively that if Mr. Coldwell got this informtoin at all he did not get it from me, Mr Forke continued. At no time did I ever examine or check up the previous records of the department in regard to the number of permits issued by my predecessors. I have no knowledge of the number of permits issued by them, and I did not write to any predecessor in connection with the number of permits which had been issued."

Issued No Permits.

NIAGARA FALLS BRIDGE KILLED

Senate Committee Gives Final Blow To Bill For Memorial Bridge.

OPPOSITION STRONG.

OTTAWA, Ont., May 17 (Canadian Press).—The killing of the Niagara Falls Memorial Bridge Bill by the Senate committee yesterday terminated the stormy career of one of the several international bridge bills before Parliament this session. After many hours of debate in the Commons committee and in the house itself, the bill finally reached the Senate, where counsel in support and in opposition struggled for most of the day, and in the evening the bill was lost by eight votes to seven.

The major opposition came from the government of Ontario and the Niagara Falls Park Commission. Hon. Walter Nesbitt, K.C., representing the province, said Ontario was unalterably opposed to the bill as traffic did not justify it and it would ruin the scenic beauty of the Falls. Andrew Thompson, K.C., representing the Park Commission, drew attention to the fact that both Canadian and United States Park Commissions were opposed to it and that Governor Smith had announced that he would veto all such bridge bills when undertaken by private corporations.

The work of levelling, grading, and removing the roots of trees in Confederation Square is being done by D. Hayward, the caretaker of the city parks this season. Japan Has No Knowledge of Rumor Sawada Appointed Minister to Canada

WASHINGTON, D.C., May 17 (Canadian Press). — The Japanese Embassy has no knowledge of the rumor that Setsuzo Sawada, counsellor to the Embassy, will be appointed minister to Canada. The rumor reached here in a Tokio newspaper.

M. Sawada yesterday informed the Canadian Press that he had no information from his government. The rumor may have been given rise by reason of the fact that Sawada is one of the senior counsellors in the Japanese diplomatic service, and was for seven years in the Embassy in London. He also accompanied the present Emperor, then Crown Prince, on a European tour some years ago.

Sawada has been here four years, which is longer than Japanese diplomats below ministerial rank usually remain in one post. He has been appointed charge d'affaires here during the absence of Ambassador Matsudaira, who goes to Tokio for the wedding of his daughter to the heir-apparent in the autumn, and will remain for the coronation of the new emperor, being absent at least six months. M. Sawada understands that he will remain here for that period in charge of the Embassy.

Ambassador Matsudaira's term of office here has expired, but it is known that he would like to return to Washington, and his successor has not been named.

DISCUSS MEANS TO PREVENT LOSSES IN LIVESTOCK IN TRANSIT

Practice of Overcrowding Animals in Railway Cars is Heaviest.

WOULD LESSEN CASUALTIES

Conference Held Between Brokers, Railways and Departments of Agriculture.

OTTAWA, Ont., May 17 (Canadian Press).—An Eastern conference of live stock interests, railways, federal and provincial departments of agriculture, called by Hon. W. R. Motherwell, Minister of Agriculture, was held in the Capital yesterday to consider the prevention of losses in live stock in transit for consumptive purposes. The conference was under the chairmanship of Dr. J. H. Grisdale, Deputy Minister of Agriculture.

Addressing the conference, Dr. Motherwell stated that from time to time reports of the rough usage of live stock in transit were made, but that such condition was to some extent common to any country. The aim of the department was to do everything possible to reduce casualties among live stock to a minimum at all stages.

The minister pointed out that complacency might lead to carelessness and that in the shipping of cheap grades there might be a tendency to put as many in a car as possible in order to meet weight conditions and save perhaps on freight. He asked the conference to view the situation thoroughly from both practical and humanitarian standpoints and to make such recommendations that would have as their main objective the reducing of abuses to a minimum consistent with good business.

A discussion of the practices of overcrowding animals in live stock cars in transit to market, which resulted in trampling, bruising, overheating and excessive shrinkage followed.

On the motion of R. W. Wade, director of the Ontario provincial live stock branch, the conference asked the chairman to name a committee whose duty it would be to prepare a schedule for the safe loading of live stock. The committee members will submit their findings to the federal department of agriculture and the departments of agriculture for Ontario, Quebec, New Brunswick, Nova Socita and Prince Edward Island.

The Dominion Live Stock Commissioner, H. S. Arkell intimated that the findings of this committee would be placed before a similar conference of live stock interests in Western Canada in the near future.

The conference also discussed the separations of classes of live stock in mixed shipments, the separation of horned from dehorned cattle in shipping, the protection of stock in open cars during Winter months and the advisability of making recommendations and instituting educational campaigns towards the general improvement of marketing in connection with the live stock industry.

PAVING STARTS EARLY IN JUNE

F. R. Wilford, Contractor For Chemong Road, Buys Gravel Pit in City.

WILL USE BIG TRUCKS.

The contract for the paving of the Chemong road from the city to the Fourth Line of Smith has been let to the F. R. Wilford Company of Lindsay. Work in earnest is expected to commence about June 1st, although several culverts are to be built before the road can be paved. All the gravel that goes into the making of the concrete base has to be washed and for this purpose Mr. Wilford has arranged for water from the Peterboro Utilities Commission. He has bought a gravel pit near the Auburn, which is expected will supply enough gravel to pave the road. Several seven-ton trucks will be used in hauling the gravel to the point of construction.

The road will probably be closed for a period of three months during the summer.

A very hearty vote of thanks was extended to Mr. Holland for his work during the past yar, by W. L. Ferguson and Mr. Breyfogle.

PEKING POLICE PATROL STREETS FEAR DISORDERS

Hold Strict Enforcement of Curfew Laws in Both Concessions.

CITY IS QUIET

British Warned to be Prepared to Move Legation at Short Notice.

PEKING, May 17.—(A.P.)—Peking, with capture by Nationalist soldiers thought comparatively near, was entirely quiet last night. Larger patrols in the streets, both in the native city and foreign concessions, and strict enforcement of the curfew laws (ten o'clock) however, revealed the real feeling here.

Throughout the day, Japanese soldiers might be seen working actively providing quarters for several hundreds of their troops in the vicinity of the former Austrian legation and strengthening their defenses. Their leaders said only one additional Japanese company was to be sent here.

The British legation has warned British Nationals to be prepared to move to the legation quarters upon short notice, and both Chinese and foreigners were sending valuables to the various legations for safekeeping late yesterday.

Face New Danger.

TOKYO, May 17. — (A.P.)—New danger to retreating Northern forces was seen yesterday in reports from Peking that General Feng Yu-Hsiang had intercepted their withdrawal toward Tientsin at Machang. Heavy fighting occurred this city, which is forty miles south of Tientsin, it was said.

The march of Feng across to Machang was seen here as a possible quickening factor in the believed imminent fall of Tientsin and Peking to the Southern forces. Feng is fresh from his victory at Techow May 11, and is known to have a strong force at his command.

HEENAN TRIES TO END STRIKE

Has Conferences With Men and Officials Before Sailing For Europe.

NEGOTIATIONS CONTINUE.

MONTREAL, May 17 (Canadian Press).—Amicable settlement of the strike of the organized structural steel workers here and in Toronto may be effected as a result of the pour-pariers this morning, held between the Hon. Peter Heenan, Minister of Labor, and officials of the Dominion Bridge Company, and between the minister and a delegation representing the workmen.

"Early settlement of the dispute looks promising," Mr. Heenan declared, as he hurriedly embarked on the Minnedosa, on which he sailed for England.

In conference with Mr. Heenan, Dominion Bridge Company officials asked that the men first return to work and added the proposal that they would agree to the establishment of a maximum wage rate of 90 cents an hour. The workmen's representatives held out for at least a minimum of 90 cents an hour. Consequently Labor Department officials now will attempt to bring the parties together on this basis.

CAT CLUB WILL HOLD SHOW AGAIN

This show is conducted under the rules and regulations of the Cat Club, and will have the support of its large number of members, particularly those in Toronto, Hamilton, and Buffalo. Since the show of last year, a lively interest in pure-bred cats has been awakened in Peterborough and those who now own choice felines, of whatever sort, will be able to give a good account of themselves in the best of company, keeping up Peterborough's end of the exhibition. A meeting of all cat fanciers is called for next Monday evening at eight o'clock in the Chamber of Commerce.

SIX SECTIONS TO ONE SCHOOL

Tweed is Centre of Large Consolidated School District.

TWO FINE SCHOOLS

TWEED, May 17.—This village is the centre of one of the few consolidated schools in this part of Ontario. In 1890 the old Victoria public school was built for the Village of Tweed and for many years it served its purpose. Then came the time when high school education was required, and for a period the high school training was given in several rooms of the public school.

Just at this time the consolidated school idea was gaining strength in the province of Ontario and the school sections surrounding this village had few children in them to attend the little red school house. These sections united with the school board in Tweed to form a consolidated school area, and the Victoria school was made the centre of training. A high school was immediately built to the north of the public school, at a cost of $75,000. It is one of the best equipped small high schools in the country and has a staff of four teachers. In the public school there is six teachers. Every morning five buses collect all the children of public and high school age from the six school sections surrounding the village and they are brought into the consolidated and high schools. In the evening the buses return the children to their homes. During the winter large covered vans are used and seldom is the day too stormy that the van cannot make its trip. Children are brought to the schools from within a radius of seven miles.

This village is also equipped with two other schools — the separate school with two rooms and the convent with one room where the little tots are started.

Demonstrates Spring Wear At Madoc Store

MADOC, May 17.—Miss Thomas, representing the Helena Costume Co. Ltd., of London, Ontario, was at D. J. Barry's Ladies' Wear Store, all day and evening May 15, demonstrating spring and summer dresses and gowns. She showed a very pretty range of printed silks, georgettes, wool crepes, and flowered voiles, and up-to-date styles, for the ladies, both old and young.

A constant stream of interested customers, through the day, amply testified to the popularity of this demonstration, and the proprietor, D. J. Barry, in his courteous desire to please his many customers, will doubtless be well satisfied with the excellent orders placed through the efforts of Miss Thomas.

OPEN HOSPITAL AT COE HILL

Management Planning Monster Celebration on June 4.

NEED ASSISTANCE

MADOC, May 17.—The Red Cross Hospital at Coe Hill is to be formally opened on June 4, when the management is planning a monster celebration for the day. They are appealing for a resident doctor in the hope that some young doctor will undertake that most necessary work, in a needy community.

Coe Hill and the surrounding districts have for many years felt very keenly the lack of medical assistance, and a little over a year ago it was decided to open an outpost Red Cross Hospital.

Already many cases have been attended, and many people helped, with Miss Clara B. Smith, of Dryden, in charge. In this district there are several camps, eight school sections, and a large community.

Many of the local branches of the Madoc Women's Institutes are planning to assist this new Red Cross Hospital, and many other people are assisting in every way possible.

Mother's Day.

Many mothers attended the Mother's Day service in St. Peter's Presbyterian Sunday School. The Mother's Day programs were used during the service, and as well as being helpful in the service, were a suitable souvenir of the special day.

The primary class and a junior class gave scriptural recitations. The address on mother was given by George West, and was listened to with rapt attention, by the crowded Sunday School.

A sight to cause thankfulness was the display of colored flowers worn by the scholars showing that "Mother" was alive to love and bless the wearer.

The altar which was decked with flowers was a reality at the morning worship, for the numerous beautiful flowers caught the eye of the worshippers immediately on entering the church.

The congregation was large and worshipful. At the morning worship, the Rev. Mr. Marshall spoke upon the subject "Mother" and at the evening service, the subject was, "Mary, the Mother of Mark."

At the afternoon worship at St. Andrew's, Tweed, the beauty of the service was added to by the presentation of two infant children for Holy Baptism. A beautiful solo, "Mother, when I think of Thee", was sung by Mrs. Yule.

TEST PUMPER AT LAKEFIELD

Practical Demonstration Held of Motorized Fire Apparatus.

PLAY PRESENTED

LAKEFIELD, May 17.—The siren called out not only the fire brigade but practically the whole village when it sounded the alarm about 7 o'clock on Tuesday evening. The alarm, however, was not for a fire but merely to test the apparatus and the motorized pumper at the recently completed tanks on Ermitinger street. The representative gathering of citizens present received a splendid demonstration of what can be done and will be done in case of need. The brigade responded promptly as usual and had a stream of water going in record time.

"Turning the Trick" Given.

"Turning the Trick" was the title of a splendid three act comedy put on by the Dramatic Club of St. Joseph's Church, Douro, on Thursday evening, May 10, in the Memorial Hall, under the auspices of the Catholic Women's League of St. Paul's Church.

Eagle Brand Babies Are . . . Healthy, Strong and Happy!

Baby Was Under-nourished

"I think it only due to you to tell you what Eagle Brand has done for my nine months old baby who now weighs 23 lbs. Previous to his taking Eagle Brand he was thin and under-nourished, gaining barely an ounce a week. The first week after taking Eagle Brand he gained 17 ounces. Every week after he gained consistently and is a happy, contented baby."

(Original letter on file)

THESE two letters show how quickly the average infant responds to Eagle Brand. If YOUR baby is not gaining, and the trouble is with the food, try Eagle Brand. Nearly always the child shows noticeable improvement at once and begins a sturdy, healthy growth that makes him a strong and happy baby.

Baby Won Silver Cup

"My baby Violet won a silver cup in the recent baby show. She was brought up on Eagle Brand since 6 weeks old and has made such good progress as far as health is concerned that I feel I must write you. She is now 11½ months old, weighs 23½ lbs., walks quite freely, and is entirely an Eagle Brand Baby."

PAGEANT ENACTED FOR MOTHER'S DAY

Day Fittingly Celebrated at Warsaw United Church.

WARSAW, May 17.—"A gift for Mother" as a pageant was effectively given in the United Church Sunday School on Sunday. Lucile Herrington brought beautiful cut flowers, and Ivan Clements brought a box of candy. Miss Young, as the Spirit of Remembrance showed a picture of a young man away in Japan, thinking of his mother, and wondering what he would send her, and wrote the verse, "I would be true"—Fred Crowe representing the young man. Then the Spirit showed another picture of a mother receiving a caller, when a letter was brought in the mother read the verse "I would be true." Mrs. Robert Matthews, as the mother, Mrs. John Sargent, the guest, and John Dewart delivered the letter.

At the end the Spirit repeated as a benediction, "Whatsoever things are pure—"

The story "About Angels" was read by Florence Tedford, and Cora Drain recited "As They, So I."

At the evening service, Mr. Herrington preached from the thirty-first chapter of Proverbs. The sermon being more on woman than mother, dividing the sermon into three parts, woman as housekeeper, wife, and as mother. The choir was made up of mothers, girls and boys, the selections being "I Would be True" and "My Mother's Prayer."

Baptist Church.

Pastor Elkenaar preached a splendid Mother's Day sermon in the Baptist church on Sunday morning, and all who were present felt the appeal. Percy Kidd sang "My Mother's Bible" and after the sermon, Mr. Kidd and his daughter, Olive, sang, "My Mother's Prayer."

Presbyterian Church

In the Presbyterian Church on Sunday evening, the Rev. Mr. Rosborough preached from the Crucifixion scene, "Woman behold thy son" and "Behold thy mother."

PRETTY SCENES CLOSE TO HOME

Peterborough County Attracts Tourists From Faraway Places.

LAKES AND FORESTS.

How many people in the City of Peterborough spend many dollars visiting distant parts in order to see beautiful scenery? It seems that the old maximum is still true, 'Hills are green far away.' Every year when planning pleasure trips with our motor-cars as the conveyance, the first spot thought of is some renowned place far away such as Niagara Falls, or the fruit belt of the Niagara Peninsula. Those with more abundant means plan trips to California and Florida.

These places are beautiful, and abound in wonders of nature, but how many have ever considered that there are many wonderfully beautiful spots much nearer home, in the County of Peterborough?

Suggestions might be in order for those who may be thinking of making short trips in the near future, and suggestions may be made at the present moment for the roads are in much better condition now than they will be a month hence.

The beauty of the country surrounding the Kawartha Lakes should be a matter of real knowledge to all in the county, but is it recognized?

One trip might be suggested from Peterborough to Mount Julian. One need not mention the beauty spots to be seen on the road between Peterborough and Young's Point, that road surely is well-known. But what about the road wending its way north through the more sparsely settled districts? After leaving Young's Point, going north on the Burleigh road, it is only a short distance before there is seen on the right a small yet picturesque body of water, Clear Lake. One may keep to the main road, or turn off to Kawartha Park or Sandy Point, either of which will provide rest and comfort on a warm day to the weary traveller. On either side of the road good fertile land stretches as far as the eye can reach, with an occasional wood here and there.

Soon the road leads to Burleigh Falls. At that point a halt may be made to gaze on the rapids below the dam which emphasize the glory of nature, and are suggestive of the great Niagara rapids. At Burleigh Falls there is a double lock with a twenty-five foot drop. When one pauses to reflect on the matter, besides the idea of the greatness of nature, there is presented the idea of the greatness of man, that he was able to hold back such a body of water so that locks could be made, and a navigable connecting link formed between Lovesick and Stoney Lakes.

The journey is resumed, and a district is invaded which is more barren, and in its natural state. Great gaunt trees, large boulders of granite confront the traveller on every hand. At the summit of the "Twin Hills", another halt may be made, and as one looks back a panoramic view of the whole country for miles around presents itself.

A little further on the voyager suddenly comes upon a little frame church almost hidden by the woods. It is the Anglican Church of Haultain. At this point the road turns to Mount Julian. The end of the journey is come, and surely here the view which is to be seen is worth the whole trip. At a glance, Stoney Lake with its countless islands spreads out before one's eye. What noble beauty! How truly wonderful is nature! What peace and quiet is here!

There are tens of thousands of men, women and children who make long trips every year from many distant points in the United States of America to this part of the province. If they can obtain real enjoyment from it, surely those of us in the County of Peterborough who do not visit such districts, but seem to prefer the points at a distance, should bear in mind that there is no need for the large expense of making long trips, but that if we wish all the beauty and enjoyment necessary may be found right at home.

SAFE PLAYGROUNDS.

Blessed these days is the municipality that has plenty of safe playgrounds for its children.

The street and the corner lot served the youngsters of yesteryear, passing well in this respect, but in this age of motor transport the automobile eliminates the street as a playground, while the gas station threatens to knock the corner lot out of the picture.

Municipal bodies everywhere would do well to realize the new conditions, and take a survey of the centres under their jurisdiction with a view to satisfying themselves that ample recreation grounds are available.

Those municipalities that are tardy in this regard may be startled some day to discover that the needs of its children have been neglected, and that it is too late to remedy the conditions.

The street as a playground is impossible from a safety viewpoint, and the well-governed city will see to it that safe areas are provided before the expense of so doing becomes too great.

THE WAR MEMORIAL.

The unanimity with which the City Council decided to set aside a site in Confederation Square for Peterborough's war memorial, and the meeting authorized a grant of $5,000 towards the cost of the memorial, reflects the general opinion.

Confederation Square is the logical site for such a memorial, ensuring that Peterborough's tribute to its war dead will be seen by practically all visitors to the city, and the location will meet with universal approval.

The grant that has been made was authorized by motion of the Council some years ago, and the present action merely provides for the payment of the money then promised.

The announcement that the memorial will be ready for unveiling this summer is gratifying to the citizens generally, who have seen smaller municipalities all around us erect tributes to the memory of their soldiers who had made the supreme sacrifice, and who have experienced a feeling almost akin to guilt that this very important duty was not completed in Peterborough.

Unforeseen delays, however, entered into the program here, but it can be prophesied that the impressive nature of Peterborough's memorial when it is completed this summer will atone for the waiting.

THE SALARY GRAB.

The Federal Cabinet may even yet be able to save the treasury from the well-organized raid that has been preparing for some time, aimed at increasing the sessional indemnities of members of Parliament from $4,000 to $6,000 a year.

At least there is some comfort in the fact that Ottawa advices declare that up to the present the Cabinet has given no sign of yielding to the demand.

The situation seems to be that the majority of the rank and file of all parties have signed a petition urging the increase to be made, but that the Premier and his Cabinet and the front-benchers on the Conservative side have not put their names on the round-robin.

Those requesting the salary grab to be put into effect, we are told—and it is easy to believe it—are anxious to have the raise go through at this session, inasmuch as the next session will be just prior to an election, and they are not anxious to face the electors too quickly after voting themselves a substantial increase.

If The Examiner reads public opinion correctly, the people will heartily support the Government in refusing to yield to this salary-grab campaign.

The general belief seems to be that there is no justification for such an increase.

THREE BY-ELECTIONS.

The prediction that Ontario is to have a provincial general election next year is somewhat belied by the announcement of the issuing of writs for three by-elections to be held on June 27th.

The ridings in which representatives are to be elected are South Bruce, North Renfrew and East Hamilton, the latter two having been won by Conservatives at the last election, while in the Bruce constituency M. A. McCallum, Progressive, was the successful candidate in 1926, but was unseated as the result of a protest.

The contest in South Bruce at the 1926 election was very close, McCallum having 4,923 votes as against his Conservative opponent's 4,794.

Under the circumstances it can be expected that the Government will concentrate most of its efforts on the capture of this constituency, inasmuch as the other two constituencies are considered as "safe."

These by-elections are the first since the Liquor Control Act was introduced, and the success or otherwise of that measure will likely loom large as an election issue in next month's contests.

Because of that fact the three elections will arouse more interest than is usually stirred up over by-elections when the Government has a large majority in the House.

THE ANNUAL TIME CONFUSION.

"Confusion worse confounded" is what the Pembroke Observer-Standard characterizes the situation which has again arisen this year in respect of daylight saving. As has been the case in other years, the adoption of this measure has been anything but universal. The larger centres of population continue to adhere to summer time, but the smaller places, especially railway centres, have failed to follow suit. Moreover, the railway companies, serving as they do communities which are upon both the summer and standard times, have no alternative other than to retain their ordinary running times, and the whole situation is so perplexing and confusing that the Pembroke newspaper is perfectly justified in declaring it to be not only an "almost intolerable nuisance," but a very absurdity.

There will be no relief for this seasonal annoyance until such time as the Government of the land agrees either to one or the other form of time. There are many admirable things about "daylight saving." It gives greater time and opportunity for recreation through the longer evenings that prevail, and thus contributes materially to the well-being of those who practise it. But many of the advantages of its adoption are lost because of the unwillingness of all of the municipalities to bring it into effect. Let us have either "daylight saving" or standard time; to have both, as is now the case, is a downright nuisance and the source of untold annoyance.—Brockville Recorder and Times.

RURAL MEDICAL SERVICE.

Doctors are becoming increasingly scarce in rural communities all over Canada; villages that have had a doctor for generations are now without one. In fact, this seems to be more or less true of Canada as a whole. In 1924 they numbered 1,100 less doctors than they did three years earlier, no statistics being available since the 1924 report. Many a patient in the more sparsely settled communities does not receive adequate medical attention, various specific cases having been brought to the attention of the Women's Institutes of Ontario. Many of the communities are now raising money to subsidize doctors who locate in such rural districts as are in the greatest need of physicians.

Saskatchewan has solved this problem in a way that has been satisfactory to doctor and patient alike. Communities are allowed by law to make suitable arrangements with a doctor to attend all cases, irrespective of distance or the financial resources of the patient. The expense involved is collected in the taxes, so that everybody contributes, just the same as they do for the upkeep of a school. Some townships unite and pay the doctor a salary of $5,000; others fix a lesser amount, but allow the doctor to charge a nominal fee for each visit.

Saskatchewan has the lowest death rate of any Province in the Dominion of Canada. It has municipal hospitals—small six, eight or ten-bed hospitals scattered throughout the country, and provides a bonus to the expectant mother. In Regina, the school children are rendered immune to diphtheria. Two years ago 4,000 children were given toxoid and not one of these children has had diphtheria. All new pupils must now be made immune by toxoid before they are accepted in the schools. Diphtheria will soon be an unknown disease in that progressive city.

Alberta has started an experiment in state medicine this year. "Itinerant clinics," under the auspices of the Provincial Board of Health, will visit the rural districts during the coming summer. Dr. R. T. Washburn, of Edmonton, a graduate of the Western Medical College in London, will have charge of the clinics. He will have associated with him the following personnel: Dr. Heber Jamieson, as examining physician; Dr. A. E. Haycock, dentist, and three nurses. Minor operations and dental work will be performed on children, the schools being utilized as hospital bases; cases of more serious trouble will be reported to local doctors for medical or surgical attention.

The clinic will be able to advise many of the so-called, unattended sick. These people are neither sick enough to go to bed nor well enough to do a day's work. They readily fall a victim to the lure of the patent medicine advertisement or to some old woman's cure.

Twenty women with remedies new,
Bother my wife the whole day through,
Sweet as honey, bitter as gall—
Poor old woman, she takes 'em all.
Sour or sweet, whatever they choose;
Poor old woman, she daren't refuse.
—Will Carleton.

The doctor often only sees these patients for the first time when the disease is too advanced to be readily cured. The travelling clinic should reach many of these unfortunate people and give them valuable advice and help. The result of this Alberta attempt to render medical services to rural communities will be watched by the profession with much interest.—St. Thomas Times-Journal.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE.

MONTREAL, Que., May 17 (Canadian Press).—The export trade in wheat here yesterday was somewhat disappointing owing to the fact that foreign buyers in many cases were not disposed to respond to local bids. The domestic market for Canadian Western oats was weaker and prices were reduced one cent per bushel.

Prices for all grades of Spring and wanter wheat flour were well maintained under a quiet demand.

A fair amount of business was done in all lines of millfeed and the undertone to the market was steady. The market for standard grades of rolled oats was quiet but prices were unchanged.

The trade in eggs in a wholesale was was rather quiet owing to the fact buyers were not disposed to operate freely at the prices asked. Fresh extras for June shipment from Vancouver were offered at 31c per dozen, f.o.b., and Saskatoon shippers quoted extras at 32c, firsts at 30c, and seconds at 26c per dozen, f.o.b., while Manitoba sellers wanted 32¾c, 30¾c, and 26¾c per dozen, f.o.b., with Ontario extras in export cases offered at 35c, and firsts at 32½c per dozen, f.o.b. shipping points. In a jobbing way a fair trade was done, there being a steady demand for small lots to meet immediate wants and prices ruled firm. The receipts were 1,803 cases.

Owing to the warmer weather prevailing, the liberal supply of potatoes available on spot for the season of the year and the continued limited demand from all sources a weaker feeling developed in the market and prices scored another decline of 10c to 15c per bag. The trade was slow with sales of odd cars of Quebec varieties at 80c to 85c per bag of 90 lbs. in bulk; New Brunswick North Shore Green Mountains at 85c to 90c per bag of 90 lbs in bulk, ex-track. On account of the limited offerings of Prince Edward Island white potoes prices were about steady at $1.05 to $1.10 per bag of 90 lbs. bagged, ex-track.

There was no change in the condition of the market for imported beans, prices being maintained with a moderate trade passing in small lots of choice white hand-picked stock at $4.40 per bushel, ex-store, with car lots to arrive quoted at $4.20 per bushel, ex-track.

Owing to the continued small receipts of fresh made butter and the somewhat limited supplies available on spot, a stronger feeling developed and prices advanced ¾c per lb. There was some demand from local buyers. The receipts were 264 packages.

A feature of the cheese trade continues to be the steady demand from foreign buyers for fodder made goods at the present level of values.

A Thought

"THE FIGHT OF FAITH"

Velma Runnels, Campbellford, Ont.

If all the terrible pains and sorrows of one' life could be brought before the eyes of each one of us, one would be seized with horror. Future life is a great curiosity to everyone. We hope for great things, then the thing hoped for disappoints us.

The hand of God guides the threads of our lives. It is the secret world-ruling will of God. Sometimes, our hopes become disappointments and the charm of our future life often shows us a paradise which vanishes as we approach it. But we must have faith and never doubt his hand which never fails.

We must have faith in prayer. We must not doubt when prayers return unanswered. The lack of faith turns the face away from the greater gain called 'the allwise love.'

Some thirst for glory, yet they fear to fight. That is a coward's trick. We must fight for that radiant faith that glows like a pirate's treasure. The man behind us might grin and twiddle his thumbs, but to cower under his wasted strength is only to covet the prize and shrink from the winning. We have watched the eye of the critic and have pushed back the hand of God.

Christianity's mightiest triumph is its conquest of hearts. Salvation is like a mighty river rushing on toward the heart of man. Down from those everlasting heights it comes until it finds a resting place in the solitary chambers of the soul.

Faith finds salvation and stirs the soul from its troubled sleep. It speeds man onward to his grand, eternal quest. Be patient when the loss is yours for God has a purpose for every sorrow. All things work together for the good of man.

When your breast is heaving with sorrows and disappointments, just turn your eyes to God, who is the beginning and end, and say: "Whatever is—is best." Now, you have won the battle of faith. His word shall be your trusty lamp. He loveth and will not forsake. Oh, who with out God can compare?

GOD'S MINUTE

Your sins are forgiven you for His Name's sake.—1 John 2: 12.

Almighty God, our Heavenly Father, as we begin the life of another day we would humbly and sincerely seek Thee as our guide, our protector, and merciful Saviour. All our strength comes from Thee; in Thy wisdom we find light and truth; in Thy presence, joy and comfort. We know not what snares may be laid for our feet, what sudden trials we may have to meet, or what burdens we may have to bear during the coming day. Make us wise to see where temptation lies; make us strong to resist. May we be brave and patient under trial; unselfish and cheerful in burden bearing. Give us consciences tender and quick to recognize sin; breathe into our hearts the spirit of fervent prayer and perfect trust. Enable us to consider the needs of each other. By helpful word and deed may we make it easier for some one to be strong and faithful. May this day not pass until we have done some good in the Master's Name to such as have need. Grant, our Father, the forgiveness of all our sins, and enable us to forgive one another as Christ commanded us. We pray for a holier life through Jesus Christ, Who gave Himself that we, through Him, might become children of God. Grant these and all other blessings that Thou seest we need, to the glory of Thy most Holy Name, through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

This Veteran Goodyear Conveyor Moves Nearly 1½ Million Tons of Wet Coal

OUTSTANDING ECONOMY

PLANT officials don't enthuse about the performance of their equipment. They expect long service and hard work.

Yet here's a Goodyear Conveyor Belt which so excited the admiration of Dominion Iron & Steel Company men at Sydney that they told the story of its long record.

Put into service on October 29, 1923, this Goodyear Belt is still working, after having moved nearly one and one-half million tons of wet coal.

Abrasion! Think of it! Weight! Picture it! Visualize, if you can, the relentless pounding, as this never-ending stream of jagged coal pours on and off the belt.

For four and a half years this Goodyear Belt has done its duty . . . simply because Goodyear first learned about the job to be done and then built a belt to do it.

And this belt is typical of the quality built into the whole Goodyear line of industrial rubber goods . . . belts, hose, packing, valves. Quality like this makes for greater economy and uninterrupted production in any plant.

Why not ask to-day for a trained Goodyear man to discuss your plant problems with you? He has a wealth of experience, but, still more important, he has the sincere desire to assist you in getting better service at less cost from your equipment. A post-card or 'phone call will bring him.

ECZEMA IN ITCHY PIMPLES

Affected Nearly All of Body. Cuticura Heals.

"Eczema broke out in pimples and affected most all my body. The pimples were not very large but were red and hard. Some of them festered and then scaled off. The pimples were so itchy and burned so much that I used to wake up in the night and scratch them. My clothing aggravated the breaking out very much.

"I began using Cuticura Soap and Ointment and in four weeks I was completely healed, after using two cakes of Cuticura Soap and two boxes of Cuticura Ointment." (Signed) Fredrick A. Zinck, Robinson's Corner, N. S.

Why Not End Constipation?

"Fruit-a-tives" a sure remedy

IF your tooth were aching would you put painkiller in it all the time and let it get worse, or would you have it filled and made strong again?

The same applies to correcting constipation. The only satisfactory remedy is one which, while relieving congestion, strengthens bowels, liver and kidneys to act without daily medicine. That is why Fruit-a-tives is the public favorite. Made only of fresh fruit juices and tonics, its whole effect on the system is natural and strengthening. Try it. 25c and 50c a box.

Field Day Withdrawn.

At a special meeting of the Athletic Association last week, it was decided to withdraw the annual field day celebration on the 24th of May. An excellent concert is being prepared to be given in Coronation Hall in the evening. A play entitled "Mrs. Temple's Telegram," will be the chief feature of the program, being given under the direction of O. R. Stalter.

Special Service on Sunday.

The morning service will be withdrawn in Trinity United Church next Sunday, but in the afternoon at three o'clock a public service will be held when the men's organization of First United Church, Lindsay, will be present. Mr. Shrubb was accompanied by Mrs. Shrubb and his two daughters, Nora and Nancy. START IN LONG RACE.

Of 553 who started in the annual London to Land's End motorcycle race this year, 474 finished the 326-mile event in less than 20 hours. The victors included 236 solo motorcycles, 74 side cars, 19 tricycles and 145 automobiles. The first competitors left Slough at 8:30 o'clock at night, and others followed at minute and half-minute intervals, the last starting at 2:33 next morning, by which time the first machine was 120 miles away. At Beggars' Roost, one of the steepest hills on the course, a crowd of 5,000 saw many drivers give up and quit, and for miles the road was congested with motor vehicles. D. F. Welsh on a French motorcycle won the event.

EVERYBODY who knew him, said it was one of those hopeless love-affairs. In a way, it seemed so. Max was thirty-eight, bald, short and rotund when Selma was the loveliest nineteen imaginable. She had that creamy Oriental quality which in its perfection was lovely. Dark, almond eyes. Black hair, rushing off a rather startlingly white brow, rich, full lips of dark red that was the culminating touch to her lusciousness.

All her life, even during those years when she had been cash-girl and finally saleslady in a mid-town department store, Selma had been marked, as it were, by beauty. The tenemental apartment which she shared with her parents on the East Side was dominated by it. The boys' and girls' clubs of that crowded downtown district had felt its influence. She was beautiful and popular and desired in those lowly circles where she moved with what was almost grandeur.

There was never a time since Max Elsberg first gazed upon her in the settlement house club that claimed her also as a member when he had not been desperately, hopelessly in love.

She was so gay. She was so distinguished by personality, beauty and geniality. He loved to watch those dark, rich lips of hers open into a smile. She had hands with the longest, slimmest, coolest-looking fingers and the dark wing of her hair sprang back off the whitest, coolest, loveliest of brows.

Max was in love, all right. The boys and girls of the circle in which he and Selma moved finally ceased to chaff him about it because after a while, it became, in a way, a little tragic.

Selma so obviously was not interested in Max. She had ambitions even while she was clerking in the midtown department store. All the boys and girls agreed she had a voice. A pretty, fluty one that rose above all others. She sang in the settlement house choral club.

As a matter of fact, Selma had no interest in the petty amours that presented themselves in the circle in which she moved. She had ambition. Rosa Epstein, now known as Rosa Varesi in the Metropolitan Opera forces, had had her beginnings in the very choral club where Selma lifted her pretty voice.

When Max was just beginning to succeed in the ribbon business, in fact, had already become president of quite a growing wholesale enterprise on Canal Street, Selma had neither eyes nor ears for him. Her pretty head was turned toward musical achievement. Every day, after business hours, she went for a vocal lesson to an obscure teacher in Carnegie Hall.

These lessons she paid for out of her scant salary.

It hurt Max almost like a physical pain to see the tired circles out under Selma's eyes when she came to the young folks' club at the settlement house evenings. Her ambitions were threatening to submerge her. Max, even when Selma did not favor him with so much as a smile or a word of greeting, continued to worry about her. She was so lovely, so tired, so mysteriously beautiful to him.

THEN, one day, Selma won a musical scholarship and was enabled to study with a much better known teacher in Carnegie Hall. What happened, of course, was this: Max had made the scholarship possible by secretly endowing it and manipulating its bestowal upon Selma. He was more than rewarded.

A new and radiant human being emerged from the fatigued Selma. Due to the generous provision of the scholarship, she was enabled to give up the position in the department store and all of its routine and devote her time exclusively to the voice-training. The circle of Selma's friends, full of confidence in the flute-like possibilities of her voice, watched with breathless enthusiasm the progress of her training.

Another Rosa Epstein was about to try her wings. There were those who claimed that Selma's voice had none of the lyrical qualities that had characterized her predecessor in the contest for fame. Rosa's had been a wild, untamed fount of a voice that required only the technique that training could achieve. Selma, on the other hand, they contended, was endowed with only a fragile, rather prettily melodious little organ that might not, even under training, expand into proportions of distinction.

Selma's teachers, while not committal, had faith in her quality of voice and her capacity for work. If ever a girl was endowed with pressing ambition and the desire to achieve fame and fortune, that girl was Selma.

She was dogged, even a little grim with it, willing to sacrifice in its behalf, to endure, to suffer, and even if need be, to make others suffer. That is, it never occurred to Selma that in the relentless conquest of the handicaps about her, she might be trampling on lesser lives.

Every aspect of her home life in the three rooms she shared with her old parents, centered around Selma's ambition. The rented piano was the nucleus around which that household revolved. The same might also be said of Max Elsberg's life. His waking and sleeping thoughts were not only on Selma but on Selma's ambitions. For three years, the scholarship which Selma took so much for granted, had fallen her way by the private machinations, manouverings, manipulations of one Max Elsberg.

As she became less and less obtainable to him personally, her ambition became his ambition. His enjoyments all became vicarious ones which came to him through the channels of Selma's gratifications. When Selma was happy, Max was happy. When his largesse brought to her gratifications that she never for one moment traced back to their source, namely, Max Elsberg, it seemed to him that the whole of his life was brightened and enhanced.

Sometimes, when whole weeks passed by and he did not so much as clap eyes on her, it did not matter as it might have, because he knew that life was falling along pleasant lines for her because of the invisible munificence which he could wield.

Then again, when they did meet and she had only a casual smile or a disinterested word for him, again it did not matter so much because Max knew that it was he who made possible the supreme gayety of her manner during those years when the goal of Selma's success was a shining and yet-to-be-attained star on the horizon.

In those years of Selma's apprenticeship, there were plenty of trials and tribulations and many the heartache that Max carried home with him from the settlement house when for some reason of fatigue or illness, she failed to appear there, or when he noticed in her bearing signs of discouragement or nervousneess.

To Max, Selma was all that is desirable. The Grand Lady. The genius, unattainable, glorious, and beautiful.

FINALLY, through more secret manouverings than even Max had ever mapped out for himself, he managed, through another of the anonymous scholarships, to bring Selma to the notice of a vocal teacher of international fame. For another year, in training under this man, an Italian to whom the American dollar loomed large, Selma continued her work toward the occasion of her debut, on which she had for practically all her life centered her interest and her desire.

She was frank about admitting that nothing in the world mattered beside the kind of ultimate success she had mapped out for herself. It was a tenacity of purpose that spoke well for achievement. Her voice might not have been the most wonderful in the world, but her ambition was.

When Selma was twenty-two, and her beauty more arresting and more somberly fascinating to Max than it had ever been, her bow to the musical public was finally arranged for.

A conspiracy of all that was genial and friendly and helpful combined toward this premiere of Selma's. From the fastness of his little office in the ribbon factory in Canal Street, Max Elsberg pursued a secret campaign of aid and abetment and exploitation that was worthy of a general.

No young artist had ever made her bow under auspices more favorable, more carefully prepared for than did Selma on the occasion of her first concert.

It seemed to Max as he sat in the audience and beheld her that night in the effulgence of her beauty; in the effulgence of her talent, and her success, that even if this gratification must last him for a lifetime, it was sufficient thereof.

However unattainable Selma had been to him heretofore, he realized now that her success would sweep her farther and farther from him like a tide. In many ways, to Max it was a poignant and beautiful farewell. He had created her only that he might the more surely lose her. There were tears in his eyes and his heart as he left the concert-hall that evening and yet, in back of it all, was a certain glory that could not be effaced.

WHAT happened subsequently happened to everyone concerned except to Max Elsberg. When the critics came out the next morning and unanimously proclaimed that Selma had everything necessary to make a singer except a voice, it was as if her friends tottered over like so many tenpins. It was as if with one blow, the whole world that surrounded Selma had toppled on its side into chaos and destruction and chagrin.

It was something, because it was so unbelievable, that entered the consciousness slowly at first and then lodged there. Selma was a failure. An out-and-out failure. To everyone, including herself, except Max.

There was never a time probably when the import of what had happened crashed fully upon him. To him, the success and unassailability and genius of Selma were so real that even when she came to him later, like a broken doll when the secret of his largesse had somehow leaked out to her, she was still the grand lady, the beautiful prima donna, the desired.

She is still the grand lady to Max. They have three children now and one of them, the eldest, promises to fulfill her mother's unfulfilled destiny.

Yes, she is still the grand lady to Max, the most desirable and to him her genius is without question.

"NOW FAWNCY THAT"

The members of the Immaculate Conception Dramatic Society excelled themselves in their smooth-running and always effective presentation of the comedy-drama, "Now Fawncy That," given in aid of the Peterborough Baseball Club at the Grand last night. While the attendance was not as large as the excellence of the program or the merit of the cause in which it was given deserved, the presentation was an artistic success, every moment of which was thoroughly enjoyed.

The players had three times before presented Rev. Father Johnston's play within a play at St. Alphonsus' Lyceum with splendid effect, but facing a new audience and working in a regular theatre last evening, they arose to the occasion and scored their biggest success.

"Now Fawncy That" is an Irish play that is different. Its author, a young Toronto priest, who has written several works for the stage, has included in this effort all the ingredients that go to make up an appealing production. Love interest, love of home, love of country, mystery, suspense, unexpected twists in the action and the revelation of the plot skilfully kept back until the final moments of the play, when it is done with a punch that tells. Most of the action takes place in Ireland, but there is one scene in a Paris underworld dive that is memorable because of the elements of tragedy and comedy that are intermingled.
